Mrs. Frank L. Farrell entertained with a vocal solo, Come, Sing to Me (Thompson) and Walter LaFontaine sang Wonderful World of Ours. Henry J. LaFontaine and Walter LaFontaine were then heard in a duet number, Old Kentucky. This was followed by a solo, One More Day (E. K. Ball) by Mrs. G. H. Roberts, and a vocal number, Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses, by Miss Marguerite Driscoll.

The next number of the programme was a drill by sixteen boy scouts of Troops 5 and 10 at the close of which Scout Henry Matthew, in behalf of the boy scouts, presented Father Guerriero a purse of money. The presentation of the parish purse was made by Michael J. Curran. Mr. Curran spoke very highly of Father Guerriero's work in Norwich. He will not soon be forgotten, said Mr. Curran. My personal knowledge of Father Guerriero's activities has been one continuous record of loving service and good deeds. We cannot add to his character but we can bear loving testimony of his intense devotion to his sacred calling. While we rejoice at his promotion to a larger field our happiness is tinged with regret that he has left us. Mr. Curran, on behalf of the parish, presented Father Guerriero a purse of $800.

Father Guerriero expressed his deep appreciation of the gifts. In a very interesting way he spoke of his new duties in Bridgeport. He said the parish there is much larger than St. Patrick's parish.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to an informal social during which many of those present took occasion to shake hands with Father Guerriero and extend him best wishes in his new field of labor. The reception committee comprised the following:

Rev. M. H. May, Rev. John Riley, Michael J. Murphy, president of Holy Name Society; Alexander Kilroy and John R. Tarrant, trustees; Miss Annie Stanton, president of Rosary Society; Miss Anna Edwards, president of the Sodality and Altar Societies; Mrs. John Gallivan, vice president of Catholic Women's Club; Albert Ziegelmayer, Fred Aldi Leonard Suntheimer, John Hill, Scoutmaster; Rev. Myles Gallivan, chairman, John P. Corcoran secretary.

WHEELER SCHOOL WILL CELEBRATE CHRISTMAS SEASON

The Wheeler school, North Stonington, is preparing to celebrate the Christmas season on rather a larger scale than usual. The entire school, pupils and faculty, have joined forces to give a dramatic production of a unique and interesting character.

Those who saw the play Why the Chimes rang given at Wheeler school three years ago will have an opportunity of seeing it again, rather more elaborated, with a 16th century pageant setting. Singing of many of the most beautiful old Christmas carols by the entire school will be one of the special features of the celebration.

Why the Chimes Rang in a play that will always be welcomed both by those who have the privilege of producing it and by those who have the opportunity of witnessing it.

Mrs. Aubrey L. Whitelaw is directing the production of the play and pageant, the music is in charge of Headmaster F. E. Reed, assisted by Mrs. Norton Fisher, and Mrs. Reed is chairman of the costume committee. The pageant will be given on two consecutive evenings, probably on Thursday and Friday of the week before Christmas.

Omitting Special Service.

The special Thanksgiving service which was to have been held Thursday at 8 o'clock at St. Andrew's church will be omitted as Rev. Leopel E. W. Mitchell, rector of the church, was called to Bethel Tuesday by the death of his grandmother. The morning prayer will be read at 10 o'clock as previously announced.

We are apt to condemn in others what we practice ourselves without scruple.

FRENCH DEPUTIES VOTE CONFIDENCE IN GOVERNMENT

Paris, Nov. 25.—(By the A. P.)—The chamber of deputies today gave the government a vote of confidence, 318 to 106, on an interpellation by Deputy Pierre Taittinger regarding incidents which occurred during the march across Paris by communists at Juares ceremonies Sunday.

The interpellation brought about a violent scene in the house, and after a lengthy debate Premier Herriott declared that an adverse vote would mean that the house had lost confidence in the government.

M. Taittinger denounced Sunday's proceedings as a "revolutionary saturnalia." He said General Nollet, minister of war, had been compelled to flee in order to escape the revolutionary manifestation, and that passers-by were forced to salute the red flag. When he declared that the danger had been increased by the presence of the intrnational underworld, the extreme left called loudly upon him to speak of the international underworld and Billiet's cheques.

This was a reference to Senator Billiet, who, as president of the Association of Economic Interests, is accused by the left of handling a heavy election fund in the recent election.

M. Taittinger immediately charged the members of the present government with receiving money from the association, and responding to pressing cries for names, said that a certain list of the Rhone department, in which M. Herriot's name appeared, had received a subvention from this association.

Premier Herriot explained that this incident had to do with the 1919 elections, not 1924, as the deputy wished it to appear, the association at that time, M. Herriott continued, might have been considered as pursuing an honorable object, and Senator Billiet had sought to gain a nadvantage by Herriot's popularity.

Cdies for further names prevented M. Taittinger from proceeding with his speech, but the dputy declared that he would give names only before a commission of inqury. He became so exasperated that amid the clamor for names, the slamming of desk lids and the bdandishing of fists, M. Taittinger left the speaker's stand.

The tumult was such that Vice President Bouisson was reaching for his hat to suspend the sitting, when M. Herriot rose to make some observations on Sunday's manifestation. To his mind the reported disorder had been greatly exaggerated. General Nollet had not fled. Nollet," he asserted, "is incapable of fleeing." The government had only respected the republican law which tolerates the red flag if bearing inscriptions.

"The government," continued the premier, "will combat communism. We are for the republic with its principles and doctrines, and have confidence in the virtue of the people."

OBITUARY.

J. Henry King

Failing health due to the infirmities of old age caused the death Tuesday night, of J. Henry King, 83, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clinton Goodwin of Lebanon. Mr. King was born on April 13th, 1841, the son of Joseph King of Saybrook and Abbie Shapley of Lebanon. When a young man he learned the carpenter's trade and worked at this trade for many years.

On November 12, 1866 he was united in marriage with Miss Phoebe E. Peckham who passed away in 1884. Three children came of this union, all daughters. Two of the daughters died when young. Mrs. Clinton Goodwin being the only daughter surviving. In June 1885 Mr. King was married to Mrs. Lucille Loomis who survives him. He was a member of the Goshen Congregational church and always took an interest in church affairs.

He was also active in the politics of the towns in which he resided representing Lebanon in the state legislature in 1855 and representing Franklin at the constitutional convention in 1904. He served as first selectman of the town of Franklin for 10 years, from 1893 to 1903, after which he declined to serve a longer period. He was also a member of the town board of relief for two years.

Surviving besides his widow and daughter are one sister, Mrs. Martha Cross of Norwich Town, who will observe her 90th birthday in January, and a step-sister, Mrs. Frank Davidson of Oxford, Mass.

COMBAT TRAIN WINS HECTIC GAME FROM FABER'S INDOOR BASEBALL TEAM

The Combat Train won a heated debate on the "Rights and Benefits of Indoor Baseball" from Faber's Demons Tuesday evening. The indoor baseball game that was more or less of a side issue was also won by the Combat Train by a score of 4 to 3 in seven hectic innings. The Combat debating club was led by Capt. Burdick who vociferously and vehemently voiced his opinion on indoor baseball, the personnel of the visiting team, the proper government of the armory and everything in general, his chief means of clinching his argument being his phrase "If you don't stop arguing I'll stop the game and put you out of the armory." Capt. Burdick had the full support of his company and at times they argued even more loudly than their commanding officer.

The negative or affirmative, or which ever side the Demons took, was taken by Joe Faber, International league star, who has hit more baseballs than his opposing debater ever saw. Joe, who knows baseball from cover to cover, refused to be argued down when he thought he was right. Joe was just as fiery in his assertion of his rights and rules of the game when the occasion demanded. This fighting spirit shown by Joe was unusual for in the games played this year with Battery H, there has been no arguments or in fact there were no arguments last year among any of the teams except with the Combat Train. This is something of a coincidence.

To get back to the ball game it might be said that it was a real game if it had not been marred and delayed by the frequent arguments. The playing was fast and snappy both teams playing good ball from the first inning. The score see-sawed back and forth during the seven innings until the seventh and last inning when with two out and a man on third Mgr. Leo Cimikoski of the Combatants hit a fly ball that Murphy of the Demons missed letting in the winning run.

Faber and Manchester comprised the Battery for the Demons and Tracy Burdick and Tombari for the winners. Games like this while furnishing plenty of excitement are not a help to the sport. These games are played simply for the sport and not for blood or money and should be played in a friendly rather than an antagonistic manner.

BULKELEY MAY PLAY STAMFORD ON SATURDAY

New London, Nov. 25—Old Jupe Pluvious and his contemporaries just about spoiled an intended Bulkeley football party at Stamford Saturday. With Jupe Pluvius leading the remaining elements in making the day a disagreeable one, he shed his tears in such a profuse manner that the field of battle, Hallowe'en Park was knee deep in mud. A pool here and a pool there and with more rain coming down, it was thought advisable to make a reservoir out of the field rather than expect to have a game played on that field.

A conference between Coaches William R. Canty of Bulkeley and Michael Boyle of Stamford resulted in a postponed game. The Bulkeley squad of twenty three players, coach and manager after spending the evening at the Hotel Hazelton, broke camp at their Stamford rendezvous and departed for the Whaling City while others made a trip to New York where an enjoyable time was had. The postponement of the game came about at noon and those players who left for New London on the next train arrived at New London from Stamford at 3.58.

An attempt was made to bring Bulkeley and Stamford together later in the season but while Thanksgiving Day is out of the question because Brooklyn Evening High will be Stamford's opponent, yet there is a possibility that Saturday, November 29 will see the two teams come together. The only thing which is holding up the definite announcement of this game is that Stamford is bound by a part agreement to meet Washington, D. C. High school at the Lock City. If the plans fall through for this game it is most likely that a game between these traditional rivals will materialise.

Bridgeport High and New Britain High have been extended an invitation to play here on Thanksgiving Day but while New Britain High refuses flatly to play the wearers of the Orange and Black, the Park City management has been slow in answering whether that eleven would care to meet Bulkeley.

While there is a possibility that Bulkeley may yet play one or more games before the moleskins are stored away for good, yet if answers to the invitations extended by Bulkeley for games are not accepted the team will disband with the Torrington game the last on the schedule.

LARGE NUMBER OF CANDIDATES OUT FOR YALE HOCKEY

New Haven, Nov. 25—One hundred fifty eight men reported for the varsity and freshman hockey squad at the organization meeting at Yale university tonight, including eight letter men who were members of last year's squad. John T. Blossom, graduate manager of athletics, in a talk to the men, said that Yale would have a rink of its own next year. The university squad was deprived of its rink when the old arena here was burned last summer. A committee is now working on plans for the rink and searching for the proper site. The new rink will be ready for the winter of 1925.

Until the Christmas vacation, the Yale squad will practice on the Princeton rink, going to New Jersey twice a week. After New Years, practice will be continued on a rink at Woodbridge, near here.

"KING" RICKARD PUTS BAN ON BROADCASTING FIGHTS

New York, Nov. 25.—Radio broadcasting of boxing bouts is at an end, so far as Tex Rickard is concerned, it was learned at Madison Square Garden today. The reason given by one close to the New York promoter is that use of the radio keeps down attendance at bouts.

For the past three years title boxing matches have been fought before microphones, the thud of gloves and the shouts of listeners. Expert critics have been assigned to task of describing the contests and the faraway "spectator" has been given everything except the actual view of the combatants.

Garden officials said that the radio listener has been satisfied with this blow by blow story as broadcast and therefore has not contributed his financial share to the support of the sport.

Baseball contests, especially the world series, and the leading football games have been played "on the air" also.

Whether the attendance at the Wills-Firpo bout in Jersey City when only 40,000 of an anticipated 75,000 appeared, had influenced the reported decision, the informant would not say. Rickard is said to have lost $50,000 when the final figures for the Boyle's Thirty Acres combat were reported, but at the time the lack of interest was laid to Firpo's legal difficulties rather than the presence of the radio.

Football fans this fall have thronged American stadiums to greater number than ever and at every important contest the radio has told its story.

Y. M. C. A. OFFERS USE OF GYM TO BULKELEY

New London, Nov. 25.—Arrangement whereas the Bulkeley basketball squad will practice this year has been completed between the Bulkeley management and officials of the Y. M. C. A. The preliminary steps necessary to bring about the squad into condition for its first game has begun with little progress. The uncertainty of whether the football team has disbanded for the year is the only thing which is holding up more definite steps being taken at the initial workouts.

No systematic organization of the squad has been made as yet, for William R. Canty, who has been selected to coach the Orange and Black court men this coming winter has not severed his relations with the football team and until he does the progress of the basketball team towards attaining its semi-mid-season form will have to be postponed for at least another week.

The eligibility rules were explained to the members of the squad by Head Master Homer K. Underwood. Also those eligible for the captaincy were named. There is much speculation as to the leader of the court men for this coming campaign and it is causing many outsiders to side either with one individual or another. It has been discussed, with emphasis being placed that veterans be only considered in the selection of a captain. Then others are expecting that a selection will be made of the players who will be in action for the first four or five games. Whoever will finally win that coveted position will settle a question which is uppermost in the minds of those interested in Bulkeley basketball circles. Until that time the question will be a much debated one.

FALCONE OLYMPIC WINNER BY ONE-POINT MARGIN

The "Y" Olympic games came to a successful close in the Y. M. C. A. gym last night, when James Falcone defeated his closest rival, Rolland Harris by the small margin of one point, thereby winning the Clegg Trophy and capturing the title of all round athletic champion of the local "Y". This year's contest called for considerable competition and both Falcone and Harris maintained the lead only by winning practically every one of the fifteen events that comprised the Olympic series. Following closely at the heels of Falcone and Harris were R. Hiscox, Fred Handy, H. Harkness, W. Selvidio, Harvey Lacomb and Floyd Lambert.

Senior division—

Employed boys' division—

J. Falcone, Belgium 1057 points; F. Barber, Canada 911; W. Krohn, France 660; L. Grover, Holland 515. Leading individuals, J. Falcone, W. Selvidio, Floyd Lamber, W. Krohn, A. Krohn, D. Angelopolis, Frank Barber.

Juniors' division—

R. Hiscox, Denmark 1274 points; R. Wilson, Japan 1120; L. Pitt, Italy 979; T. Lynch, Greece 509. Leading individuals, R. Hiscox, H. Harkness, N. Grieco, R. Burke, P. Grieco, C. Henschel, R. Wilson.

ARMY DEVOTING ATTENTION TO DEFENSIVE PLAYS

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Army football team, with one day of home practice remaining before the clash with Navy at Baltimore, devoted itself today to defense against plays expected to come from the Middies on Saturday.

Coach McEwan is still undecided on the quarterback position and may not make known his selection before Thursday morning, when the team leaves for the scene of action. Baxter's appearance at end also remains a question, but the mentors hope to have him in shape to start the contest. Saunders appears to be the likely choice for the vacant tackle position.

DISQUALIFICATION OF BELL CREATES SOME ARGUMENT

New York, Nov. 25—The disqualification of John D. Bell, of Brooklyn, after he carried the Orange of Syracuse University to first place in the intercollegiate cross-country race yesterday, aroused considerable comment and some criticism today in metropolitan athletic circles.

Critics of the decision of Intercollegate A. A. A. A. authorities, who acted on formal protests, admitted the rule barring Bell, which specifies that no college runner may compete as a freshman if he has won an A. A. U. place in open competition, it clearly drawn but at the same time they insisted it had not been rigidly enforced in several years and suggested that a move might be made to have it rescinded.

On the other hand, Gustavus T Kirby chairman of the advisory committee of the I. C. A. A. A. A., declared he personally regarded the rule as necessary and added that it had been adhered to strictly so far as his knowledge went. No complaints of its effect, he said, had reached him.

"It does not seem fair to me," said Mr. Kirby, "that a runner who has proved successful in open competition should race on an even basis with ordinary college freshmen who have had little or no experience. Mr. Keans, the Syracuse coach, entered Bell because of a misunderstanding as to the rule and readily accepted our decision. No question of Bell's amateur status is involved. When he leaves the freshman class next year he will be free to compete in varsity competition."

Bell was a member of this year's Olympic team, gaining a place on the steeplechase squad. Previously he had competed for several years in club circles here.

TWO NEW TEAMS GET PLACE ON HARVARD SCHEDULE

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 25—Two new opponents, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and William and Mary College, appear on the Harvard football schedule for 1925, made public today by the Harvard Athletic Association, subject to the formal approval of the athletic committee. Another innovation in the 1925 season will be the playing of the Brown game at Providence in connection with the inauguration of the new Brown athletic plant.

Oct. 3, Rensselaer; 10, Middlebury; 17, Holy Cross; 24, Dartmouth; 31, William and Mary; Nov. 7, Princeton at Princeton; 14, Brown at Providence; 21, Yale.

In making public the schedule, the H. A. A. appended the following reference to the new opponents selected by the Crimson for next year:

Rensselaer has been well coached and has played good football for several years. William and Mary is, next to Harvard, the oldest college in the United States, having been formed in 1693. This team has made rapid strides in football during the past two or three years. It is coached by J. W. Tasker, a Syracuse man and a pupil of the Rockne school of football. Rockne himself, who was formerly connected with the William and Mary faculty, reorganized football coaching at William and Mary some two years and the team has since followed his system with considerable success.

"W. T. Hodges, chairman of the William and Mary athletic committee, is now engaged in his second year of graduate study in the department of education at Harvard.

"The Brown game will be played at Providence as one of the dedication games of the new stadium and in appreciation of the fact that Brown has played Harvard at Cambridge for more than 30 years."

Hamilton, N. Y., Nov. 25.—The Colgate grid team left tonight for Providence, R. I., where it will meet Brown, Thanksgiving day, in the closing game of the season. Coach Harlow announced tonight that the same team that started against Syracuse will undoubtedly take the field against Brown.

Golden Jerseys for Navy

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 25—The naval academy football team this afternoon appeared in bright golden jerseys instead of the traditional blue, a change of garb which will be in evidence publicly for the first time when the army team is encountered in Baltimore next Saturday.

Howe to be Williams Leader

Williamstown, Mass., Nov. 25—Frederick W. Howe, Jr., of Providence, R. I., was elected captain of the Williams College football team today. Howe, a junior, has played halfback for two seasons and has also been a member of the hockey and track teams.

KAPLAN WILL MEET LOMBARDO IN SEMI-FINAL FOR FEATHERWEIGHT TITLE

New York, Nov. 25.—Jose Lombardo of Panama and Louis Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., will be the principals in the semi-final match in the featherweight elimination to be held at Madison Square Garden December 12. Danny Kramer, Philadelphian lefthander, will meet the winner of this match in the final round of the tournament three weeks later.

This was determined by a draw made today at the offices of the state athletic commission in the presence of the managers of the three principals. The commission suggested a proposition to the three managers that Bobby Garcia of Camp Holabird, Md., and Mike Dundee of Rock Island, Ill., be matched up in a 12-round bout prior to the December 12 fight and the winner meet Danny Kramer in another bracket of the semi-final but the managers unanimously rejected the proposition and the commission announced it would go through with the original schedule.

Dundee and Garcia were defeated in the first round of the tournament but the commission thought that a doubt existed in the mind of the public as to the margin of defeat and the proposition to readmit them to the tournament was made but promptly squelched by Bob Levy, manager of Jose Lombardo, Max Hoff, manager of Danny Kramer and Dennis McMahon, manager of Louis (Kid) Kaplan.

The commission ruled the semi-final match would be scheduled for 12-rounds and the final bout 15 rounds. In the event of a draw in the semi-final match the principals will fight three more rounds.

HAYNES WILL RIDE FOR WERTHEIMER NEXT SEASON

New York, Nov. 25—Everett Haynes, American jockey who rode Pierre Wertheimer's French thoroughbred, Epinard, in the three international specials in this country, has signed to ride for Wertheimer on the French turf for 1925, he announced today upon arriving on the Majestic to visit relatives here and in Oklahoma City.

The re-engagement of Haynes was viewed among turfmen as interesting in view of the criticism levelled at the jockey for his handling of Epinard, particularly in the second special at Aqueduct, when Ladkin won from the invader by a nose.

Haynes disclosed that one of the handicaps Epinard encountered was that he was forced to race to the left in making turns in accordance with American track customs. Epinard, Haynes said, had done this only once before coming here.

INT. LEAGUE MEETING AT NEW YORK FRIDAY

New York, Nov. 25.—The annual meeting of the International Baseball League will be held at the Hotel Commodor here Friday morning at 11 o'clock, according to an announcement made by President John Conway Toole, today.

The question of the major league draft, an issue tactfully pigeonholed at the spring meeting, is likely to be the chief topic of discussion. President Toole said that routine business would take up most of the time of the meeting which he expects will be confined to one day.

ARMY-NAVY SECONDS OPEN SEASON ON DECEMBER 2ND

The Army-Navy Seconds, under the management of "Red" Burelle will open the season at the same time the regular Army-Navy team opens its season, December 2nd. The Seconds will clash with the Baltic Bantams in the preliminary to the Army-Navy and South Manchester game at Parish Hall on Next Tuesday evening. The Seconds will put the following men on the floor: Gladue and Peltier, forward; St. Germain, center; "Bus" Murphy and Eddie Murphy, guards; Gauthier and Eccleston, subs. Any team desiring games should write to Manager Burelle, Box 131, Taftville, Conn.

SYRACUSE PREPARES FOR COLUMBIA AT RYE, N. Y.

SEASON ATTENDANCE RECORD IS SET FOR CHICAGO GAMES

Chicago, Nov. 25.—(By The A. P.)—More than 245,000 football fans witnessed the University of Chicago eleven in its eight game flight to the western conference championship, setting a new season attendance record for the Maroons. The previous high mark was in 1923 when 222,280 saw Coach Stagg's players in action.

These figures, announced tonight, indicated that the receipts for the 1924 season will reach the $500,000 mark, half of which went to the Maroon's opponents. After expenses have been deducted, it is expected that a profit of $200,000 will be realized.

SEEKING SOLUTION OF THE SHEATSLEY MYST.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 25.—Investigators seeking a solution of the Bexley furnace mystery tonight awaited a report from Chemist C. F. Long and Dr. H. M. Brundage, a pathologist, which is expected to show whether or not brownish crimson stains discovered yesterday on a number of articles in the Christ-Evangelical Lutheran church parsonage, where the practically cremated body of Mrs. Addie Sheatsley was found in the furnace Nov. 17 are splotches of human blood.

The Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, husband of the victim, at Paris, Ohio, where he and his four children are visiting relatives, announced that the stains were "probably rabbit blood." He explained that he shot four rabbits two days before the tragedy and that they were dressed in the parsonage basement.

Mr. King and Detective Harry Carson today went to Lithpolis where they interviewed Mrs. Gladys Redels who the prosecutor believes was the last friend of the family to see the victim alive. Mrs. Redels is the wife of the pastor of the Lutheran church at Lithpolis, 18 miles southeast of Columbus.

She told the investigators, they said, that Mrs. Sheatsley appeared to be in a normal state of mind the day of her visit.

BANKER RECOVERING FROM SELF-INFLICTED WOUND

Grafton, Mass., Nov. 25.—While Oliver Wing, treasurer of the Grafton Savings and Grafton Co-Operative banks, continued to show improvement at Worcester City hospital from the self-inflicted bullet wound in the head, representatives of the state bank examiner's office were at work on the books of the savings bank.

Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen issued a statement tonight in which he said the examination was proceeding satisfactorily and that thus far no discrepancies had been found. Physicians said tonight it was possible they would be able to save the sight of one of Mr. Wing's eyes which was injured by the bullet.

The confidence in the integrity of Mr. Wing was demonstrated today by the large number of deposits made in the Grafton Savings bank even while the three bank examiners were at work.

THREE MORE INDICTMENTS SOUGHT AGAINST KORETZ

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Three more indictments will be sought against Leo Koretz, alleged swindler, it was announced today by State Attorney Robert E. Crowe.

Koretz is now under only one indictment, the charge being that of operating a confidence game. By increasing the number he can be held under high bonds while awaiting trial, the prosecutor said.

State's Attorney Swoer indicated today that he would oppose any move upon the government's party to have Koretz released in the federal courts.

Mr. Crowe said the swindler was his prisoner and he intended that he would remain so until the state's case was disposed of.

It was ascertained today that Mrs. Koretz, the absconder's wife, is not in such difficult financial straits as has been published. Investigators found her living in a bungalow at Winnetka, a North Shore suburb, which has been purchased for $15,000. She was found to be sharing a garage with a neighbor who reported that she owned an automobile and employed a maid servant.

TRANS-ATLANTIC RADIO PHENOMENAL SUCCESS

New York, Nov. 25.—Trans-Atlantic broadcasting was termed a "phenomenal success" following first reports made by amateurs after tonight's foreign program, by Radio Broadcasting, the publication sponsoring the project.

The magazine reported that before tonight's test was over they were receiving telegraphic and telephonic reports of successful reception of programs from Aberdeen, Scotland, Newcastle and Bournemouth, England, and Madrid, Spain, by amateurs throughout the eastern states.

One amateur in the Bronx received a piano recital broadcast at Aberdeen so plainly on his loud speaker that he transmitted the music over the telephone to the magazine's office in Garden City, L. I., where it was plainly audible.

Amateurs throughout the eastern states reported that the Aberdeen station was the plainest heard but scores also got the announcement, a banjo solo and a xylophone number from Madrid and many reported getting the Newcastle and Bournemouth stations.

CONTEST CONTINUES IN MADISON TOWN ELECTION

New Haven, Nov. 25.—Though the first contest which grew out of the Madison town election on October 6, has not yet been decided by the court, a second contest for minor offices involved in the same election—the board of relief, constables and grand jurors—is to be taken up by superior court tomorrow morning.

The first contest, between the regular and independent republicans, for first and second selectmen and for registrar of voters, was heard in superior court last week and Judge Allyn L. Brown is expected to hand down his decision soon. The issue in the second contest is somewhat similar though the point at issue appears to be the claim that the moderator declared democrats elected, so as to give that party minority representation on the various boards.

The men involved in the second contest are Edward N. Willard, regular republican, who was declared defeated by August Proll for the board of relief; Adam Muzzer, Albert Baisden and Harry Bishop, for constables; Herbert Stone, J. J. Wafer and William H. Snell for grand jurors.

Graft in Olden Days

Those who talk of present-day graft would be interested in itemizing the emoluments of the keeper of the Tower of London during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. His nominal salary was only about $500 a year, but he had numerous privileges. Most of the prisoners, being political offenders of high rank, were granted liberal allowances by the government for their board. Whenever they were too proud to accept this allowance it fell to the warden.

Moreover, this official was entitled to seize all cattle that slipped off London bridge, all carts that fell into the moat, all flotsam and jetsam in the Thames, all swans that floated between the bridge, two tuns of wine from every vessel arriving from Bordeaux a toll of sea food from every fishing craft landing at London, and as many rushes as "a person could hold between two arms" from boats carrying such cargo, besides a fee on all hides cured at East Smithfield, near the tower.

'S LEADING TO ARREST OF KORETZ

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 25—Accident and taste for good clothes led to the arrest of Leo Koretz after he had for almost a year successfully evaded arrest for Chicago land swindles said to total more than $3,000,000.

Horace A. Fleming, secretary to the board of directors of the bank of Nova Scotia, admitted today that it was Chicago authorities that Koretz had through information sent by him to been apprehended. The tell-tale clue that brought Nova Scotia's "eccentric retired millionaire" of the past year to justice was a label in a coat made by a Chicago tailor.

Koretz known here as Lou Keyte, a cultured gentleman who devoted his life to gratifying a hobby for rare books and the upbuilding of a fine estate he had purchased near Halifax, ordered a new suit of F. J. Hiltz, Halifax tailor, two weeks ago. Hiltz previously had made three suits of silk, fur trimmed pajamas for his client, who had expressed himself quite pleased with them despite the cost of $150 a suit.

The cultured Mr. Keyte explained that he was particular as to the cut of his suit. He couldn't explain just what he wanted, but he could show Hiltz, he said, producing an old suit.

"Copy that suit," he said, as he left, "and then renovate the old one. It'll do for loiling about in."

Hiltz noticed that the label had been cut from the coat's inside pocket, but in renovating the garment came upon another label in the lining. It bore the name of 'Leo Koretz" over the the signature of an exclusive Chicago tailor. Fleming another customer happened in the shop about that time, and Hiltz began to discuss the "eccentric retired millionaire" showing the banker the hidden label.

Fleming, shown that his bank had given "Keyte" high endorsement, communicated the peculiar find to the Chicago authorities last week and Assistant States' Attorneys Sharbaro and McSwiggin immediately came here to arrest the "eccentric millionaire," who is said to have confessed and who now is awaiting extradition.

FUGITIVE KORETZ OWNS BOOK SHOP IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 25.—Leo Koretz of Chicago, who awaits extradition at Halifax as a $2,000,000 swindler, purchased while a fugitive from justice, and still owns, the Neighborhood Book Shop, Inc., on the exclusive end of Madison avenue, it was disclosed today.

Temple Scott, a well-to-do publishers' reader, author and lecturer at New York City college, is supervisor of the shop.

Soon after Koretz fled Chicago, last February, Scott related, a cultured-looking man with a heavy dark beard appeared at one of the Scott lectures, introduced himself as "Lou Keyte, a lover of books," and expressed a desire to purchase a book store in this city.

Scott thought that he was talking to a man with a passing whim, but when he told "Keyte" the neighborhood store was for sale, $10,000 was immediately forthcoming and the deal was closed, with "Keyte" sole owner, and for a time, manager. There were several clerks. Scott was supervisor.

"About the time it appears the Chicago police were scenting Koretz's trail, he—whom I know as Keyte—announced his health was failing and he must return to his home in Halifax." Scott's story continued. "I remained in charge."

"During my vacation in New Hampshire I ran up to Halifax and visited Keyte. Everything was as he had described it. A beautiful estate, comfortable home, luxurious appointments, servants, money—and plenty of books. I found myself in the environment with which a cultured gentleman of means surrounds himself."

JEWETT CITY

An item of fifty years ago contains names of interest to those who are living, and recalls the activities of those days. It is an account of the second quarterly meeting of the W. C. T. U. held in the Congregational church. The officers of the society were Mrs. Dea. H. L. Johnson—so it reads—president, Mrs. Edwin Bennett and Mrs. Jane Bishop, vice presidents, Mrs. Phebe Willcox, treasurer, and Mary Soule, secretary. Of these officers only Mrs. Bennett is living. The programme was partly given by the Cold Water Army, then a very flourishing society of children. There was an address to the children written by Mrs. H. L. Reade and read by Bessie Bromley, a recitation by Daisy Mathewson. A recitation, Choice of Trades, was given by Homer Lee, Frank Bishop, Raymond Willcox, Lucy Young, Hattie Wilcox, Daisy Ray, Rena S. Sweet, Otis G. Sweet, Eleanor Greene, Frank Barrows and Johnnie Bennett, all of the Cold Water Army. Mrs. James D. Roberts gave a recitation. There was a song by Mrs. S. B. Geer, Mrs. John Hutchinson, Mrs. Edwin Bennett and Mrs. Phebe Willcox, with Mrs. Horace Olin at the organ. John Miller recited, Mrs. Addie Gardiner read a poem, Mrs. Hutchinson and Mary Soule sang a duet, Delia A. Soule recited. An original address to the boys by one of their number Herbert Irons, was given, Carrie Soule recited and Mrs. S. B. Geer san. Mary L. Brown read a poem. James O. Sweet called for a vote of thanks to the speaker, Mrs. Earle of Worcester, and George W. Brown asked for a vote of thanks for all those who took part. Only two of these people now live in Jewett City. Mrs. Horace Olin and Mrs. Delia Soule Robinson and sixteen of the number, at least, are dead. But relatives of nearly all of them are still living here.

The flames spread rapidly and had it not been raining it is feared all the surrounding buildings, including the grocery store, would have burned. The parsonage was built and occupied by Robert Spicer in 1836 and was the first inn and postoffice in Westminster.

NEW LONDON COURT DISCIPLINES OFFENDING WILLIMANTIC DRIVER

Special to The Bulletin.

New London, Nov. 25.—New London police officers mean that motorists shall pay some attention to the rights of others when the former are traversing the streets of this city. Michael Barca of this city and Morris Specter, of Willimantic, were made to realize the fact that they must consider autoists on the road when intersecting streets are reached when there is congestion. Officer Graham came upon Barca as he passed the avenue leading to the Thames river bridge. There were a couple of cars coming from Crystal avenue when Barca reached there, but instead of showing a disposition to allow the cars to get to a place of safety Barca corkscrewed between cars and the trolley car that was passing and barely got by. Officer Graham could not get to him to overhaul him, but he got his number and when he saw Barca on the street a short time afterward he summoned him to court. Barca denied that he was in his car as the officer said, but he could not account for the number being taken. The court did not believe what Barca said and fined him $10. Specter's case was even more aggravated. He crowded against the automobile of Dr. Stuart Lawson and damaged it. Realizing that he was at fault Specter offered to pay for any damage he had occasioned, but he then endeavored to escape that penalty and did not pay. He was arrested and fined $10 today. The police say they have never encountered a fellow who clung to his money as Specter did. He resorted to every scheme until a mittimus was issued that would land him in jail, when he arranged to pay.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Hodgson this evening observed the 50th anniversary of their marriage, at their home on Ramsdell street, where friends and relatives called to wish them years of happiness. They were married in Boothbay, Me., and soon after came to Groton to reside. For forty years they have made their home in the village and there have won the esteem and respect of friends. Mr. Hodgdon has been employed as engineer and purser on the ferry boat that crosses the river most of that time and as such has made many acquaintances. They have one son, Alfred Freeland, and two grandchildren, both grown up. Friends called this evening and left remembrances of the happy occasion in gifts of gold, silver and other useful articles. Mr. Hodgdon is a member of the Odd Fellow lodge in Groton, of the Masonic fraternity in New London and of the United Workmen lodge in Groton.

Miss E. Louise Loosley, Brainard street, is at Warwick Neck, R. I., where she will be the guest for several days of Rev. Alfred Poole Grint, former rector of St. James' church, this city and Mrs. Grint.

Patrolman John E. Hogan was unable to perform duty tonight, being confined to his home, Montauk avenue, on account of illness.

The Billings P. Learned mission long ago, outgrew its present quarters, North Bank street, and for which a large and more convenient home has long been sought, late yesterday through its trustees, George Whittlesey, Henry Holt Smith and William H. Reeves, acquired of Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, acting therein by Frederick W. Mercer, the property on the west side of Main street, corner of Federal street. The newly acquired property will, within a short time, be made ready for the occupancy of the mission. The property was formerly the residence of the late Sebastian D. Lawrence and until a few months ago was the home of the Young Womens Christian association. The acquisition of the property was made possible through the sale of the mission property to the Day Publishing company, through Theodore Bodenwein, president of the company. The property adjoins that of the publishing company and will eventually be used as a part of the plant of the publication.

It is anticipated that fire insurance adjusters will arrive here some time Wednesday and attempt to adjust the losses of Oscar St. Germain, Waterford and Joseph McNamara, 33 Truman street, whose cottages at the Golden Spur were attacked by flames last Friday night. One of the St. Germain cottages was entirely destroyed and the other was badly damaged, as was the McNamara cottage.

Andrew Bruce Gard, 93, one of New London's oldest residents and former business men, died this morning at his home, 227 Montauk avenue, after an illness of many months caused by infirmities attending his advanced years. He is survived by a son, Frank W. Gard of this city; a brother, George W. Gard, of Daytona, Fla., a sister, Mrs. Mary E. Newberry, of this city and by a grandson, Chester I. Gard of Orange, N. J. Mr. Gard many years ago was proprietor of a grocery store on Church street and later was associated in the same business with Henry Hurlburt. He retired from active business about 35 years ago.

An automobile owned and operated by Allen Maynard, 31 Linden street, struck an unidentified girl on Main street, near Mill street, this forenoon. The child sustained only minor bruises.

The police speed automobile, operated by Patrolman Howard Sloan and a machine owned and driven by Rev. J. M. Raniszewski, of 778 Main street, were in collision last night on Main street, corner of John street. Both cars were damaged.

William J. Donovan, 38 Colman street, complained to the police this afternoon that a man was on Colman street picking up children and caressing and kissing them. The police made a search for the alleged offender, but he was not located.

The funeral of Thomas J., Jr., 4, son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Murray, was held this afternoon at 2.45 o'clock at the residence of the child's parents, 33 Huntington street and was attended by many mourners. The service was read by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan, curate of St. Marys Star of the Sea church. Four playmates of the little boy, acted as bearers. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Andrew Monllaro, 28, a tailor residing at 87 Crystal avenue, died late yesterday at Home Memorial hospital where he had been under treatment but a short time. He is survived by his wife.

The funeral of Anna, wife of Jacob Andersen, Waterford, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street, the services being conducted by Rev. Mr. Heintz. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of Miss Elizabeth A. Wright, formerly of Waterford, was held this afternoon at 3.30 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. The bearers were Miss Wright's three brothers, W. W. Wright and Arthur O. Wright of Waterford, and George O. Wright, of New London, a nephew, Cecil Caulkins, this city. During the services, Miss Florence Young sang Lead Kindly Light, and No Night There. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Funeral services for Charlotte A. wife of Colin S. Buell, were held this morning at 11 o'clock at her home, 52 Vauxhall street, and were attended by a large assemblage of mourners. Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church, officiated. The bearers were William H. Reeves, Alfred Colt, John E. Wells and Lewis B. Crosby. The body was forwarded to Madison for burial this afternoon.

Patrolman John Clifford in making his rounds on Green street early this morning discovered the entrance to Brainard lodge, Masonic temple, unlocked. After inspecting the place to determine that burglars had not entered the building, the officer made it secure for the remainder of the night.

Lyle Eichorn, stationed at the naval torpedo station at Newport, R. I., reported to the police this afternoon that last Saturday his automobile was in collision with a machine owned and operated by E. Hixon, 14 Perry street, on an interesting highway of State street near the post office. Both cars were slightly damaged.

The theft this morning recovered the Ford coupe, owned by Albert N. Tiffany, 370 Bank street, which was stolen from in front of the Tiffany residence last Sunday evening, but the thieves were not detected. The car was in good condition, in spite of the fact that it had been driven 480 miles since stolen.

About 7.30 o'clock this morning when Mr. Kuhn, a resident of Niantic, was passing through Willetts avenue he noticed the stolen car alongside the highway, recognizing the machine by its number plates. The police were communicated with and the car was later taken to a garage. Following the car having been reported as parked near the New London Marine Iron Works throughout yesterday, the authorities maintained a watch for the stolen machine throughout the night, but it was not observed on any of the city streets. It is believed that the machine was stolen by sailors stationed at the United States Coast Guard and as the sailors were on duty during the day the car was not used except nights.

Bert DeVault, soldier until recently stationed at Fort Terry, and who was recently dishonorably discharged from the service of the federal government, was arrested this afternoon by Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Howard Sloan, charged with assault and robbery. He was locked up at the police station pending the convening of the police court tomorrow morning. DeVault has a long police record. DeVault beat up Cathrupo Bruno, more familiarly known as "Charlie O'Brien," an inoffensive cobbler. Bruno was so terribly beaten and without provocation; that his nose was fractured and his face was so badly lacerated that he was unrecognizable when the police picked him up. Bruno is now under treatment at Lawrence hospital.

Bruno was walking along North Bank street, between Douglass and Federal street, when he encountered DeVault, a man twice the size of Bruno and much younger. Without cause, whatever, DeVault is alleged to have punched Bruno several times on the face, felling him and then kicking him and finally appropriating Bruno's watch. The police were informed of the assault and found Bruno close to where the attack upon him was made. A half hour later DeVault was found in the vicinity of North Bank street and was placed under arrest.

MYSTIC

Rev. John Philip Beauchamp, who has been rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church for the past three years, tendered his resignation Sunday morning and asked that it be accepted that he might leave for a parish in Gardiner, Mass., December 15th. During his stay here Dr. Beauchamp has done excellent work in St. Mark's parish and his parishioners keenly regret that he is to leave them for a larger field. Mr. Beauchamp is a preacher of ability and a man of deep spiritual attainments and has made many friends in the community outside of his own parish, so that his going is not only a great loss to St. Mark's church but to the village as well.

WESTERLY

When superior court for Washington county, which came at the Westerly court house Tuesday afternoon, after a view had been taken during the noontime of the location of the tragedy in Bradford, adjourned for the day at 4 o'clock, all the state's evidence in the Tinckler manslaughter case was in. This (Wednesday) morning the defense will present its evidence, in the case where Robert E. Sankey, Jr., of Bradford, met his death Sunday, Nov. 2nd, from a bullet of a revolver alleged to be in the hands of Nathaniel Tinckler.

At 1.45 Tuesday afternoon Clerk W. Herbert Caswell polled the jury given in Tuesday's Bulletin, and trial was begun before Associate Justice B. Baker, with the state, Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown of Westerly, complainant, represented by Assistant Attorney John P. Hartigan of Providence, with Attorney Herbert W. Rathbun, assisted by Attorney John J. Gallagher for the defendant.

Mrs. Robert E. Sankey, mother of the deceased boy was the first witness for the state and testified to Tinckler's bringing her son's body in with the statement that the revolver went off accidentally and that the boy was killed.

Dr. David F. Marr, M. D., of Bradford told of being called to the Sankey home and finding Robert Sankey, Jr.'s body on the ground. Death was caused by a bullet wound in the heart, death having resulted almost instantly.

Mrs. Alice A. North, residing at Bowling Lane, Bradford, said that she was at the Sankey home about 10 o'clock Sunday morning, Nov. 2nd Tinckler was in the yard shooting a revolver and Mrs. Sankey had asked that the shooting be stopped.

Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, medical examiner for Westerly, testified that he had received a telephone message from Dr. Marr of the shooting and had visited the place in company with Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown of Westerly. From his examination, although no autopsy was held, he was certain that death was caused by the bullet wound in the boy's left breast. He identified exhibmit No. 3, a revolver, found by William Sankey which he turned over to Chief Brown.

Chief of Police Brown identified the revolver found in Bradford in the brush, back of the garage, and which had three 22-long cartridges in the chamber and one shell which had been fired. Exhibit No. 5 a stake on which was a can which had been used as a target at which the Tinckler boy had been shooting when the other young boys had gathered about him, and to broken bottles being found near, which had been used as targets.

Robert Sankey, 1 Douglas park, Bradford, father of the boy killed, was about the house on the Sunday morning of the shooting from 9 to 11. Saw the Tinckler boy in the front yard shooting at a red chalked target on the cement sidewalk, he had been doing all kinds of shooting about the place.

At the point the jury was sent out, while the attorneys argued as to how far back it was permissable to go as to the character of shooting done by Tinckler and it was limited to the day in question.

John Titterington, 11, of Douglas park, a first year Westerly High school student, testified to having felt a stinging sensation in his face when Tinckler had taken four or five shots at an electric light, and to a can, axe handle, lard paid and a shack in the rear of the dog kennel being used as targets. A short recess was taken at 3.15 and Louise Maud took the stand to testify to Tinckler having shot across a roadway which was used by six families and where she saw her husband pass along.

The state rested at 3.34 and Judge Rathbun asked that the indictment be dismissed and the defendant be discharged as he claimed the state had not produced evidence to show assault by his client. Judge Baker denied Lawyer Rathbun's motion and the jury was recalled at 3.50.

Judge William A. Wilcox of Stonington town court and Charles F. Champlin, representative from Stonington in the Connecticut general assembly have returned after being in attendance as delegates to the republican convention in Hartford on Monday and Tuesday.

Work is progressing in tunnelling under the vestry of the First Baptist church on Broad street for the purpose of installing a sewage connection with the sewer main on Broad street in front of the church. When the work is completed a tunnel will be left under the church building in which ashes can be brought through to the sidewalk manhole when it is necessary to remove it without having it carted through the church parlors.

Leaving Westerly Tuesday morning about 10 o'clock for warmer climes were Mr. and Mrs. Homer S. Hill of Westerly who have been proprietors of the Alva Inn on Canal street. There was nothing so unusual about their departure but the conveyance attracted notice, being in reality a 15-window cottage mounted on a Ford chassis. Its destination was Lake Weir on the west coast of Florida. Their departure was planned for sunrise Tuesday but Mr. Hill confidentially admitted that although the "cottage" was fitted with every convenience of an up-to-date and modern house he deemed it prudent to await the bank's opening to take along with him a small cash balance. Numbered among the fittings and conveniences was a let-in-the-floor full sized bath tub, with hot and cold water, two folding beds, a completely equipped kitchen, with sink and hot and cold water, heater and cook stove and many neat little cupbords and conveniently located lockers and closets so that the equipment is entirely out of sight. Mr. Hill's ability as a woodworker is shown by the attractive finish, not unlike a railroad drawing room car and a similar wood is used in the construction which makes it watertight. The entire weight is about 3200 lbs. Besides usual curtains at the windows are silk sash curtains which gives the exterior a home-like appearance. One-third the length the car body are two pilasters with mouldings which can be used to close the section and a six foot man can stand upright within comfortably. The hot water is supplied by several feet of pipe which gets its heat from the muffler exhaust. It was Mr. Hill's plan to reach New York by Tuesday night and passing down Fifth avenue to cross the ferry, then to travel south by way of Philadelphia, Washington, Richmond and the Dixie Highway. If a purchaser appears, Mr. Hill says that he will dispose of the perigrinating palace, which he has constructed in nine months of his spare time, and returning to Westerly next spring, he will begin the construction of another.

A young woman, a Providence commuter Monday morning arrived at the Westerly station of the New Haven road just as the 7.24 accommodation was moving out of the station. She jumped on the step of the moving coach to be grasped firmly by a young electrician but—Horrors! Her vanity case, for which she must have had a very present need, slipped from her grasp and rolled under the moving train, and with it her commuter's ticket, and—soda allowance. The baggageman rescued the case but was unable to get it on the train but a message sent to the next station to the effect that it was to follow on the next train must have been at least a source of consolation.

Mrs. Harry Milner left Tuesday afternoon for a visit in Boston.

POETRY

THE LITTLE FLOWER FOLK.

My fancy takes the quaintest turns—
Straying amid the summer flowers
She notes how every blossom claims
Its share of sunny gleams and showers;
Each hath a charm that's all its own,
A winsomeness of scent or sense—
'Tis very strange, and little known,
How like the flowers are to people!

Some flowers would fascinate at sight;
Indeed, they seem almost to shout:
"Come look at me! Am I not bright?
What flower is fairer hereabout?"
While further on a flower of shy,
Scarce noted in your idle rambles,
Sends by the breeze, as you go by,
A modest message writ in fragrance.

Are not the blossoms loved the best
The ones whose charms we can't explain;
That, somehow, give a sense of rest—
And speak more to the heart than brain?
Like folk they are—as said before—
Whose sympathy is not intrusive;
Indeed, we praise them more and more
Because their grace is so elusive.

For scarlet blooms I little care,
Their dashing hue displeases me;
It so suggests a trumpet's blare
Loud-crashing through a symphony.
Pink flowers I like—cheery and true—
Oft from my garden I bring in some;
Yet blossoms white and blossoms blue,
I must confess, I deem more winsome.

O flowers—flowers! I love them all,
No matter what their form or tint,
On vine or bush, on tree or wall,
Red, white and blue, or gold in glint
I love them each, I love them all,
I love them living, love them dying—
For when a rose's petals fall
My fancy hears a fairy sighing.
—Samuel Minturn Peck, in Boston Transcript.

AUTUMN: A DIRGE.

The bare boughs are sighing; the pale flowers are dying;
And the Year
On the earth, her death-bed, in a shroud of leaves dead,
Is lying.
Come months, come away,
From November to May;
In your saddest array
Follow the bier
Of the dead, cold Year,
And like dim shadows watch by her sepulchre.

The rivers are swelling; the thunder is knelling
For the Year;
The blithe swallows are flown, and the lizards each gone
To his dwelling;
Come, months, come away;
Put on white, black and gray;
Let your light sisters play—
Ye, follow the bier
Of the dead, cold Year,
And make her grave green with tear on tear.
—Percy Bysshe Shelley.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Who discovered America?" asked the teacher of the juvenile class.

Sunday-school Teacher—What are the things that count most in this life?

Waiter—Has your order been taken?
Waiter—Yes, and so has Bunker Hill—University of Missouri Sheaves.

Fannie—Yes, I shouldn't wonder! I have a crystal set in a ring.—Good Hardware.

Sympathetic Person—Hello! What is the matter, little boy? Are you lost?

Little Boy—Yes, I am. I might's known better'n to come out with grandma. She's always lostin' somethin'. — Edinburgh Scotsman.

She—You must ask father's consent.

He—But is that necessary? You have promised to marry me.

She—I'll marry you all right, but George, dear, you must go to father. It pleases him once in a while to know that we still consider him one of the family.—Answers, London.

A Scotchman went to the box office after witnessing the new show. "Will ya kindly retairn me the amount of the amusement tax?" he said.

"Why?" asked the manager.

"I wasna amused," said the Scotchman.—Judge.

Caller—So this is the old settle you told me you had picked up at such a bargain. My dear, it's a perfect treasure! It looks as if there might be some real old legend connected with it.

Hostess—Well, there was, but at the price I offered, the dealer said he would have to keep the legend and connect it with an antique bedstead that he had—Boston Transcript.

At Falls City, Neb., George W. Fisher, farmer, put eight slips of paper which called for "chances" on farm property worth more than $400,000 in a box. Each slip represented a proportional share of the whole. His eight heirs drew, and it took less than ten minutes to dispose of the property, which Fisher said had become burdensome in his advanced age.

A Bronx teacher has a brilliant class when the district superintendent calls. He makes them do rapid mental arithmetic and has trained those who know the right answer to raise their right hands, and those who do not know the answer, their left hands. The superintendent thinks all the pupils know the answer when he sees all the hands raised. And the teacher, calling on those who raise their right hands, always gets the correct reply.—Boston Globe.

Mrs. Solomon Barnhart, of Conneaquenessing township, Pennsylvania, saw a strange animal in her yard with one of her chickens in its mouth. She killed it with a shotgun. The animal proved to be a large fox which was identified as one that has escaped from a neighbor eighteen years ago. A rusty leather collar and a piece of broken chain were proof of the identity of the former pet, which had been suspected for several years of raiding chicken yards in the community.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET CLOSED STRONG

New York, Nov. 25—Stock prices rallied briskly just before the close of today's market under the leadership of United State Steel common, which advanced two points ot 117 1-2, the highest price in five years. Both the rail and industrial averages broke through their previous 1924 high levels. The volume of trading fell moderately. Total sales being 1,896,500 shares.

Early price movements showed considerable irregularity. Bullish demonstrations in the sugars and specialties, which featured the first hour, came to a temporary halt when heavy liquidation developed in American Can on publication of an official denial of reports that a stock dividend was contemplated. Can, which has sold as high as 152, broke to 147 3-4 and then rallied to 150, where it was off 1-4 on the day.

Fifty issues attained new peak prices for the year during the session. One of the most interesting developments was a revival of a strong investment demand for the high grade rails, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Lehigh Valley jumping to new top prices on gains of approximately 2 1-2 points each. The demand for the rails was stimulated by the splendid showing being made in the October earnings statements and the publication of statistics showing more than a million cars loaded with freight in the second week of November.

The demand for steel shares was inspired by reports of an increased inquiry for iron and steel products and a rising price trend, Ludlam, International and Sloss Sheffield Steels and Iron Products all selling at their best prices of the year.

Food shares also gave a good demonstration of group strength, the advance in that group being led by the Austin-Nichols issues, both of which bettered their previous tops, as did corn products, Fleischmann, Beechnut and Coca Cola.

Strong spots in the specialty list included Universal Pipe and Radiator common and preferred, United States Cast Iron Pipe, United States Realty Improvement common and preferred, Associated Dry Goods, Barnet Leather, Brown Show, Commercial Solvents A, Cushman Bakery, Fisher Body, Nash Motors and Texas Gulf Sulphur, all up 4 to 6 points on the day.

Recent increases in the price of leather stimulated the demand for those stocks, American Hide and Leather preferred and Central Leather common and preferred moving up to new high ground.

Call money held at 2 1-2 per cent. throughout the session. The time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with no change in rates.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly easier. Demand sterling ruled just above $4.62 1-2 and French francs were quoted around 5.26 1-2 cents. Other changes were largely of a nominal nature.

BOND MARKET

New York, Nov. 25—Bond prices held firm today, although profit taking interrupted advances in selected issues which had been the features of recent trading sessions. Speculative activity again seemed to find freer play in the stock market, with the result that movements in bond trading generally were narrow and insignificant.

The sharp rise in St. Paul bonds yesterday appeared to have discounted the road's exceptionally favorable earnings statement for October, which was made public today. Considerable activity was displayed in this list today, but realizing sales held prices down.

Foreign government obligations continued in good demand today, with the new French 7s selling above 94 and the German 7s holding above 95. United Kingdom 5 1-2s of 1937 touched a new high price for the year at 107 but failed to maintain their gain until the close.

Heavy buying of Pierce Arrow 8s, which jumped 3 5-8 points to a 1924 peak at 91 7-8, was one of the features of trading in the industrial list. Market Street Railway 7s, advancing 2 3-8 to a new top price at 99 7-8, led an upward movement in traction bonds.

Influenced by the favorable response to the French loan, bankers were said to be preparing several French corporation bond issues for early offering, one of them being for an important electrical company in Paris.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Wheat took a downward swing in price today, affected by an apparent pause in export business and by selling to realize profits. Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, 2 to 3 1-4 cents net lower. December 152 5-8 to 1.52 3-4 and May 160 5-8 to 160 3-4, with corn 1 3-4 to 2 1-8c off, oats 5-8c to 7-8@1c down, and provisions varying from 7c decline to 27c advance.

Right from the outset, the fact was evident that a majority of traders were disposed to lean to the selling side of the wheat market, at least for the time being. Unresponsiveness of Liverpool prices in the face of a record breaking advance yesterday on this side of the Atlantic was a decided handicap on efforts to lift values here. Furthermore, talk was current that after three days continuous ascent of prices in Chicago something of a reaction was overdue. Under such circumstances, reports of frost in Argentina and of rain in Australia failed to bring about any lasting rally.

Assertions that 500,000 bushels of wheat recently brought for export had been sold back to domestic dealers did a good deal to accelerate the downward tendency of the market during the last part of the day. Moreover, it was estimated that only 250,000 bushels of new export business was done today although Duluth sent word of a liberal amount of wheat having been purchased there late yesterday for export. With announcement of 1,790,000 bushels increase of the world's available supply, the market closed at virtually the day's low point.

Favorable weather to promote the movement of the new corn crop was largely responsible for lowering of prices on corn and oats. Consignments of corn were of a little more liberal volume.

Most deliveries of provisions were without decided change, the weakness of grain values and of hogs being offset by an upturn in lard prices at Liverpool.

CURB MARKET

New York, Nov. 25—The main price movements in today's curb market was upward although a few weak spots developed during the day. Oils were mixed but mostly higher. Standard Oil of Ohio standing out with an extreme gain of 14 points, 5 of which was lost before the close. Prairie Oil & Gas and Vacuum each closed more than a point higher. Union Oil moved up over 4 points.

Heavy buying of Goodyear Tire & Rubber, which moved up 1 3-4 points to a new top at 23 1-2 featured the industrial list. Pittsburgh terminal coal issues improved on speculative expectation on dividend action upon the completion of the segregation plan. Other strong spots included R. Hoe & Co., New Jersey Zinc, Corn Products, Paige-Detroit and the Continental and Ward Baking issues, up one to 2 points.

Thermiodyne Radio touched a new top at 13 3-4 on reports that the company was to enlarge its manufacturing capacity and most of the other active radios lost ground.

The new preferred stock of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad advanced more than three points to 38.

Apropos of Public Utility Securities

It is estimated at present:

¶ that only 65% of the industrial power load in this country is electrically generated,

¶ that less than 43% of the population of the United States lives in electrically lighted dwellings,

¶ that whereas in 1904, 72% of the electrical energy consumed by the industries of the United States was generated in their own plants, in 1920 only 39% came from such generating plants.

Electricity in contrast with food, clothing and other fundamentals, has decreased in cost to the consumer during the last nine years.

We aim to maintain a well diversified list of Public Utility Bonds and Stocks, and are prepared to furnish detailed information relating to all issues.

ARTHUR HOPKINS
PRESENTS
A NEW COMEDY
Close Harmony
BY DOROTHY PARKER and ELMER RICE
(By arrangement with Philip Goodman.)

TO THE PLAYGOERS OF NEW LONDON and VICINITY:

Why wait for the approval of Broadway?

The greatest dramatic successes of our time almost invariably have been launched outside of New York to empty seats.

The playgoer who has ignored a new offering in his own city has later paid exorbitant speculators' prices for the same play in New York.

I am opening a new play at the Lyceum Saturday, matinee and night.

In my opinion it is an important and significant comedy.

In my opinion the play, upon its arrival in New York, will be met by the kind of approval that means a speculators' holiday.

Why wait for New York?

Why not see it in New London?

I urge you to do so, feeling that you will be glad of the experience. I would scarcely risk the chance of having you bank too largely upon my advice unless I had every confidence in the outcome.

I believe you will be grateful for this suggestion.

I may be wrong. If I am I will hesitate ever to sanction this kind of recommendation again.

ARTHUR HOPKINS.

NUMBER FOUR

to the Lakehurst station that with full pomp and ceremony, the name of the California City had been bestowed upon the ship by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. With that act, the designation ZR-3 she has carried so long passed off the navy's rolls, the name Los Angeles blossoming in its place.

It was almost a perfect day for the christening. By the time the air giant came out of the blue-gray haze to northward just before one o'clock, the sun had broken through the banking clouds of the morning and was sweeping the sky clear moment by moment. The trip south from Lakehurst was made swiftly and the ZR-3, as she then still was, found herself with more than two hours of aerial loafing to do before she came down at the naval air station at Nacostia, since the president and Mrs. Coolidge were not due to arrive before 2:45 p. m.

Swinging slowly westward, the airship began a leisurely jaunt above Washington.

Up past the great dome of the capitol the ship sauntered, dipping and rising as though in friendly salute to above the structure. On again over the figure of freedom that towers the White House and the Washington Monument, the ship lowed along in a bath of golden sunlight softened by the autumn haze.

The distant roar of guns at the navy yard, told that President and Mrs. Coolidge were coming by barge. The word went by radio to Commander J. H. Klein, the skipper of the airship who had brought her down from Lakehurst on her maiden voyage under American command for the christening.

A cross wind from the west had sprung up, blowing directly toward a range of hills that circle the field to eastward. It made the task of Commander Klein extremely difficult. The great ship's engines were driving her downward against the lifting force of the helium gas. It was her first trip with this non-inflammable gas. She cleared the trees fringing the hill-top by only a narrow margain and came on with her nose slanting down sharply.

Meanwhile, the president and Mrs. Coolidge had taken places in the official box with Secy Wilbur, Acting Secy Davis of the war department, and scores of high government officers about them. The stands were packed with invited notables and all around the field were thousands who came to witness the ceremony.

On the second round, Commander Klein dropped two forward lines. The blue jackets leaped at them and clung as the tugging monster above dragged along. One line broke sending the jackies flying with the sudden release of the strain, but their comrades at the other line clung desperately until the ship lifted a score of them off the ground. As they dropped back, the big dirigible flung her nose defiantly into the air again and went surging down into the south for another try.

This time the tricky air current got in its work before the airship had made a fair start at its dive for a landing. The ship got nowhere near her target, and she plowed off to circle for a fourth attempt.

Commander Klein, with a night long journey ahead and no chance to replenish his helium, hesitated to open valves and lower the buoyancy of the ship. But on the fourth plunge for a landing the skipper released some of his precious gas and swung his downward rudder to stand the ship almost on her head as she cleared the hill barrier.

It was close enough to drop repaired bow lines, and in a moment the ground crew had them fast and led through blocks. Then good navy beef in trim blue and white did the work and slowly drew the mighty head of the ship earthward until the lines could drop to waiting hands, and the ZR-3, shackled by lines that seemed mere spider webs in strength compared to her vast bulk, was brought gently to earth.

Jackies crowded thickly about control car and rear engine gondola to get hand-holds and keep the ship steady in the wind. They walked her swiftly along to the appointed place and as she came to the waiting stand a squad of huskies rushed a ribbon-draped stand forward to rest it against the doorway to the control car. The president and Mrs. Coolidge mounted the stand under the shadow of the great hull overhead. A decorated line was passed out and, at a signal, Mrs. Coolidge pulled it sharply.

High up in the bows of the ship a trapdoor opened. There was a stir and flutter of frightened wings as the message-laden pigeons rushed out to circle and twist in the air a moment, then head off for home. The words "I christen thee Los Angeles" were inaudible in the stir and bustle, but Mrs. Coolidge turned smilingly away, coiling up the ribbon-decked cord she had pulled to free her aerial messengers. She took the cord with her as a memento.

Rear Admiral Hutchinson of the Washington navy yard then read the orders commissioning the newest ship in the navy. Captain George W. Steele, Jr., her commander, who was kept by illness from this flight, read his orders, and from above him a slender commission pennant was dropped. The Los Angeles was flying her official flags at last.

Meanwhile, President and Mrs. Coolidge had been escorted up a step ladder to inspect the control car of the ship and to peer about within her vast hull.

They spent ten minutes or more aboard and were followed by a throng of distinguished guests, too eager to see this sight to heed the necessity for speed in getting the Los Angeles back to safety in the air before night. All were ushered hastily through finally, and then Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of the army air service, climbed aboard, his two-starred blue flag dropping from the hull to fly on weighted cord just forward of the control car windows.

Sweeping back the crowd, the marine guard cleared the ground about the ship and she was swung slowly to head into the last of the sunset, poised for her upwind leap into air. A whistle shrilled through the dusk, motors roared into life and the jackies of the ground crew gave the bow of the ship a fling into air and then dashed for safety. Astern, the jackies clung to hold down the tail a moment longer and poise the ship with upward rearing nose as a spear thrower would poise his weapon for a cast. A new thunder as all five motors leaped to full power; another scream of the whistle, bidding the last men below stand clear, and the Los Angeles went roaring back into air, fairly jumping up and forward under the titanic thrust of her propellers.

Once well clear of the ground and hovering again above the city where the dome of the capitol loomed now through the fading light, the Los Angeles circled slowly to her northward course, flattened out and faded swiftly from sight against a horizon already vague and dark with the coming night.

FIRST REAL SNOWSTORM OF SEASON IN BUFFALO

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 25.—The first real snowstorm of the season swept across the city today after some freak of nature had in the early morning hours stopped a heavy fall of snow abruptly at the city line.

The Buffalo weather bureau described the storm as local, confined to the lake region. It was said to be due to atmospheric conditions prevailing close to Lake Erie.

Buffalo snow fighting apparatus began to be mobilized shortly after noon in preparation for the first battle to keep traffic moving through the streets. Snow sweepers were operated on the trolley lines in the afternoon.

The storm was remarkable in that it did not touch Buffalo earlier in the day, when large sections of Erie county just outside the city limits and Chautauqua county were buried under a snowfall ranging from eight to fourteen inches in depth. The line of demarcation was abrupt and was a source of amazement to commuters coming into the city on forenoon trains.

PLANS FOR REFUNDING N. H. ROAD'S EUROPEAN LOAN

New York, Nov. 25.—Plans for refunding the New Haven railroad's $23,000,000 European loan maturing next April were announced today by officials of the company, who indicated that success of the operation was assured by subscriptions already received from large industrial corporations, financial institutions and the company's stockholders and directors.

A new $23,000,000 issue of 15-year 6 per cent. bonds has been authorized to refund or retire the $22,997,750 outstanding 7 per cent. obligations which fall due. Owners of these bonds will be invited to take a portion of their holdings in the new liens at par, and subsequently will be asked to deposit their remaining debentures under a plan by which the company will offer them part cash and part 6 per cent. bonds for their holdings.

The proportion of cash available for such payment, it was said, can only be determined when the actual amount of subscriptions received from others is known. The plan will be effective only upon its acceptance by virtually all bondholders.

The road's new bonds will be issued under a collateral indenture whereby the company will pledge as securify $23,000,000 of its 6 per cent first mortgage obligations. Operation of a 2 per cent. annual sinking fund is expected to retire more than one-half of the bonds before maturity.

Earnings of the new Haven, which have shown steady monthly expansion, will enable the road this year to report a substantial surplus over all fixed charges, said an official statement.

"The company, during the last eight years," it added "has expended over $65,000,000 in additions and betterments, with an increasing efficiency and economy in operation, as shown by an operating ratio which has decreased from 103.29 per cent. in 1920 the last year of federal control, to 77.45 per cent. for the period ending September 30 of the present year."

Refunding of the European loan has been one of the most serious financial problems which has confronted the New Haven. The issue was extended from its original maturity in 1925, at which time a 10 per cent payment to bondholders reduced the total to be retired.

STATEMENTS BY COUNSEL IN TRIAL OF COL. FORBES

Chicago, Nov. 25 (By the A. P.).—The trial of Col. Charles R. Forbes, former head of the Veterans' bureau, and J. W. Thompson, St. Louis and Chicago contractor, on charges of defrauding the government on veterans' hospitalization contracts, had progressed tonight to the point of opening statements by counsel.

After two days of examination a jury satisfactory to the defendants and to the government counsel was obtained, the defense challenging but five veniremen and the government two. Relationship to war veterans and opinions on war contracts were searchingly examined, but two World war veterans were accepted as jurors. A third juror had a son killed and another wounded in the war, but was accepted.

Judge George S. Carpenter indicated today that introduction of testimony probably would be put over until Monday, when court is adjourned tomorrow for Thanksgiving.

The separation by Judge Carpenter's ruling of the government's motion, of the two charges in the indictment—conspiracy to bribe a federal official and conspiracy to defraud the government—has changed plans of both the prosecution and defense considerably, it was indicated.

The government, chose to try first the charge of conspiracy to defraud the government in the selection of veterans' hospital sites and the awarding of contracts for the construction of those hospitals.

Counsel for Thompson today questioned the jurors about union sympathies, and their views on the fairness of wartime and post-war cost-plus contracts. Two jurors proved to have been affiliated with the United Mine Workers of America, but were accepted.

DELIBERATING ON ATLANTIC PORT RATE CONTROVERSY

Washington, Nov. 25.—The shipping board today took under advisement the three-cornered Atlantic port rate controversy after a day of oral argument by representatives of North and South Atlantic, gulf and middle west interests. Decision within three weeks is expected.

South Atlantic and gulf ports have asked the board to order equalization of their ocean rates with New England ports and New York, and these points in turn

TAFTVILLE

John L. S. Anderson, for many years a resident of Taftville, died Monday at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson, in Springfield, Mass. Mr. Anderson was born in Sweden 81 years ago, and upon locating in Taftville was employed in the company store at that time operated by the Ponemah Mills. He married Miss Isabella Beaten in Taftville in 1874. Later he resided on Merchants avenue and conducted a business there. He resided for six years in Alaska at the time that gold was discovered there, and later returned to Taftville where he had been employed in the cloth department of the Ponemah mills. After the death of Mrs. Anderson he went to Springfield to make his home. He is survived by two sons and a daughter, Fred T. Anderson of Detroit, John N. Anderson of New York, and Mrs. William Wilson of Springfield, Mass., and a sister, Mrs. Helen Bjurstrom of North Third avenue.

Chairman George J. Meyer presided at a meeting of the standing committee of the Taftville Congregational church held Tuesday evening in the vestry of the church.

SUES FORMER GRAIN MERCHANT ON BREACH OF PROMISE CLAIM

The breach of promise suit brought by Mrs. Matilda Bendett of this city, a widow, against her late husband's brother-in-law, Charles Slosberg, for $75,000 damages was on trial here all day Tuesday in the superior court before Judge George A. Hinman and a jury.

The plaintiff's allegation is that on March 15, 1923, she promised to marry Mr. Slosberg and that on May 3, 1923 he promised to marry her and that in consequence she gave up a profitable millinery business and went to considerable expense in preparation for the wedding, but the defendant has refused to marry her.

The defendant's answer is that the suggestion of a marriage between himself and Mrs. Bendett came from Wolf Bendett, a brother of David Bendett, the husband of the plaintiff who was killed in an automobile accident in November, 1921, but that all thoughts of marrying were broken off because of the widow's demand that he sign over all his property to her.

Attorney Walter J. Walsh of New Haven is counsel for Mrs. Bendett. Mr. Slosberg is represented by Attorneys J. J. Desmond, Arthur M. Brown and Thomas J. Kelley.

Plaintiff Testifies

After the jury had been chosen, Mrs. Bendett was the first witness called to the stand. She said that she is 39 and Mr. Slosberg about 55 and she had known him for the 12 years while she had been living in Norwich. She has two children, both girls, one 7 years old and the other 3 1-2. After the death of her husband about four years ago, she opened a millinery business in Plainfield in January, 1923.

Before the death of Mr. Slosberg's wife, which was four years ago, she and her husband had called every week at the Slosberg home, Mrs. Slosberg being her husband's sister. From the middle of March, 1923, Mr. Slosberg called on her a number of times at her millinery place at Plainfield, taking walks at times with her and several times they had meals together On one occasion he told her he was very lonely and needed a home and would like to get married to which she replied that a man of his position ought to be married but he said nothing to her about marriage then.

Proposed Marriage

The next day he made the marriage proposal, she testified, saying to her: "Tillie, you know when I came over the other day, I couldn't exactly come out with what I wanted to tell you, that I wanted to marry you. I could give you a very good home. You know that I am a man that could give you a very nice home.

"Tillie," he said, "I love you. I have known you so many years. I have had so many chances, but you are the only woman that could make me happy and I am sure that I will be just the man for you. You know that I can well provide for you. You know that I will be a real father to your children. Now, Tillie, you have to take into consideration that you cannot work all of your life. And really, I know you are young and all that, but your must forget that. I have known you so long and I am going to be very good to you. I won't be a step-father to your children, but I will be like a real father, because they are just like my own."

He called on her the next day and telephoned to her almost every day. As she had no telephone she was called to the phone in Connell's restaurant downstairs in the building.

At a later time he asked her, "Tillie, did you think the matter over?" to which her answer was, she said, that she would be willing to marry him for her children's sake.

Mr. Slosberg wanted to be married at once, but she demurred because of the business season and the date was set for May 3, 1923. She sold out her business at a sacrifice.

Bought a House

Mrs. Bendett testified to coming to Norwich, meeting Mr. Slosberg in the store of Wolf Bendett and going from there to see a house in West Thames street which Mr. Slosberg said he was going to buy for her. He did buy it later and they talked over buying articles for the approaching marriage. He gave her money at various times, once a $100 bill and at another time $50 bill. He also said he wanted to buy her a diamond ring, when he saw her wearing her wedding ring, which he took off. She could not remember whether he ever returned it.

She ceased to hear from him after he had made two tripe to New York and she did not know what he went for.

Did Not Appear

On the day which she said had been set for their marriage, she came to Norwich from Plainfield and waited at Wolf Bendetts store in the West Side for Mr. Slosberg but he did not appear. She left the store, miserable, faint and nervous, missed the trolley at Franklin square for Plainfield and tried to get a room at the Wauregan house where she could lie down. But everything was engaged and she secured a room at the Auditorium hotel and called for a doctor. Dr. Cassidy and Dr. Sussler saw her there and she was removed to the Backus hospital where she stayed for a week with a nervous breakdown. After leaving the hospital she went to her sister's in New York and then to the Catskill mountains, but heard nothing from Mr. Slosberg in that time.

Mrs. Bendett was cross-examined at length by attorneys for the defendant. She was questioned about a photograph which had been put in as an exhibit. It showed her in a sitting posture, but the lower part had been torn off below the knees. She illustrated on the stand how she was sitting in the picture, which she said she had given to Mr. Slosberg in order that he might take it to New York to show to his brothers. She said that the wedding was to have been a quiet affair at the home of a Hartford rabbi followed by a small reception.

Answered Telephone Calls

Miss Sadie Donohue, who conducted a small shop in Plainfield in the same building where Mrs. eBndett had her millinery shop and at the same time, testified that Mrs. Bendett brought Mr. Slosberg in and introduced him the first time he came there. She saw him a number of other times and answered the telephone a number of times when he called for Mrs. Bendett. She said the plaintiff did a good business and often worked till 11 o'clock at night that she helped her at times.

Resuming the stand after the noon recess Miss Donohue testified that she had seen the plaintiff and defendant together at the Community house in Plainfield and that at one time Mr. Slosberg was in her store, where he said that Mrs. Bendett did not have to work so hard as he wanted her to give up her business. At one time she saw Mr. Slosberg kissing Mrs. Bendett in the hallway when she came upon them unexpectedly and at other times she had heard what she thought might be kissing.

On cross examination by Attorney Desmond Miss Donohue testified that Mr. Slosberg had come to Plainfield after the alleged kissing episode. She saw Mrs. Bendett on the day she left Plainfield and the next she heard of her she was in the hospital.

Medical Testimony

Dr. David Sussler of this city gave testimony that he knew both the plaintiff and defendant and had been called to the Auditorium hotel at one time and found Mrs. Bendett in bed there, tearing at her hair and clothes and saying she wanted to die. Dr. Cassidy was there and said he thought she had taken something in an attempt to commit suicide. Mrs. Bendett denied to Dr. Sussler that she had taken anything. She was taken to the Backus hospital and was in a highly hysterical condition. She remained there five or six days, and was in fairly good condition when she left the hospital. The doctor did not attend her afterwards.

There was no cross examination of Dr. Sussler.

He was followed on the stand by Dr. Louis T. Cassidy who testified to attending Mrs. Bendett at the Auditorium hotel on an evening in May, 1923, when she was in a highly nervous condition. The doctor thought he said, that she had taken poison, and he searched her pocketbook and around the room but did not find any poison. She denied to him that she had taken poison.

Dr. Fred L. Varney of the Backus hospital read from the hospital records that Mrs. Bendett was a patient there from May 3 to May 8, 1923.

Restaurant Proprietor Testifies

Daniel J. Connell, proprietor of a restaurant in Plainfield, said he knew Mrs. Bendett when she went into business in Plainfield early in 1923 and up to the time of her going out of business in May, 1923. He first knew Mr. Slosberg when Mrs. Bendett introduced him in the restaurant where they were getting refreshments. The witness said there were frequent telephone calls in April for Mrs. Bendett over the restaurant telephone, one of them being from New Haven which was the last until one on the morning of the day she left Plainfield. He thought it was about a week before she left Plainfield that the telephone call came from New Haven.

Israel Aronow of New York, a pants manufacturer, uncle of Mrs. Bendett, testified that in April, 1923, he wrote a letter to Mr. Slosberg about Mrs. Bendett.

Attorney Walsh asked counsel for the defense to produce the letter, but the attorneys for Mr. Slosberg said they had never heard of it.

Attorney Wash tried to get Mr. Aronow to tell what was in the letter, but defendant's counsel objected and the attorney did not press the point, but excused the witness.

Plaintiff's Counsel Calls Defendant

Charles Slosberg, the defendant, was called to the stand by the plaintiff's counsel. He testified that a house on Thames street was all the real estate he owned in March and April, 1923. He couldn't remember when he bought or whether he owned anything else at that time. About that time he had about $20,000 in the Yantic Grain Co. He said he had never been worth $50,000 or $100,000. He couldn't remember how much income fax he paid or how much in taxes to the city of Norwich.

Attorney Walsh asked Mr. Slosberg many questions about the books he kept to which the defendant replied not hardly of any." The attorney asked Mr. Slosberg to bring to court his check book covering the time in April and May, 1923, and then Attorney Walsh said that the plaintiff's case rested, except for one more witness, Internal Revenue Collector George M. Charbonneau.

Defense Testimony

After a short recess the defense was taken up, with the defendant as the first witness called to the stand and questioned by Attorney Desmond.

Mr. Slosberg said he had been in business in Norwich for 30 years in the grain business, part of the time in partnership with his son, until they sold out to the Yantic Grain Co., four years ago.

His wife died four years ago. Her name was Bendett and she was a sister of the plaintiff's deceased husband. He had known the plaintiff for ten or twelve years. Mr. Slosberg testified that about two years ago Wolf Bendett, a Norwich storekeeper and a brother-in-law of the defendant, made a suggestion about marriage and in consequence he saw Tillie Bendett in Plainfield, but nothing was said about marriage. About a week later he saw Mrs. Bendett again and on a third time he saw her. On this occasion he was there about 1 1-2 or 2 hours and they took some books to the Community house. On their return he said to Mrs. Bendett, "What do you think William Bendett is trying to do with you and me?" She replied that it seemed strange as he was twice her age. "Well, I can't make myself any younger," he replied, and she answered "You can come up again."

Mr. Slosberg said he called there five or six times altogether. On the fifth time she asked him if he wanted her picture and she gave him the one that had been produced as an exhibit.

Plaintiff Made Demand

On the sixth visit, Mr. Slosberg said that as he was about to leave to take the trolley car, Mrs. Bendett asked him to come upstairs for a minute. They went up into the millinery rooms where she turned on the light, locked the door and then asked him what he was going to say. His answer was "If you have anything to say, go ahead and say it." To this she said: "You are a married man and I am a married woman. You have children and I have children. Who can tell what would happen to you? If we should be married then there would be the trouble between the children. I want you to sign off all your property in my name."

To this the witness said he replied: "I wouldn't sign off two cents. I worked hard for every cent I got. If you don't want to marry me, you don't have to and if that is what you want I don't want to have anything more to do with you. Unlock the door and let me out."

Mrs. Bendett then unlocked the door, he said, and as he was about to go she asked if she could walk to the street with him. "You don't have to," he answered, "I can find the way," but she walked to the trolley car with him, and he never saw her face to face again.

On reaching home, Mr. Slosberg had a talk with Wolf Bendett as he had always done after previous visits to Mrs. Bendett in which he told what had occurred.

Mr. Slosberg said he had no further communication with Mrs. Bendett, never promised to marry her, and never set any date for a wedding. He knew of no attempt of hers to communicate with him after this.

The witness said he was interested in securing workmen's compensation for Mrs. Bendett because of the death of her husband and he helped her get it.

He admitted that he had talked to Mrs. Bendett about marriage and everything was going along all right up to the time that Mrs. Bendett made the demand about signing over his property to her.

On cross examination Mr. Slosberg testified that he had never called at the home of David and Tillie Bendett more than once or twice a year and saw them only rarely at his own home. His purpose in going to Plainfield was to get acquainted with Tillie and marry her if everything turned out all right.

He denied vehemently that he ever kissed her or promised to marry her, but on his third call on her at Plainfield occurred the first talk about marrying. He denied that he ever said to anyone anything about Tillie Bendett working so hard at the millinery business. He called on her five or six times altogether and there was no talk of marriage on the fourth or fifth trips, but on the sixth time she wanted him to sign off everything in her name. Mr. Bendett admitted telephoning to Connell's restaurant to speak to Tillie five or six times and once from New Haven before the sixth conversation.

Court adjourned at 4.30 to continue the trial the next day.

The jury in the case is Albert W. Lillibridge, Frank A. Bill, Norwich; Henry M. Betting, Appleton Main, Preston; William A. Edmond, Griswold; George L. Randall, Lebanon; William P. COLD SNAP MADE CHECK IN STORRS EGG LAYING

In the third lap of the contest the race was between two pens of Leghorns two pens of Wyandottes and two pens of Rhode Island Reds. The production was somewhat retarded in the past week due to the unseasonable cold snap we had the Leghorn pens as a whole suffering the most. Two pens tied for first place, Meadowedge Farm's pen of White Leghorns from Sterling Junction, Mass., and A. B. Rice's pen of White Wyandottes from Tekamah, Neb., laid 54 eggs each. White Wyandottes owned by William A. Ellis of Warwick, R. I., and Acre-bridge Farm's pen of White Leghorns tied for second place with 50 eggs each. Pinecrest Orchard's Rhode Island Reds from Groton, Mass., were in third place with 49 eggs while I. W. Mitchell's pen of Reds from Wallingford, Conn., held fourth place for the week with 47 eggs. The total number of eggs for the week was 3,461 or a yield of nearly thirty-six per cent. This production is 242 eggs more than last week but is 11 eggs less than the same week last year. However, the grand total to date from the 1,400 pullets amounts to 8,767 eggs.

Quite a few changes in the leaders of the different varieties took place this past week. Meadowedge Farm's pen of White Leghorns from Sterling Junction, Mass., is now leading the entire 140 pens as well as being first in the White Leghorn class. All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

BRANDEGEE OWED $180,000 IN NATIONAL CAPITAL, WITH ASSETS OF $20,000

Facts Disclosed in Petition Filed in the District of Columbia Supreme Court by W. Don Lundy, One of the Administrators — Washington Holdings Consisted of Household Effects, Four Automobiles and a Small Bank Account—During His Lifetime the Late Senator Brandegee Was Reputed to Have Owned Valuable Real Estate in Washington, Also in Maryland and Virginia.

Washington, Nov. 26. — Senator Frank B. Brandegee of Connecticut who committed suicide October 14 last owed debts in Washington totaling $180,000 according to a petition filed today in the District supreme court by W. Don Lundy, former secretary of the senator and one of the administrators of his estate under appointment by the court at New London, Conn.

Mr. Lundy asks that ancillary letters of administration be granted to him here so that he may wind up the senator's affairs in the District of Columbia. He owned no real estate in this city but had household effects, four automobiles and a small bank account which the petition estimates were worth $20,000 in all.

Although the petition said Mr. Brandegee owned no real estate in Washington, he was reputed to have owned during his life time very valuable real estate here, as well as in nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Lundy and the National Bank of Commerce at New London were appointed administrators in Connecticut. The will of Senator Brandegee having named his father, Augustus as executor. The father died 15 years ago. Attorneys Kenyon and MacFarland appeared for the petitioner.

BENEFICIAL LOAN EMPLOYES CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT

Stamford, Nov. 26.—Three employes of the Stamford branch of the Beneficial Loan society charged with embezzlement were bound over to superior court and a fourth was virtually bound over following a hearing before Judge Samuel Young in city court this afternoon. Walter Keller, manager of the Stamford branch, was held in bail of $15,000, Howard G. McGrath in bail of $2,000 and Miss Tina Stamatin $1,000. Decision in the case of Roy H. Malcolm was reserved until Friday morning from request by his counsel for time to bring a bondsman to Stamford to put up bail for $1,000. Malcolm also will be bound over to superior court.

The four are charged with embezzling $1,000 of the funds of the company on November 3 with Keller as the principal and the other three as accessories. Alfred E. Morhart, who is traveling auditor for the society, testified that on November 3 he discovered a shortage of $929.70 in the cash account of the Stamford branch. The next day, November 4, he said, $295 turned up.

The state's principal evidence was based on a statement made by three of the accused to the police. This statement, which was introduced as evidence, showed that when McGrath learned of the shortage, he telephoned to Malcolm who was in Bridgeport. In some manner, according to the statement, Keller, who was in Baltimore, was hooked in on the same telephone conversation. McGrath told Kellar, the statement said, about the shortage discovered in Stamford and Keller replied he had no money to cover it up. Malcolm suggested over the telephone, the statement continued that he could raise the money in Bridgeport, and take it to Stamford. Charles J. Pekarl, who is in Grace hospital, New Haven, following an attempt to commit suicide, brought $990 to the Westport Bridge, in Westport, according to the statement, and there gave it to McGrath who added $5 to it, making $995, brought it to Stamford and placed it where it was discovered to cover the shortage.

A statement made by Malcolm regarding a shortage of $600 in the New Haven office where he was manager, was not admitted in court, it being explained that he is on liberty under bail of $2,000 on a New Haven charge.

All of the accused pleaded not guilty with the exception of Miss Stamatin. A demurrer was filed for her but it was overruled.

Three statements made by Keller were introduced. In one he admitted the $900 shortage but in another statement he listed a shortage of $22,000. He said he took the money, himself without the knowledge of the service staff and that the others were not responsible. It appeared that the others were brought into the case when the first shortage was discovered.

GENERAL ROUND UP OF CRIMINALS IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Nov. 26.—As state's attorney's men were raiding notorious dives and rounding up suspected beer runners and gamblers, Chicago's gangland today buried the latest of its victims, Eddie Tancl, who was slain Sunday in his Cicero saloon.

One of the more prominent places visited was the "Four Deuces" cafe, operated by "Scarface Al" Capone, recognized as a lieutenant of Johnnie Torrio, reputed rival of Dion O'Bannion for beer running honors before O'Bannion was slain. No one prominent in gun or hi-jacking circles was taken in the raid.

Arrests today brought the number over the 150 mark the only person of note, however, to be taken being Richard O'Connor, brother of Jerry O'Connor, who was killed in the beer war last fall.

Eddie Tancl hailed by the police as the "czar of Cicero," was buried in Lincoln Park National cemetery without even the simplest of services with only relatives and a few intimate acquaintances present.

A few hours before the funeral six armed men entered the store of A. F. Osthovsky in Cicero and held up the proprietor and his wife. The band escaped with several pieces of woman's wearing apparel and furs, valued at $20,000, jewelry valued at $3,500 and $200 in currency.

Milligan hails from Hamilton, Scotland.

TWO GIRLS FOUND MURDERED IN SHACK OF THEIR UNCLE

Houlton, Me., Nov. 26.—Harry Williams, arrested early today after Cynthia and Neotia Foster, sisters, 14 and 10 years old, had been found murdered in a shack occupied by Williams at Fosterville, N. B., on the Maine-New Brunswick border, was taken tonight, under heavy guard, to the York county jail at Fredericton, N. B. The authorities feared that attempts might be made to lynch Williams, who had been threatened by an angry crowd today. The girls, his nieces, were found last night with their hands tied behind their backs, shot through the head.

Discovery of the double murder was made by Ward Foster, father of the children, when they failed to return to their home. Williams had taken homestead rights on a tract of land adjoining Grand lake and it had been the girls' custom to go to his shack, about a mile from their home, to cook for him. They went to the Williams place as usual yesterday and in the evening, when they did not come home, their father went in search of them.

He found their bodies, each with a bullet wound in the head, one on the bed in the shanty, the other under the bed. Their hands had been tied behind their backs.

BAKER PLANS TO EXPAND DRAMATIC WORK AT YALE

New York, Nov. 26—Professor George P. Baker, who is to erect new department of dramatic art at Yale, said today that he planned as soon as possible to take up the question of an annual Yale prize play and the construction of an experimental theatre in New Haven for the use of students in his dramtic work shop.

"They were the most pleasant and congenial sort," he said. "However, the university authorities did not see their way clear to extend the work. Yale offered that opportunity and I accepted it."

Professor Baker explained that there was little he could say now about the new course at Yale.

"The plans for the theatre itself," he asserted, "are to be decided upon by a committee headed by Dean Meeks of the Yale school of fine arts. Within a fortnight there may be more definite news to announce."

He was unable to confirm a report that the site of the old Rialto Theatre in New Haven, which burned some time ago, had been settled for the experimental theatre.

"There will be a distrid advantage in bringing the work nearer New York," Professor Baker added. "The extent of that advantage remains to be seen."

RHINELANDER FILES SUIT FOR MARRIAGE ANNULMENT

New Rochelle, N. Y., Nov. 25—Leonard Kip Rhinelander, scion of one of New York's oldest families, who married Miss Alice Jones of New Rochelle on October 14, today filed suit in the Westchester county supreme court to annul the marriage. Rhinelander alleged that his wife concealed from him the fact that she had negro blood in her veins.

The papers were supported by an affidavit made by Rhinelander before a Kings County notary public.

The complaint declared that the "consent" of the plaintiff, Rhinelander, to the marriage "was obtained by fraud" and that the defendant, formerly Miss Jones, told Rhinelander, "she was white and had no colored blood." Rhinelander, the complaint states, entered into marriage on the basis of such representations, which he has since discovered to be wholly untrue.

Young Rhinelander is twenty-two. He is the son of Philip Rhinelander, heir to a fortune of $100,000,000 in Manhattan real estate and a member of one of Manhattan's most exclusive families. His Hugenot ancestors, settled in New Rochelle in the seventh century and the name he bears has long been prominent in the social annals of the city.

Chinese in Hartford Victims Tong War

Two Chinese Members of On Leong Tong Were Shot and Killed by Two Others.

Hartford, Nov. 26.—Sam Lee, known to his own people as Lung Foo, and another man believed to be Young To Wing, were shot to death in their little laundry at No. 43 Park street tonight, the first Hartford victims in the warfare of the Tongs. There was an element of boldness about the crime not always present in such instances, despite the fact that it was executed with insidious cunning.

At 7 o'clock, people in the vicinity heard three shots fired in rapid succession. Immediately after the last shot two men were seen running from the place, crossing over Park street to John street. In the hand of one of the fleeing men was a revolver.

Close on the heels of this flying pair came Young To Wing. He reached the sidewalk outside of the laundry, screamed and fell to the pavement dead. A bullet had gone directly through his heart.

Or the floor of the laundry, beside the crude counter where he has fingered his abatus for the last twelve years, the only comment from local Chinese lay the body of Lung Foo. He had died instantly as the result of a bullet which entered his head behind the right ear and passed directly into the brain.

Here, in brief form, is all of the tragedy that appeared on the surface tonight. Lung Foo and his nephew, were dead; the two assailants were unidentified and gone. "No know," was Tong members and non-Tong members alike.

As near as can be learned, the two dead men were in the front room, the business office if you will, of their laundry at 7 o'clock tonight. Lung Foo, the older man, was apparently sitting behind the counter, while the nephew was standing facing the door.

There seems to be no question but what the two dead men recognized their slanger immediately. Lung Foo started to duck under the counter, but the bullet moved faster than he did. The leaden pellet cut into the inside edge of the counter on a downward path, and caught Lung Foo just under the right ear. One of the next two shots finished the other man.

EGYPT SENDS PROTEST TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Geneva, Nov. 26 (By the A. P.).—The Egyptian chamber of deputies has addressed a protest to the League of Nations against the British demands bearing on the assassination of Sir Lee Stack, sirdar of the Egyptian army. This protest was taken under consideration today and after an hour's meeting of the department chiefs of the secretariat, under the chairmanship of Sir Eric Drummond, it was decided not to distribute to members of the league the Egyptian protest.

The decision was based on the constitutional procedure of the secretariat which is not to circulate documents that do not emanate from governments. One precedent cited was the decision not to distribute a communication received from a man who claimed to represent the Fiume parliament.

It is explained by the league officials that when documents come from private associations, such as the Red Cross or parliamentary unions, a list is usually made by them and each member of the council is given a copy of the list, so that he may ask for the original document if he so desires. Whether this course will be followed in the Egyptian affair does not seem to be clear as yet.

Ex-Governor Lake Balks at Bingham

Declares He Will Vote For Hamilton Holt For United States Senator.

Hartford, November 26—

"I shall not vote for Hiram Bingham for United States senator," declared former Governor Everett J. Lake, in a statement issued today in Hartford.

"My loyalty to the republican party and high regard for its record of public service will not permit me to support Colonel Bingham; neither would my devotion to the fine political traditions of Connecticut. I have nothing personal against Colonel Bingham but I see nothing in his previous record or public services that gives evidence of the high administrative abilities essential in the exalted office which he is seeking. In the fact I had my misgivings when I first learned of the plan to nominate him for governor and I frankly expressed these in the councils of the party at that time. But in view of the fact that the state ticket as a whole was most commendable and that the election of Calvin Coolidge, whom I revere, was involved, I not only voted for the state ticket but worked for its success.

"I shall vote against Hiram Bingham, not as a bolter from the republican party, but as a service to that party.

"The campaign for the senatorship following so quickly upon that for the governorship would indicate a spirit of sport or flighty ambition no the part of the aspirant rather than a realization of the dignity and responsibility of those offices.

"Colonel Bingham is a man who has devoted his life to the pursuit of things which appealed chiefly to his sense of amusement or his ambition and such a course is poor preparation for the public service of the people of Connecticut. He appears in this new ambition to fail to realize that he owes anything to that host of men and women who, by their votes, not only conferred a great honor on him but have entrusted him with a sacred duty. I can not conscientiously support him fo rsenator. I shall vote for Hamilton Holt."

HOOTCH SLEUTHS TO POSE AS COLLEGE STUDENTS

Philadelphia, Nov. 26.—A futuristic version of the Penn-Cornell gridiron epic tomorrow, so far as sounds were concerned was held in the prohibition enforcement offices here today when two groups of dry agents learned cheers and songs of the rival universities in order to qualify themselves as "students" in the grandstand crowds, to nip the wary flask-toter and bag bootleggers.

A third group received training in methods of watching entrances to Franklin field for hip-pocket drinkers.

A THANKSGIVING OFFERING

Lord, we who set the furrow deep,
And sow the seeds of industry,
For the rich guerdon that we reap
Give thanks to Thee!

Lord, we who make the anvils ring,
Who rive and weld laboriously
For all the wage our labors bring
Give thanks to Thee!

Lord, we who watch the spindles ply,
The shuttles flying dizzily,
For every boon our efforts buy
Give thanks to Thee!

Lord, we who build with busy hand
Of wood or stone unceasingly,
For whatsoe'er our arts command
Give thanks to Thee!

Lord, we who delve in under-earth
Far from Thy sunlight fair and free,
For whatsoe'er we win of worth
Give thanks to Thee!

Lord, we who hoist the straining sail,
And plow the green waves of the sea,
For what our stormy tasks avail
Give thanks to Thee!

Lord, we the toilers of the brain,
Who clutch at dreams that cling or flee,
For whatsoever heights we gain
Give thanks to Thee!

Lord, we Thy children, small and great,
Beneath Thy care, where'er it be,
The while Thy grace we supplicate,
Give thanks to Thee!

JURISTS FAVOR TRANSFER OF THE PROHIBITION UNIT

Recommend Transfer From the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice—Judge Taft Requests Attorney General Stone to Embody the Proposal in His Annual Report to Congress—Declare Such Transfer "Would Make Much For Effectiveness in Enforcing the Law"—Would Obviate Trial of Trivial Cases Now Crowding the Dockets Through Ill-Advised Zeal and Ignorance of Prohibition Agents.

Washington, Nov. 26.—(By the A. P.)—Bodily transfer of the prohibition unit from the treasury department to the department of justice, is among the recommendations adopted by the judicial conference of senior circuit judges, it became known today when Chief Justice Taft as chairman of the conference, addressed a letter to Attorney General Stone transmitting a request that he embody the proposal in his annual report to congress.

The senior circuit judges, familiar with the court conditions and reflecting the opinion of federal district judges, take the position that the transfer should be made at once. Basing their recommendations on abundant experience with prosecutions arising under the prohibition law, the judges, with Chief Jutsice Taft, concurring, declare that such a transfer "would make much for effectiveness in enforcing that law.

In the statement which they ask to have transmitted to congress, the judges asserted that "all the appropriations for such enforcement should be expended under the direction of the attorney general." In that way, they said, "the attempted prosecution of trivial futile, and unimportant cases, which now crowd the dockets through ill-advised zeal and practically ignorance of prohibition agents can be avoided, and only those cases taken up and pressed which will really deter the principal offenders, and in the preparation of which district attorneys will have a personal responsibility."

The conference also has recommended that the bankrupty statute be amended so that all judgments decrees, orders and proceedings in bankruptcy shall be reviewed by appeal only, and then only when the appeal is speedily taken.

Congress is urged to make adequate appropriation for the upkeep of the libraries of the federal courts. Decisions and opinions are now frequently postponed, the conference declared, while judges are looking for law books which are necessary to assure correct conclusions. Conditions are particularly bad, the conference said, in the second circuit, embracing New York, Connecticut and Vermont, where no law library, "worthy of the name" is provided for the circuit court of appeals.

PROGRAM FOR THE HOUSE FOR FIRST FOUR DAYS

Washington, Nov. 26.—A tentative legislative program for the house for the first four days of the approaching short session of congress was outlined today by Representative Longworth of Ohio, the republican floor leader.

He said the house, after convening next Monday, probably would authorize the speaker to appoint a committee to serve with a similar senate committee to notify the president that congress was ready to transact business and then adjourn out of respect to members who have died since the las tsession.

Tuesday the house expects to receive the annual message from the president, which, this year, is to be read to both houses in joint session, and also any other messages that may be sent from the White House.

Wednesday, he said, will be set aside for the consideration of bills on the calendar. The naval committee, he added, plans to bring up a measure providing for numerous changes in the administration of the navy.

The interior appropriation bill, he announced, is scheduled to be taken up Thursday.

NO MARKED DEVELOPMENT IN THE EGYPTIAN CRISIS

London, Nov. 26—(By the A. P.)—The Egyptian crisis showed no marked development today, Cairo and Alexandria remain quiet and even the militant students seem disposed to accept the advice of Zagloul Pasha, for they refrained from demonstrations.

Viscount Allenby, the British high commissioner, is said to content himself with selling that the Egyptian units are withdrawn from the Sudan and awaiting the next move by the Cairo government.

The British cabinet held another council today to discuss the situation in connection with the preparation of the king's speech at the opening of parliament, which must necessarily deal with Egyptian affairs. The debate of the address will doubtless provoke a protest from the opposition quarters as the government's "jingoist" methods in dealing with a weak country like Exypt, but, although neither the liberals nor the laborites approve of Lord Allenby's methods, Ramsay Macdonald, as leader of the opposition, can hardly call in question the policy pursued, but only the method of its application, since he himself found it quite impossible to negotiate with Zagloul owing to the extremist demands of the former Egyptian premier.

There is a clear belief in official quarters that a satisfactory settlement will be reached between Lord Allenby and the Ziwar administration.

Zagloul continues ot counsel prudence and calm, and it is expected that during the interregum month, while the Egyptian parliament stands adjourned, the negotiations conducted by Ziwar will lead to an acceptable arrangement. In the meantime the British authorities in Egypt maintain a sufficient show of military force toward the unruly elements of the population to prevent any open manifestations.

The opinion in official quarters in London is that none of the powers belonging to the league is likely to undertake the thankless task of bringing Egypt's cause before the council of the league, but both the liberal and labor parties take the ground that England, by refusing to recognize the Egyptian controversy as a proper subject for intervention by the league, is stultifying its own policy of support for the league.

OUTLINE OF TESTIMONY IN THE FORBES CASE

Chicago, Nov. 26.—(By The A. P.)—Outlines of the testimany for prosecution and defense were laid before the jury today in the trial of Charles R. Forbes, of Seattle, and John W. Thompson of St. Louis, charged with defrauding the government in the awarding of contracts for veterans bureau hospitals in 1922.

Forbes and Thompson, with three others, planned to divide over a million dollars of the $17,000,000 authorized by congress for these hospitals, it is asserted by John W. H. Crimm special assistant attorney general, in his opening statement to the jury.

Colonel James S. Beaby-Smith Forbes' counsel, countered with the defense outline in which he asserted that only three of the 32 alleged overt acts in the fraud indictment could possibly considered even suspicious, and indicated that high army and navy officials would testify that the contracts involved in one of these three transactions were awarded at their direction. Another alleged overt act, the furnishing of advance information to Thompson's contracting firm Colonel Earsy-Smith said, involved information which had been widely printed a week before it was supposed to have been secretly given to Thompson. The third act, the alleged $5,000 payment to Forbes indirectly by Thompson, would be known to be "a physical impossibility."

Two damage suits were heard at the session of Windham county superior court, held here Wednesday, Judge William M. Maltbie on the bench. Shortly after the first case had been started it was declared halted until a later date when various items on a bill will be arranged by a committee of one. The case was that of Mary A. Griffin Vertefeuille for damages of $3,000 from her second husband. The date of the marriage was October 3, 1922, according to the plaintiff. The couple could not agree and they have been separated for several months. Attorney Gaucher appeared for the defendant and Attorney Harvey for the plaintiff. When a bill of amounts of money loaned the defendant from time to time by the plaintiff was being questioned, item for item, Judge Maltbie noted that this procedure would take a long time and suggested that the parties adjourn to another room and straighten out the items. The outbursts of loud talking issuing from the room to which they had retired indicated that the suggestion was not working out very successfully and in twenty minutes the court was informed of the failure. Attorney Foss was then selected as the uninterested committee of one to arrange the bill and report back in two weeks. The bill included items to the amount of $1,-277.64 alleged to have been loaned for the payment of a cord of wood, life insurance, grocery bill, interest on mortgages, etc.

The case of Anthony Pionowski and Stephen Chomenchavitz vs. John Arcakewich, a suit for damages of $650 was then taken up. The tongues of the attorneys being ill suited for pronounciation of the surnames, Judge Maltbie allowed the use of the first names. The plaintiffs alleged that the defendant cut 103 trees on land of Tony Gregoris of Lebanon, and sold the timber, giving them no part of the proceeds, although they alleged they had paid for the timber. They were not in partnership with the defendant it was claimed, although they had boarded at his house and he had worked for them. Pionowski was first on the stand. He and Chomenchavitz were in partnership and they had bought timber on the Tony Gregoris land, adjoining that of John Wyman. While they were working on other land, 103 of the trees were cut and hauled away by Arcakewich. The defendant was not in their partnership and had been paid separately and in full for his services, timber he had sold the partnership and board. This settlement was made one day in a local store in the presence of the owner Isadore (Jake) Heller, Louis Rabinowitz, a former high school student had written out the receipt and it was signed by the defendant. The receipt had since been lost.

Stephen Chomenchavitz corroborated the testimony given by Pionowski. Albert Wyman, who owned land adjoining that of Tony Gregoris, stated that trees to the estimated value of $70 had been cut from his land which was not divided by a fence from the Gregoris land. He had found out that John Arcakewich was the man who had done the cutting and about a year ago the defendant settled with him for the trees, paying him $70. Tony Gregoris said that he had sold his timber, but did not know whether or not the three men were in partnership.

At the opening of the afternoon session John Arcakewich was the first witness. He claimed that when the plaintiffs came to his house to board, in 1922, they invited him into partnership and he agreed. They were to cut trees for railroad ties and telephone poles and they bought out timber on five lots, including one owned by defendant. In the case of the Gregoris lot he, the witness, had made the deal and Chomenchavitz paid him $13 to bind the bargain, later paying up the balance. The defendant said that for two of the other lots he had paid the required amounts and had never been reimbursed by his partners, although they had paid the price of the remaining lots. The agreement was that all should share in the profits; his wife was to do the cooking for which she had never been paid. He had only received $341 for his work and hire of his horses for hauling the cut timber to the Chestnut Hill railroad station.

Other witnesses called were Max Kessiber, who said that he had heard talk of the partnership, Assad Swyder and Kaleen Haddad. Mrs. Victoria Arcakewich, wife of the defendant corroborated the testimony given by her husband. Isadore Heller testified to the receipt which had been made out stating that he was positive that it was for full payment of what was owed the defendant by the plaintiffs. Following rebuttals in the testimony of the principal witnesses, Attorneys Foss for the plaintiffs and Harvey for the defendant made brief arguments. Judge Maltbie then announced that he would reserve his decision and court was adjourned at 4:55 o'clock until Friday morning.

The invitation of Willimantic Rotary club for a joint meeting was accepted at the Wednesday noon session of Willimantic Exchange club. President George E. Wilcox was in charge. Rev. F. C. Williams led the discussion for the day and spoke on a plan for organized charities and the idea was generally approved by the members.

The 4.25 o'clock trolley leaving here for Norwich, Wednesday afternoon was held up and detained traffic over the line to the Main street terminal here when the track scrapers dropped out of position, as the car was passing under the railroad bridge at the foot of Jillson Hill, a short distance from the terminal. Although the trolley was traveling very slowly at the time the sudden stop jarred passengers to some extent. The motorman and conductor in charge of the car worked feverishly to remedy the trouble but were successful only in returning to the terminal, shortly after 5.50. Motorcycle Officer Bombola was called to do traffic duty at the point where the trolley was halted under the overhead bridge. The car was well filled with passengers at the time of the mishap and they boarded the 5:25 trolley leaving the top of Jillson Hill and due at the terminal at 5 o'clock.

The value of one local business man's police dog was instantly increased by $5, one evening this week, when the animal swallowed a sparkling five dollar gold piece which the owner had dropped on the floor, as he was about to pay for a purchase made in a store on Union street. DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Mrs. Cora Florence Hopkins, 50, wife of Emery C. Hopkins, died at their home in West Glocester about 1.30 Wednesday morning. Mrs. Hopkins was a daughter of Albert R. and Mary Ellis Sanders and was born in Glocester, one of the Rhode Island border towns. Mrs. Hopkins leaves her husband and three children, Myrtis, Ralph and Dana. She also leaves three sisters, Mrs. Mary Pearce of Hopkins Mills, Mrs. Lillian Fiske and Mrs. Esther Hopkins of Glocester.

Over back of East Killingly—on Rhode Island territory—a time-honored Thanksgiving day event will be reenacted this morning. The usual white rabbit hunt will bring out its devotees for a sport that is as rare hereabouts as it is interesting. Some amazing tales are told about these white rabbits and the things they do. These rabbits are somewhat smaller than a pony and slightly slower than an aeroplane in covering any route they happen to select for a run. It will be gathered from this that they offer a sizabl etarget to shoot at, if one is good at shooting at chain lightning. This may seem na indulgence in exaggeration, and undoubtedly it is, but one cannot talk with a white rabbit hunter twenty minutes without being duly impressed that getting these long-legged babies is no game for an amateur. Still the men who have made a practice for years of hunting them do get them—occasionally. A white rabbit is the big brother of the common variety of rabbit found in these parts. He has habitats and ways of his own, however, and custom has established that Thanksgiving morning is a good time to hunt him. The territory mentioned is favorite hunting ground for him.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill has announced his findings on the death of Edwin T. White, who was shot by his demented brother Benjamin at Pomfret Landing Sunday, July 27, and on the deaths of William S. Carpenter and Joseph G. Happman, both of Putnam, who were fatally injured late in October in a railroad collision at Putnam.

The finding on the White death recalls that White was shot and killed while resisting arrest. He was found hiding on a hillside not far from the yard of the White residence, where on the previous afetrnoon he had killed his brother. The finding reads as follows:

"The undersigned, coroner within and for the county of Windham, having received notice of the death of Edwin T. White at Pomfret, in said county, on the 27th day of July 1924, I viewed the body of said deceased and on the first day of August, 1924, I held an inquest as to the cause and manner of said death at the dwelling house of said deceased at said Pomfret. From the testimony taken at said inquest I find that said Edwin T. White died at said Pomfret on the 27th day of July from a gunshot wound inflicted by Benjamin L. White of said Pomfret. I further find that said death was caused by the criminal act of said Benjamin L. White. The said Benjamin L. White having been killed in an attempt by officers to cause his arrest, there was no occasion to communicate the import of the finding to any prosecuting officer."

Carpenter and Hoppman were, respectively, engineer and fireman, of a passenger train which collided with a freight train on a siding, the switch being open. The finding holds Joseph C. Bartlett, the engineer, and Joseph B. Noyer, conductor of the freight train, responsible for the deaths, declaring they were caused by their "criminal act and carelessness." Both trainmen were arrested at Coroner Bill's office on Oct. 31 when they came to testify at the inquest. They are being held in bonds of $2,000 each on charges of manslaughter.

The findings on both the Carpenter and Hoppman deaths are identical. Following is the Carpenter report:

"The undersigned, coroner within and for the county of Windham, having received notice of the death of William S. Carpenter of Putnam at the Day Kimball hospital in said Putnam on the 25th day of October, 1924; I viewed the body of said deceased, and on the 30th day of October, 1924, at my office in Danielson, Conn., and on the 9th day of November, 1924, at Day Kimball hospital at Putnam, Conn., I held an inquest as to the cause and manner of said death. From the testimony taken at said inquest I find that William S. Carpenter died at said Putnam Oct. 25, 1924, from injuries received in a railroad collision on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad at said Putnam, Oct. 24th, 1924. I further find that said death was caused by the criminal act and carelessness of Joseph C. Bartlett, the engineer, and Joseph B. Noyer, conductor, of the freight train involved in said collision. I communicated the import of this finding to Eric H. Johnson, prosecuting attorney of the city of Putnam: I delivered the body of said deceased to his relatives for burial. I file with this finding a copy of the testimony taken at said inquest."

Such a Dollar day as Danielson has not known in several years, a real carnival of bargains, is being planned by local business men for a date late in January.

This (Thursday) morning's football game between Killingly High and Putnam High on the Quinebaug grounds should prove interesting for many. A large attendance will serve to encourage the Killingly team, which has had a season without victory. A big gallery of boosters might inspire the players to win from Putnam.

Liberal buying on Wednesday of all the essentials for such feast day dinners as are characteristic of Thanksgiving in New England indicated that Danielson and its surrounding territory is not pinched for cash.

The Alumni association dance at Killingly High school Thanksgiving eve was an enjoyable affair. The committee in charge was made up of Miss Marjorie I. Gaffney, president of the association; Arthur E. Hughes, vice president; Leo Bodo, secretary-treasurer, C. Clinton Cleveland, Norman A. Reeves and Mrs. Florence P. Hargraves.

Deer are reported numerous in territory near Danielson this fall. Numbers of them have managed to survive all the devices and plans for getting them. The fact that there was a ban on hunting during several weeks of the open season also helped some.

A special effort will be made during the coming holiday shopping season to make Danielson a very attractive buying center. With its improved lighting system in the business section and a liberal use of window lights, Danielson always noted for its good values, will be enabled to impress this fact on the shopping public. They promise that holiday stocks will be in greater variety than ever before.

Here it is, out of camphor, dusted off, and all ready for another season's use: Do your Christmas shopping early. Do all of it that you can at home.

A number of teachers in Killingly's schools left Wednesday afternoon to spend the Thanksgiving recess at their homes in various towns and cities in New England.

Among the dances that attracted attendants Thanksgiving eve was one at the dance palace at Wildwood park. The Lyric orchestra of Providence played.

These are nights, from 11 p. m. for an hour and more, that local radio fans are listening-in for European stations.

Clarence Young sustained a broken arm while trying to crank a motor truck at the state armory. The youth was given attention at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Young of Riverview.

For a time next Tuesday, probably about four hours from 10 p. m., the entire water supply of the borough will be cut off while the new line of mains are being connected up at Judd avenue. The Crystal Water company has given due notice of this that all may have a supply of water on hand for the time being.

A man charged with having been intoxicated, and who was unable to pay the fine imposed, was sent to jail from the town court at Wednesday morning's session. The unfortunate claimed Baltic as his home.

Motorists who desire to retain the numbers at present on their mcahines are asking in remittances for their 1925 registrations. To hold the old numbers, new applications for registrations must be made on or before Dec. 1.

Mrs. George Stone and daughter, Miss Gertrude Stone, of Academy street are at Salem to spend the holiday with Mrs. Stone's sister, Mrs. Ida Newell.

RHEUMATISM

A Remarkable Home Treatment Given by One Who Had It.

In the year of 1893, I was attacked by Muscular and Subacute Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who are thus afflicted know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, but such relief as I obtained was only temporary. Finally, I found a treatment that cured me completely, and such a pitiful condition has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, even bed-ridden, some of them seventy to eighty years old, and the results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of muscular and subacute (swelling at the joints) rheumatism, to try the great value of my improved "Home Treatment" for its remarkable healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of getting rid of such forms of rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

SUDDEN DEATHS AND HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Act Quick If You Have Any of These Symptoms.

A history of the average case of sudden death or apoplexy shows that the symptoms experienced before the fatal termination were dizzy spells, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath on exertion, ringing in the ears and frequent headaches.

High blood pressure comes from overtaxing the heart in persons where the blood vessels are clogged with dangerous poisons. The dangerous character of high blood pressure is well known to physicians and hospitals everywhere.

Lose no time in reducing your blood pressure to normal if you have any of the symptoms mentioned. The quickest and safest way to do this is through the use of Bi-a-lin, a noted doctor's prescription. It acts immediately to cleanse the overstrained blood vessels of clogging poisons, and quickly brings a new sense of fitness and well-being. Bi-a-lin is harmless, easy to take and may be had at The Lee & Osgood Co.'s.

CHOICE OF HAMILTON HOLT PLEASING TO DEMOCRATS

Putnam, Nov. 26.—Democrats in Putnam, Woodstock and adjacent towns are naturally pleased over the selection of Hamilton Holt as the democratic nominee for United States senator. He comes of a family that helped found the town of Woodstock. His father, Judge George C. Holt, still lives in Woodstock. Five generations of his ancestors are buried there. A maternal ancestor was the first settler in the town and he and Mrs. Holt now live in the homestead in Woodstock in which his great-grandparents started housekeeping. His boyhood was spent there and his early schooling was obtained at Woodstock Academy, of which he is now a trustee.

For 25 years he was editor of the New York Independent, at that time one of the influential journals of the country. For ten years Mr. Holt lived on the East Side in New York, the tenement district, working with labor unions and civic organizations. During this time he was closely associated, with Louis Brandeis, now an associate justice of the United States supreme court.

He is president of the American-Scandinavian Foundation which spends $100,000 a year to develop closer relations between Norway, Sweden and Denmark, and the United States. Every year forty students are sent from one country to the other in the effort to cement a closer understanding. For his work along these lines he was personally decorated by the king of Sweden.

As president of the Greek club he has been decorated by the king of Greece. He founded the Italy-American Society and the Polish-American Society and in recognition of it was decorated by the rulers of Italy and of Poland. He also has decorations from Japan and France for similar work.

With Franklin Roosevelt and other eminent citizens as directors of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, he helped to raise nearly $1,000,000 which is to be used to give prizes to those Americans who do great public service.

He was a delegate to the Connecticut democratic convention, was placed on the committee on resolutions and drafted the platform. Here at home he was the president of the John W. Davis club.

CHILDREN'S BANK LOSSES TO BE MADE UP BY NEW BANK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Nov. 26.—The school children of the town of Putnam who have money in the school savings fund of the First National Bank will be paid the full amount of their deposits, on Putnam's Come-Back days, the directors of the Citizens' National Bank having personally assumed responsibility for such payment. The amount of the school saving fund in the wrecked First National is slightly under $4,000. Although not a large sums in comparison with the total deposits of the bank, it is a very considerable sum to the children and comes to them at an opportune time, just before the holiday season.

The directors of the Citizens' National are doing this in their individual capacity but the facilities of the bank organization will be cheerfully given to help carry out a commendable act.

WESTERLY

About 3.30 Wednesday afternoon, the jury returned a verdict finding Nathaniel Tinckler not guilty of manslaughter, in connection with the death of Robert E. Sankey, Jr., of Bradford, R. I., on Nov. 2nd. The jury was out less than half an hour.

Before Associate Justice Hugh B. Baker, Attorney Herbert W. Rathbun for the defendant opened his case with a statement that his plea would be that it was an accident, pure and simple, and did not involve any of the elements of a criminal act. The first witness called at 10.45 was the defendant, Nathaniel Tinckler, who was on the witness stand up to the noon hour. Testimony showed the young man would be 22 years of age next February and on the Saturday evening previous to the shooting of the ten-year old boy had purchased the revolver to perfect himself in marksmanship, that he might be eligible as a non-commissioned officer of Battery E 243 C. A. C., of Westerly, of which he had been a member about two years. The boy's death occurred when a snap shot was taken at a can target on a stake at the rear of the Sankey home, Douglas park, Bradford, about noontime on Sunday as the boy crossed the line of fire in pursuit of a small dog. Since he was 14, Tinckler testified, he had been employed in the mill of the Bradford Dye Works. After the fatal shooting he had asked the lad, "Did that hit you?" and said the boy replied, "Yes." He picked up the lad and carried him into his Farents' home and there waited the arrival of the doctor, having tossed his revolver away as he rushed to pick up the boy. Cross-examination by Assistant Attorney General Hartigan was searching and emphasis was laid on the careless way in which the target practicing was carried on.

Loretta Tinckler, sister of the defendant, testified to seeing the Sankey boy after he had been taken into his home, but was not a witness of the shooting. Frank H. Murphy, husband of Mrs. Tinckler's eldest daughter, testified to having been to the garage on the morning of the shooting and taken out the automobile, going to Westerly at 9.30. The boys were about the yard at the time, with the exception of the boy who was killed and whose death was reported soon after he returned to Bradford from taking a music lesson in Westerly.

The state rested at 12.15 and Attorney Rathbun after the jury had been withdrawn, argued that the judge instruct the jury to bring in a verdict for the defendant. The motion was denied and court recessed for the noon hour from 12.20 to 1.30. On the opening of the afternoon session Attorney Rathbun made a 25 minute plea for the defendant and was followed by Assistant Attorney-General John P. Hartigan who closed his plea at 2.30 for the state. Following a short recess the judge charged the jury and they retired to return later with a verdict of not guilty.

Dashing down Plimpton road to Watch Hill from in front of intermediate cottage, where Chauffeur William A. McGrath for J. Frank Champlin of the Ocean House had left it parked with brakes on and wheels chocked, a Buick delivery auto gathered speed, about 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, raced in an unswerving course, crossed Bay street, and mounting the low cement wall was hurled some 15 feet into the waters of Little Narragansett Bay. It is a mystery as to what caused the automobile to start and also a testimonial as to the smooth surface of the highway that its course was not deflected on the down grade trip which trip was witnessed by a carpenter who stood at the top of the cliff powerless to stop it. Men from the Granite street garage with derrick put the auto on skids and it came to Westerly under its own power.

William Semon of Mechanic street, Pawcatuck, sustained an injury in the plant of the C. B. Cottrell and Son Co. the first of the week to the second and third fingers of his left hand which will necessitate the loss of several weeks' work.

The plant of the Westerly Textile company, with the exception of one department, was obliged to close down shortly after 7 o'clock Wednesday morning when the cross head of the engine broke, due to a flaw. The necessary electric equipment to run all of the machinery by electricity will be installed as soon as possible and it is believed the entire plant will resume operation Monday morning.

Here are three of the most important words in the Lexicon of Commerce. There is a charm to these words.

BUILD your BANK BALANCE! WITH IT you can "build" many structures. WITHOUT it you can only be a "SPECTATOR."

If YOUTH would only listen to the wisdom of MATURE AGE there would then be many substantial "bank balances" in the next generation.

Don't wait for time to heal that itching rash

NEGLECT of even the slightest skin rash, roughness, chafing or soreness may have serious consequences. Painful, disfiguring complaints like eczema, ringworm, etc., all start in a small way.

The safest plan is to keep a jar of Resinol Ointment ready to use at the first sign of skin trouble. It promptly stops itching and reduces inflammation and burning. The tiny pores readily receive this soothing ointment, and its healing influence is carried far below the surface of the skin.

Resinol Soap is a favorite with thousands who like its generous lather, so refreshing and cleansing. At all druggists.

'SOLE POLITICAL SIGNIFICANCE"

When the voters of Connecticut stop to consider the respective candidates for United States senator as named in conventions this week, we have reason to believe that they will look upon the candidacy of Hamilton Holt in much the same light as the New Haven Journal-Courier does when it says:

"The nomination of Mr. Holt by the democratic convention is depressing because of its revelation of the complete collapse of that party in the state. The necessity to which its section confesses of drafting for its candidate a gentleman who has been a resident of the state but two years and has never been identified with the activities of the party tells a story of internal weakness and political ineptitude which insures the approaching campaign of a listlessness wholly unworthy of this historic state. Mr. Holt is a man of character but his sole political significance consists in his advocacy of the league of nations. We are not aware of any connection on his part with the past history of the democratic party whose favor he has won. Not more discouraging to the men of profound democratic faith is the nomination of his personable carpetbagger than the fact that the men who ought to have made the fight for the purpose of a reorganization of the party, if nothing else, refused to do so."

The one chief claim of being an advocate of the league of nations must have a hollow sound to the people of a commonwealth who are called upon to fill the place so long and ably held by Senator Brandegee, whose position was unalterably opposed to the league of nations and whose attitude, as far as opposition was concerned at least, was so clearly upheld four years ago and again three weeks ago in the national elections by the people of this state. To ask the voters of Connecticut to send to Washington a league of nations advocate is to ask them to completely reverse themselves. They are being asked to do just what they have emphatically said they didn't want.

Happily they know that the support of Hiram Bingham means helping the national administration instead of antagonizing it.

PROTECTING THE PATRONS.

New York has been wrestling with a big transportation problem. Politics hasn't helped it any. In fact there are indications from time to time that it has been very much of a handicap, even standing in the way of an intelligent solution.

Motor busses have been put into operation to meet the situation and, in view of the conditions attending it, there can be no surprise when the transit commissioner points to the fact that 67 per cent of the "wildcat firetrap" busses, operated, as he claims illegally, but with the sanction of the mayor, are not equipped with the fire extinguishers which are called for on gasoline-driven vehicles to insure proper protection.

It is an old story of course that busses are permitted to do what other forms of transportation are forbidden to do. Gasoline cannot be carried on electric cars in many states, but in New York city there are busses which have their gas tanks inside the car.

It is necessary for railroads and trolley lines to provide emergency exits, or more than one entrance, for use in case of trouble, but New York busses are for the most part without such provision or else the extra exit has been nailed up.

It becomes more and more evident as the number of busses increases in the transportation business that they must come more nearly to the requirements which have been so long imposed on the transportation lines they replace. This doesn't mean that the busses are necessarily going to be driven out of business, but it does mean that they will be obliged to give the same amount of consideration to the protection of the patrons and to shoulder some of these additional expenses that have so long confronted other forms of transportation.

This of course will apply to more than New York city for the need of properly protecting the traveling public in general.

SETTLING THE WAR DEBT.

Word comes to the effect that France is about ready to enter into negotiations for the funding of its war debt to this country. Some basis for authority is to be recognized in the statement that such information is pleasing to the president.

France is one of the countries which has not as yet adjusted this matter, but there has been no intimation on the part of this country that there is going to be any change in our attitude through delay. The commission which this country named for the purpose of conducting such negotiations was given a limited life. Its existence hasn't terminated but there remain but a few months in which it can do business, though with an early move on the part of the French government that should be sufficient.

Conditions in Europe have been undergoing a change. Five countries have now arranged for the payment of their debts to this country. The Dawes plan has placed Germany in a much more favorable light, and the modifying of the European situation is clearly disclosed. Such being the case, together with the fact that both France and Germany are being aided by exterior loans, it is shown that there is greater confidence displayed and France has reason to find more encouragement in the outlook. That such should be sufficient to cause it to undertake the payment of the loan is logical, and particularly so since its own financial position has so greatly improved.

France hasn't shaken off the effects of the war and it is not going to for some time, but it is making good progress to such an end. There has been no reason to believe that it would not ultimately get around to meeting the war debt. Nothing, in fact, could be more detrimental to the credit of any nation, but it will reflect more favorably upon France if it arranges the details of the payment without making it necessary for this country to prolong the life of a commission which has been named to carry on such negotiations.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

In issuing his proclamation setting forth today as Thanksgiving day, President Coolidge says, "I recommend that the people gather in their places of worship, and at the family altars, and offer up their thanks for the goodness which has been shown to them in such a multitude of ways. Especially I urge them to supplicate the throne of grace that they may gather strength from the tribulations that they may gain humility from their victories, that they may bear without complaining the burdens that shall be placed upon them, and that they may be increasingly worthy in all ways of the blessings that shall come to them."

Thanksgiving day is a day of family gatherings in which there is feasting and the giving of thanks. It may well be a day of retrospection. Like those who established the observance we cannot fail to look back and to think of the individual as well as national mercies, for the bountiful crops and the meaning thereof, for the improved conditions and the more encouraging outlook, for the progress that has been made scientifically, educationally and politically, for the fact that we are at peace with the world, for the advancement in philanthropic activities and for the progress toward the attainment of those high ideals which make a nation great.

It is a day when we must remember not alone our material blessings but those which have quickened a worthy spirit. It is a time when we should always reverently sing:

Praise God, from whom all blessings flow!
Praise Him, all creatures here below!
Praise Him above, ye heavenly host!
Praise Father, Son and Holy Ghost!

WASTE.

When M. W. Alexander, managing director of the national industrial conference board, speaks upon waste in industry he has no difficulty in pointing it out, but experience shows that it is decidedly another matter to bring about correction.

Waste is one of the great problems that comes up for more and more attention as the effects of it multiply. The one great difficulty is in getting concentration upon the various methods of relieving the situation to such an extent that waste can be checked and wasteful methods and practices abandoned. Exhaustion of resources is one of the undesirable telltales. The endeavor should be to meet the situation before any such condition is reached, and that is the aim of those who endeavor to relieve waste in industry or anywhere else through pointing out what is resulting and what should be done to prevent it.

Mr. Alexander points to the waste from non-use or improper use of natural resources, from fire, from inefficiency in national, state and municipal work, from improper uses of fuel, from rats and insects, from bad shipments, from carelessness, from preventable diseases, from illiteracy and other causes.

In many instances it is an old story. It has been heard on repeated occasions before, but it is to be realized that the longer it continued without the application of the much needed remedy the worse the situation is getting and the greater is going to be the job of applying the corrective force. Realization of the full meaning of the waste that exists should come before irreparable harm is done. Waste can be stopped if only the habit is cultivated.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

This is the day when the turkey holds the commanding position at the table.

Are you sticking to that good resolution to do your Christmas shopping early?

The election result was just the tonic the railroads have been waiting for so long.

The man on the corner says: Show enough consideration so that you'll not be afraid to face the next turkey you meet.

Thanksgiving day, and an occasion when everyone should give expression to their gratitude for the many blessings received during the year.

The days when the hills were lighted with burning barrels on Thanksgiving night may never return but they are good to talk about.

If the voters get out to the polls December 16 it will not be necessary for the Literary Digest or any other poll taker to tell us what the result will be.

When the democratic lieutenant-governor of Rhode Island refuses to make possible the resumption of business by the legislature, the people will be happier than ever that they refused to permit him to stay in office after this year.

CERTAIN KINDS

"This is driving me mad!" declared the woman who was about to give a party. "I have such nice friends when they are taken separately, but collectively they are most distressing.

"You cannot give a party with a caterer and the new bedspreads out and extra vases borrowed from the neighbors and folks who aren't invited peering from behind their window drapes without having a collection of people, and if you have any regard for the preservation of peace, your furniture and their friendship, you have to see to it that there is a purr in the atmosphere instead of a growl. I had no idea there were so many different kinds of people in the world or that I was chummy with 101 per cent of them, as I have now discovered.

"I get along beautifully with Esther White's crowd. They are the kind of girls of whom people speak admiringly and for whom the adjectives 'fine,' 'noble,' 'broadminded' were coined. We meet together and sew for three poor families, discuss national affairs, serve tea and waffers and decide what next we shall do to better the world. They're not dumb at all, thank you, and we really have lots of fun. But I'm sure I don't know what would happen at my party if they were bunched with Min Rapp's crowd.

"If there is going to be anything new about anything three years from this present date, Min's crowd had it yesterday. They're that kind. They bobbed their hair when other women were fighting over who had the longest, most luxuriant lot of tresses, they smoked when most any perfect lady would have fainted — a shock if a box of cigarettes had been opened in her presence, and a cocktail to them was merely another and more interesting kind of lemonade. They've seen everything, done everything, have overwhelming poise and with perfectly calm, expressionless faces can convince you that they are laughing themselves to death.

"It would be just like putting two sets of foreigners together without one word in common. In their way Min's crowd does as much good as Esther's. There is always a certain percentage of the bridge winnings that go to their pet charities and they raised a lot of money at that unique dance they started folks with awhile ago. It makes 'em mad if you praise them for it. It embarrasses them.

"They get up at noon if they feel like it hire a steamstress to darn the family socks would think a cookbook was some foreign publication they hadn't run across before and simply do not in the least fill in the stock outline of the True Woman. You couldn't drive any of their husband's away with a gun, however. I like 'em.

"Then there are my women friends who are in business. Hetty makes $10,000 a year in real estate, dresses like 5th avenue, can tie an opponent in an argument in a bowknot and hates chatter as she hates poison. There is something about the sweet little inanities of the average woman which rouses a demon in Hetty. Her eyes begin to shine speculatively, her lips curl sweetly and she turns tense. In five minutes any man in the room doesn't know that any other woman exists and all her deadly enemies are rubbing their shins and wondering who kicked them. If women bore her too much she sinks back about 9,000 miles into a great silence which seems very interesting to her but is upsetting to the sociability of the occasion. Maybe Hetty's rude, and still I don't know. Life is short, as she says, and it certainly is a crime to waste any part of it on mere foolishness.

"And there are the sincere, intense little women who have all the virtues and who usually are kind of tiresome because their minds keep right ahead on a straight line and never dart madly off the track on some interesting chase. I don't think they have any sense of humor, either. I know several and admire them hugely, but I don't pick 'em out as my little companions when I have a couple of matinee tickets given to me. Now I've got all these and many more and I'm going to invite them all in the same language to come to my luncheon and bridge party and I just know it'll be either an awful frost or a seismic disturbance and I'm worried to death!"

"Well," said the philosophic listener, "seems to me that every party I ever went to in all my life has had just such a lot of women there and no hair pulling resulted either, and a fine time was had by all present! Wild animals do like to look at one another and sort of study out new points, you know!"

"Maybe you're right at that," conceded the worried hostess. "All I've got to do is to keep 'em barking and woofing at each other!"—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Probably few of the new members who will sit in the next congress have a wider acquaintance with the public than has Brooks Fletcher, the young democrat who has been elected to represent the Eighth Ohio district, which was the home district of President Warren G. Harding. As a Chautauqua lecturer for several years Mr Fletcher has spoken before several millions of people in various sections of the country. He is 48 years of age and a native of Carroll county, Ohio. His experiences have been many and varied. In turn a farm hand, a laborer in the steel mills, clerk in a retail store, and waiter in a restaurant, he worked his way through college and distinguished himself both in scholarship and athletics. Then he turned his hand to newspaper work and from a position as a reporter he worked his way up until he became editor and proprietor of a paper in Marion.

Stories That Recall Others

Willing Target.

Jimmy and Dan had had their fill of candy and when more was offered they said:

"Throw it in the waste basket!"

"Throw it at me!" exclaimed little Jean, three years old.

Asking Wrong Man.

A woman was out in her backyard the other day when she noticed a rather well dressed man come up to the fence and in the back gate. Lifting his hat he said:

"You have a lot of debris in your yard that ought to be hauled away."

"Yes, I know it ought I've just been waiting for some one like you to come around and do it for me. What will you charge to get it all out and clean up the yard?"

"Well, really I could not do it, lady," the man replied, "I'm an inspector of the health department and I noticed your yard seemed to need attention."

The housewife was "embarrassed to death" as she said later, but she got some consolation from the fact that she was trying to get her debris hauled away, even before she knew the rank of her victor.

Bene, Red-Haired Champion of Liberty

While undergoing the hardships of poverty in a strange land, Edward Benes acquired an iron self-discipline that changed the entire course of his life.

Many considered that his rise in life already had been remarkable. Son of an uneducated peasant farmer of Koslany, Bohemia, where learning was ignored, the red-haired, undersized boy sought knowledge at the country school, and was considered the "black sheep" of the family.

After his father lost his small estate, the boy wrote, taught and borrowed until he entered the University of Prague at 20. There he earned his way and coming under the influence of Professor Masaryk, leader in the Czech-Slovak realistic movement, he wrote seditious articles and left for Paris just before his small room was raided.

Arriving in Paris without funds, he wrote for the leading Czecho social-democrat newspaper in Prague and for two years attended the Sorbonne and Academy of Political Sciences. Poverty was ever at his elbow and he learned self-control and rigid self-denial.

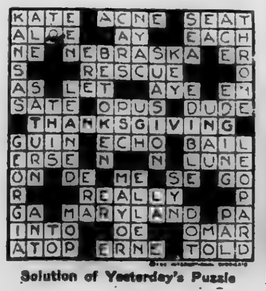
At 24 he was awarded the degree of doctor of law by the University of Dijon for his thesis, The Austrian Problem and the Czech Question. Then he studied sociology in England, was appointed professor of economics at the Czech Academy of Commerce at 25, and three years later was made lecturer on sociology at the University of Prague.

When the World war broke out Benes became an active leader of the Mafia in its signal service to the Allies, twice facing danger to confer in Switzerland with Masaryk, then president of the Czecho-slovakia movement.

Finally, with the Austrian police in close pursuit, he fled to Paris to plead the cause of his people. All eyes were turned toward the Western front, few knew of Czecho-slovakia, and his task seemed hopeless. After many months he won his way into the inner councils of the Allies and was promised help. Then he wrote a book in which he told his plan for victory for the Allies, and his idea gained for him wide recognition.

France was the first to recognize the Czech National Council and other countries soon followed. And when the Czechoslovakian Government was recognized at 34 became the youngest Minister of Foreign Affairs in the world.

Tomorrow—Independence and Achievement.



Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

CHILD TRAINING

Mary S. Stover

A successful primary teacher of my acquaintance is an advocate of close supervision in both work and play, so she sharply criticised the methods of a certain new-style private school. While visiting there she found one child fussing by herself with various boxes and other objects on a small table.

"What are you doing?" she asked. The child tossed her curls and replied in a tretful tone, "I don't know what I'm doing."

The visitor regarded this as strong evidence against the school and against every other planned along the lines of incidental education. To me, the happening by itself was not conclusive. Surely it isn't well to get children in the way of aimless work, play or idling, yet why shouldn't they fuss away sometimes, even irritably and resentfully, without knowing what will come of their efforts? All worthy creative workers have gone through hour after hour of such experiences.

Often, even as children, these future artisans and artists had a definite goal in mind but would have hesitated to disclose it for fear of ridicule. At other times their manipulations were purely experimental: the sum total of profit to be shown—and perhaps shown only years afterward—was mastery of the tools of though and hand. All children need to spend much time just getting acquainted with things.

Rightly circumstanced boys and girls will do enough of this outside; but how few in this age are rightly circumstanced for normal childish development! Literally millions have no suitable home play space and playthings; many (rich, poor and middle class) have their hours too crowded with other things to allow for developing individually outside of school. They must have their chance there or nowhere.

Directed play and study have their place, but are they not given too large a place in the lives of most twentieth century children? That means too little margin for the experimenting, the observation and first hand thought, the self-exploration and independent actions which are basic elements of all true education.

"Do something; don't idle!" was the the frequent injunction of the mother of a famous son. This was god counsel, yet how often a child might fail to know that he or she was truly "doing something" when engrossed in a very worth while way!

We have a homely word to describe such employment of one's time. It is "fussing." "I've been fussing over that for a long while," says the successful inventor, the author, the scientific investigator, the statesman, to explain results over which we exclaim with pleasure and respect.

What valuable creative work, or executive work of the higher types, is ever performed by individuals who never spent long hours concerning which they must honestly say that they didn't know then what they were doing? Failure is often the road to success, and the habit of patient fussing is a profitable one for every child to form.

A Little Talk on Thrift

The president of a building and loan association in a small western town recently told of the erection of five new houses in that community. These houses he said involved an expenditure of $22,000. Seventeen workmen benefited directly from the money paid for labor. In addition, it was found upon investigation that exactly 63 business firms benefited either directly through purchases of materials and household furnishings or indirectly through money spent by the 17 laborers.

This is an illustration of some of the general community benefits that come from personal thrift.

"It was the thrift of only five families that made possible the erection of the houses, yet practically everyone in the community shared in the results directly or indirectly.

One sometimes hears the theory that thrift hurts business because people who are economical do not spend much money. In former years this fallacious reasoning was much more prevalent than it is today.

The business man in any community makes no mistake in encouraging thrift even when looked at from the most selfish standpoint. Money that is saved finds its way immediately into the channels of trade, and all lines of legitimate business share in the results.

All of this is in addition to the moral, mental and material advantage to the individual whose thrift practices start the endless chain of wholesome processes.

Community leaders can do nothing of greater value than to give all possible encouragement to thrift.—American Society for Thrift.

TRYING TO ELIMINATE TRANSPORT COMPETITION

"How to Eliminate Wasteful Competition in Short-haul Transportation in New England" will be the keynote of the New England Motor Transport Conference, to be held at the Copley-Plaza, Boston, on Dec. 8 and 9, according to a preliminary program for the meetings issued by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Besides the discussions which will center around this keynote, the conference includes highway sessions at which the highway program for New England will be discussed, and at which the municipal traffic congestion problem will be considered. J. Rowland Bibbins of Washington, D. C., one of the country's leading authorities on city traffic planning, will be the chief speaker on the latter subject.

Robert C. Wright of Philadelphia, general traffic manager of the Pennsylvania railroad, will lead a discussion on the use of motor trucks by railroads to replace local freight trains.

An interesting session is expected to develop at the motor bus meeting on Tuesday morning, when Edward Dana, general manager of the Boston Elevated Railway, and W. J. Flickenger of the Connecticut Co., New Haven, discuss "The economics of motor bus operation" by street railway companies.

The American Automobile Association is establishing separate national divisions for motor truck and motor bus users, and its aims in this connection will be explained in an address by Ernest N. Smith of Washington, D. C., general manager of the A. A. A., on Why Owners of Automobiles and Trucks and Busses Should Cooperate.

Among those who have been invited to attend the meetings or send representatives, are the mayors of all New England cities; members of the state highway commissions and their staffs; members of public utility commissions; members of chambers of commerce; railroads; electric railways; truck and bus associations; city traffic and planning board officials; embers of the Traffic League of New England; students at Harvard and M. I. T. studying highway transport or highway engineering; members of the American Automobile association, and others. The conference will be open to the public.

Because of the danger of spreading blister rust disease, federal forest authorities have ruled against the practice of tourists of digging up white pines for transportation to their homes in distant localities.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Party

The day for the Lollypop party opened bright and clear. Mr. Merry Sun shone in all his splendor from the Blue Sky Country. Only a few white clouds drifted here and there, like pretty ships. Billy Breeze was blowing from the West, and the Weathercock up on the Big Red Barn was telling everybody to leave the old cotton umbrella at home.

At Uncle Lucky's little white house on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street everything was ready for the guests. Dear Uncle Lucky had ordered ten new records from the Three-in-One Cent store at Rabbitville. Yes sir. The Lollypop Feast was to be set to music. I hope the pretty candies won't hop off the little sticks when the music begins. What would the little bunnies do if that happened, I wonder?

More than an hour before the time set for the party, dear Uncle Lucky had dressed himself in his Sunday-go-to-meeting black swallowtail coat. In his beautiful purple cravat sparkled a big diamond horseshoe pin, and against his pink waistcoat glittered his heavy gold watch-chain and charm inside of which, if he had opened it, one would have seen the picture of a pretty bunny lady with long curls and hoop skirts.

Little Miss Mousie's bobbed hair was held in place by two amber side combs and two bright steel buckles adorned her tiny black slippers. Her lovely mouse-colored gown fitted so well that observing Uncle Lucky didn't even put on his spectacles, but said, all of a sudden, just like that: "My, how well you look. Maybe you'll win the prize lollypop."

As for Little Jack Rabbit. Well, you all know what bunny boys wear to a party,—long trousers, with sailor-wide bottoms, and a coat with a broad stiff white linen collar.

Pretty soon, not so very long, the guests began to arrive. One after another they marched up Lettuce avenue and turned in at the little gate in the white picket fence. The first to give the bell a tinkle winkle was Granddaddy Bullfrog. The old gentleman frog looked spick and span in his white wool coat and gold rimmed spectacles. Balancing his silver headed bullrush cane in his left hand, he doffed his high silk hat and smiled at Little Miss Mousie as she opened the door.

Just behind him Chippy Chipmunk in his red striped fur coat, his eyes all asparkle and his tail aquiver. Next Henny Jenny in a beautiful white feather gown, a red corral comb on the top of her little head and a vanity bag under her wing. "I've brought a newly laid egg for dear Uncle Lucky's breakfast," she said, placing it carefully in his tiny mouse housekeeper's paw.

"Walk right into the sitting room," invited Little Miss Mousie, not daring to move away from the door as up the porch steps hopped Mrs. Cottontail and her four little bunnies.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

PRETTY DECORATIONS FOR K. OF C. ARMORY DANCE

The second annual Thanksgiving eve dance of White Cross council, No. 12, K. of C., was held Wednesday night at the state armory, over 1,000 people attending the affair and enjoying the snappy music furnished by Crowley's Hyperion orchestra of ten pieces. The orchestra was under the direction of Frank Benson, formerly director of the Palace Theatre orchestra, and during the evening many new musical hits and features were rendered. Over forty new musical numbers were rendered during the evening, the first time they have been given by any local orchestra, and the repeated calls for encores was demonstration that the dance audience enjoyed the numbers.

Adding to the enjoyment of the evening were several moonlight waltz numbers, a pretty color effect being given during the dances by changing lights thrown from a revolving color machine placed in the balcony. Other features included solo numbers by Peter DeVito, Dreaming Alone at Twilight, and by Harry Schwarts, Big Boy. Both soloists received hearty applause for their entertaining selections.

The armory drill shed was beautifully decorated for the occasion in streamers of red, white and blue, and wall decorations were "K. C." letters arranged in triangular positions about the walls. Added decorations included crossed American flags and a large American flag on the west wall, on either side of which were the dates 1882—1924, signifying the date of the institution of the order of the Knights of Columbus. The orchestra stand was placed along the north side of the hall and was decorated with red, white and blue winders, to make the dome effect similar to the dome of the capitol at Washingtno. This was brilliantly lighted during the moonlight dance numbers, making a most novel effect.

The affair was in charge of Daniel O'Brien, who was ably assisted by the following sub-committees: General committee, Daniel J. O'Brien, chairman; John Shea, Jr., secretary; Walter Casey, treasurer; door committee, John P. Corcoran and Michael J. Curran; ticket committee, John Shea, Jr., J. Chafhauser, Francis Leonard and Raymond Wosniack; refreshment committee, Alfred Zeiglemeir, chairman, Fred Aldi, Daniel Quinto, Charles Donahue, John Mara and John Zulka; decorations committee, John J. Shea, Jr., chairman, Richard Marks, James Mahoney, William, Raymond and Joseph Wosniack, James McKelvey, Frank Powers, Tony Tenebrusso, Charles Hathaway; Neal Crowley and Joseph Dougherty; men's coat room, Howard Ryan, chairman, Martin Burns and Joseph Kemos; ladies' coat room, the Misses Marie Mack and Mary Langloss.

JURY GIVES $4,500 VERDICT IN BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT

After two hours in the jury room at the superior court here where they had been listening all day to the testimony and the arguments of the $75,000 breach of promise case of Mrs. Matilda Bendett against Charles Slosberg, the retired grain merchant, the jury brought in a verdict at 6 o'clock Wednesday afternoon for Mrs. Bendett to recover damages of $4,500.

Foreman Appleton Main delivered the jury verdict to Clerk George E. Parsons, who handed it to Judge George E. Hinman. Glancing over the paper, Judge Hinman declared the verdict accepted and handed back the paper to Clerk Parsons who read the verdict in open court.

Judge Hinman then adjourned court till Friday morning, dismissing the jury until next Tuesday morning and wishing them a pleasant holiday with a good appetite, but remarking that he hoped their indulgences in the holiday observance would not prevent their appearance in court next Tuesday.

No motion to set aside the verdict and for a new trial had been filed by either side to the suit up to late Wednesday night.

Testimony for the defendant, some rebuttal testimony, the arguments and the judges 'charge took up the court session Wednesday, the second day of the trial.

Jacob R. Slosberg, of the Shetucket Coal and Lumber Co., a brother of the defendant, testified that May 3, 1923, the day on which Mrs. Bendett had testified she expected to be married, he went to the ice cream store of Wolf Bendett because of a telephone message that Bendett was ready to repay some money he had borrowed about a week before. When he reached the store at 4 in the afternoon he saw Mrs. Matilda Bendett there, drinking a glass of soda water. Wulf Bendett spoke to him, saying that "we were just talking about your brother." Mrs. Bendett broke in, saying "What's the use of talking about it any more. Everything is all off and let's forget it."

Referring to Charles Slosberg, Mrs. Bendett went on, according to the witness, to say I didn't care for him from the beginning. You (Wulf Bendett) kept after me, talking to me about him, trying to persuade me that I should marry him. I told you that he was too old, and was old enough to be my father. He is too old fashioned. He is not the style of man that I like. He is not the style of man that I have had and there isn't any comparison to the man that I did have."

The witness said he told the woman she was right in her comparison, but that Charles Slosberg would have provided well for her and her children. During the time at the store, he said that Mrs. Bendett was not hysterical or crying but was like any normal person.

Mr. Slosberg said that Tillie told him she had one day told Charles she would marry him if he signed over everything in her name, and he stated to her that he thought it was best for both that everything is off. She did not say any more then. She ordered a soda and he did the same. He left after finishing his soda and receiving $200 from Wulf Bendett, but before he left he invited Tillie Bendett up to his home and to stop there in the future. He said he did not know then of the break in the friendship between Charles Slosberg and Tillie Bendett and he did not know that she was sick in the hospital later.

Matchmaker Testifies.

Wulf Bendett, who Charles Slosberg had testified put the idea of marrying Tillie Bendett into his (Slosberg's) head, followed Jacob Slosberg on the stand. He is a brother of David Bendett, the deceased husband of the plaintiff, and also a brother of the deceased wife of the defendant.

He testified to talks with Charles Slosberg about getting married to Tillie Bendett and on May 3 he telephoned to her at Plainfield to come to his ice cream parlor on Thames square. He did not tell her what it was for except that it was for business, but he testified that he wanted to talk about buying a truck she owned. When the plaintiff came to the store, he said, she kept on talking about Charlie and calling the marriage off and Wulf forgot to talk to her about the truck.

He said on the stand that Tillie told him the marriage was all off, that Slosberg wasn't the right man because he was too old, but Wulf had talked her into it. There was nothing hysterical about Mrs. Bendett, the witness said. He could not tell what her conversation at that time was with Jacob Slosberg, because he was too busy to remember it.

The witness said of talking to Mrs. Bendett about the match with Mr. Slosberg, cautioning her on trivial matters and advising her not to ask him to sign anything over, but he said just the opposite to what he advised. Once when she told him she had asked Slosberg to sign over his property he told her she ought to be ashamed of herself.

Wulf testified to having a telephone call later in the day on May 3rd that Mrs. Bendett was sick at the Auditorium hotel. He had Dr. Louis T. Cassidy go there to see her and the next morning learned from the doctor that Tillie was in the hospital. When he went to her room in the hospital, she said to him "Leave me alone, don't bother me now." He didn't think she seemed to be in a serious condition.

Witness For Plaintiff.

George M. Charbonneau, deputy internal revenue collector, was called to the stand by the plaintiff's attorney. His wife was the owner of the house on West Thames street that Mr. Slosberg bought before May 3rd. Mr. Charbonneau testified that Mr. Slosberg asked him if he could vacate the property as soon as possible as he wanted to move in and Mrs. Bendett was living in the country under unfavorable conditions with her children. He agreed to vacate by May 11th. He said he is trying to buy the property back.

Plaintiff in Rebuttal.

Called to the stand in rebuttal, Mrs. Bendett said she saw no money pass at the Bendett store between Bendett and Jacob Slosberg, and she denied practically all that they had testified as taking place there on the 3rd of May. She said she was crying at the store. She denied that she ever locked the door on Mr. Slosberg at Plainfield or demanded that he sign over his property or that she ever told Jacob Slosberg or Wulf Bilnderman that she had demanded the signing.

Arguments by Attorneys.

The evidence was closed in the latter part of the morning and Attorney Cargill of New Haven made the opening argument for the plaintiff, speaking about half an hour.

Attorney Arthur M. Brown opened the argument for the defense and emphasized strongly the points about the conservation at Wulf Bendett's store. He took up the photograph that had been an exhibit in the case and said that it showed the plaintiff was of the flapper type, not bad, but not the type that would naturally be attractive to Charlie Slosberg. Do you believe, he asked, that she could come to love Charlie Slosberg, a man in the downhill side of life, soft and fat? Her only love for him was her love for his money and she knew she had to get it before they were married. He balked, and why shouldn't he? The attorney declared that the story about Jacob Slosberg calling on Bendett for repayment of a loan bore the stamp of truth and the ten-day period when Slosberg came not to Plainfield or telephoned proved that it was Tillie Bendett who broke off the engagement.

Mr. Brown was followed by Attorney J. J. Desmond, also for the defendant, who claimed that it was shown Mrs. Bendett knew the engagement was off because for more than a week before the appointed wedding day she heard nothing from him but she made no attempt to find him. She said she expected to be married in Hartford, but she did not come to Norwich till 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Even with modern speed in travel it still takes some time to get from Norwich to Hartford. The attorney claimed that there could have been no conspiracy shown by the meeting and conversations at the Bendett store that he said that Tillie Bendett could have no affection for Charlie Slosberg but she could have an abiding affection for his accumulations. Whatever kind of a Cupid's bandage had been placed over his eyes by this beautiful girl, it was all torn off and he saw the light when she demanded his property and she is not entitled to a cent of damages.

Attorney Walter J. Walsh, for the plaintiff, closed the arguments, saying that his client had been pictured as a designing flapper, intent on raiding Mr. Slosberg's pocketbook. He ridiculed the defendant for what he called his dodging tactics on the stand and his answers of "I don't remember," when questioned about his financial standing. The witness, Miss Donohue, isn't making a raid on a pocketbook, said the attorney, and we have got to believe her and we've got to believe Mr. Connell.

Attorney Walsh said he wanted to call attention to several uncontroverted facts, to all of which there was only one answer. Tillie Bendett was doing a good business in Plainfield, but she went out of business. She had her compensation transferred for the benefit of her children and Mr. Slosberg's daughter was with her. He took her around to show her the house he was to buy. After coming from the Bendett store on the 3rd of May she was in a frightful nervous condition.

In each and every instance there is only one answer and that was because he had promised to marry her in this Jewish holiday and provide for her and her children and has broken his promise. The attorney closed with sarcastic reference to the claim that Jacob Slosberg had loaned money to Bendett without a note or any other evidence of the debt.

Judge Hinman occupied about ten minutes in his charge to the jury telling them there were three questions for them to decide: Was there a contract? If there was, was it broken? If broken, by whom? He also spoke briefly as to the element of damages in a breach of promise case.

PRELIMINARY PLANS FOR CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE

A preliminary meeting of the general committee which has been appointed to arrange for the seventeenth annual Christmas seal sale, was held in the parlor of the Wauregan house on Wednesday afternoon. Chairman Lucius Briggs presided and explained the plan of campaign which had been suggested by the executive officers of the association and offered it for the approval of the committee.

Chairman Briggs stressed the necessity of the members of the committee, in all its activities, to make clear to the public the purposes of the work of the tuberculosis committee, which is entirely distinct from that of any other organization. As explained by the chairman the tuberculosis committee is a permanent organization which functions every day in the year and it is affiliated with the Connecticut State Tuberculosis commission and with the National Tuberculosis association. It is the custom, each year, since the commission was instituted, to hold a campaign, during the month of December, to raise funds by the sale of Christmas seals and health bonds to carry on its work, which is of a preventable nature. Every community may help to prevent tuberculosis by educating its citizens in the importance of health; through establishing clinics where physical examinations may be given to detect the presence of tuberculosis in its early stages; through tuberculosis nurses who teach health in the home; through providing hospital care in cases where it could not otherwise have been obtained; through furnishing milk to undernourished persons who are most susceptible to the germs.

"The commission feels" said Chairman Briggs "that when the true purposes of the organization are fully known to the public and the great service which it renders in this humanitarian field is thoroughly understood, there will be no question but what the public will respond and the necessary funds will be cheerfully provided to carry on this very important work."

It was decided that the campaign would open in the early part of December, before which time the finishing touches would be put upon the plan which had been outlined by the chairman and which would then be ready for presentation to the public. The committee which has been appointed to arrange and carry on the 17th annual Christmas seal sale is as follows: Lucius Briggs, chairman; Harold P. Hull, treasurer; Rev. A. H. Abbott, E. LaRue Bliven, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, Rev. J. W. Carlevale, Mrs. J. J. Casey, Rev. Robert B. Day, Jeremiah A. Desmond, Joseph A. George, Max Hanover, Philip A. Johnson, Rev. William A. Keefe, John M. Lee, F. B. Ricketson, Henry A. Tirrell, Mrs. Albert Van Wagenen, Charles F. Wells.

Over 2,000 will enjoy a Thanksgiving dinner at the Norwich State hospital. There are nearly 1923 patients and 300 members of the staff at that institution and all will enjoy a roast chicken dinner with mashed potatoes, mashed turnips, onions, celery and mince pie. A special feature on Thanksgiving evening will be the lighting of the huge bonfire, workmen having been busy for several days past getting this ready.

On Wednesday evening at the hospital a pleasant evening was enjoyed, the occasion being the eleventh anniversary of the birth of the Riverview club. A dance and masquerade was held, members of the club and their guests enjoying themselves until late into the evening.

Supt. F. L. Hutchins has arranged for the serving of a regular roast turkey dinner at the Backus hospital at 12 o'clock to 127 patients, nurses and employes of the institution. The holiday committee of the Women's Auxiliary furnished the turkey and trays for each patient, also a favor of some kind and pretty Thanksgiving napkins. Ice cream for the dinner has been furnished by the United Congregational church, the cake by Park Congregational church, the celery by Miss Jane Bill, the cranberry sauce by Mrs. E. LaRue Bliven, a box of oranges by Miss Mary Porteous, and Mrs. G. Everett Hall has furnished the candies for the nurses' tables.

Norwich Almshouse

Everything that will go into making the Thanksgiving dinner at the Norwich Almshouse a success has been raised on the farm at that institution. The 39 members of the family will enjoy this treat at 2 o'clock today. A large cake will top off the bountiful meal.

Fifty-three members of the family at the New London county home, with the five helpers, will enjoy a fine Thanksgiving turkey dinner this noon through the courtesy of George W. Carroll. The regular Thanksgiving entertainment at the home was held Tuesday afternoon under the direction of the matron, Mrs. Gibson, and was thoroughly enjoyed by the family and their guests.

EAGLES INITIATE AND HAVE TURKEY SUPPER

Norwich Aerie, No. 367, F. O. E., held its annual Thanksgiving turkey supper Wednesday evening at the Eagles rooms on Shetucket street. The supper was preceded by a business meeting presided over by the worthy president, Timothy Fields. During the meeting a class of 14 candidates was initiated.

A complete turkey supper menu was served to the 115 Eagles present by a Norwich caterer. After the menu State Treasurer William R. Hastedt spoke in an interesting manner on the Old Age Pension and there were also remarks by Past President Edward J. Mullins and Worthy President Timothy Fields. The worthy president announced that he is out for 250 new members between now and June 1st when his term as president expires. It was decided to have an open meeting and to invite the members of all fraternal organizations in the city to attend.

The committee in charge of the supper comprised, Chaplain A. Hastedt, chairman; Past President Edward J. Mullins; Vice President Geo Nadolny; Past President Martin Keough; Trustee J. Burns, Worthy President Timothy Fields and Inside Guard Harry Connors.

Visited in Brooklyn, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Lucas and little son John, Jr., of Spring Garden avenue, were guests over Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Lucas' uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smith, of Brooklyn, Conn., formerly of Norwich. Mr. and Mrs. Smith and son Albert, who have been staying with Norwich Town relatives since their return from California several weeks ago, recently took up their residence in Brooklyn. Their household goods were transferred from Norwich Town, where they had been in storage, last Friday.

Mr. Smith was in Norwich on business Wednesday and returning with him was his son, who remained in the Norwich Town school until the Thanksgiving recess.

A week ago Monday, Mrs. Smith assumed the management of the Alex M. Pasnik store of Danielson. Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith for several years were engaged in a successful business in Norwich.

STATE HOSPITAL NOW GETTING ITS OWN WATER

The Norwich state hospital is now furnishing practically all its own water, said Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, the superintendent, Wednesday night, running two centrifugal pumps, each with a capacity of 100 gallons per minute. The water is drawn from the deep wells at the hospital which are about 100 feet deep.

At a certain time of the day there is a back pressure so that the water from the hospital adds to the supply of the Laurel Hill section, thus helping the situation in the city instead of making a draught on the city supply.

MANY IMPORTANT FOOTBALL GAMES TO BE PLAYED THIS AFTERNOON

New York, Nov. 26.—(By The A. P.)—Championship hopes will be at stake in the east, south and middle west tomorrow in the Thanksgiving Day programs which mark the close of the gridiron season in many sections.

Although western and Pacific coast conference title races have been concluded football fans anticipate keen battles in the east, where Pennsylvania's undefeated eleven will make its final bid for title honor by tackling Cornell, in the south where Georgia and Alabama, both undefeated and the former unscored upon so far, struggle for southern conference honors, and in the middle west, where Missouri university's hold on the top of Missouri valley conference race depends upon the outcome of her game with Kansas.

All three of these games will hold unusual sectional interest in a day which also marks the renewal of many ancient rivalries. In the east, besides the Cornell-Pennsylvania game which goes back over a thirty-year period of conflict, traditional foes meet in the West Virginia Washington and Jefferson contest at Morgantown, W. Va., and in the Penn State-Pittsburgh battle at Pittsburgh.

The middle west has two important intersectional games, with Vermont at Milwaukee seeking revenge for the 20-0 defeat administered to the New Englanders a year ago by Marquette, while the Oregon Aggies invade Lincoln to play Nebraska. Florida and Drake clash at Gainesville, Fla., in an intersectional fray involving the south and mid-west.

Pennsylvania, with a record of eight victories and a tie game with Penn State, will be a favorite to defeat Cornell and end the big red team's three-year march of victory at Franklin field but the Quakers anticipate a rugged battle. The Ithacans have developed a formidable attack since early season setbacks and with a strong defensive line hope to upset the Red and Blue. The outcome of the game will determine whether Pennsylvania is to share leading eastren honors with Dartmouth and Yale, the other major undefeated elevens.

West Virginia and Penn State probably will be favorites in their contests with W. & J. and Pittsburgh, both of which are flavored with keen rivalry but experts expect closely fought engagements in both games. Brown figures to conquer Colgate at Providence and Syracuse, invading the Polo grounds, is expected to defeat Columbia but again the rivals are well matched and it would not be surprising to many critics if opposite results occurred.

Tomorrow's important games on which 1924 comparison are available:

Cornell at Pennsylvania 14-7.
Penn State at Pittsburgh 2-20.
W. & J. at West Virginia 7-7.
Vermont at Marquette 0-20.
Nebraska at Missouri 3-3.
Auburn at Georgia Tech 0-56.
Washington & Lee at North Carolina State 20-12.

COLGATE-BROWN GAME WILL BE BIG EVENT

Providence, R. I. Nov. 26.—Brown and Colgate, both determined to conclude more or less unsatisfactory season with victory, will meet in the Thanksgiving day attraction at Andrews field tomorrow morning. Colgate has lost to Nebraska, West Virginia, and Syracuse but has defeated a really strong elevn. Brown has bowed to Chicago, Yale, Dartmouth and the Haskell Indians, but gets consolation out of a victory over Harvard, the third in as many years. Colgate upset Brown's championship hopes in 1918 after the Bears had beaten every team on its card including Harvard and Yale, and Brown will never forget the disaster. The Brown team showed power against New Hampshire last week while Colgate was making a great showing against Syracuse. Indications point to a stubbornly fought game with a small score. Against the individual brilliance of Eddie Tryon, Brown is pitting its array of backfield stars which includes Keefer, Payor, Dixon, Klump and John Pohlman. Seventeen Brown players, including 13 lettermen, don their suits for the last time. A record crowd is expected to witness the Turkey Day feature.

The lineup:

Brown		Colgate
Provonchee	center	Fray
Sayward	right guard	Da Grossa
Richardson	right tackle	Strack
Dixon	right halback	Tryon
Swact	fullback	Mahler

CLAIM MADE THAT FULTON "LAID DOWN" IN FIGHT

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 26.—Fred Fulton and Tony Fuente, heavyweight prize fighters and their managers, J. E. Reddy and Fred Winsor, all were held to answer in justice court here late today on charges of violating the state boxing law.

The court action followed a hearing at which testimony was presented to sho what Fulton, Minneapolis plasterer-fighter, had "laid down" in a bout with Fuente at Culver City, Nov. 17. The four will be tried jointly in superior court here on a charge of conspiring to violate the boxing law.

One of the last witnesses to take the stand for the prosecution was Harry M. Lykke, a Culver City newspaperman, who became acquainted with Fulton upon the latter's arrival here from Minneapolis.

Lykke declared that the alleged scheme was perfected between the managers and fighters during an automobile ride to the stadium where the encounter was held.

Winsor, Lykke said, was most insistent upon the agreement, while Fulton hesitated, yielding later when Winsor threatened to call off the fight if Fuente was not assured of a speedy victory.

Entertainments at cafes between Los Angeles and the beach several nights before the fight were also held for Fulton, according to Lykke, who added that "a few drinks had been served on those occasions."

Tommy Ryan, one-time middleweight and welterweight champion of the world, created a stir in the court room when he testified that Fulton had told him that he (Fulton) "was in no condition to do any fighting," and that he was to receive $4,000 for "laying down," while Reddy was to get an addition $2,000 for his share of the deal.

CORNELL-PENN GAME BIG CLASSIC IN EAST TODAY

Philadelphia, Nov. 26.—Football fans from many sections were gathering here tonight for the annual Thanksgiving day battle between Pennsylvania and Cornell at Franklin field tomorrow. Most of them expected one of the hardest fought contests in the years the two institutions have met on the gridiron, Pennsylvania, however, is the favorite.

Coach Dobie arrived with his squad of players. They were given no workout but were taken to Franklin field to reconnoiter.

Meanwhile the Pennsylvania squad was sent through dummy scrimmage and signal drills at Absecon, N. J., near Atlantic City. Jesse Douglas, the burly lad from Seattle, was in the backfield instead of Loth and he probably will start the game.

Coach Dobie said he expected that with one exception the Cornell lineup would be the same that started against Dartmouth two weeks ago. In the forward line Reed will replace Afflen, who was injured in the Dartmouth game.

Ten prominent football coaches will witness the struggle as guests of Pennsylvania, among whom will be Tad Jones, Yale; Bob Fisher, Harvard; Bill Roper, Princeton, and Major John McEwan, West Point.

Navy Soccer Team Victor.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 26.—Playing with greater speed in the latter half of the game, the midshipmen's soccer team administered a decisive defeat to the eleven of the Syracuse University here today, 4 to 0.

ACADEMY CLOSES SEASON TODAY AGAINST ALUMNI

The Academy eleven will don the moleskins today for the last time this year against the fast Alumni team under the generalship of Fred Williams, former Goddard seminary player. This game is of pure local interest with keen rivalry between the two aggregations. Never in the history of the Academy-Alumni classic has an Alumni team beaten the varsity, but this year may be an exception as the Alumni players are all in the best of condition and have been playing more or less football during the season, especially Bruckner, who is reputed to be a whirlwind.

The Academy has been faithfully practicing for this game and will take no chances of losing the encounter. The Academy will use the first string men and will endeavor to stop the flashy Bruckner. Each man has been instructed to tackle the Speed Demon low and hard and it will be a tough afternoon for him. The game is scheduled for 2.30 o'clock sharp. The lineups:

Chase		Hollander
	Left End
Steinman		Scott

CHAPMAN TECH TEAM CLOSES WITH BANQUET

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 26.—A banquet held at the school marked the termination of the Chapman Technical High school's activities on the football field. Several prominent speakers added words of praise on the successful season Tech enjoyed this year and also complimented the team and Tech's staff of coaches for the winning Eastern Interscholastice team which was produced at the local institution this season.

Among those to speak during the evening were Peter C. Ward of the Alling Rubber Company who presented the Alling Rubber trophy to the winning team of the Eastern Connecticut league. Succeeding speeches were made by School Principal Frederick S. Hitchcock, Dr. A. B. Dawson, physical instructor at the local Y. M. C. A. Dr. Stephen Gibbs, Robert C. Rice, director of local physical instruction in the public schools, Charles E. Mason, president of the Eastern Connecticut league extolled the fine play of the team. William Aitkens, coach at Norwich Free Academy added words of praise. Other speakers were E. Stanley Taylor athletic director at Chapman Tech; Elbert Weaver, coach of the eleven; City Manager William A. Holt; Captain-elect Paul Kannenberg; John Manion, instructor at the institution and treasures of the athletic association; Mayor Waldo E. Clarke, Judge Alfred Colt, one of the trustees of the school closed the evening with a short but well aimed speech at the efforts of a team.

Preceding the banquet, an election for the purpose of electing a captain to lead next year's team was held, and Paul Kannenberg was extended this honor.

SUB BASE CLASHES WITH ALL NEW LONDON TODAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 26—With the eastern service title safely tucked away the Submarine Base football efforts are now turning towards the game with the All-New London aggregation at the Submarine Base grounds Thanksgiving Day at 2.30 o'clock. This game will mean the end to all the gobs activities on the grid on this season and it will also see the leading team in this city which is annually scheduled to meet a Sub Base team opposing the gobs.

Judging from past performances between the two teams the Base should be returned an easy victor. The New London eleven cannot offset the heavy plunging backfield which the Base possess with a quartet of men equally as good. The line of the gobs which has played together this season and in some instances several of the men have seen football duty during the past two or three years. So it will be an experienced sailor eleven which will oppose the New London team on Thanksgiving Day.

Only last Sunday, the Western A. C., with several Sub Base players in its lineup trounced the All-New London eleven by a 19 to 0 score, so it is evident that a victory should be the result for the tars when the Base and the Whalers meet tomorrow.

The same lineup will be used by the Base which entered the game against the Newport Training Station last Saturday. Having other good men on the side lines to replace those already in the lineup, the Base will depend upon substitutions to give them a fair chance for a victory.

Terris Beats Vicentini.

New York, Nov. 25.—Sid Terris, New York lightweight tonight outpointed Luis Vicentini, of Chile in a 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden. The South American's vicious attack had no terrors for the speedy East Side man who gave a clever exhibition of boxing. Terris weighed 130 1-2 and Vicentini 134 1-2.

JOHNSON MUST BUY WESTERN CLUB OR REMAIN WITH WASHINGTON TEAM

Washington, Nov. 26—Walter Johnson either must succeed in the purchase of a western basketball club or do his pitching for the Senators next year, Clark C. Griffith, president of the world champions, indicated in a statement today in commenting upon the latest turn in the affairs revolving about his twirling ace.

Discussing the statement attributed to Johnson at Reno, Nevada, last night that Cal Ewing and Del Howard, owners of the Oakland baseball club, were coming to Washington in an effort to induce Griffith to acquiesce in a proposition whereby the Washington pitcher would become part owner and playing manager of the Pacific coast league team, with the present owners retaining a controlling interest, the magnate said his position regarding Johnson was unchanged. But he went a little further than previous statements.

"It simply is that no obstacle will be put in the way of him going into business for himself," he asserted, "but I will not even consider any plan where some other persons or persons will reap the benefit from obtaining Johnson's services.

Whether Johnson really means that he will not come east again, under any circumstances, as he is reported to have said, I have no way of knowing. I can't make him come back and pitch for Washington if he doesn't want to, but I can protect the interests of the Washington Club and the fans here by making sure that he doesn't continue his baseball activities anywhere else, unless he goes in business for himself, and I fully intend to do it.

"I don't want to talk with Ewing or Howard. They can't make any arrangement with me to get Johnson's services. I told Walter I would consent to letting him go if he could get a club of his own, but it is up to him to make his deal, then submit it to me and I'll be the judge of whether it is a bona fide arrangement that meets the specifications."

WESTERLY PLAYS STONINGTON HIGH THIS MORNING

At the Playground field off High street Thanksgiving morning at 10 o'clock the Westerly High school football eleven meets the football team of the Stonington High school in the annual clash which this year occurs in Westerly.

Although Westerly defeated the borough aggregation on Armistice day by a score of 13 to 0, it is by no means certain that the local boys will again whitewash their opponents, for Coach Gallagher has been drilling his men hard the past two weeks in preparation for the Westerly invasion. New plays have been perfected, the defense has been strengthened and a fighting spirit is very much in evidence at the daily practice sessions on Owen field.

Westerly looks like the stronger team on paper, especially in view of the fact that it already has defeated Stonington once this month. However, close followers of football in this section realize that the dope does not always run true to form in these annual Westerly-Stonington contests. For example, Westerly won the league championship with a remarkably strong and well-balanced lineup last year, yet the Thanksgiving day game on Owen field resulted in a 6 to 0 victory for Stonington. Students, alumni and other supporters of the borough school are hoping for a similar upset tomorrow.

The game is scheduled to start at 10 o'clock sharp. This arrangement will give fans from all parts of Stonington and Westerly ample time to return home for their Thanksgiving dinner immediately after the annual gridiron classic.

Coach Rogers of Westerly and Coach Gallagher of Stonington announced today that the starting lineups will be as follows:

Westerly		Stonington
	Right End
Grills		Nichols
	Right Tackle
Brindle		Emmet
	Right Guard
DeRocco		Adams
	Center
Larson		Cowan
	Left Guard
Edmond		Rover
	Left Tackle
Novogroski		Cronin
	Left End
Milby		Bryer
	Quarterback
Blake		McCaffery
	Right Halfback
Turco		Levanti
	Left Halfback
Meikle		Coffey
	Fullback
Sallmeno		Duke

AETNA FIVE WILL BOWL STATE CHAMPS NEXT WEEK

The Aetna Five will go to Hartford next Wednesday evening to bowl the fast Charter Oak five-man team, which was the winner of last year's state bowling title. The Hartford team includes such men as Light, Gaines, Orsent and Bartholome. This match should be productive of some good scores as Peckham, Foster and Fillmore of the Aetna have rolled the three highest single strings in the Eastern Connecticut Bowling league this year. A return match will be rolled at the Aetna the following week.

DENNY MURPHY CONTINUES HIS HARD HITTING

Denny Murphy, local boy who is a member of the Vernon team of the Pacific Coast leagut and who is playing in the California Winter league with Chadbourne's Tigers, is hitting the ball on the nose according to California papers. Denny is hitting well over the .300 mark and has collected four home runs, two triples and five doubles in the first five or six games in the league. In a recent game with the Kansas City Monarchs Denny gathered in three hits one a home run, one a double and the other a single.

BULKELEY WITHOUT GAME FOR THANKSGIVING DAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 26—Bulkeley will remain idle over Thanksgiving Day, the game pending with Bridgeport High to be played here was called off this morning when the Park management refused to play the locals. However there remains one hope for a game and that is with Stamford High on Saturday afternoon. In event that Stamford does not play the locals on Saturday, Bulkeley will probably arrange to play a contest with the Western A. C. team which won the semi-pro honors here last Sunday.

CONROY FINED $300 AND SUSPENDED BY COMMISION

Dayton, O., Nov. 26.—The Montgomery county boxing commission today fined Mike Conroy, Rochester, N. Y., heavyweight, $300 and suspended him for 90 days as the result of his refusal to meet Romero Rojas, South American, here last night.

He was charged with unsportsmanlike conduct. His forfeit of $200 was given to the Dayton community chest. Conroy cannot box in any city of the national commission until his fine is paid and his suspension lifted.

ARMY CLOSES TRAINING WITH SECRET PRACTICE

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 26.—A secret workout today wound up Army's preparation for the Navy game. The field was muddy and the going heavy, but the coaches drilled the men for over an hour, devoting much time to the army's offensive, during which there was a long kicking scrimmage and a sharp signal drill.

The defense continued its work against the navy attack, with particular attention being given to the methods to be employed to block Navy's overhead plays, which it is felt in the Army camp, will be the middies' chief weapon.

No selection of the lineup which will face the middies has as yet been given out and the coaches said tonight that the final decision would not be announced until after the arrival at Baltimore, which is scheduled tomorrow afternoon.

ST. PAUL PEOPLE READY TO BACK JOHNSON

Chicago, Nov. 26.—Financial backing sufficient to purchase the St. Paul American Association club can be obtained by Walter Johnson within 24 hours in St. Paul, President Thomas Hickey said tonight, in discussing reports that the star pitcher of the Washington Americans may become interested in the club.

The St. Paul people and all our club owners would like to have the Washington pitching star a member of our league," Mr. Hickey said. "We regret very much Mr. Norton's desire to dispost of the club by his real estate interests have grown to such proportions that they require his entire time," he added.

NAVY TEAM IN TOP FORM FOR ARMY

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 26.—Football enthusiasm is running high in Annapolis as the squad of midshipmen athletes put in their final days of practice for the annual inter-service clash with the West Point Cadets in the Baltimore stadium next Saturday.

Confidence is steadily growing here that the middies will emerge victorious early season performances and forecasts to the contrary notwithstanding.

Today the middies were put through another lengthy drill, every element of playing coming in for a share of attention, forward passing offensive as well as defense being specialized.

ROTARIANS MAKE PLANS FOR COMING MONTH

Wednesday's meeting of the Norwich Rotary club was devoted to business and the outlining of plans for the coming month. President Hugh B. Campbell presided at the meeting and Big Ed Harris acted as song leader. Among the pleasing vocal numbers, of which there were many, was a delightful selection by "Shorty" Wallen of Hartford and another solo by Henry J. LaFontaine. Both soloists responded to encores. Another pleasing vocal numbers was the duet by Al Bliven and Luscious Briggs.

At the business session contributions to the Red Cross, and the Christmas seal campaign were voted. President Campbell gave a brief report on the recent directors' meeting and talked briefly on club policy. The matter of sponsoring the Tech show was taken up and it was voted not to undertake it this year but to bring the Brown Glee and Musical clubs to Norwich for a concert during the winter. F. Russell Smith, a graduate of Brown and a former member of the Brown Glee club, was appointed to make arrangements for the concert.

K—THE UNKNOWN STILL AT LARGE

It has been a long time since Norwich has shown as much interest in anything as it has the hunt for K—the Unknown. He must be a clever sort of a raffles to safely elude all who are on the watch for him.

Wednesday he visited the Shannon building and left his calling cards. Stopped and talked with a police officer at the corner asked how to find a studio, had his photograph taken which will be on display outside the Palace theatre today. Went to the Terminal restaurant for lunch, passed the time of day with the cashier, then over to city hall, asked for the chief's office and was directed by a lady in the end office on the second floor. From here he went to the five-and-ten and then into Lerou's drug store again but Mr. Worthington again refused to take the $10 although he didn't realize that the gentleman he served the Moxie to was the mysterious K.

Fern's restaurant served him a delicious cup of coffee but they evidently were too busy making up the Thanksgiving menu. Madden's smoke shop employes were too busy to pay any attention to the genial stranger so he mixed with the crowd going home from work but they were in too much of a hurry to get home and back to the Palace to bother with any strangers.

K—— then called it a day's work and went back to the Palace and then actually registered at one of the hotels and went to bed. He will be on the job again today. Is it possible he can get by another day without being recognized?

Lyceum Theatre, New London.

On Saturday of this week theatregoers of this vicinity will have an opportunity of witnessing matinee and night performances of Arthur Hopkin's presentation at the Lyceum theatre, New London, of a new comedy entitled "Close Harmony," written by Dorothy Parker and Elmer Rice. This play will be taken from New London directly to New York and on next Monday night will commence its engagement in that city at the Gayety theatre.

"Close Harmony" is said to be a play that treats simply and effectively of every day life, presenting a minute and subtle study of character and in many of its values being justly comparable to "What Price Glory." The plot of the comedy has to do with the intimate life of two ordinary matter-of-fact families residing in a suburb of New York city.

Ed Graham, the titular head of one of these households, is an unassertive married-lacking city clerk in his early thirties whose every act in life is dominated by a prim, methical wife shrewdishly aggressive in her attitude toward her husband. Next door resides the Sheridans, the wife of this family being a former show girl whose craving for a home and desire "to get out of the business" brought her to marriage with a man who has developed into a "cheap sport" type.

A flop of the card of fate brings "Ed" and Mrs. Sheridan together and from then on a royally developed plot chances the former from a drab, timiden creature to a dominant factor of the home.

James Spottswood, a player of many conspicuous personal achievements; the well-remembered Georgia Drew Mendum, cousin to Ethel Barrymore, a successor in her own right of a goodly share of the Drew Barrymore fame; Frederick Burton, long distinguished in the field of truly drawn small-town types, Robert Hudson and Marie Curtis are other noteworthy figures in the cast. As in all of Mr. Hopkins' presentations, the direction is by Mr. Hopkins, himself, a fact of first importance.

The seats for the New London performence of "Close Harmony" will be placed on sale this morning.

FIREMEN ESCAPE DEATH WHEN APPARATUS OVERTURNS

Willimantic, Nov. 26.—Two local young men, John Ryan, and Raymond Sullivan, acting as volunteers for Hose Co. No. 2 of the Montgomeries, escaped severe injury and possible death shortly after 11.30 o'clock tonight when a combination chemical and hose wagon hooked tandem fashion to a Mack truck, overturned, when turning into Railroad street from Main street, following a bell alarm for a burning awning in the rear of the Sadd block. Ryan was riding on the front of the wagon and as it turned and slid over on its side he was hurled through the air and sent sliding along the ground and away from further danger. He sustained a badly sprained left shoulder and was taken to St. Joseph's hospital for treatment. Sullivan was riding the rear step of the wagon and was thrown to the ground with force but escaped with a severe shaking up.

The accident was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators who had congregated to watch the members of Engine Co. No. 1 at work extinguishing a fire in a blazing awning in the rear of the Woolworth store in the Sadd block. A bell alarm was sounded from Box 32 at the corner of Bank and Main streets at 11.35. The Montgomery Volunteers had come up Valley street from their Jackson street engine house, turned down Bank and down Main street to the scene of the fire. The crowd had just lost its interest and many were starting back toward Main street when the hose company No. 2 combination came around the corner and rolled over on its side.

The pole of the wagon had broken from its fastenings on the truck and the latter machine continued down Railroad street for a distance after the mishap. The truck was driven by Paul Welch, another volunteer member of the department. The wagon has been condemned several times by firemen who stated that it was too light and too high to be used as a tandem. It was formerly drawn by horses and in motorizing the department a few years ago the pole was made over to fit into a clasp on the rear of the truck. The contents of the wagon, including chemical hose, boots and coats were strewn about Railroad street.

Time may be money but the average man would rather give two hours' talk than lend a dollar.

The artists will appear as follows: On Friday evening, Dec. 12th, Lambert Murphy, the great Irish tenor and Marcel Grandjany, the famous French harpist.

Few artists can claim the distinction won by Lambert Murphy in the field of opera, oratorio and recital.

As a recitalist, he is in the foremost rank. The beauty of his voice and the finish of his phrasing are beyond praise.

Marcel Grandjany is in the front rank of the world's great harpists.

In 1905, he won first prize for harp and harmony at the Conservatoire. Since 1909 he has been soloist with the concerts Lamoureux—and with the leading Parisian orchestra.

Mr. Enesco made his first visit to America in 1923.

The Philadelphia orchestra had the honor of introducing Mr. Enesco at its New York concert, upon which occasion he appeared as conductor of his wonderful artistic ability.

Enesco is known in America through his music, but those familiar with his tremendous endowments as a violinist composer and conducter are uncertain in which direction he excels.

Broadway Theater

Thanksgiving is here and it also ushers in a new perfect vaudeville and picture show at the Broadway theater which we advise you to see and make this a perfect holiday by come early.

Alice Thornton and Gil Squires present In the Swim. It is a barrel of fun interspersed with song and dance.

Cleveland and Dowry in a satire on present day conditions have no difficulty in filling fifteen minutes with pert and pertinent humorous discussions.

Clever songs and sure fire comedy is the offering by Jack Sidney the Jack of Spades.

Rose and Dell offer sparkling bits of versatility, which consists of dancing, comedy chatter, bicycle and acrobatic tricks.

It is quite a distinction to be called the screen's greatest lover, so motion picture fans will have a chance to judge for themselves if Pola Negri was right in thus acclaiming Robert Fraser.

Fraser appears in The Foolish Virgin at the Broadway theater today supporting Elaine Hammerstein. You can bet your last nickle that all the girls will flock there to see for themselves.

Broadway Theater

Rudolph Valentino's second Famous-Forty Paramount production, a Sainted Devil, with Helen D'Alcy, dark-eyed Spanish beauty; Nita Naldi, Louise Lagrange, Dagmar Godowsky and others equally as prominent, will be shown at the Broadway theatre next Sunday.

Valentino as a young man of the world, living in South America, having been educated in Paris is betrothed to a girl raised in a convent and whom he has never seen. It is a case of love at first sight for both and then the happy day arrives only to have her—. But it would be spoiling everything to say more.

D. W. Griffith's America at the Bread

Famed in poetry and in prose, the historical ride of Paul Revere was never before invested with the significance, the thrills, and the stirring that it is in D. W. Griffith's America, the romantic epic of the War of Independence, which is now showing at the Breed.

And Mr. Griffith's picture gives the lie direct to Longfellow's poem on the ride, for while the poet stated that "Hardly a man now alive remembers that famous date and year," the vociferous applause which greets every hoofbeat of Revere's horse shows very well that women and children as well as men remember that historic ride and the occasion is being properly very well indeed.

Other pictures on the bill include the news, Hodge Podge and a cartoon. Continuous show today from 1:30 to 10:30.

NIAGARA ENGINE CO., NEW LONDON, NOTES ITS 74th. ANNIVERSARY

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 26—Members of Niagara Engine company assembled this evening in celebration of the 74th anniversary of the company's organization. There was a roll call, which showed the absence of many of the old-time members, and the presence of the younger ones, almost to a man. There was speechmaking and then a turkey supper was served in the hall of the Odd Fellows on Bank street.

There was no suggestion of the passing of the volunteer fire department, but that such will occur during the next decade there is strong reason to believe. At present there is a disposition to abandon the house of the Niagaras and to consolidate that company with the Allen Hook and Ladder company under one roof. There is also talk that New London can get along with one company in the center of the city and thus do away with either the Nonomoc or the Nameaug Company. Whether these movements will result in the action indicated no one can tell, but the tendency is that way.

There was a good time at the home of the Elks lodge tonight, on the official visit of the district deputy Dr. Thomas F. O'Loughlin of Rockville. A large number of Elks greeted him and he was entertained at a feast at the Mohican hotel prior, to the meeting. The affairs of the lodge were gone over by the deputy and an examination of the accounts of the lodge were made so that the financial standing might be determined. After the meeting there was a vaudeville entertainment and the members of the lodge feasted. Rarely have the members had a more enjoyable session.

The police were put on their mettle tonight on the reception of information that a couple of Chinese had been shot at Hartford and the belief that the Tong war among the Chinese had been brought to Connecticut. Every section of the city in which Chinese are apt to congregate was under surveillance by the police, who had a description of the shooters, who got away from Hartford in an automobile. New London has been free from any participation in the Tong war to date and the Chinese who reside here are of the opinion that the trouble will not be brought here, unless some of those concerned in the struggle seek refuge here to escape the penalty of their crimes. All the policemen on duty were notified to use increased diligence to detect the shooters if they appeared in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Hodgson, of Groton who celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage last evening received $40 in gold from friends who called at the Hodgdon home on Ramsdell street to extend felicitations.

There was an exodus of students from Connecticut college today, the students going to their homes to pass the Thanksgiving holiday. Most of the students left here on the trains going east and west at 11.40 making the railway station platform a busy place while they were hustling for trains.

Congressman Richard P. Freeman, accompanied by Mrs. Freeman and the latter's daughter, Miss Frederica Hunt left for Washington this afternoon so as to permit Congressman Freeman to be in attendance at the opening session of congress Monday next.

The B. P. Learned mission this afternoon sent out 150 baskets containing holiday dinners, to be distributed among the deserving poor of the city. The baskets contained chickens, vegetables, fruit, bread, butter, sugar, etc., a quantity sufficient to provide a substantial meal for a family of five of six. The foodstuffs were contributed principally by the children of the public schools.

In some instances money contributions were made so that chickens could be provided.

John B. Collins, 62, for many years manager of the Eastern Connecticut district of the Standard Oil Company of New York, died at his home, 3 Brooks street, this forenoon as a result of a shock suffered late yesterday. Mr. Collins is servived by his wife and three daughters, Mrs. R. B. Nattress, Hoboken, N. J.; Miss Elsie Collins, Hartford, and Mrs. Waldo L. Miner, this city; three sisters, Mrs. William Turbett, Bayonne, N. J.; Mrs. John Speers, Cleveland, Ohio, and Mrs. James Hall, of London, England, and by one brother, Alfred B. Collins of Bayonne, N. J. He was a member of Brainard Masonic lodge and widely and favorably known.

Mr. Collins went to the office of the Standard Oil Company late yesterday afternoon and while there complained of feeling dizzy. He left to go to his automobile and was stricken. He was assisted to his home where he lapsed into a state of unconsciousness and lingered until 10.30 o'clock this forenoon.

Peter Piscatello, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. Peter Piscatello of Steward St., and Miss Dorothy Silva, daughter of Mrs. Jennie Kilmans, 117 Bayonet St., were married this morning at 8.30 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, the nuptial mass being celebrated by Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley. John Piscatello, cousin of the groom was best man and Miss Lena Joseph attended the bride.

John Caulkins, formerly of New London, now employed in Boston, arrived here this afternoon to remain over the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Frank Morgan of Williams street, left this evening for New York, to spend Thanksgiving with relatives.

Harold Olsen, United States coast guard, who was arrested last Sunday charged with having liquor in his possession for sale, was in the police court this morning and pleaded guilty. Judge S. Victor Prince imposes a fine of $100, which Olsen paid. Olsen, who has been at liberty since last Monday, having furnished a surety on his bond of $500, is considered by the police to be one of the most active of the numerous sailors at the coast guard academy engaging in the liquor traffic. Comrades of the accused man, have informed the police that Olsen has been selling liquor on a wide scale, but off the naval reservation, and that he was detected as a bootlegger was not a surprise to his fellow seamen. The pleading guilty of Olsen to the complaint was not a surprise for Sunday afternoon Supt. H. H. Hinckley of the United States Coast Guard academy and Lieut. Kirby visited Olsen at the police station and held a lengthy but private conversation with the accused. The next day an attempt was made to reach Olsen, prior to his obtaining a bondeman, at the county jail, with the suggestion from an officer at the coast guard academy, that Olsen refrain from talking of the charge against him in plain language for Olsen to "keep his mouth shut."

Bert De Vault didn't get what is still coming to him, when the police court convened today. That was because Catherupo Bruno, an inoffensive shoemaker with a disposition to talk too freely but never in vicious language, and who was beaten by De Vault yesterday, was not in condition to appear against him. Bruno is in Lawrence hospital where his injuries are receiving treatment. Those who have seen Bruno since he was beaten declare that they never beheld such a battered face, the cuts and bruises indicating that Bruno had been in contact with the hind legs of a mule. No one appears to know what brought on the assault, for universal opinion is that Bruno would not harm anybody or anything. The prosecution of De Vault has been adjourned to next Monday.

Angelo Gropelli of East street, a fellow 19, was fined $25 in the police court this morning for the reckless driving of an automobile, last Saturday evening, when he crashed his car into the machine of Timothy Sullivan, as the latter drove from Stewart street into Montauk avenue. Mr. Sullivan and Policeman Edward Daniels disclosed in their testimony that the Groppelli car crashed into the side of the Sullivan car and took a wheel off, smashing the spokes out of it and sending the Sullivan car upon the street railway tracks where it interfered with the progress of the trolley car for a considerable time. Gropelli, according to Mr. Sullivan, admitted that he was at fault for the collision and said then that the brakes on the car were not in condition. The testimony was that the Sullivan car was some 60 feet south of the intersection of Steward street when the crash occurred, while Gropelli represented that the Sullivan car was turning when the collision took place. At the time Gropelli represented that he would settle for all damage to the Sullivan car, but he seems to have changed his mind as to that, so the prosecution resulted. The prosecutor took occasion to bring to the attention of the court the fact that there are many cases in which promise to settle is made and that the bargain is rarely fulfilled.

William Heffernan made his first appearance in three years in the police court this morning. That fact induced Judge Prince to be lenient to William, so he suspended judgment in his case.

John Finn, who was prosecuted for theft from a Holden street house some months ago, was then given a chance to make restitution and today when his case was called in court it was represented that Finn had done as he agreed today. That permitted the case to be nolled.

The automobile owned and driven by Eugene B. Glenn, 148 Williams street and a machine operated by William Hendel, 164 Broad street, were in collision late yesterday on Hempstead street, corner of Broad street. Both cars were damaged.

C. R Booth, 31 Bayonet street, reported to the police today that while his automobile was motionless beside the curb on State street, near Union street, it was bumped by an auto truck owned by the American Railway Express company Booth's car was damaged

Henry S Smith of East Minor Lane, Waterford, reported to the police this morning that his automobile struck a young man, as the latter alighted from a commercial automobile owned by Christopher Newbury of Waterford, while on Bank street, but that the man escaped injury except for a few minor bruises.

Miss Mary Doyle, 531 Ocean avenue, teacher in the public schools, was attacked and bitten by a police dog this morning, the identity of the owner of the dog not having been determined. Miss Doyle was walking along Ocean avenue, and when she reached a point near Perry street, the dog sprang at her and besides inflicting wounds upon her leg tore her clothing. The animal was beaten off by a workman. Miss Doyle lodged complaint with the police and Dog Warden John Sweezy is attempting to ascertain the owner of the brute.

The fire department was called out this afternoon, shortly after 2 o'clock, for a trivial blaze in a residence on Shaw street, near Steward street, where a mattress had become afire. An alarm was rung in from Box 451, corner of Shaw and Steward street, but before the department reached the dwelling the burning mattress had been hurled into the street.

Mrs. John Rose, of 203 Huntington street, this afternoon lodged complaint with the police because a girl had forcibly taken a sum of money from a child while the latter was returning from a store, having made a purchase.

Joseph G. Schablein, 78, formerly of Pottsville, Pa., died this morning at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Clara C. Hannan, 287 Huntington St., death resulting from a shock suffered last Friday. Besides his widow, Mr. Schablein leaves three daughters, Mrs. Anna Gaiano, of New London; Mrs. Teress Hammill, Philadelphia, and Miss Loretta Schablein, of Pottsville, also five sons, George Schablein, Leecaston, N. J.; John Schablein, of Pottsville, Louis and Frank Schablein of New London, and Joseph Schablein of Pottsville.

Andrew Trione, Belden street, was taken into custody this afternoon by Sergeant Nelson Smith charged with promoting gambling at the Capitol barbership, Bank street. He is being held in bonds of $75 for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. When arrested Trione had a book containing numerous policy plays and each entry was entered in duplicate. The police allege that Trione has promoted the gambling in the barber shop a long time, the players entering the shop and making their plays unmolested and in full view of the public and patrons of the place.

Policy playing in New London until a few years ago was largely the pastime of the sporting element, but for the past few years and until Trione started the policy writing anew, this form of gambling was not conducted.

An automobile owned and operated by Edmund D. Barker, 46 Channing street, struck Ernest Wainwright, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wainwright, 449 Ocean avenue, this afternoon, on Ocean avenue, and but a short distance from the child's home. The child, who had been playing close at his home, ran into the highway just as the machine operated by Mr. Barker was about to pass. The child was struck by the fender and thrown to the ground. As soon as Mr. Barker could bring the car to a stop the boy was placed in the machine and taken to Lawrence hospital, where his wounds were found to be no more serious than bruises and abrasions. He was later taken to his home.

Mrs. Eugene Doucette, of Tilley street; Mrs. Herbert Maynard, Truman street; Alex Gregg, Westerly, and Mrs. Leo Renaldi, Poquonnoc Bridge, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

CRIMINAL COMMON PLEAS OPENS LONG DOCKET

The November session of the New London county criminal court of common pleas convened in New London Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, with Judge Charles B. Waller, presiding. Sixty cases were on the docket for trial. Defendants in three liquor cases pleaded guilty at the morning session and jail sentences were imposed in each case.

Max Szalalum of Norwich was fined $200 and sentenced to jail 10 days. The case came up from the Norwich city court where Szalalum was convicted of illegal possession of liquor on Oct. 17, 1924.

John Sanko, also of Norwich, was fined $100 and sentenced to 30 days in jail. Execution of the jail sentence was suspended on condition that the defendant respect the liquor laws in the future. He pleaded guilty to sale.

A jail sentence of five days and a fine of $200 was imposed upon Paul Skindzer of Norwich, after a plea of guilty had been entered to a complaint charging illegal possession of liquor on May 14, last.

On recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey, nolles were entered in the cases of Alwin D Briggs, Nestor Heino and Gustat Johnson. All three were charged with violation of the dog law, in not having their dogs tagged. The prosecutor informed the court that all three dogs were regularly licensed, but that the license tags had been lost.

Nolles were also entered in the cases of James F. Watrous of Ledyard, and W. J. Schoonman of New London. In both instances the charge was reckless driving, but the facts, in neither case, according to Prosecutor Whittlesey, warranted presentation of the men.

A plea of not guilty was entered by Anthony Perrone of Norwich to a charge of non-support of two minor children. Similar pleas were entered by Harry B. Morton of East Lyme, charged with violations of the milk laws; Emanuel King of Stonington, charged with illegal transportation of liquor; Mrs. Victoria Armegani of 93 Smith street, New London, charged with illegal sale of liquor; James Foletti of Sound Beach, similarly charged and John Hodyma of East Lyme, charged with assault.

A charge of breach of the peace against Samuel Brenner of New London was nolled upon recommendation of the prosecutor. The charge grew out of domestic troubles and the defendant and his wife have patched up their grievances, hence the nolle.

Similar action was taken by the court in the case of Oswald Koristinen Voluntown farmer, charged with possession of fire arms.

A continuance was ordered in the case of Thomas J. Shuhan, Norwich man charged with non-support and breach of the peace. This was the case which grew out of a family quarrel, which appears to have been patched up to the satisfaction of all concerned.

At noon time court adjourned until 2 o'clock to permit Prosecutor Whittlesey to prepare for trial cases.

SCARCITY OF LABOR ON VEGETABLE FARMS

Hartford, Nov. 26.—When the vegetable growers of the state gather here for the next annual meeting of the Connecticut Vegetable Growers' association next Wednesday and Thursday, they will have to deal with some serious problems confronting the industry, including the labor situation and conditions resulting from overproduction.

The scarcity of labor on the vegetable farms has become so serious that a number of the larger growers of the state have gone in for fruit growing, according to Secretary Valentine of the association.

In competition with the Connecticut manufacturers, the vegetable growers of the state have been the losers in the matter of labor, Mr. Valentine explained. The vegetable growers are unable to pay the wages which the manufacturers offer, with the result that there has been a marked drift from the farm to the factories, and the growers now have to pay an average wage of from $3.50 to $4.50 to hold their help, the association secretary explained.

Although theoretically scarcity of labor should bring about undersupply, other factors have combined to cause overproduction, according to Mr. Valentine. Southern and western growers are shipping vegetables to Connecticut in large quantities, foreigners who are taking possession of farms in large numbers are able to produce more and sell at lower prices than the native growers because of their large families, he pointed out.

The recent cold snap, coming as it did so suddenly and without warning, caused heavy losses to the vegetable growers. Mr. Valentine estimated the loss at $150,000, of which $100,000 represented 60 per cent. celery crop loss. Great damage was also caused to root crops. Mr. Valentine said that in passing through much farming territory he also noticed the cold snap had crippled many tractors and other farming apparatus.

AMERICA'S PARTICIPATION IN REPARATION PAYMENTS

Paris, Nov. 26 (By the A. P.).—James A. Logan, Jr., American observer with the reparation commission, presented the viewpoint of the United States on the distribution of the proceeds of the Dawes plan at a meeting of the experts' committee today. The French and Belgian experts at once signified their approval of the American thesis that claims of the United States for reparations, as well as army occupation expenses, should share on the same basis as the allies in reparations payments.

The British and Italian delegates said they needed further instructions from their governments, although there was no indication that any resistance to the American viewpoint would be offered. It was agreed that the army costs ought to be paid, as per the previous agreement, and the principle that claims allowed by the mixed commission at Washington should share in reparatinos on the same footing as other war creditors of Germany was fully admitted by the French and Belgians.

It is expected that the British and Italian representatives will have full instructions from their governments in a few days. The experts will then be able to finish their labors in preparation for the finance ministers' conference with Mr. Logan. It is now thought this conference may begin some time between Dec. 10 and Dec. 15.

The probable basis of a final solution, it is believed, will be, first, payment of the American priority claims for army occupation expenses, as per the Wadsworth agreement; second, payment to the United States of her proportionate share of reparation claims, then a division between the allies of the balance of the proceeds on the basis of the Spa percentage.

CONSIDERING USE TO BE MADE OF DIRIGIBLES

Washington, Nov. 26.—Secretary Wilbur said today that the only definite decision made so far with respect to the future employment of the navy air cruiser Shenandoah, or the "peace ship," Los Angeles was that the Shenandoah would go with the fleet to Hawaii to participate in the maneuvers in that area next year.

The secretary indicated that the airship tender Patoka, which is equipped with a mooring mast, would be sent with the fleet to the Hawaiian Islands to act as a movable base of operations for the big air cruiser. A mooring mast is to be erected at the Hawaiian naval station, but the secretary said use of the Shenandoah in the fleet maneuvers was not contingent upon its completion.

With reference to the tentative program for sending the Los Angeles on an air route exploration trip to Panama, and subsequently on a similar trip to Europe, the secretary indicated that nothing definite had emerged from discussion of the subject within the navy department. The report of a special board recommending these two cruises to develop the commercial possibilities of such craft is still in the hands of the officers of the Los Angeles and their colleagues at the Lakehurst naval station.

Mr. Wilbur indicated, however, that he was personally interested in the matter and would take steps to look over the report at an early date. Until he has done so had given his approval to projects that may be recommended, no detailed steps for the European or southern voyages can be undertaken.

EXHORTS STUDENTS IN CAIRO TO REMAIN CALM

Cairo, Nov. 26 (By the A. P.).—Former Premier Zagloul's last words before departing for the Pyramids today were an exhortation to the striking students to return to the schools and remain calm. The former premier was the recipient of an ovation from the students and other citizens.

In a brief speech he asked the students why they were striking and said he could not too strongly urge them to set a good example to others by resuming their duties and ceasing their demonstrations. It was a most critical hour in the country's destinies, he declared, but the nation's interests would best be served by remaining calm.

LIEUT. BAGBY BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN DROWNED

Waukegan, Ill., Nov. 26.—Lieut. Law W. Bagby, 29 years old, attached to the Great Lakes naval training station, who formerly lived in New Haven, Missouri, vanished from a pier at the station today and is believed to have been drowned.

Lieutenant Bagby's hat, gloves and a matchbox were found in the water by a pier, leading to the belief that he fell into Lake Michigan and was accidentally drowned.

Early reports that he was related to former Secretary Josephus Daniels of the navy were without foundation, it was said at the commandant's office.

Prior to coming to Great Lakes, a year ago, Lieutenant Bagby commanded a submarine in Panama for two years, according to aides of Captain Waldo Evans, commandant.

The lieutenant had been appointed to go hunting with Lieut. S. L. Shade, who went to the pier and found his hat, gloves and matchbox floating on the water. Bagby had been seen on the pier a short time before and officers at the station had no doubt that he had been drowned. Motorboats and seaplanes began search for the body.

Bagby's wife and two children reside at the station.

CHINESE UNITE FOR THE FUNERAL OF REV. LEE TOW

New York, Nov. 26.—Hip Sings and On Leongs laid aside the weapons of Tong warfare today, and, shoulder to shoulder, marched in the funeral of the Rev. Lee Tow, who for a quarter century had been head of the Morning Star Mission, an apostle to Christianity to heathen Chinatown.

Mr. Tow died of heart disease last Saturday as he was making a plea to rival Tong leaders to abandon hostilities and substitute a permanent peace for the existing truce.

On the doors and windows of Chinatown today were pasted notices in character which, with padlocks and drawn shades as corroborative evidence, meant that business was suspended in memory of the departed missionary.

Hip Sing headquarters were closed and so was the magnificent capitol of the On Leongs. But the morning Star Mission, where Dr. Tow's body law in state, was thronged as it never had been before, by stolid faced Chinese in black silk garments, who tearlessly passed the bier.

They marched in hundreds behind the automobile hearse and the three bands headed the funeral cortege as it wound trough Doyer street to the Bowery, and thence to Brooklyn bridge and a Long Island cemetery.

Mrs. Lee Tow, widow of the clergyman, was an honored participant in the ceremonies.

FRICTION IN ENFORCEMENT OF LAW IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Nov. 26.—A wild dash down Connecticut avenue a week ago of the roadster listed under Secretary Mellon's name has developed friction in local law enforcement circles which has reached the point of an open rupture between the offices of the district attorney and corporation counsel.

Today Corporation Counsel Garrathy accused Assistant District Attorney Kelly of "butting in" on the case against Charles W. Gillan, negro chaffeur who was driving the car for Arthur Sixsmith, Mr. Mellon's secretary. Previously the corporation counsel had charged that undue pressure was being brought in efforts to forestall trial proceedings against Gilman.

The break between the two prosecuting agencies reached a climax when the corporation counsel became incensed when told that Kelly had informed the policeman who arrested Gillan that it was not necessary for him to appear today because the complaining witnesses were not inclined to prosecute. The case has been continued until December 3.

Since the case has been in the court it has developed that Secretary Mellon sold the car sometime ago to Sixsmith.

THE SINCLAIR COMPANY WAS NOT INVOLVED

New York, Nov. 26.—The Rickard Exploration Company and not the Sinclair Consolidated Exploration Company was named defendant in the $215,000,000 suit recently filed here by Humberto Blanco-Fombona, who alleged that that sum was due him for service rendered the defendant in Guatemala. The Sinclair Company was inadvertently mentioned as a defendant when news of the action became before, by stolid faced Chinese in black silk garments, who tearlessly passed the bier.

The Sinclair Company appears in the papers only as the corporation with which Blanco-Fombona originally began negotiations and which advised him to "take up negotiations with responsible parties by calling 'Kermit.'"

AUSTRALIA INTERESTED IN AMERICAN BATTLE FLEET

New York, Nov. 26.—Australia is manifesting great interest in the news that the American battle fleet is to visit the commonwealth, said a Melbourne cablegram received here today by J. A. M. Elder, commissioner for Australia in the United States.

The message quoted Prime Minister Bruce as saying that Australia would give the Americans "a rousing welcome," and that at every port representatives of the commonwealth's naval forces would greet the navy men of the United States.

"The visit of the American fleet in 1908", the prime minister said, "left a profound and enduring impression on Australia, and since friendly feeling between the two countries has been strengthened by fighting side by side in the great war of Australia and American soldiers and sailors.

The visit of so many American officers and men will be of incalculable value.

"The projected visit will further strengthen the bonds off riendship existing between Australia and America, peoples who speak the same tongue, who spring from the same racial stock, and who are fired by the same burning ambition to serve the cause of enduring world peace."

CHICOPEE YOUTHS WENT TO NEW YORK TO GET "SOME LIFE"

New York, Nov. 26.—Four youthful cosmopolities, after two inhospitable nights in the open, decided tonight that Chicopee, Mass., wasn't at all a bad place, and not the "dead dump" they had considered it up to two days ago.

They agreed, rather gratefully, to go home.

The four—William Partyka, John Surowice, Charles Kurse and Stanley Kuchta, all about 15 years old—were found huddled on a bench in a Bronx Casino early today. The spokesman told an inquisitive policeman:

"Aw, we was sick an' tired of that dead dump, Chicopee, an' we come down to New York to get some life."

Their first night out from Chicopee, they related, had been spent in a barn outside Hartford. The air was nippy, and they had to get out of the hay, occasionally, to run around and warm up. On the second day they trampled the rest of the distance to New York, nightfall finding them in the Bronx, where the public hall of a casino invited them to sleep in comparative warmth.

The quartet had a community fund of $20 to be spent for metropolitan Christmas presents for the folks back home in the "dead dump."

MONTHLY REVIEW OF BUSINESS CONDITIONS

New York, Nov. 26.—October sales by department and chain stores in the second federal reserve district were larger than in October a year ago, but wholesale trade was smaller, according to the monthly review of credit and business conditions which the federal reserve agent here will issue December 1.

October sales by chain store systems, which reported to the agent were given as the largest since December, 1923 and 14 per cent. larger than the same month a year ago. This was attributed party to the opening of new stores. The volume of sales per store also increased and as slightly larger than a year previous for the first time since April 1, due to sales increases on 19 cent and grocery stores.

October sales of department and apparel stores were 3 per cent. larger than last year in September the gain was 12 per cent. Newark and Bridgeport gained more than Buffalo, Rochester and New York city, Syracuse fell below. Furniture and cotton goods led in volume of sales.

Wholesale trade held about even with September, but fell below October last year because of "unusually large sales in some lines, particularly clothing." "Index of Trade" was put at 103 per cent. of the computed trend, or normal for October.

TO BRING "BEAN KING" BACK TO ALBION, N. Y.

Albion, N. Y., Nov. 26.—Sheriff Horace Kelsey and Deputy Charles Kellogg, who left last night for the south to bring Lewis E. Sands, bankrupt "bean king" arrested in Tampa, Fla., back to Albion to face a first degree grand larceny charge, will go direct to Tampa for their prisoner, Sheriff Harris of Tampa having declined a request of the local authorities to take Sands to Atlanta, Ga., to meet them. The round trip is expected to take eght days.

The Orleans county grand jury meets Monday and it was the purpose of District Attorney William A. Munson, in asking that Sands be taken to Atylanta by the Florida officers, to get the "bean king" back to Albion in time to present his case at once. It is probable that the case of Mrs. Grace K. Gerks, Sands' business manager, arrested in Huntington, Ind., on a second degree forgery warrant will be presented to the grand jury Monday, and that Sands will be taken before the jurors as soon as he arrives from the south.

11-YEAR OLD BOY HELD FOR SECOND DEGREE MURDER

Penn Yan, N. Y., Nov. 26.—Examination by the Yates county juvenile court of Joseph Scarapicchia, 11 year old boy under arrest on a second degree murder charge in connection with the death last September 17 of 14 year old Donald Morrow, from a gunshot wound in the abdomen, was postponed today until Friday.

The Morrow boy was shot Sept. 16 while playing with Joseph Scarapicchia and several other playmates. The shooting was believed accidental, but a statement made by the wounded boy just before he died charging his playmate with having deliberately fired the shot, led to an investigation by Coroner Hatch and the subsequent arrest of the Scarapicchia boy.

A new bid for Muscle Shoals, similar to that of Henry Ford, which has been withdrawn, is expected by Senator Underwood of Alabama, and he has decided to withhold a bill under preparation.

STOCK PRICES SOARED

New York, Nov. 26.—Stock prices were carried into new high ground today when the entire list surged upward in the wake of a vigorous rally in steel shares. Many premier industrials responded to a heavy outpouring of buying orders, overcoming an early period of irregularity and resisting a final outburst of selling in the last few minutes. The total sales exceeded the 2,000,000 share mark for the 11th time since election day.

Predictions by E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, that the steel industry soon would be operating at capacity, the cheerful tenor of the weekly steel trade reviews and further increases in pig iron and finished steel prices stimulated the broad demand for the steel shares. United States Steel common, leading the rally, sold at 119 1-8 the highest price in seven years. Last minute selling drove it back at the close, however, to 118 1-4, where it showed a net gain of 3-4.

The rise in the steel shares, which began with a spectacular jump of 8 points in Crucible, brought about an upturn of prices in the general list which had displayed marked irregularity in the early trading. American Can, General Electric and United States Cast Iron Pipe were forced to absorb heavy liquidation at the outset and again were subjected to selling pressure at the close, yielding 2 1-2 to 3 1-4 points.

Strength of other leading industrials, however, was well sustained, in addition to United States Steel and Crucible new 1924 top prices were established by seven other steel shares, including Sloss-Sheffield, Gulf States and Inland.

Scoring a ten point advance, commercial solvents "B" was one of the features of the late trading. Net gains of two to five points were registered by a wide variety of issues, including United States Realty common and preferred, American Water Works, Savage Arms, American Wool, American Radiator and Federal Light and Traction preferred, several of which sold at new maximum prices. Other new high records embraced Studebaker, American International Corporation, Corn Products and Texas Gulf Sulphur.

The revival of interest in the industrials diverted attention from trading in railroad stocks, although Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Western Pacific preferred responding to favorable dividend rumors, led a number of issues to new high ground. Among these were St. Louis Southwestern preferred Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Southern Railway.

An advance in the call money rate from 2 1-2 to 3 per cent in the last hour failed to slow up trading. Time money rates showed little change. 60 day loans remaining at 3 per cent and 90 day accommodations ruling 1-4 of 1 per cent higher. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were firm, reflecting an improvement abroad resulting from the success of foreign loans and the lessening influence of cotton and grain bills on the market. Sterling was nearly a cent higher at $4.53 3-8 and French francs moved up two points to around 5.33 cents.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Nov. 26.—All groups of curb securities, with only a few individual exceptions, moved upward on expanded transactions in today's trading.

The oils, particularly, developed pronounced strength, this group being featured by a rise of 13 points in Standard Oil of Ohio to 366, attributed to rumors of a stock dividend and a split up of the shares. Magnolia Petroleum advanced 5 1-2 points to 140; South Vacuum gained 1 3-8. Nearly all other issues scored fractional gains. Standard Oil of Indiana on a turnover of more than 12,000 shares being able only to add 5-8 to yesterday's closing quotations.

Radio shares again were traded in actively, the pressure demand sending several of this group into higher ground. DeForest voting certificate jumped 3 1-2 to 25 1-4.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber was a weak spot in the list, yielding 1 1-4 to 22 1-4. Pittsburgh Terminal Coal common gained 1 7-8 and United Bakeries advanced four. Cities Service also scored a gain of 3 points. Nickel Plate common eased fractionally.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Nov. 26.—Bond prices worked moderately higher today, although trading, interrupted by pre-holiday readjustments, was tinged with irregularity.

Drastic scaling down of subscriptions for the new French loan, offered earlier in the week, led to renewed inquiry for the bonds in stock exchange trading and the price moved up to a new high level at 94 7-8. Allotments on the $100,000,000 issue averaged between 25 and 30 per cent, although some of the small investors were enabled to obtain almost the full amount of their orders. The overwhelming success of the French financing also stimulated buying of the government's 8 per cent bonds and some of the municipal issues.

Although profit-taking was apparent in many spots throughout the railroad list, buying of selected low-priced issues upheld the average of prices in this group. Demand centered in "Katy" 5s and 6s, Denver & Rio Grande Refunding 5s, Frisco 4s and Colorado and Southern Refunding 4 1-2. New Haven issues appeared to have overdiscounted solution of the road's refunding problem and prices receded one to two points.

Several industrial liens yielded to realizing sales. Pierce-Arrow 8s fell back a point after touching a new high level, and fractional losses took place in Wilson and Company, Eastern Cuba Sugar, Humble Oil obligations.

Liberty bonds fell back slightly on a firming up of money rates. Bankers today announced the purchase of $4,391,000 Wabash Railway 5 per cent equipment certificates, which have been placed privately to yield an average of 4 7-8 per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—Owing largely to a report that the United States at present has an unsold wheat surplus of only about 46,000,000 bushels, the wheat market developed sudden new strength today. Closing quotations on wheat were firm at 1 1-4 to 2c net gain, December 154 3-8 to 154 1-2 and May 162 1-2 to 1.62 5-8, with corn 1-4 to 1-2c up, oats unchanged to 3-8c higher, and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 40c.

It was near the end of the day before the estimates were curren which indicated the rapid disappearance of domestic supplies of wheat. Until then, the market had been backing and filling within a narrow range and end with transactions showing for the most part a pre-holiday character. Uncertainty as to the extent of December deliveries here tended at first to weaken values. Besides, lower quotations at Liverpool were a somewhat depressing factor. On the declines, however, buying quickly enlarged and rallies followed, with sellers few at the finish.

Reports that domestic farm reserves of wheat are unusually light for this time of the year gave added impetus to the upward swing of the market during the late trading.

Upturns in the value of corn and oats were due almost entirely to wheat strength. Fine weather prevailing was a bearish influence, and the country was said to be selling a little home freely to arrive.

TO HOLD ANTI-MOSQUITO INSTITUTE AT HARTFORD

War is soon to be waged against the mosquito according to an announcement that an anti-mosquito institute is to be held in Hartford on Friday, Dec. 5th. This is to be held under the auspices of the Connecticut Anti-Mosquito Association, in cooperation with the Conn. Agricultural Experiment Station, state park, highway and health commissions and civic and health organizations.

At this institute mosquitoes are to be tried by a jury composed of leading experts in the state. Their life histories will be discussed, and their haunts and habits brought before the public so that no defense will be offered for a discussion of The Malaria Mosquitoes of Connecticut will enable everyone to recognize them; the Recreations and the Economic Aspects of the mosquito problem as well as the Mosquito and the Health of Connecticut will be discussed. Following this will be presented the means of control and the extent to which this has been practiced in What Hartford has Done for Mosquito Control, the Present Status of Mosquito Elimination in Connecticut and How the Work is Done.

The Anti Mosquito Institute will be held at 38 Prospect street, Hartford, on Friday, December 5th at 1.30 p. m. All those interested in the elimination of mosquitoes for Connecticut should attend this meeting.

Over thirty of the best health films are available for general use. These illustrate in telling fashion, a variety of health subjects: Diphtheria, Vaccination against Smallpox, Mouth Hygiene, A Study of Bacteria, A Yearly Physical Examination, Rat Control, Waste Disposal in Cities, the Public Health Nurse, Child Hygiene and many others. These films are in constant use either in moving picture houses, at schools for science class work, or for special meetings. For the last group a fire proof booth is available to be used under certain conditions.

Hundreds of health slides are available covering all phases of health—sanitation, milk production, flies, mosquitoes, disease control, water supply, sewage disposal, laboratory technique, health examination, nutrition, oral hygiene, child hygiene and public health nursing. These slides are increasingly popular, and serve a variety of needs. They illustrate a special talk, fit into a special drive, are useful in class room work in hygiene or science. They all help to make the message more interesting.

In attractive coloring and design that cover all phases of child health. On display at public meetings, mothers groups, schools or clinics, they make a fitting background for the discussion.

This health service is available for every community in the state. Many are already familiar with it and are using it to the fullest extent. A Health Service Bulletin, and a Catalog of Health Slides describes this service.

The Nutmeg state enlistments were made at New Haven. Some 757 applicants were turned down because of physical defects and 359 for other causes; 70 applicants whose disqualifications were waived were rejected and 424 applicants who were accepted failed to enlist. ARTHUR HOPKINS
A NEW COMEDY
Close Harmony
BY DOROTHY PARKER and ELMER RICE
(By arrangement with Philip Goodman.)

TO THE PLAYGOERS OF NEW LONDON and VICINITY:

Why wait for the approval of Broadway?

The greatest dramatic successes of our time almost invariably have been launched outside of New York to empty seats.

The playgoer who has ignored a new offering in his own city has later paid exorbitant speculators' prices for the same play in New York.

I am opening a new play at the Lyceum Saturday, matinee and night.

In my opinion it is an important and significant comedy.

In my opinion the play, upon its arrival in New York, will be met by the kind of approval that means a speculators' holiday.

Why wait for New York?

Why not see it in New London?

I urge you to do so, feeling that you will be glad of the experience. I would scarcely risk the chance of having you bank too largely upon my advice unless I had every confidence in the outcome.

I believe you will be grateful for this suggestion.

I may be wrong. If I am I will hesitate ever to sanction this kind of recommendation again.

ARTHUR HOPKINS.

WILL SURVEY STATE'S RIGHTS ALONG ROADS

Authority to conduct a survey of the highway property rights of the state of Connecticut will be asked of the incoming session of the general assembly by the state highway department, it was made known Wednesday. This is believed necessary, in order that the state's title to land bordering every highway may be searched from the official town records and the highway limits definitely fixed on maps prepared for record.

Officials of the department feel that such an investigation is essential, as in a number of cases, doubt has existed as to where the state's property ended and the private land bordering the roadways began. Such conditions have come to light in the preparation of roads for improvement, widening, elimination of curves, etc.

It is the belief that a survey of this kind will prevent the possibility of the state's paying for land that rightfully belongs to it, rather than to private owners, that the department is anxious to have prepared maps which will outline for confusion in the future.

This is one of the recommendations that Commissioner John A. Macdonald is preparing in the annual report of the department, now nearing completion.

NEW SCOUT TROOP FORMED IN PLAINFIELD

Scout Executive F. A. Benton assisted in the forming of a scout troop in the Community house Plainfield, Tuesday night. Twenty-five boys were awaiting his arrival under the supervision of P. A. Coffey, who will be the scout master. This troop will meet in the cheerful Community house each week and will take frequent hikes under the leadership of Mr. Coffey, who has had charge of the boys for several years. From the enthusiasm shown by the boys it is expected that this troop will be heard from in a short time.

TRUMBULL WILL SUCCEED TO THE GOVERNORSHIP

The election of Colonel Bingham as United States senator over Hamilton Holt, of Woodstock, the democratic nominee, will mean the automatic advancement of Lieutenant-Governor-elect John H. Trumbull, of Plainville, to the governorship. Although Colonel Bingham himself, was not prepared to discuss his course, when seen directly after the republican convention, the opinion of ex-Governor Marcus H. Holcomb of Southington, said to be the "original Bingham man" in the state, was that it would be necessary for the governor-elect to go through the inauguration as governor on January 7 and deliver the message he has been preparing to read to the incoming session of the legislature, before resigning. As the first duty of the incoming governor's staff is to act as his bodyguard at the inaugural ceremonies, this would indicate that it will be incumbent on Mr. Bingham to appoint his staff. He and Colonel Trumbull have been working in such close harmony that it is likely the staff appointed by the former will be acceptable to the latter upon his taking office.

JOHN H. TRUMBULL

There would be no formal inaugural ceremonies upon the taking of the office by Colonel Trumbull, if the customary procedure in cases of the lieutenant-governor succeeding to the executive chair would be followed. The latter would be sworn in as lieutenant-governor together with all other elective state officers on the same day that Mr. Bingham was inaugurated governor, and his succession to the governorship would be in accordance with the constitutional provision that, in case of the governor's resignation, "the lieutenant-governor shall exercise the powers and authority appertaining to the office of governor, until another be chosen at the next periodical election for governor, and be duly qualified." Colonel Trumbull would simply be sworn in as governor, presumably by a supreme court justice or superior court judge, when Mr. Bingham's resignation as governor took effect.

Ex-Governor Holcomb pointed out that it would be inadvisable for Colonel Bingham to avoid the inauguration, because of technical complications that might arise." He certainly cannot resign now," he said, "because he has not yet been inaugurated governor and cannot resign an office he does not hold."

Bingham Has to Jan. 23

The special election is to be held December 16, and from about that time until approximately the time of Colonel Bingham's inauguration as governor, Congress will be in recess for the holidays. It is presumed he would qualify as United States senator for the seat left vacant by the death of Frank B. Brandegee, as early in January as convenient. He must do so under the law, by January 23.

Colonel Bingham could be inaugurated governor before sending a written acceptance of his election as senator to the secretary of the state, who must notify the winning candidate in the special election within ten days after the official canvass of the vote for the office. The senator chosen, then has twenty days in which to accept or refuse the office, according to the statutes which provide that "the elected persons shall signify their written acceptance or refusal within twenty days or they shall be considered as refusing said election."

The vote will be canvassed on December 30, Deputy Secretary Elmer H. Lounsbury said Tuesday as the statutes provide that "the vote shall be canvassed on the last Wednesday of the month in which they were cast." Allowing three days for the notification and the period of twenty days for acceptance, the candidate would have at least until January 23 before filing written acceptance. The inauguration will be on January 7, or sixteen days before the certificate of acceptance must be filed.

Precedent Established

Precedent for the resignation of the governorship was established October 13, 1853, when Governor Thomas H. Seymour of Hartford, after having served one month of his fourth term, resigned to accept an appointment as minister to Russia. He was immediately succeeded by Lieutenant-Governor Charles H. Pond of Milford, who served the remaining eleven months of the term. Governors were elected annually at that time.

Announcement of the resignation was made by the secretary of the state in the following communication:

"Hartford, Oct. 13, 1853

The publishers of the several newspapers in this state are requested to insert the following letter from the Honorable Thomas H. Seymour, communicating his resignation of the office of governor of this state, whereby the powers and authority appertaining to that office have devolved upon his Honor Charles H. Pond, Lieutenant Governor.

"Jno. P. C. Mather
"Secretary of State"

"Executive Office,
"Hartford, Ct., October 15, 1853.
"Hon. John P. C. Mather, secretary of state.

Sir—The receipt of an appointment from the President of the United States, for which I propose to accept, having made it necessary to close my official duties here, I have this day, in the presence of the state officers and others who have honored me with their presence on the occasion, publicly resigned the office of governor of the State of Connecticut.

"The discharge of the duties of that station having devolved upon the Lieutenant Governor by the act of resignation on my part, His Honor Charles H. Pond, being also present, signified his readiness to promptly comply with the constitutional requirements in such case provided; whereupon the oath of office was administered to him by the Honorable William W. Ellsworth, of the Supreme Court.

"With sentiments of gratitude to the people of this state, a sincere regard for the welfare of all its citizens and a warm desire for the promotion of the best interests of the commonwealth.

"I remain, respectfully,
"Your obedient servant,
"Thomas H. Seymour."

Lieut. Governor Candidates

The lieutenant-governor to succeed Colonel Trumbull upon the latter's advancement to the governorship will be elected by the state senate on January 7. There being thirty-three republicans, to two democrats in the incoming senate, the nominee of a caucus of republican senators-elect to be held on the evening of January 6 will undoubtedly become the acting lieutenant-governor. His election, however, will be as president pro tempore of the senate, but the constitution provides for the succession of the president of the senate to the acting lieutenant-governorship in the event of the person holding the latter office being called to the governorship.

The choice of the acting lieutenant-governor will be limited to the thirty-five members of the senate. There are already three candidates in the field and others are expected. Those who have announced their candidates are J. Edwin Brainard of Branford, Wallace N. Pierson of Middletown and Philo T. Platt of Newtown.

SMALL DROP IN PRICE OF FOOD IN STATE

Connecticut folks, while enjoying a decrease in the price of food during the year period from October, 1923 to October of this year, had to pay slightly more during the month from the middle of September to the middle of October, according to statistics for two cities of the state, Bridgeport and New Haven, just issued by the department of labor.

The average family expenditure for food in New Haven and Bridgeport during the year period decreased three per cent, the second largest decrease among the cities of the country reporting; during the month period, however, the price of food has risen two per cent. in both cities. The greatest increase for the cities reporting was three per cent., while two cities, Milwaukee and Seattle, reported decreases.

As compared with the average cost of food in 1913 food in New Haven was 49 per cent. higher in October. The greatest increase throughout the country during that time was 57 per cent. for Chicago, Richmond and Washington, D. C.

SANTA CLAUS TO COME SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Good news for the children of Norwich, and in fact for all the children of Eastern Connecticut, is contained in the announcement by The Porteous & Mitchell Company, of this city, that they have had a radio message from Santa Claus, sent from his home at the North Pole, stating that he is leaving and will soon be on his way to their store and expects to arrive, Saturday, November 29th, on schedule time.

According to his message it has been a mild season in his cosy home in the North and for that reason he has been able to work every day and to assemble a greater collection of toys and playthings than ever before. He states that he will make the first part of his journey in his special airplane, because in some sections there is no snow for his sled. Once he enters Connecticut he will leave his airplane and travel in his "Santa Claus Special" so that his little boy and girl friends, along the route, may see him and talk with him. He expects to meet and occupy his special car just north of Moosup.

Route he will travel: Arrive in Moosup on his special car at 1 p. m.; pass through Moosup and arrive at Central Village, the next stage in his journey at 1.15; from there to Plainfield, where he is due at 1.30; leaving Plainfield he will proceed to Jewett City, where he is due at 1.45; Baltic will be the next stop, being due there at 2 o'clock, Occum at 2.15, Taftville at 2.30, leaving Taftville he will travel over the trolley road, through Greeneville, being due at 2.45. Finally he will arrive at Franklin Square at 2.55 and will go from there to the store of The Porteous & Mitchell Company, where in their large window his workshop has been erected amidst scenes which will remind Santa of his home at the North Pole, the entire arrangement being one which will charm and enchant the younger generation.

Window Has New Features

The Santa Claus window which was designed and arranged by Joseph T. Farrell, the store decorator, has many new and novel features this year and will be a source of delight to the children and of interest to their elders. The management of The Porteous & Mitchell Company says: "Bring the kiddies to see Santa Claus arrive on Saturday afternoon; or if you live in any one of the towns through which his special car will pass be sure and be on hand, with the children, to meet the "Santa Claus Special." This triumphal journey of Santa Claus is an event that has been planned especially for the enjoyment of the children, the memory of which will last long after other happenings of childhood days are forgotten."

The state legislature representatives from Eastern Connecticut are to be the guests of the Eastern Connecticut Civic Association at a meeting at 6 o'clock next Monday evening at the Wauregan house.

As the programme which the Association is taking up for this year embraces improvements on one or more roads in every Eastern Connecticut county it is desired to inform the representatives about the programme at this meeting.

The Jail Hill boys are keeping up the traditions of ancient Norwich and have collected a good number of barrels for a Thanksgiving bonfire tonight.

RUMORS DROVE TOUPASZ TO TAKE HIS LIFE

Rumors concerning his relations with his niece, who for convenience lived with him, together with ill health, are believed to have been the underlying cause of the suicide of Onufrey Toupasx of Howard street, New London, whose body was found hanging by a sash cord to a tree in Mohegan park, in this city last Sunday after the man had been missing for more than a week.

This is the conclusion reached by County Detective William E. Lewis of Norwich, following a complete translation of a note written partly in Polish and partly in Russian, and directed to his sister, Mrs. Paul Sankow of Oakdale.

In the death message, which due to the mixture of different languages was difficult to interpret, Toupasz referred to the cause of his suicide as being "My housekeeping." According to a statement of Sankow, brother-in-law of the deceased, made to County Detective Lewis, the two Sankow children attended high school in New London, and to relieve them of the trip from Oakdale and back every day, arrangements were made whereby the two children could make their home with their uncle, the late Toupasz.

After a time the boy returned to Oakdale to make his home while his sister remained at the Howard street residence of her uncle and in a short while rumors were afloat to the effect that Toupasz and his niece were living as man and wife. Toupasz heard the rumors and directly went to his brother-in-law, father of the girl living at his home.

Mr. Sankow understood the condition, knew that Toupasz had always been fatherly to his niece from infancy up, even had aided toward her education as he had with the boy, and told Toupasz not to worry over the rumors. Gossip persisted, however, and Toupasz was disheartened by the things said of him and his niece.

Interpretation of the last part of the message was made Wednesday morning and following is the note complete:

"Dear Sister:

"I received your letter. I thank you very much for it. I am sending you very bad news. I have got to take my life on account of my housekeeping. I have written your name in my bank book. As soon as you receive it come right away to New London and take the money out of the bank and bury me.

"If there is any left over divide it between my relatives. My bank book has $300. Get this money. I have an auto—a Chevrolet. Sell this car, you can get about $300 for it. My car is in New London in Howard street. Best regards to all.

ONUFREY."

In spite of the fact that Toupasz said his car was on Howard street the machine was found last week in Mohegan park, which led to the discovery of the man's suicide. The note was found in the dead man's pocket.

The reference to "my housekeeping" is a vague one, but due to the circumstances authorities find no other significance, other than the rumors about himself and his niece.

Toupasz was betrothed to a New York girl and the wedding was to take place some time this month. His interest in his niece was a deep one, but according to his relatives, nothing improper ever took place between them. Toupasz regarded his ward more like a daughter and had helped in her education financially, many times, from the time she first went to school.

PREACHER FORECASTS THE COMING OF THE KINGDOM

The lecture given Tuesday evening at the Buckingham Memorial by O. L. Sullivan on "World Dominion Being Transferred" was well attended; and the speaker was given good attention as he unfolded a brief history of the world, showing the causes of the present distress upon the nations. The speaker said in part:

The World War came as a shock because it was thought humanity was so far advanced that war was practically outlawed through the preaching of the Gospel. But that the world was far from that heart condition which is conducive to peace may be readily seen by the selfishness manifested during and since the war in the graft and profiteering which has stirred the world and caused it to quake.

The Scriptures describe our day, saying, "Upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be saken." (Luke 21:25,26.) The powers of heaven mean the spiritual ruling powers of ecclesiasticism. Thus it forecasts a commotion in the religious world. This we see has already developed among those called Modernists and Fundamentalists. This controversy is only getting started, and all will do well to acquaint themselves with the facts on both sides.

The prophet Isaiah (24:20,21) says: a drunkard, and shall be removed like a shall be heavy upon it; and it shall a cottage; and the transgression there- "The earth shall reel to and fro like

FRANK HALE'S JEWELRY GIVEN FAVORABLE MENTION

The Sunday issue of a New York paper had the following to soy of Frank Gardner Hale of Norwich Town:

Frank Gardner Hale's jewelry, unlike much modern jewelry, is truly jewel-like. He does not take a precious or semi-precious stone and surround it with lumps of metal; he frames it appropriately. He plays with reflections of stones as did Cellini, enriching the color with enamels so placed as to catch reflection. With amber he uses both gold and silver and the amber holds both the cool and the warm lights. He builds with strength and dignity without losing the lightness and festiveness of the material.

CHRISTMAS SEALS PROVIDE FOR TUBERCULOSIS FIGHT

In connection with the annual sale of Christmas Seals the Connecticut State Department of Health this week issued the following statement:

Once again across the continent all hearts are united in the effort to make a stand against tuberculosis by the purchase of Christmas seals. For seventeen years this custom has prevailed and now the habit of buying seals has become a regular part of the Christmas shopping.

Put a Christmas seal on every letter and so seal the fate of tuberculosis in Connecticut. This should not only be the slogan of everyone, but the practice, as well. For thereby you put your seal of approval on this most important branch of state health work.

The Christmas seal fund makes possible a real attack on tuberculosis. It sends nurses into the field to teach the principles of hygiene, fresh air, sunlight, proper food and rest as aids to combat and prevent the spread of this disease. It establishes open air schools and camps in which to arrest its development in those showing indications of tuberculosis, or those who by reason of exposure to the disease need special care for a time. It provides nurses for treatment of tuberculosis patients in the home, and instruction for those who have come in contact with it so that the disease may not spread.

An important phase of the work is carried on through the tuberculosis clinics which are held in some 25 towns in the state in connection with the state tuberculosis sanatoria at Hartford, Meriden, Shelton, Norwich and Niantic. To these clinics patients are referred for diagnosis so tuberculosis discovered in its incipient stages, may be arrested by prompt and efficient care, or active cases may be controlled by treatment.

An active campaign against tuberculosis was started when the problem of undernourished children was attacked. Using a certain percentage below the normal weight as an indication of malnutrition, such children are given special attention, chief of which is a thorough physical examination. This may reveal tuberculosis in its early stages, or such a weakened physical condition as to make tuberculosis inevitable. This is followed by nutritional instruction which aims to improve the physical condition and so develop a natural resistance to tuberculosis.

The sale of Christmas seals provides resources for carrying on this preventive and curative work. Last year nearly $96,000 was made available, representing 85 per cent of all money collected. This made possible tuberculosis nursing in 65 towns, partly financed open air schools and camps, provided nutritional care for undernourished children in nearly 50 towns and gave, when needed, timely relief for sufferers of the disease.

Last year 1555 new cases of tuberculosis were reported to the state department of health and 1166 deaths. This shows that tuberculosis is still a problem in this state and the resources of private and public organizations are still necessary for the control of this dread disease.

Let us hold the field against tuberculosis by adopting all the measures for its prevention and relief which modern science has found to be effective. A generous response to this Christmas seal sale will push the work forward into the enemy's field.

Mild fall weather, with so little rain, has been favorable to turkey raising, and the markets are well supplied with the traditional Thanksgiving birds.

POETRY

THE LITTLE GRATITUDES.

When, on Thanksgiving Day, you pause
To ponder in a cheery mood,
The larger things that give you cause
For telling God your gratitude,
Do you give only grateful thought
To big things He has done for you?
Are not the humble blessings fraught
With providential favor, too?

Be grateful that you could befriend
A poor, unhappy passerby;
Who knows? Before the journey's end
His path with yours again may lie.
Then, seeing you—a soul distressed—
He may to you lend friendly hand;
Proclaim you as a welcome guest
In what had been a stranger-land.

Be grateful for the little bud
That blossomed by your kitchen door;
It brought a smile and warmed the blood
As nothing ever had before.
It made the summer doubly glad,
And now, in chill November's tide,
Be thankful for the joy you had
In those brief days before it died.

Be grateful for the little song
Somebody sang while passing by;
It helped your weary heart grow strong,
Replaced with smiles a latent sigh.
'Twas just a song! A simple air,
But it had come when you were blue;
Be thankful that you chanced to fare
Where it could cheer the soul of you.

Be grateful that you caught the word
Intended as an angry thrust;
Some little thing—now held absurd—
Might then have marked you as unjust.
Be thankful for the friend you kept
Because a hurtful word was stayed;
How many million tears are wept
Regretting words that strayed!

Be grateful not alone for gold,
For harvests rare and large success;
The Little Gratitudes, I hold,
Are sweetest for their humbleness.
The simplest blessings that are ours,
The little joys along the way;
The friends, the songs, the smiles, the flowers—
Thank God for them Thanksgiving Day!

—William Henschell, in Indianapolis News.

TURKEY.

The turkey is a lovely bird,
Much larger than the lark.
And on Thanksgiving you may choose
The white meat or the dark.
While Aunt Priscilla, ancient maid,
Decorous, pure and prim,
Her vestal scruples overcome,
Asks slyly for a limb.

Next day the bird appears again,
Of symmetry bereft,
And in renewal of the feast
We relish what is left.
The fragments then are put away—
The gravy in a cup—
And for the next day's meal the cook
Proceeds to warm them up.

And is that all? No, no, indeed!
Don't be so swift and rash!
The little fragments then appear
Next day in turkey hash;
And finally—how else could Ma
Her annual loss recoup?
The bones are boiled—with seasoning,
And we have turkey soup.

PLOTS THROUGHOUT EGYPT MENACE BRITISH OFFICIALS

British Authorities Have Ordered the Arrest and Imprisonment of All Prominent Anti-British Plotters—The Alleged Plotters Are Said to Belong to Extremist Patriots Who Aim to Secure the Complete Independence of Egypt—Four Arrests Have Been Made.

London, Nov. 27 (By the A. P.)—The discovery of a network of plots throughout Egypt declared to menace the lives of British officials in that country and in the Sudan from the governor-general down to civil clerks, has caused the British authorities to issue orders for the arrest and imprisonment of all prominent anti-British plotters. Further arrests, possibly on a large scale, in Cairo and Alexandria, are expected to follow quickly the arrests announced today, among others, of Nekrashy Bey, Zaghoul Pasha's minister of the interior, and Abdul Rahman Fahmy, declared to have been long actively engaged in plots against England, it is intimated in official quarters here.

Discovery of the numerous plots are stated to have been made by the British authorities in their investigations following the murder of Major General Sir Lee Stack, the sirdar. For the most part, the alleged plotters are said to belong to the groups of extremist patriots who aim at achieving the complete independence of their country by the employment of any methods which they conceive will benefit their cause and place it before the rest of the world.

FOUR ARRESTS MADE BY BRITISH AUTHORITIES

London, Nov. 27 (By the A. P.)—The British authorities in Cairo have taken into their own hands drastic measures to suppress possible nationalistic plottings by the arrest of four prominent members of the party organization headed by Former Premier Zaghoul Pasha.

Those arrested were Nekrashy Bay, a secretary in the ministry of the interior in Zaghoul's cabinet; Abdul Rahman Fahmy, one of Zaghoul's closest political assistants; William Makram Obeid, a prominent coptic member of the nationalist delegation, and Barakat Pasha, who was Zaghoul's minister of the interior.

According to statements in official quarters in London tonight the men arrested were leaders in an underground conspiracy against British interests, which probably was partly responsible for the murder of Sirdar Stack and which might, if left unhampered in its activities, result in further unfortunate incidents.

There was fear that this prompt action on the part of the British might result in another Egyptian ministerial crisis; but according to the latest Cairo advices it was announced there, following a hastily called cabinet council, that there would be no ministerial resignations as the British authorities had accepted Premier Ziwar's proposal that the men taken into custody should be handed over to the Egyptians to be dealt with.

No manifestations or disorders have followed the arrests, and throughout Egypt calm still prevails. There is no hint of any active opposition to the withdrawal of the Egyptian units from the Sudan. The withdrawal is expected to be completed by the end of the week.

Nothing is known in London of an alleged plot against the life of Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, the British high commissioner. There has been no further active step on the part of the Egyptians toward bringing the Egyptian affair to the official cognizance of the league of nations.

EGYPTIAN TROOPS DECLINE TO LEAVE THE SUDAN

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 27.—(By the A. P.)—An official communication says that when the acting sirdar gave orders for the Egyptian officers and troops to leave the Sudan they declined to do so and offered resistance.

They informed the acting sirdar that they would not leave unless they received order from the Egyptian government. British troops thereupon surrounded the Egyptians and the Khartum government wired to Cairo asking that orders be transmitted instructing the troops to depart.

On receipt of this message the Egyptian ministry met and decided that the war minister should send the required orders with a view to preventing bloodshed.

It appears that the message from the surrounded Egyptian troops to the Egyptian government was allowed to be transmitted to Cairo. The message said:

"We are surrounded by British troops and have only 20 rounds of ammunition per man, which is insufficient for resistance, as the British have unlimited supplies.

"Will the Egyptian government send us order to leave so as to avoid bloodshed?"

The war minister thereupon addressed the following message to the Egyptian officers and troops at Khartum:

"Animated by courage and loyalty, there is no doubt you are ready to shed the last drop of your blood for the king and country. However, I order you to cease resistance, which can only result in useless bloodshed. Moreover, the Egyptian government having strongly protested against this measure by a superior force, your return will in no wise prejudice the country's rights or your military honor."

CHRONICLE OF POLITICAL DEVELOPMENTS IN EGYPT

Cairo, Nov. 27 (By the A. P.)—Ahmed Zulfikar Pasha, Egyptian minister to Rome, who was offered the portfolio of foreign affairs in the new cabinet of Ziar Pasha, has declined the post. The premier will temporarily retain it himself. Ahmed Mouzas Pasha, judge of the court of appeals, has been named minister of justice.

Commenting on the appointment of Neville Henderson as British minister plenipotentiary in Cairo, the newspaper Ahram, a Zaghoulist organ, says it understands Mr. Henderson comes to Cairo with full authority to negotiate a treaty before the re-assembling of parliament.

The newspaper, attacking Great Britain's insistence on the widening of the Sudan irrigation projects, said it would require many years to cultivate the nearly 500,00 acres of land in the Sudan involved, even if the necessary labor were available, and it concludes the provision was merely inserted in the British demands with the intentino of dropping it later to impress the Egyptian people.

The Ahram says it understands the cabinet ministers are sounding out individual senators and deputies in an effort to learn the situation of the new ministry with regard to parliament. The cabinet, it adds, will doubtless recommend dissolution of parliament, as a majority for the ministry does not appear to be forthcoming. Considerable anxiety is being manifested in cabinet circles in this respect, it declares.

EGYPT'S PROTEST AGAINST DEMANDS MADE BY ENGLAND

Geneva, Nov. 27.—(By the A. P.)—No error was made by the league of nations' secretariat, it was said by league officials today when the secretaria made public officially yesterday the text of a telegram received from the Egyptian parliament protesting against England's demands on Egypt. The attention of the officials was called today to a discrepancy in the text as given out here, with the one issued in Paris. In the Paris version the last sentence of the telegram stated that the Egyptian chamber "addresses its protest to all the parliaments of the world and marks an appeal to the society of nations asking it to intervene to defend against arbitrary action in innocent nation which is profundly attached to its sacred and impresceptible rights and asks nothing else but its independence."

The Geneva text contains no reference to league intervention, merely saying that the Egyptian chamber forwards "its protest to all the world parliaments against arbitrary action.' Then follows the phrase, "an innocent nation," which officials say should at least be preceded by a preposition like "towards" to make the sentence clear. The secretaries said they noticed this lack of clearness when reproducing the telegram, but preferred to stick rigidly to the text in the interest of accuracy.

League officials declared this forenoon that even if the original text as deposited in the telegram office at Cairo contained a reference to intervention this would not affect the league's attitude. The position taken was that the protest had no official standing because it had emanated from a parliament and not from a government.

HARTFORD POLICE SEARCH FOR SLAYERS OF CHINESE

Hartford, Nov. 27.—Police officials working on the murder of two Chinese in a Park street laundry here last night admitted today that they were working on the clue furnished by the .38 calibre revolver left on the counter of the laundry by one of the murderers. Four shots had been fired from the weapon which is believed to have been used by a member of the Hip Sing Tong, now engaged in a feud with the On Leong Tong of which the murdered men were members.

It is understood that the police have been unable to start tracing the gun from the Colt factory here where it was made because of the holiday, the plant being closed.

A puzzling element in the case, suggesting that the revolver was "planted" is that the crime was apparently carefully planned and the murderers escaped without leaving a trace except the revolver which remained in full view on the counter.

In spite of a tightly woven police net flung afar, the two murderers had up to tonight successfully eluded all attempts to apprehend them. Mystery surrounds the identity of the younger of the two dead Chinese, supposed at first to have been the nephew of the older man, but the police are now positive he was someone else. Who he was has not yet been established.

Warfare Renewed in Chinatown, New York

New York, Nov. 27.—Assassins' bullets today plunged out the life of Goag Chong Food, laundryman, and re-established the Tong men's reign of terror in Chinatown.

The truce, under which Hip Sings and On Leongs had suspended hostilities after 13 of their number had been slain, was shattered three hours before it was due to expire.

All agencies of mediation—consular, police and business—acknowledged tonight the failure of efforts to establish peace. That truce would end in renewed warfare was presaged by reports of two Tong killings at Hartford, Conn., and of Tong shootings in Chicago. But Mott and Pell and Doyers streets of this city's Chinatown, were a sullen aspect of peace, until the slaying of Goag Chong Food became the signal for dropping the veil of truce and caused Chinatown's devious thoroughfares to become peopled again with more police than pedestrians.

As in many previous killings, the scene of the death of Goag Chong Food was far from Tong headquarters.

He, a Hip Sing man, and his son, were working in their laundry in the Bronx when two men pushed open the door and opened fire with automatics.

The father dropped under a dozen bullets. The son hid behind a counter until the assassins backed through the door and disappeared.

Thanksgiving day strollers became a posse and captured Lee Har and Moy Yiek Tong, both of whom said when charged with homicide, that they were restaurant employes at 14 Mott street, headquarters of the On Leong Tong. Two automatic pistols were found in an alley way along the slayers' lane of flight.

Goag Yin Sae, son of the laundryman, was lodged in Bronx county jail as a material witness and as a precaution against possible renewed attempts upon his life if he remained at the laundry.

Tong leaders were not accessible to callers at their respective headquarters tonight. Their aids said, however, that all rumors of peace pacts, of an extended truce, or even of conferences between chiefs of the rival factions were "utterly and obviously without foundation." Counsel for the two Tongs declined to discuss the situation.

Newbern, N. C., Nov. 27.—Charlie Long, Chinese laundryman, was found dead in his bed today from a bullet wound. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide, but Coroner J. L. Hartfield, fearing that the Chinese might have been a tong war victim, decided to continue the investigation.

PRINCE AT THANKSGIVING DINNER IN LONDON

London, Nov. 27.—(By the A. P.)—The Prince of Wales tonight declared that his recent visit to the United States was "a thrill that can come only once in a lifetime." The occasion for his declaration was the annual Thanksgiving dinner of the American society, which was attended by Frank B. Kellogg, the American ambassador, and Mrs. Kellogg and a large representation of American residents il London.

The Prince gave his impressions of America while he fussed characteristically with his white bow tie. He admitted he had a warm regard for Will Rogers, the Woolworth building and New York subways, and that he even delighted in his memories of the Chicago stockyards.

The prince spoke in reply to a toast by Mr. Kellogg, which followed a banquet, the main course of which was turkey and which ended with the usual pumpkin pie. Mr. Kellogg in speech recalled the peace and harmony which he said had existed between Great Britain and the United States for one hundred and ten years. He referred also to a Thanksgiving dinner given 28 years ago by Queen Victoria to the American ambassador, which custom at some time or other had been followed by her successors on the throne.

The ambassador led the guests in giving three cheers for Wales after which the guests followed the English custom of singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

The prince then rose to reply. He seemed embarrassed by the welcome he had received.

He took occasion to thank Americans for "the jolly good time" he had in America and for the present welcome, which he said was a repetition of hundreds of similar ones he had received from Americans in their own country.

Trotzky Throne in Russia Tottering

Political Observers Think His Adversaries Have Scored a Complete Victory Over the War Chief.

Moscow, Nov. 27 (By the A. P.)—The full text of the reports of Leo Kameneff and M. Stalin attacking War Minister Trotzky have just been published. These reports heretofore have been confined to the inner circles of the communist party.

Trotzky's career, prior to the 1917 revolution and during and after the bolshevik coup d'etat, is carefully surveyed in forty columns of printed matter. Both Kameneff and Stalin, the soviet leaders, strive to show that Trotzky always has acted as a "menshevik" and now has departed from pure bolshevism and party idealism.

Kameneff explains that the central committee of the party was compelled to inaugurate a campaign against Trotzky because his recent book, "Lessons of the 1917 Revolution," was being published under the ostensible protection of the communist party and, coming from a member of the party's political bureau, which directs the work of the Communist International, the book creates a danger for the party.

While Kamenell confined his general criticism of Trotzky to his own self-defense Stalin, who is a member of the executive committee of the communist party, dwells unsparingly upon the war minister's "heresy" and his alleged abandonment of orthodox bolshevik principles. He accuses Trotzky of attempting to take Lenine's mantle for himself. He also urges members of the party to wage a relentless war against the military leader as "otherwise Trotzky's ideas may become the concentration point for all non-proletarian elements who strive to disintegrate the proletarian dictatorship."

Although Trotzky's friends believe that the present movement is intended to render him politically innocuous Stalin says he does not favor reprisals or harsh treatment of party opponents.

The whole campaign has been introduced, it is said, to avoid renewed dissension within the communist ranks. Unlike last year's controversy, however, when Trotzky found support in many quarters, especially among the young communists and military cadets, the war minister this time is almost deserted.

Political observers seem to think that Trotzky's adversaries have scored a complete victory over the war chief, but they believe that the party leaders will not attempt to dethrone him altogether, for such a measure would undoubtedly produce a profound reaction among the rank and file of the army who regard their leader very highly.

SITE MENTIONED FOR NEW THEATRE AT YALE

New Haven, Nov. 27.—Reports that Yale university may buy the site of the former Rialto theatre, destroyed by fire years ago, as the site for the proposed new theatre made possible by the gift of $4,000,000 by Edward S. Harkness, brought forth a statement tonight that negotiations had been underway for more than a month for the sale of the property. New Haven interests and a New York concern are negotiating, it was said, for the erection of a large theatre and several stores on the land in College street.

Final plans for the project had been practically completed at a series of conferences when a minor disagreement arose, it was learned tonight. When attempts to adjust the disagreement failed the project was abandoned.

Purchase of the old Rialto site by the university would necessitate a complete change of policy of the faculty, which has been to dispose of all property owned by the institution south of Chapel street. The property was originally owned by the university long before the old College street chapel was converted into the Rialto play house.

As yet officials of the university have taken no action towards opening negotiations for the purchase of the theatre site, it was learned tonight.

The pole, nearly one and a half feet in diameter, was clipped off two feet from the ground.

HOW THANKSGIVING WAS OBSERVED AT SING SING

Ossining, N. Y., No. 27—News that the calendar had been marked with another "wholesale" executive date appeared to lessen not at all the appetites of 22 inmates of the death house at Sing Sing prison who today sat down to a Thanksgiving dinner of chicken.

The order, coming from Albany, named six murder convicts for death in the electric chair January 15.

William H. Anderson, former anti-saloon league leader who now awaits release from Sing Sing on Christmas eve, as among those prisoners who received gift packages from home-folks. $15,000,000 CREDIT FOR THE GERMAN STATE RAILWAYS

First Steps Taken by American and British Bankers Under the Dawes Plan—Largest Railway System in the World, Having 33,000 Miles of Road—Net Earnings of the System Promise to Exceed the Estimates of the Dawes Commission.

New York, Nov. 27 (By the A. P.)—First steps in financing Germany's railways, as reconstituted under the Dawes plan, were taken today by American and British bankers, who placed a credit of $15,000,000 at the disposal of the German State Railway company.

One-third of the loan will be in in pounds sterling and will be underwritten by a London banking syndicate, headed by Schroeder & Co., includes the Equitable Trust company, the Chase Securities corporation, Blair & Co., the bank of the Manhatan company and the J. Henry Schiey Banking corporation.

Organized in accordance with the Dawes plan to take over the operation of German railroads under private management, the German State Railway company constitutes what is said to be the largest railway system in the world, having 33,000 miles of road. Two-thirds of the equipment, consisting of 31,000 locomotives, 70,000 passenger cars and 750,000 freight cars, is less than ten years old.

The original cost of the system, whose lines extend into every part of Germany, as $6,200,000,000.

First indications that the railway provisions of the Dawes plan are operating successfully are given in a report to bankers, which save that net earnings of the system promise to exceed the estimates of the Dawes commission.

KORETZ HELD ON CHARGE OF SWINDLING CHICAGOANS

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 27—Leo Koretz, arrested here on a charge of swindling Chicagoans of huge sums appeared before a commissioner under the bankruptcy act this afternoon and voluntarily assigned all his assets in this country to the Eastern Trust Company, acting for the Chicago Title & Trust Company, trustees of the Koretz estate in the United States.

Chester Davis of the Chicago Company and two attorneys, Adrian Hoover and Bernard Nath, were present and Commissioner Cummins pointed out to the prisoner that he was declaring his asset voluntarily. Koretz made a detailed statement and answered all questions readily. His total estate as declared amounted to something over $200,000, exclusive of his estate at Pinehurst, N. C.

The prisoner was much improved in appearance when he appeared in court today and his jailer said he was a model prisoner in every way. He mingled freely with his fellow prisoners and appeared to take pleasure in their company.

It has been definitely arranged that the return trip to Chicago will start Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

Attorney-General O'Brien said today that he believed that Koretz, by waiving extradition, was lying himself open to trial on any charges the authorities wished to bring against him, whereas, in his belief, had the prisoner fought extradition and lost he could have been tried only upon the charge under which he was extradited.

122 FOREST FIRES WHILE BAN WAS ON HUNTING

Hartford, Nov. 27.—There were 122 forest fires, which burned areas amounting to 4,186 acres during the nineteen day period when hunting was prohibited in this state by proclamation of Governor Templeton, according to reports received from wardens by State Forester Austin F. Hawes. The average for each day of the ban was 5.8 fires while the average area burned was thirty-four acres. Sixteen of the fires were started by hunters illegally indulging in the sport while the embargo was on.

Despite the numerous fires during the period the ban was of great benefit Mr. Hawes said. It not only kept the majority of hunters out of the woods but was an incentive to others to use caution during the dry spell. He pointed out that ordinarily at the time of the year the ban was in force, numerous forest fires are started by persons burning brush, while this year there were only ten such fires.

Thirty-eight of the fires during the ban were of unknown origin. Nearly all of these were in out-of-the way sections of the state and were by far the most destructive. 4,186 acres being burned. Railroads were responsible for twenty-eight of the fires which damaged 382 acres. Twenty-one fires were listed as started by smokers, four by campers, three by burning buildings, and two were incendiary.

NO EVIDENCE AS TO WHO KILLED WILLIAM R. FEE

San Bernardino, Calif., Nov. 27.—There is no evidence in his possession as to who killed William R. Fee, Alhambra and San Gabriel bank president, that would warrant an arrest at this time, Sheriff W. A. Shay said tonight.

The sheriff and detectives spent the day in Little Creek Canyon near the place where Fee's body was found.

A bloody handkerchief found in a cabin 30 feet from the cabin owned by Miss Mary Watkins, who was questioned for three hours at the inquest yesterday, remained or chief interest tonight. In the same cabin a clearly defined footprint was discovered in the basement.

That considerable blood flowed from Fee's nose was established today when officers found that blood had soaked through two inches of leaves at the spot where Fee's head lay. This discovery did not weaken the belief of officers that the banker's body was carried to the spot after death.

Careful check today revealed seven men who said they were at the place where the body was found on Sunday and Monday. The body was found Tuesday.

A pair of rubber gloves was found buried with garbage in the yard at the cabin of Miss Watkins. A fern had been planted over the spot. There was no sign of blood on the gloves.

PLAN OF JURISTS UNWISE WAYNE B. WHEELER SAYS

Washington, Nov. 27.—The proposal of the recent judicial conference of the circuit court judges that prohibition enforcement be concentrated under the department of justice would result, in the opinion of Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League in making the present situation "worse, not better."

Saying the proposal had been rejected many times "as unwise" Mr. Wheeler, in a statemen tmade public tonight, declared control of industrial and non-beverage liquor "cannot be appropriately transferred to the justice department" and "we would be swamped with bootleg liquor."

OBERAMMERGAU PILGRIMAGE WAS FINANCIAL FAILURE

New York, Nov. 27—Seeds of dissension and suspicion have been sowed in the soil of Oberammergau, Bavaria, because of dissatisfaction with the financial results of the visit made to the United States last winter by twelve of the principal actors of the passion play, it became known today.

Benedikt Stuckl, as chairman of the Heimatkunst, the association into which the 1700 inhabitants of the village have been organized, has visited Frank D. Waterman, fountain pen manufacturer, to complain against the treatment accorded the passion players by their American sponsors. He told Waterman, who was one of the first to underwrite the proposal to bring the players here and who went to the village to invite the actors to America, that although $275,000 had been collected by the American committee, only $10,000 had been turned over to the villagers.

The citizens of Oberammergau, Stuckl said, were dissatisfied with this amount and demanded a detailed financial statement from the players. This the actors were unable to furnish, as none had been given them, he related, and as a result, William Lechner was deposed as chairman of the Heimatkunst and, even for the venerable Anton Lang, for 30 years the village's leading citizen, the portrayer of the role of Jesus Christ in the play, found himself under suspicion.

Herr Stuckl was finally sent to America to obtain a detailed financial statement, as he said the statement sent to the players by Michael Francis Doyle, a Philadelphia lawyer, was not explicit enough.

STOLEN AUTOMOBILES RETURNED TO OWNERS

New Haven, Nov. 27.—That stolen automobiles valued at more than a million dollars have been recovered and returned to their rightful owners in the past seven years through information secured from the files of the state motor vehicle department, was made known tonight in a report by a Hartford agency which is engaged in running down motor vehicle thefts. The report was made public by the state department.

New Haven has led the state in the number of motor vehicle thefts reported according to the statement. In the first three months of this year, ninety cars were reported stolen in that city as against a total of slightly over 200 reported to have been stolen in the entire state during all of last year.

An investigation was started by the state police department, police departments and insurance companies and thousands of original applications in the files of the department were examined. Two hundred photostat copies of suspicious applications were prepared by the state library as a result of which 20 arrests were made within two months When examined at the New Haven county jail, these prisoners gave information which accounted for at least 60 of the 90 cars included in the information. The value of these automobiles was estimated at $30,000.

LOOKING TO FINANCIAL INTEREST IN BRIDEGROOM

London, Nov. 27.—(By The A. P.)—The desire to protect the British bridegroom's pocket from the many financial inroads, which it was contended might prove a serious deterrent to marriage—already affected by unemployment and the housing shortage—led the Church of England's house of clergy today to reject a proposal requiring men as well as women to wear wedding rings.

The question arose during discussion of the revision of the marriage service which earlier had been altered so as to eliminate the time-honored word "obey" from the bride's response in one of the two passages in which it occurs in the ritual, although it was permitted to remain in the other.

The proposal for the double ring ceremony aroused a heated discussion, in which many arguments, ecclesiastical and practical, were presented, but the opponents had the final say and the motion was rejected.

HOLT BECAME VOTER IN WOODSTOCK IN AUGUST, 1924

Woodstock, Nov. 27.—Hamilton Holt, democratic nominee for United States senator, became a voter in this town in August, 1924, it was said today by Registrar of Voters William C. Child and Selectman Albert H. Williams. The records of the town show that the presidential election of November 4, was the first in which he has cast his vote in Woodstock.

Registrar Child said his understanding was that Mr. Holt was not living in the town at present. He explained that he has a summer home here and, with his family, spends nearly every summer here, but maintains a residence in New York in which he lives the greater part of the year. WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office, 771 Main Street
Telephone 1131
Office Hours: 9:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 5 p. m.

The entire population suspended activities Thanksgiving, and devoted the day to entertaining or visiting with friends and relatives. The only sign of continued labors on the streets was at the Capitol theatre building now under construction where bricklayers in the employ of Doyle & Murphy carried on because of the endeavor of the builders to erect the walls of the structure before the coming of heavy snow storms. Although turkeys were selling at 55 cents a pound on the average grocer's reported large sales in this line indicating that roasted gobblers adorned the tables in many family circles. Homes of needy families were remembered with gifts of complete Thanksgiving dinners by local benevolent and welfare organizations, a dozen such dinners being distributed by the student body of the State Normal school

A Thanksgiving session of the police court was held Thursday morning. Fred MacComber of New Hartford, one armed seller of pencils, and Conrad Barker, of Providence, arrested on charges of intoxication, were denied a holiday dinner at the expense of the county and given twenty-four hours to get out of the town limits. The men thanked Judge Frank H. Foss for this display of kindly spirit and vanished for parts unknown.

John Shea, of Maple avenue, was charged with breach of the peace and when found guilty was fined $2 and costs amounting to $9.15. Shea got illuminated on moonshine Wednesday night and his persistent efforts to gain entrance to the Polish hall, in lower village, where a dance was going on, resulted in his arrest.

A strip of window pane in one of the show windows of Moriarty & Rafferty at 41 Church street, in the Clark block, was broken about 2 o'clock on Thursday morning when a Cadillac sedan, owned and operated by G. D. Bartlett of this city mounted the sidewalk and struck the wooden base of the window. The machine had been parked on Church street and Mr. Bartlett had just gotten it into motion to return to his home on upper Church street when a dog ran directly in the path of the vehicle. In turning out to avoid striking the animal the right front tire wedged against the curbstone causing the front wheels to turn sharply to the right and onto the walk. The bumper of the car struck the woodwork and the machine was not damaged. The matter was reported to the police and a settlement is to be made for the broken glass.

The results of the overturning of a chemical and supply wagon of Montgomery Hose Company, No. 3, of the fire department as it was turning into Railroad street, shortly before midnight Wednesday evening, while being drawn tandum fashion by a truck in answer to a bell alarm, took on somewhat more of a serious nature Thursday. John Ryan who was riding on the seat of the wagon and was thrown into the air when it overturned, is still a patient at St. Joseph's hospital, suffering with a dislocated shoulder and fractured arm. It was at first thought that the arm was sprained but an X-ray picture taken Thursday disclosed the more severe injury. Raymond (Shaun) Sullivan who was thrown from the rear step of the wagon, believed that he had escaped with a shaking up, but Thursday his left hand and forearm became numb and an examination by a pysician revealed that two bones in the wrist were broken

It was also found that the two left wheels of the wagon had been cracked in the mishap and Thursday another wagon of similar make was hauled down from the Hilltop Fire house on Summit street to replace the damaged vehicle in the Montgomery headquarters on Jackson street. Mr. Ryan is not a regular volunteer member of the department, simply having offered his services for the call.

The minstrel and dance, with a cast of eighty-five of the Thread City's leading musical stars, at the state armory, under the auspices of the American Thread Athletic association and Company C, 169th Infantry, Conn. National Guard, was the feature attraction, Thanksgiving afternoon and evening. The affair was an unqualified success and was received with enthusiasm by the capacity audiences at the matinee and evening performances. The drill shed had been supplied with seats for 1,500 and in the evening over two hundred were forced to be content with standing room to witness the showing. George A. Bartlett, Willimantic's erstwhile minstrel-man and originator of innumerable novel ideas in that line, supervised the entire presentation and was given the lion's share of credit for the unprecedented success of the show. The famous Tarasio orchestra, of Hartford, assisted Mrs. Arthur J. Dubruil, accompanist, for the minstrel numbers, also played for a dance between 10 p. m. and 1 a. m. The end men and girls made an instantaneous hit. The song numbers were put over big and the snappy jokes caused continuous laughter. Among members of the cast who won high honors besides all of the ends were the Ballards, Florence Boutu and Jerome Montigny; Jerome Piche in Red Nose Pete; Little Evelyn Lavin in Doodle Do Doo; Carrie Powell and Gladys Powell in a Waltz of Long Ago; Ray Tallman, first tenor of the Male Imperial Four in Memory Lane; and Forest Richards in Her Name Was Hu-La-Lou, supplemented with Frisco dancing. The Thanksgiving Night of St. Mary's Boys' Bazaar at the Al-Pierre Tabarin met with the same unqualified success which marked its auspicious opening Wednesday evening. A fine bill of entertainment including solo dancing and group dancing by children instructed and directed by Miss Emma L'Heureux again delighted the audience. The programme: Trio, a Grecian Dance, Viola Nolan, Juliet Lamoureux and Rose Lavigne. Valse Gracieuse, Evelyn Fournier. Spanish Dance, Irene Nolan, Rose Lavigne, Viola Nolan, Juliet Lamoureux, Della Beaulieu, Evelyn Fournier, Theresa Danahey, Theresa Carey. First Foot-Steps dance, Medora Marriotte. Have You Piles?

Then You Have Something to Learn.

Thousands who have piles have not do the same for you.

Learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy. His prescription is HEM-ROID, a tablet medicine, taken internally, that is now sold by druggists generally. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 91 per cent. and then decided it should be sold under a rigid money back guarantee.

TWO CARS DAMAGED ON NORTH WINDHAM ROAD

Willimantic, Nov. 27—A Dodge touring car owned and operated by Howard Lucas, of 511 Main street, this city was wrecked, and an Essex touring car, owned by George C. LaBonte of Columbia, and driven by his wife, Mrs. Eva L. LaBonte, was considerably damaged, shortly before 7 o'clock Thursday evening, in a sideswiping accident on a straight stretch of the North Windham-Willimantic highway, midway between Phelps' Crossing and the curve near Sunset Farm.

The local car was headed toward North Windham and the left front wheel was ripped completely off, allowing that part of the car to drop onto the axel and continue for some distance in this crippled condition, coming to a stop against the right bank of the road. The LaBonte machine was damaged to the extent of a badly bent fender and punctured left front tire. The latter car was headed from Providence back to Columbia and resumed the trip under its own power. In addition to the wheel, a fender and the left running board of the Lucas car were demolished and the frame bent. Morris Spector, local junk man, appeared on the scene and Lucas offered him the machine for $25 on the spot but Spector held out for $15 and the deal fell through. A wrecker later hauled the machine away. Lucas failed to produce an operator's license for the investigating officers, Leo Piche of the police department and Sergeant Russell Harmon of the Stafford Springs state police barracks. The case was turned over to the latter officer and he ordered Lucas to appear in court Saturday morning to answer to a charge of reckless driving and driving without a license, the marks in the road proving that the Lucas car was occupying more than half of the highway when the collision occurred. Riding with Mrs. LaBonte was her husband, her sister and brother-in-law. Lucas' wife and child occupied the front seat with him and there were two women in the rear seat. All escaped without injury.

HALLVILLE MAN MARRIES LOCAL GIRL AT HARTFORD

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, Nov. 27—Word has been received here of the marriage, Thanksgiving Day in Hartford, of Marjorie House, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter House of this city and Otis Lindwood Conrad, of Hallville.

FAMILY WAS ATTACKED WITH AN AXE WHILE THEY SLEPT

Plainfield, N. J., Nov. 27.—A family of three was attacked with an axe while they slept early today by a maniacal woman servant who instantly killed one of them, probably fatally injured another, and slashed a third.

The murdered man is George H. Davey, 50, an accountant, whose head was nearly severed by two blows from the axe, while his invalid wife, sleeping in another room, was so critically cut about the face and throat that hospital authorities expect her to die. A daughter, Winifred, 14, attempted to escape to the street and was slashed across the cheek.

Screams of Mrs. Davey and of her daughter aroused neighbors across the street where a late party had not ended, and two men from the house rushed in to prevention assistance from Mrs. Davey. Police who were summoned were forced to put the woman Mary Kuzmak, 32, in a straight jacket before they could subdue her. Mrs. Davey and her daughter were taken to Muhlenberg hospital, from which the daughter who escaped late today. Hospital authorities said that Mrs. Davey, who had been confined to her bed for eleven months with heart trouble is in such critical condition, she probably will not recover

"He told me to do it," the crazed servant repeated over and over while police held her at headquarters throughout the day in the straight hot. She came to this country from Poland 14 years ago

The Davey servant retired as usual at 10 o'clock last night according to neighbors, who also said that she had attended church regularly and had never given any indication of an unbalanced mind.

Chief Kieley who called two physicians to attest to the servant's insanity late today, said that she probably would be removed to the state asylum at Morris Plains tonight.

County Physician Brokaw and City Physician Wood after an examination tonight pronoun ed the woman insane and she was removed to the county jail at Elizabeth. She will be held there for the formal commitment to the asylum, which is expected to be made tomorrow by County Judge Stein.

NEW CHARGES AGAINST KING ALFONSO OF SPAIN

Paris, Nov. 27.—Vincente Blasco Ibanez from his Paris headquarters today hurled the new charges against King Alfonso of Spain. The first was that he was conspiring to supplant all the democratically inclined officers of the home forces of infantry with the reserve and gendarmerie officers loyal to him in order to be able to rely upon the infantry for a coup d'etat making the monarchy absolute.

The second as that being short of funds his majesty recently dumped 2,000,000 pesetas worth of shares in the Madrid Subway company on the Bourse, causing a considerable flurry and making the other shareholders lose heavily.

Ibanez explained that the king feels he can rely on the cavalry and artillery officers, because virtually all belong to or are akin to the nobility, whereas the infantry officers are commissioned from all ranks of society, including a majority favoring a constitutional monarchy, with many of their number republicans in belief.

"Little by little," said the writer, "my pamphlet against Alfonso and Primo Rivera is getting into Spain. We have thousands of willing workers, each smuggling as many as 50 can across the frontier. Of course, I cannot expect that all the 2,000,000 copies will fall on fruitful ground. In any battle there always are casualties and prisoners. But before the end of the year you will see an immense number of Spaniards reached by it."

TOO MUCH TURKEY FOR HABITUES OF THE BOWERY

New York, Nov. 27—So lavish was Father Knickerbocker's celebration of Thanksgiving Day, that for the first time in the history of the bowery, there was too much turkey for the regular habitues of that thoroughfare's missions and other charitable institutions.

The Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America, as usual, dispensed meals and baskets to unfortunates. The visiting nurse service made 1,700 visits with eatables to homes of the poor. Down in Greenwich Village, at the head offices of the St. Andrews' one cent coffee stands, 2,000 meals were given away and many baskets, filled with holiday staples and delicacies, were sent to homes.

In orphan asylums and other juvenile institutions turkeys, pumpkin pie and all the trimmings were served to eager children at heavy laden boards.

The prisoners of the city at Welfare Island, including the workhouses for men and women, enjoyed not only a holiday dinner but also performances by stars of the vaudeville stage. The immigrants on Ellis Island were not forgotten; 500 of them had a special dinner and entertainment.

One of the most novel of the parties was given tonight at the midnight mission on Doyer street, in Chinatown by "Steeple Jim" Parker, formerly a steeple jack. Parker, who was converted at the mission and is now an evangelist, entertained scores of human derelicts from the nearby bowery.

The traveling man wants full fare at hotels, but he doesn't object to half fare on the railroads.

MANY DEATHS IN GALE OFF SOUTH COAST OF ENGLAND

London, Nov. 27.—(By The A. P.)—Much damage was done today by a furious gale which swept both the east and south coasts of England and inland points.

Seventeen persons were drowned when the freight steamer Hartley, a vessel of 2,000 tons, sank off Portland. Only two men of the crew were rescued. There were many minor casualties to coastwise shipping.

The channel steamer Pieppe grounded at the mouth of New Haven harbor and a tug which attempted to rescue her was smashed against the breakwater. The Dieppe was refloated after her six passengers from France had spent five hours of misery on board.

At Southampton the Royal Mail Liner Almonzora of the Buenos Aires service broke from her moorings and swung about dangerously. She narrowly escaped smashing a naval transport. The vessel evenually was warped into her berth again after three hours of hard work by tugboats.

The Southampton pilots who took the steamer Vandam out of port were unable to leave the vessel outside the harbor and were carried on to Plymouth and landed there.

PROBE INTO DEATH OF MRS. SHEATSLEY AT STANDSTILL

Columbus, O., Nov. 27.—Nothing tending to pierce the veil of mystery which has hung over the parsonage of Christ Evangelical Lutheran church in the fashionable Bexley district, since the virtually cremated body of Mrs. Addie Sheatsley was found in the furnace eleven days ago developed today.

The investigation of County Prosecutor John R. King and his aides was at a standstill. They rested after a period of almost constant work since the body was found by the husband, the Rev. C. V. Sheatsley.

Tonight Mr. King sai dhe had no plans for the rest of the week. Further action, he said, will depend on the reports of experts who are investigating certain phases of the baffling case.

Hundreds of persons today thronged the street in front of the parsonage to which the Rev. Mr. Sheatsley and his four children returned yesterday from Paris, Ohio, where funeral services were held for Mrs. Sheatsley a week ago.

Premises of the parsonage were guarded today by members of the football squad of Capital university, where the minister is a lecturer on religious subjects.

The family today remained in seclusion. Food for their Thanksgiving dinner was furnished by ladies of the minister's congregation.

SEARCH IN NEW HAVEN FOR SLAYERS OF CHINESE

New Haven, Nov. 27.—Acting on information that the slayers of two Chinese laundrymen killed in Hartford Wednesday are hiding in this city, detectives began a systematic search of New Haven today. Organized into special squads by Detective Sergeant Edward Welch, the men went first to a Chinese rooming house in George street, where more than 100 Chinese are said to make their home.

An aged Chinaman, after some delay, threw open the door and the Chinese roomers were lined up for examination. All denied any knowledge of the murder or the missing place of the slayers. The detectives then turned their attention to the Chinese laundries and restaurants about the city, but, according to the police, the men sought ere not found. The search continued all day and up until a late hour tonight.

In a Chinese home in the rear of a laundry in Dixwell avenue, the police found a large meat cleaver, such as is used by butchers, under a pillow in one of the beds. Under questioning the proprietor declared that "it kept the evil spirits away."

Fear that the Tong war, which has again broken out in various parts of the country, may spread to this city led police to station plain clothesmen in many Chinese localities throughout the night.

That the Chinese in this city are in a state of high nervous tension as admitted by the detectives. Chinese in every one of the places visited, the police said, exhibited a marked nervousness.

City authorities of Canton, Mo., evolved a new system to clean out sewers When one of the pipes became clogged a snapping turtle was caught and a rope tied to its tail. The turtle was released in the pipe and started for the other end at a lively gait—for a turtle—with 350 feet of rope attached to its tail. He made the first block in forty-five minutes and proceeded on for two more blocks, finally appearing at the other end of the pipe still pulling the rope. The obstruction was removed and the trouble was over.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

New Record This Week

Again come two reminders that Caruso's voice lives eternally. This week two of his few Spanish selections have been issued—La Partida (The Departure) and El Milagro de la Virgen (The Miracle of the Virgin). The former is a brilliant number with full orchestra the other a dreamy, mystical melody from an old opera.

Mme. Olga Samaroff once more displays her superb artistry on two records showing two radically differing moods of Schumann. Soaring (Aufschwung) and Romance require such dynamic power, technical dexterity and the loving legato touch that are Samaroff's in a superlative degree.

From Rudolf Friml's melodious Rose-Marie Olive Kline sings a soprano solo of high and intense beauty. Indian Love Call, with its long phrases, its soaring high notes and its flowing melody, is particularly adapted to Miss Kline's smooth soprano. Lambert Murphy sings the title number, Rose-Marie, a tenor number gracious and graceful in its dance rhythm, a very definite foxtrot cadence.

Homer A. Rodeheaver sings two characteristically American gospel hymns. Trusting Jesus, That is All is a Sankey tune, while the second is equally of the evangelical type. Christ is All, both extremely simple, sung with the full orchestra.

Billy Murray and Ed Smalle put on some more of their artistic tomfoolery this week. How Do You Do and Oh You, Can't Fool an Old Horse-Fly begin nowhere, but apparently start in the middle of things.

How they sgund wedding bells in the lands of the Northern Star is demonstrated on two interesting records by International Concert Orchestra this week. Swedish Wedding March and Norwegian Bridal Procession, the latter by Grieg, are familiar in their quaint and vigorous measures —something off the beaten track.

The tone colors of the Whiteman orchestra bring out all the charm in a wonderful waltz this week — All Alone. I Wonder What's Become of Sally by the Troubadours is a clever, fantasy on Sally in Our Alley.

Art Landry and His Orchestra play two chuckle-head fox trots with some strange instrumental blends. Lazy Blues, technically a "shimmy" foxtrot, is strongly Afric, while I'll Get You is surely aptly named.

Too Tired, a fox-trot by Jan Garber and His Orchestra is a misnomer, while Dear One is soft, smooth and luxuriously melodious.

"A Sainted Devil," New Valentine Production for Paramount, Coming to the Broadway.

"A Sainted Devil," a Joseph Henabery Production for Paramount, starring Rudolph Valentino, will be the feature at the Broadway theatre next Sunday for a run of four days. The story is an adaptation by Forrest Halsey of the popular magazine serial, "Rope's End," by Rex Beach. Nita Naldi, Helen D'Algy, Louise Lagrange, Dagmar Gowowsky, Raphael Bongini, George Siegman and Jean De Val have prominent supporting roles.

The story is one of a handsome young South American of wealthy parents whose bride is stolen from him on his wedding day, Don Alonzo (Valentino) swears revenge on the bandits.

After a two year search Don Alonzo frequents a dive in Buenos Aires where he is known as "the mysterious stranger!" He cares for no one —just seeking one man and waiting and hoping for some word from his bride.

And at last the culprit does turn up! There's enough fast-moving action in these scenes for a dozen pictures. You've seen Rudy handle the rapier in "Beaucaire" now see him as a past-master in the gentle art of dirk, reeking his vengence on anyone who dares to oppose him.

Gorgeous gowns and beautiful sets? You said it! No Valentino picture would be complete without them. And Rudy does the Argentine Tango in "A Sainted Devil." That ought to be enough for anyone.

The programme today consists of five fine acts of B. F. Keith vaudeville and a fine picture with Elaine Hammerstein in The Foolish Virgin. We advise you to see this show and go home woth that satisfied expression.

At the Bread

For his work in making America, which will be shown at the Breed theater today and tomorrow D. W. Griffith has been made an honorary member of the Minute Men of Lexington, the oldest military organization in this country.

At the first showing of the film in Boston, the Minute Men were present to weigh the historical accuracy and dramatic truth of the pictured event.

When convinced of the faithfulness and appeal of the scenes at the Common when 77 Americans met 800 British regulars, the Minute Men voted the honorary membership.

The famous bronze button of membership, worn only by direct descendants of the men who fought in the battle, was presented by Capt. E. F Breed of Lexington.

In his presentation, Capt. Breed said: "With your film, America, you have done the impossible. Mr. Griffith in adding greater lustre to the memory of the Battle of Lexington."

Other pictures on the bill include the second chapter of Days of 49, and the Pathe news.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Four minutes before the close of the final game of the season for Killingly High School's football team, on the Quinebaug grounds Thanksgiving morning, the jinx that has beset the eleven all season stepped in and broke the right leg of Quarterback John Crosby just as he caught a forward pass and got under way for a run that might have done his team some good. Lr. F. P. Todd, who had just come upon the field, and Lr. E. F. Perry, who came here with the Putnam High school team, which was playing its old rival, Killingly High, gave the injured player attention and he afterwards was lifted into an automobile and taken to the Day Kimball hospital, at Putnam, for an X-ray and such other attention as his injury might require.

Observers of the accident are inclined to believe that Crosby's injury was as much due to his having twisted his lef in the base path on the old baseball field as he swung about after catching a forward pass from Havelas as to being tackled almost as he got under way. The snap of the leg as it broke under the strain to which was subjected took all the joy out of the game for the spectators. At the time Putnam High was leading 6 to 0, and that was the final score, though the game was played out after the injured player had been removed from the field.

The 1924 football season of Killingly High appears to be a total loss, insofar as a chance to cheer a victorious team was afforded its suporters. It lost every scheduled contest in which it took part and was so unfortunate as to have an accident of seriousness mar the closing contest of the season with the school team that for many years has been its greatest athletic rival.

A large crowd saw the Thanksgiving morning game. A collection taken up among the fans on the ground following the accident to Quarterback Crosby netted $61, which will be presented to him as a testimonial of what supporters of the team feel is the due of all players who risk much for the prestige of the team they attend.

"I shall not vote for Hiram Bingham for United States senator," former Governor Everett J. Lake is quoted as saying. Ho-hum! Let's see what this is all about! Hamilton Holt the democratic candidate lives in Woodstock, Everett Lake formerly lived in Woodstock. A notable claim in either case. Now Woodstock stands by its favorite sons and they stand by each other. Everyone Knows that. Hence Mr. Lake is for Mr. Holt. What could be more altrustic?

Whatever may have been on the Thanksgiving menu of sundry millions of the population of these United States, be it known to all mankind that 18 inmates of the Killingly town farm were sitting pretty on Thanksgiving day as to the holiday feast. Turkey was the base around which a grand Thanksgiving dinner was prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Bassett, respectively superintendent and matron at the farm. Full justice was done at the festive board and it may be said that the true spirit of the day was as much in evidence as at many holiday banquets.

About every good thing to eat that is usually associated with a Thanksgiving dinner was provided for the men and women who happen to be charges of the town—and plenty of it. Killingly, as a town, will find satisfaction in knowing that score of aged people, who by reason of circumstances may be dependent upon it, were made much of by its representatives on the holiday. There is satisfaction in contemplation of this that everyone can enjoy.

At the county jail in Brooklyn a holiday dinner also was served for the inmates. Nothing of the gray and gold that marked Thanksgiving weather out of doors entered into the institution where so many spend the holiday, unless a bit of the gold strayed through as the spirit of the holiday touched those who were eiped by the county to a bountiful dinner served in warm and otherwise comfortable surroundings.

There was little doing in Danielson Thursday to mark Thanksgiving as an unusual holiday. The calm of a Sabbath afternoon was everywhere in evidence throughout the business section during and after the dinner hour, for be it known Danielson continues to eat its dinners in the daytime, regardless of the fact that talk about dinner in some groups and classes is not even lively until around 8 p. m.

Thursday was such a Thanksgiving day as one might picture out of the colonial past. It was a day of reunions, fine feasts and happy gatherings at home. It was just such a day as tempts one to sit about after the big dinner and enjoy the happiness of the family circle and the comforts of the ingle nook. If one went about town one would be convinced that thousands were doing just that. The people were at home. They were happy there. And life would be very wonderful if it were always like Thanksgiving with such exceptions noted as must always be allowed, though they may be minor.

Something was said in this column on a recent day relative to wild turkey hunts in this territory. It was mentioned that the sport had been a thing of the past for well over a century. In view of this, it is of interest to note that there was a brief revival of the sport here Thanksgiving morning. A big gobbler, come into possession, alive, of a resident on Carter street, made up his mind during the early forenoon that he was taking a long chance by not making a break for liberty. The hours were slicing toward dinner time. A certain sort of courage is born of desperation. Turkey Gobbler may have been surcharged with this, for he crashed the gate to his temporary pen and was off to freedom on a high, forward pass issued by himself in his own interest. And then came turmoil. A neighborhood was aroused. A turkey hunt was on! Scores of men, women and children swarmed through the thickly populated section. The turkey appears to have erred in not having kept going once he was free. There is pheasant country half a mile to the east of where he alighted and tried to hide up, but he didn't do it. Eventually sharp eyes sought out his hiding place and someone flopped on him for first and last down. It appears the rules are a big different than in football. Now the turkey is cooped up again. He had his chance and didn't make good, like millions of mortals, though they may escape being eaten by the survivors of their race.

Here is something for an economist to puzzle over. Prior to the advent of prohibition the Windham county jail at Brooklyn was a profit producer—made a snug sum of money over and above its operating expenses every year—and the matter was chronicled from one of the east to the other. It was something to talk about, sure enough, for most institutions of the kind in those days were a liability rather than an asset to the counties that maintained them.

Things have changed. The jail now loses money each year. In the report of the county commissioners just issued the loss for the last fiscal year is shown to have been $1,900.

On the other hand, the town court of Killingly and the city court of Putnam were liabilities before prohibition. Now they pay their way each year and net a surplus to the communities they serve. They have entered the realm of money-making assets.

These facts furnish food for thought. One will recall of course, that in the old days the jail's chance of making a profit were largely predicated on the earnings of prisoners held there. This opportunity for revenue is not so great just now for the very good reason that the number of prisoners usually is materially smaller than in those money-making years. On the contrary, the local courts are hauling in a fat revenue from time to time from violators of the liquor laws. Some times these violators go to jail and some times they do not, but in about every case they pay a heavy assessment in cash for their infringement of the law. It is from them that the bulk of the town court money is derived. In a word it so happens that the court gets them first.

While no figures of an exact nature are yet available, it has been estimated that the Christmas and Savings club releases to be made here within a few days will probably amount to as much as $75,000.

Although organized but six months, a high degree of efficiency has been attained. On a recent visit of inspection by Col. H. P. Bissell, U. S. P. and D. The officers did not give any expression of their views; that will come later in written form; but the members of the company are not apprehensive as to the report.

The Moosup fire department answered the fire call and did splendid work in saving the homestead property. The loss is partly covered by insurance. Mr. Tyler stated tonight that he would rebuild as soon as possible.

The police are holding Edward Cownes, of Stamford, said to have come here from New York recently, and who is alleged to have done the shooting. The shooting is said to have resulted from an argument over a game of cards in a pool room here. Redd was seen running from the building and five shots were said to have been fired at him. One bullet lodged in the back and he fell to the street, dying about an hour later.

Hearing that his brother had been shot and being told that "High Pocket" knew something about it, he started out after the latter. Camden Man's Amazing Message to Rheumatics

After Suffering Intense Agony for Many Years—He Wants to Tell Others.

Dr. Brigadell: I simply had to write and tell you what your wonderful Camphorole has done for me. For many years I suffered the tortures of Rheumatism as only those who have it know. At the same time I had a terrible itch and, covered with sores, the sharp pains were so severe, I could not sleep. Had to get up and rub and scratch. It almost drove me crazy. I tried doctor after doctor and all kinds of medicine I was told to take, which only left me worse. I could not bend my knees. I am a steamfitter by trade and had to give up my work. Seeing your advertisement in a paper, I thought I would take another chance and told my daughter to get me a package of Camphorole. You can imagine my surprise after using Camphorole, I started to get better right away. After using two jars of Camphorole I am well and happy and have gone back to work. I shall never forget the day I took a chance on Camphorole. After all the years I suffered, it feels good to be well again. Robert W. Teesdale, 1917 High St., Camden, N. J.

KEEPING THE FAITH.

Something more than just the mere fact that one more battleship has been scrapped, that certain data in gun fire and on armor resistance has been secured like in the sinking of the uncompleted battleship Washington off the Virginia capes. It is an earnest that the United States is keeping the faith with powers that joined with her in an effort to stop the building of a certain class of naval vessels, all this as a move towards world peace and national economy. By the terms of the naval limitation pact the Washington was to have been completely destroyed by the middle of February, 1925, so that we have anticipated the time by three months.

In due course of time the navy department will probably issue formal reports that will throw light on how the Washington was sunk, which will be of interest to navy authorities, but of little importance to the average layman. At the present time there is only confusion from the newspaper and navy department reports as to whether gunfire or air attack were the decisive destructive agents. Critics are asking why apparently so little attention was given to air attacks when it is this branch branch of the offensive that is expected to play so important a part if war should come again. It must be left for time to clear all this up. But there remains to those who steam up or down the Atlantic coast, as they pass over the spot where the Washington disappeared from human view, to remember that she lies at the bottom of the sea, not as battered hulk, but as a symbol that America is keeping the faith with sister nations in the pledge and effort to bring the world nearer to a different conception of maintaining peace on earth.

THE WORKING WOMAN.

Only a few years ago in the United States the words "working woman" had a meaning quite different from what is attached to them today. They marked a social distinction then; now they mark a social and economic change. The "working woman" of 1924 means a multitude who forty years ago had not even conceived that women could earn their living outside of certain almost conventional activities.

For a generation accustomed as a matter of course to women stenographers, secretaries, managers, treasurers, lawyers, doctors and fifty things besides, it is almost impossible to understand how women's lives were cramped little more than a generation ago. They are much less so now, but that does not alter the fact that "the working woman" needs a degree of shelter of which the man has no need. We can use as many fine words as we like and take any amount of rainbow for granted; but the very work which makes a woman economically independent may make her at least approach dependence on conditions that should never touch her. It is well enough to say that this working woman earns enough for her lodging or housing, but much depends on the place where she must lodge, on the way it is conducted, on those who shall be around her when at the day's close she seeks that which is perforce "home" for her.

This thought is apparent in the gift lately made to the Morgan Memorial in Boston by Mrs. E. A. Henry of Lincoln, N. H., "for a dormitory for working women and apartment house for married couples in Boston" in order that something might be done to "make life easier and happier for women who have to struggle for a living." Handsome as the gift is, its greater importance really lies in making us remember that the problem of the working woman is quite different from that of the man. Let us as well remember that the social protecting and upholding of the woman is a political duty that no society can afford to neglect or injure, so long as decency is regarded as a necessary element in the strength of the state.

MONEY TO LOAN.

For the third time within a year a foreign loan of $100,000,000 or more has been provided in the United States. Japan obtained $150,000,000 last February, Germany got $110,000,000 in October and just now has come the formal announcement that France had arranged for an advance of $100,000,000, which was oversubscribed as soon as it was offered here. While popular attention has been riveted on these negotiations there have been many smaller financial transactions with overseas countries, in which governments have not been concerned. The result is a total in foreign loans thus far in 1924 of $1,136,506,100. America has become a participant in world finance as never before.

Should the United States continue in this prominent financial role, the problem of the great amount of surplus gold now on hand will be much less difficult of solution. Of the $8,000,000,000 of the metal in existence, America has about 54 per cent. So great is the stock that the margin of safety in the way of reserve to redeem paper currency is twice the requirement of the federal reserve act. Rather than a cause for congratulation, the excess has been a continuing source of worry to well-informed government officials, financiers and business men. If the surplus were not kept out of use in domestic affairs, a period of dangerous inflation was regarded as unavoidable. But idle gold meant idle capital, bringing in no interest and thus doing nothing to aid industry, commerce and the recovery of nations demoralized by war.

As the greatest reservoir of capital in the world, the United States is bound to have a prominent part in the international rebuilding process. A wise meeting of the responsibility means a restored circle of trade, the breaking of which accounts for much of the industrial and agricultural difficulty experienced in this country in recent years.

AN APPROPRIATION SESSION.

The final session of the Sixty-eighth congress will convene Monday to consider a program of legislation that will consist largely of the budget and matters pertaining to federal expenditures. If the session follows the usual custom, it will spend two or three weeks marking time, and then adjourn over the Christmas season. This will leave two months in which to consider such matters as the president may recommend in his message, the members may have in mind, and the army of special interest representatives may establish a case for.

For three months the president has been giving a considerable part of his time to conferences with Herbert M. Lord, director of the budget, a man who seems to have been selected for his ability to say "no" to department heads and bureau chiefs who declare that they must have as much or more money than before. When the director goes to the president with a report on the progress of the budget, he meets a sympathetic listener. It is even suspected that when the president and his budget director get together over some of the items that have been pared to what department heads regarded as the absolute minimum, they take a peculiar satisfaction in establishing a lower absolute minimum.

Forecasts of the budget agree that it will include no "pork barrel" item, hence the danger that the congress, believing that it has nothing more to lose, will set out to overturn the budget and embark upon a spending spree. This would involve an alliance in which repudiated progressives, hungry democrats and a few temperamental republicans would trade votes for what they could get. It is the kind of thing congress has done with great skill, and may try to do again.

The president has a strong budget defense in the fact that the congress is not likely to pass appropriations over his veto, hence he can resist throughout the session, and then call a special session as soon as he is inaugurated, and, with a clear majority in both houses, press the administration fiscal program to speedy adoption. This, however, is an expedient which neither the president nor the people like to consider. Every man seems to agree that if the present session disposes of the administration appropriation measures and finds a little time for urgent general measures, it will serve the country well and there will be no need for a spring session. Certainly the president's budget recommendations are likely to prove popular, for they will involve another considerable saving in taxes. An appropriation session may, it appears, be converted into a bargaining session, with the "pork barrel" crowd beaten at every turn.

"That sister of mine expected to come with me to see you today," explained Mrs. Simmons' niece. "But she went away instead, and told me to give you her love."

"I am sorry not to see Molly," said Mrs. Simmons. "But I am glad she is going to have a good time somewhere."

"I suppose she is," said her niece grudgingly. "Everybody takes it for granted that you are going to have a good time when you go anywhere, and when you come back you keep quiet about the mosquitoes and the rain and tell only the nice things, so everybody envies you. I'm worried about Molly's going alone anywhere, however."

"How foolish of you!" cried Mrs. Simmons, stirring her lemonade vigorously. "Molly has traveled alone a great deal, and anyhow, she's only three years younger than you are. I think her perfectly able to take care of herself."

"So does mother," sighed her niece. "But mother hasn't had to meet her down at the station as often as George and I have. One time, I remember, she was so busy visiting with an old woman on the Pullman that George and I had to walk the whole length of the train looking for her, and when we discovered her the men were coming in with buckets to clean the car."

"Well, the cleaners had no idea of kidnaping her," laughed Mrs. Simmons. "And she was having a good time, no doubt."

"Oh, I know she enjoyed it," said her niece patiently. "But it isn't really nice to be so democratic as all that. Why once she was visiting with a perfectly strange policeman on a street car when I happened to get on and see her. She said the policeman was standing up and when she gave up her seat to an old woman he spoke to her about it, and they got to talking. She couldn't see why on earth I objected to her speaking to perfect strangers. Another time George and I met her she had a foreign woman and her four children in town, and she wouldn't let them go until she had seen them meet their friends. All the way up in the car she was telling us things about the foreign woman's nationality that she'd just learned and she even taught Junior a song that one of the children had recited to her."

"It must have been an interesting experience," said Mrs. Simmons complacently. "I'll get her to tell me about it when she comes back."

"Don't!" cried her niece. "It'll just encourage her in her habit of talking to everybody on earth. I have hoped that she'd sooner or later have an experience that would wake her up to the foolishness of talking with strangers, but she never learns. Her latest exploit was the worst of all, however, and ought to have taught her something."

"Gracious!" cried Mrs. Simmons. "What on earth happened?"

"Well, there was a woman and her son on the same Pullman she was on coming from Glacier park last month," her niece went on. "And the woman was quite upset to find she couldn't get a drawing room, but had to take a common berth. Molly heard all the talk about it and learned that the son had a berth in another car and the mother was timid about staying alone.

"So what did Molly do but exchange berths with the son and let him sleep opposite his mother, though Molly didn't get as nice a car by the transaction. The young man, finding it wasn't as pleasant a car, insisted that she come into their car or go with them to the observation car during the day. Of course Molly was soon visiting with them as if she'd known them all her life the way she does.

"And dear me!" exclaimed Mrs. Simmons. "What on earth did she do?"

"If it had been anybody else but Molly," declared Mrs. Simmons' niece, with a sigh, "she would never have seen that bag again and she would have learned a much-needed lesson. But things don't happen like that to Molly. No, for the bag was returned to her last week by a messenger who brought her a long letter from the lady inviting her to lunch with them at one of the best hotels downtown. She met the lady's daughters, too, and the whole tribe turned out to be regular storybook millionaires. They invited Molly to go with them on a cruise in their yacht and that's where she is now. I'm afraid she'll never learn that lesson at this rate!"—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

John Van A. MacMurray, who has been appointed an Assistant Secretary of the department of state at Washington, in succession to the late Alvey A. Adee, is regarded as eminently fitted for the duties of his new post both by his natural talents and past experience. A native of Schenectady, N. Y., who later became a resident of Princeton, N. J., he decided upon a diplomatic career after completing his studies at Princeton and Columbia universities. His first position in the service was as secretary of legation at Bangkok. Later he filled similar posts in the capitals of Greece, Montenegro, and Russia, and in Pekins and Tokio. His experiences in the two cities last named resulted in his being called to Washington some years ago to serve as head of the Far Eastern Division of the Department of State.

Independence and Achievement

July 4, 1776, not only was the great decisive day in the history of our country, but it marked the crowning effort of men of achievement who brought the Declaration of Independence into being.

John Adams, who was largely responsible for the movement that brought about the declaration, was born of a line of farmers, was graduated from Harvard, taught school and read theory until he saw his unfitness for it, then began the study of law.

Richard Henry Lee, who had moved in congress for the adoption of a declaration, was born in Startford, Va., went to England, then a voyage of several weeks, for his education but took u pthe cause of liberty upon his return.

And the committee that drafted the document was composed of John Adams and the following:

Benjamin Franklin, who was the fifteenth child born of a Boston tallow-candler and after landing in Philadelphia a runaway apprentice penniless, established his own printery at 23.

Roger Sherman, who was apprenticed to a shoemaker, then left home to enter business, and studied law, politics and mathematics without a teacher.

Robert Livingstone, who was graduated from King's college, then was a partner of John Jay and later lost his post as recorder of New York because of his revolutionary spirit.

The first to sign the document was John Hancock, who after his graduation from Harvard, became a clerk, then inherited riches, suffered indignities from the British and following his stirring speech over the victims of the Boston Massacre, became a hunted man.

Next to affix his signature was Samuel Adams, born to riches only to lose all in unfortunate business deals, then was attacked for his unbusinesslike methods as tax collector of Boston, but became a respected leader in the agitation against the Stamp Act, and also was hunted by the British.

And the others who signed included noted men who had achieved and were willing to sacrifice and fight for the cause of freedom.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

AUCH

Auch is erecting a statue to its most famous countryman, D'Artagnan. A swashbuckling statue it will be with plumed hat, rapier at belt, and boots like bold Puss wore in the fairy story. Thus Auch will have such a courageous figure as Champlain's on Dufferin Terrace, Que, or Crevalier Maisonneuve's, before Notre Dame in Montreal.

Auch is capital of Gascony—capital of courage too. For that variety of courage known as dashing. Gascony has grown so famous that it imbeds itself in our language with the word "gasconade." The statue to D'Artagnan as a memorial to Gascony's greatest quality, is in part a tribute to those other noted sons of the southern French province, Cyrano de Bergerac, and Marshals Joffre and Foch.

"Although every French schoolboy knows where Gascony is just as an American schoolboy knows where America's South is, Gascony, like our South, seldom appears as a map label," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

"This is for the best. A land of courage should not be marked off with boundary posts. Like the Kingdom of King Arthur, Gascony never knew the surveyor's rod. When southern France finally crystallized out into definite political units, Gascony was left to name a point of view instead of a place. As near as any one would wish to fix it, Gascony includes the 'departments' of Gers and parts of Hautes-Pyranees, Haute-Garonne, Landes and Lot-et-Garonne. French departments are not so important as American states but they are more important than American counties. Auch is the 'county seat' of Gers, but is also, despite its scanty population, the residence of the archbishop whose territory is much larger than Gers. The archbishopric coincides more nearly with the romantically indefinite borders of old Gascony, midway between the Atlantic and Mediterranean. Upon the archbishopric rests Auch's claim as capital of Gascony.

"D'Artagnan, as everyone knows, was Captain-Lieutenant of the king's musketeers. Dumas wove his adventures with a warp of actual facts from a story by a comparative unknown, Courtils de Sandras. This writer compiled the biography of a Count of Artagnan, scion of house of Fezensac, born near Aignan, not more than 15 miles from Auch. Cyrano de Bergerac, another Captain of the guards and hero of Edmond Rostand's play, was also a flesh and blood gallant. The town of Bergerac still grows sun-sweetened grapes beside the Dordogne.

"Provinces in France are noted for the special quality of manhood and womanhood they feed into Paris, just as they are noted for the individuality of their wines. Celtic Brittany is famed for the depth of its religious thought, Renan and many religious writers coming from its soil. Normandy, with its Norse stock, has the flavor of the north and its contribution to Paris are thrifty folk and progressive, solid leaders. The Auvergne central highlands' stock is made the butt of Parisian jokes on slow thinking people. Savoyard is said to monopolize the supply of chimney-sweeps and hurdy gurdies. Gascony once kept the king's guards recruited. Twentieth century Paris, however, has no job for D'Artagnan and his swaggering swordsmen, but it has made good use of Foch and Joffre. The surplus Gascon stock today is said to find its way into politics, where the lyrics of Cyrano and the fine phrases of D'Artagnan are redistilled into fiery speeches poured into the chamber of deputies.

"'Gascon' is believed to come indirectly from Basque, the name of that remnant Pyranees tribe who still furnish a question mark for students of race origins. The 'G' was once 'V' which, according to earlier pronunciation, must have given 'Wasconia.' The Basques, who are said to resemble strangely the ancient Egyptians with their broad shoulders, slim waists, wide foreheads and pointed chins, have left their mark on the Gascons. Blood of Romans, Visigoths and Iberians also flows in Gascon veins, making them predominantly a Mediterranean people in contrast to natives of northern France who spring from Normans, Gauls and Franks. Now and then in Auch or Tarbes one sees women and men thin-faced, with olive skin and intensively black hair and eyes, a fleeting memory of the Moorish invasion which reached high tide in Gascony."

Mrs. Lillian O'Donnell was divorced in Los Angeles from Thomas A. O'Donnell, president of the American Petroleum Institute. She charged desertion. A property agreement in which O'Donnell settled $750,000 in cash and securities on his wife was approved by the court.

Coffee Gets a Hard Knock.

Coffee gets many blames for physical ills. A youngster's auntie had the headache and she said in the presence of her little nephew that she attributed it to the coffee she had taken at dinner.

The next evening in his home this same boy became aroused at something his brother had done at the table, and he cracked him over the head with a knife handle.

Immediately his mother took him in hand for chastisement, and when alone she said: "Bobby, why in the world did you strike brother?"

"Well, mother, I think it was the coffee we had tonight," he said.

Mother Understood

She is a wonderful little mother, lovable, sweet and decidedly unsophisticated and always concerned over the welfare of her big boy, whose late hours had worried her not a little.

"What time did you get in last night?" she inquired at the breakfast table.

"This morning, you mean, mother It was 12.15."

"And where were you, might I ask?"

"Went to a dance and had a little dinner afterward. Cover charge and all didn't make it very costly."

She had heard of cover charges at such affairs but had never quite understood. She studied a moment and then:

"Rather expensive, I should think. It seems to me that you'd get tired of paying for table covers."

LOCAL MEN AID CAMPAIGN FOR SEMINARY

Local ministers of various denominations are active in the nationwide movement to raise $4,000,000 for Union Theological Seminary in the city of New York. The seminary is the largest graduate school of theology in the country, and it represents an inter-denominational group such as exists nowhere else in America. Representatives of five denominations are included in the board of directors, seven in the faculty and 39 in the student body. Among the 2,400 alumni are ministers and missionaries in 48 denominations.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has given $1,083,333 to the fund, and another friend has given $1,250,000, contingent upon the entire $4,000,000 being raised. It will provide added buildings and endowment and houses containing apartments for returned missionaries who wish to study in the seminary.

Norwich alumni of Union Seminary active in the campaign include Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, Frank Palmer, Rev. Benjamin Swift.

TO OBSERVE GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY, DEC. 7

More than 3,000,000 Americans will observe Golden Rule Sunday, Dec. 7, to aid the orphans in Bible lands. President Coolidge, Secretary Hughes, the state governors, members of the diplomatic corps here and heads of twenty-two foreign governments have endorsed the plan.

The Norwich Near East Relief committee are planning to ask the people of Norwich both within and without the churches and Sunday schools, to fall in with this concerted world effort to emphasize the Golden Rule and to work out its principle. It is proposed that all persons partake of a simple Sunday dinner and make such gifts on Dec. 7 to these destitute children of the Near East as one would like to have made to oneself if conditions were reversed.

Because Norwich has such big velvet mills there is interest in the fashion note that there is a fair demand from retailers for chiffon velvets. Many of the stores are making a pre-holiday feature of sales of the velvets. Black continues a leading shade, with henna and the wood browns also in demand.

A Packard coupe owned by Mrs. James L. Crawford of Main street, this city, and driven by her son, James Crawford, shot off the New London-Hartford turnpike, at the "Ten Corners" just this side of Hartford, about 12.30 o'clock Thursday morning. The occupants of the car were thrown from the machine and one of the passengers, Miss Alice Lyons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah J. Lyons of No. 133 Montauk avenue, New London, was quite badly injured. She is a patient at St. Francis hospital, Hartford.

In the car were Mr. Crawford, William Riordan of this city, Miss Lyons and Miss Laura Bottenelli, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Battista Bottenelli, of No. 22 Reed street, New London. Mr. Crawford was quite badly shaken up and suffered from cuts. After being treated in Hartford he was able to return to his home in this city. Mr. Riordan escaped injury.

Miss Lyons is suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, but Miss Bottinelli received only contusions and bruises. The male occupants of the machine escaped injury except for slight bruises, although the car was wrecked. At the hospital late Thursday afternoon it was stated that there was a slight improvement in the condition of Miss Lyon.

Misses Lyons and Bottinelli and their companions are understood to have left New London early in the evening, going to Hartford and attending a dance. They left Hartford about midnight on the trip home and when the "Ten Curves," was reached, the machine left the highway and struck a huge stone, causing it to be wrecked and hurling its occupants to the highway. A passing automobile was stopped and all were rushed to St. Francis' hospital. The hospital authorities communicated with the New London police and the father of Miss Lyons being notified, he started at once for Hartford.

At an early hour this (Friday) morning Miss Lyons was still in an unconscious condition at the hospital. The hospital reported that she is suffering from a fractured skull.

RELEASED UNDER BONDS OF $1,000 EACH

Hartford, Nov. 27.—Pending the recovery of Miss Alice Lyons, 18, of New London, who was seriously injured early this morning in an automobile accident at the Ten Curves on the New London road at Glastonbury, James A. Crawford, 19, and William Reardon, 24, both of Norwich, are being held under $1,000 bonds each.

Investigation by the state police disclosed that the young people were coming from a party in Crawford's car and that he lost control of it, the car striking a large rock on the side of the road.

They were taken before Justice of the Peace L. Milton Sweet who released them on bonds furnished by Mrs. Mary Crawford, the mother of young Crawford, who came here from Norwich after being informed of the accident. Miss Elizabeth Lyons, another daughter, is in training as a nurse at the hospital. Miss Lyons' conditions is said to be serious.

THANKSGIVING FIRES LIGHT UP NORWICH HILLSIDES

Thanksgiving was celebrated in the usual manner in Norwich Thursday, services being held at various churches in the city during the morning, the tendency being to unite for worship. Services were also held during the afternoon and evening at the churches and the congregations were of large size.

In the many homes of the city relatives and friends came to spend the holidays and bountiful repasts were served to many family parties.

In the evening the time honored barrel burnings took place, beacons having been built on the hills surrounding the city. The youth of the city had been busy for weeks past preparing for the eventful day of the year, as many local residents missing ashbarrels and boxes can testify and there was no lack of supplies for the day and night fires. Huge strings of barrels were burned by many "gangs" during the evening, the brilliant spectacles drawing hundreds from their homes and it was not until late at night that the last string had been touched off.

As usual the barrel burning was held at the Norwich State Hospital and attracted a large number of people. The hospital authorities have instituted the annual barrel burning there and make it a big Thanksgiving event. For the past few days men at the hospital had been engaged stacking the boxes and barrels for the huge bonfire and when it was touched off Thursday night the light from the flames could be seen for miles around.

HEARD RADIO MUSIC FROM ACROSS ATLANTIC

Radio waves from the other side of the Atlantic came in on the receiving set of Alex Finlayson, Thursday night, at his home, 131 McKinley avenue. Very clearly he heard a piano solo from station 2LO London and two tenor solos from a station in Germany but he could not get the name of the German station. Two nights ago Mr. Finlayson heard from a station at Aberdeen, Scotland.

Barrels Burned at Jail Hill.

The annual barrel burning on Jail Hill Thursday night drew many spectators over 100 being present. The barrels, over 175 in number, were strung on poles in the Cassidy lot on Cedar street.

UNION THANKSGIVING NIGHT SERVICE AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

What's Right With America was the subject chosen by James Gordon Gilkey, D. D., of the Springfield Congregational church for the Thanksgiving service at the Central Baptist church Sunday evening, Protestant churches of the city joining in the service.

We hear a lot about what is wrong with America, said Dr. Gilkey and only recently a British subject wrote a book on this subject calling America everything bad that he could think of, evidently being glad that he did not have to live in such a terrible country as our country must be in his mind. This man is not alone in this belief for on every side are faddists and old people who are always saying that America is not as good as it used to be.

What right have they to draw comparisons between our country and the older countries of Europe? Let me tell you that we have many reasons to be proud of our country and I will tell three reasons tonight.

In the first place America gave in the past and still gives, extraordinary advantages to the ordinary people. In the past the great privileges of life were handed out to a chosen few, thought entitled to them because of education, birth or wealth but here in America the best we have is open to anyone. We do not see the personal liberty this country extends. The foreigner who comes to this land does see this and appreciates it, they have known class distinction of old countries strictly enforced. This is something to be proud of.

America gives all sorts of people the comforts and conveniences of modern invention and science. In Chicago alone there are more telephones than in all France. In some office buildings in New York there are more telephones than in Greece and during the past few months more new phones have been installed in America than there are phones in all England. An Armenian who had lived here and then returned home writes back advising his countrymen to stay in America, the land of plenty and the best. His letter is only one of many which tell of the opportunities we give each year to the foreigners who come to our shores and find for the first time in their lives the open road to their hearts desire.

A Hungarian boy, who would never have been heard of had he stayed in his native land came to America about 30 years ago, worked his way up and is now partner in a leading New York law firm. This is one example of the great opportunities America gives poor boys that come here determined to make good. Your America and mine made this possible. It's a country to be proud of.

The second thing is that the youth of America today are greatly interested and influenced by the moral and religious past of our country. A great writer says that Americans are more simple, more devout and purer in thought than the people of Europe. Nowhere in the world is a young girl safer than with an American young man. I'll admit there are a lot of poor specimens of young men and a lot of cheap girls, many coming from good families, where God knows they should have had a better training. Yet you will find 95 per cent. of the young people are clean and determined to make good in life. Fathers and sons, all graduates of a leading Connecticut University, held a banquet recently and figures showed that the sons were better physically than their parents, made better speakers and that arrests for intoxication since prohibition had fallen off over 90 per cent. from the figures of those so-called good old days.

Speaking of religion in America we admit there are lots of people who never go to church and evidently have no religion, but, when these same people meet with the realities of life they come back to the church and the religion of their ancestors. Religion has not lost its ancient challenge to people of all faiths. This was demonstrated in the world war when over 90 per cent. of the boys had Bibles, prayer books or a crucifix on their person and kept these long after all other "extras" had been abandoned. I tell you the heart of America is still clean.

In the last place the force for progress in America is still tremendously strong. You older people—compare the America of today with that of 1880 and you will admit this fact. In 1844 the country knew of the practice of keeping the insane in poor houses, not caring what befell them. Now we spend thousands of dollars for their comforts. Look to the American homes and compare the advantages of today with those of a few generations back. We are facing a big problem that we all must deal with, we've got to learn to live together and work together.

The other day I saw an emblem burning that means hideous intolerance and I say that if the line of principles of the Ku Klux Klan continue they will split up cities. What will then happen to America? It is best to live as brother and friend. Let us not stress the points of difference but instead let us stress the point of likeness. In a school a few days ago in one room 20 nationalities were represented. These children are growing up with yours and mine; they are the America of tomorrow. We must learn to live together and forget the things that divide. We're all Americans so let us find happiness, do our duty to our country and make the better America of tomorrow. Let us not say "I", let us say "We" as God has asked of us.

The service was opened with a splendid organ recital by Miss Louise Fuller who rendered in masterful manner, most pleasing to her large congregation, Finale from 3rd Symphony, Mendelssohn; Madrigal, Johnson; Laudate Domini, Frysinger; Pastorate, Yon.

Following the reading of the Thanksgiving Day proclamation of President Calvin Coolidge, by His Honor Mayor Milo E. Waters, a praise and song service was lead by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church and prayer was offered by Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church. A pleasing selection by the church choir followed and Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Episcopal church spoke of the work of the Norwich Minister's association. The closing prayer was offered by Rev. G. G. McGee, pastor of Mt. Calvary Baptist church.

MEN'S BIBLE CLASS MEETS AT Y. M. C. A.

Wednesday evening the weekly session of Bible study for men was held at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. with a good group present.

After partaking of supper, the study was taken up. The Scripture used was Luke the twelfth chapter, verses 13 to 28, inclusive, the parable of the rich fool. The topic was covetousness.

Among the points brought out in the very interesting discussion were the following: One of two brothers asked Jesus to intercede with his rich brother that he might give him some of his money, thus indicating his covetousness. Jesus refused to thus intercede, as He doubtless fully understood the spirit of the man, and knew that he coveted his brother's money. This brother was probably of the type that says, "The world owes me a living," while as a matter of fact, the world owes no man a living unless he works for it; too many young men are waiting for something to turn up, but it is necessary to go out and turn things up. After Jesus had publicly rebuked the covetous brother He uttered one of the greatest truths in the Bible, namely; "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things he possesseth; it is not what a man has, but what he is that counts."

Jesus then spoke a parable telling of the rich man who, when his goods increased decided to pull down his barns and build greater barns; thus he demonstrated his coveting spirit; the more he got the more he wanted, like many men of our day; the man in the parable was absolutely blind to the needs of others, and cared for no one save himself; it is a really pitiful sight to see a man who is the slave to money or any other possessions. God called a sudden halt to this man's self satisfaction in the words, "Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee." A man must have a strange feeling of disappointment, when he realizes that God looks upon him as a fool. It would be helpful for every man to try to imagine how God feels about the things he has done in daily life.

If the rich fool had played the man and contributed to the comfort and happiness of others instead of wrapping himself up in himself, he no doubt would have enjoyed a much longer life and its close would have been much more satisfactory. When we think of death in the terms Jesus used in the parable, "Then whose shall these things be?" we will probably lose some of our covetousness but it will likely be too late to repent.

Jesus indicated that to be rich toward God means to be unselfish and to be thoughtful of others. Few men seem to take this parable seriously because to live up to the lesson it teaches means that men must drop their selfishness and spend themselves for those less fortunate than they are. The discussion created a real interest.

ROAST TURKEY DINNERS AT NORWICH INSTITUTIONS

Roast turkey Thanksgiving dinners were served Thursday in the Norwich hospitals, children's homes and institutions. At the W. W. Backus hospital, roast turkey dinners were served to those of the 42 patients who were able to partake.

The cranberry sauce for the Backus hospital Thanksgiving dinner was solicited by the donation committee of which Mrs. E. Large Bliven is chairman, and was contributed by Mrs. F. B. Ricketson, Mrs. F. W. Lester, Mrs. C. E. Carpenter, Mrs. Frank Davis, Mrs. Arthur M. Thompson, Mrs. Clarence Spear, Mrs. Henry Lanz, Mrs. E. W. Perkins and Mrs. Walter F. Lester.

The 34 children and the staff, numbering eight, at the Rock Nook Home, enjoyed the usual roast turkey dinner with all the "fixins" and in addition there were candy and apples for all.

At the New London County Home the special turkey dinner was served about 1 o'clock for the 53 children and the members of the matron's staff. For dessert there was ice cream and cookies furnished by the Taftville Girls' club.

The 160 patients at the Norwich State Tuberculosis Sanatorium in Thamesville also were served roast turkey menus.

At the New London county jail on Cedar street the Thanksgiving menu comprised roast pork, mashed potatoes, onions, mince and squash pie, celery, apples and oranges. There were also smokes for the men. At the present time there are 24 men and one woman serving sentences in the jail. Everything possible was done to make the day a pleasant one for the inmates.

The Norwich State Hospital for the Insane also had a special turkey dinner for the patients and members of the staff.

The special dinners served at all the institutions were largely made possible through gifts and donations from many public spirited men and women of Norwich.

BROADER FAITH REMEDY FOR DOUBTING HEARTS

Trinity Episcopal and Christ Episcopal churches held a united Thanksgiving day service at Trinity church Thursday morning at 10.30 o'clock. The sermon was given by Rev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity church. The text chosen by Rev. Mr. Brown was Psalm 92: 1, It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord; and to sing praises unto Thy name, O Most Highest.

In part Rev. Mr. Brown said: Gratitude depends largely upon the viewpoint. Adversities have a way of magnifying themselves out of all proportions unless we resolutely set ourselves to compare them with our mercies. The trouble lies largely in a lack of perspective. In every true picture there is light and shade, foreground and background. The joys of life do not leave as deep an impression as its sorrows. Joys do not touch so deeply the sources of our nature. They appeal to our lighter thoughts and moods.

Hence our sorrows, especially if they be present sorrows, not only occupy the foreground of our picture of life, but tend to obscure all sense of perspective. They are not estimated in their true proportion. The true remedy for troubled hearts is to get out of their limited sphere and take larger, wider, more comprehensive views both of life and of God's purposes. The true remedy for doubting hearts is a larger and broader faith. We must consider God not merely in His relations to our life, and to this or that particular stage of it, but as the God of all eternity and the God of the whole universe.

As we gather here this morning for this annual service of praise let us, each one of us, dwell in memory and reflection on the blessings and mercies of the year just passed, and thus make his or her individual services of praise and thanksgiving to God for individual blessings. And in addition to our gratitude for individual mercies let us consider and be grateful for God's copious blessings poured out this year on our beloved nation. Let us recall to our minds and hearts the faithfulness and bounteous mercy of God as they go on from year to year, rewarding the industry of the husbandman despite the fact that the husbandman may never think, of acknowledging the all important part that God plays in the harvest.

As we review our year of national history just coming to an end, have we not reason to be thankful that we have been delivered from what threatened to be a great menace to our constitutional rights and liberties. I am not thinking just now of the serious and prolonged business disturbance and depression which surely would have followed the success of the radical party in our recent election. That in itself would probably have been serious enough to have unsettled the whole industrial elements in our country and to have thrown thousands out of employment.

But I am thinking rather of the menace to our constitutional rights and liberties and to the very fundamentals of our principles of government, which are contained in the radical platform and principles, as set forth by their chief advocate.

And, finally as our view back over the past year extends yet more widely we shall find further cause for gratitude in the promised rehabilitation of a great nation in our part in bringing it about and in its probable results in renewing and reinvigorating a world, devastated and thrown into chaos by the great war. With all its faults Germany has been a great nation, has made great contributions to the world of learning and to the arts and sciences. And the signs are not wanting that this great nation has had a change of mind and heart and is determined to rehabilitate herself in the eyes of the world. And the world stands ready to welcome her back into the fellowship of peace and good will.

PENN'S OVERHEAD ATTACK COMPLETELY BEWILDERS HEAVY CORNELL ELEVEN

Philadelphia, Nov. 27.—(By The A. P.)—A dazzling aerial attack that struck with sensational effectiveness gave Pennsylvania a 28 to 0 triumph today over her ancient foe, Cornell. Fifty-six thousand fans, a colorful throng that jammed every corner of Franklin field, saw the Quakers conquer the Ithacans for the first time in four years, finish their first season without a defeat in sixteen years and strengthen their claims to the mythical football championship of the east.

Outrushed by the powerful Red team, which registered seven first downs at straight football to one for the Quakers in a final fight to retrieve lost prestige, Pennsylvania achieved her victory solely through an overhead drive which was supplemented by all-around alertness and brilliant generalship.

Launching their aerial drive with the swiftness of lightning in the second quarter, the Quakers scored two dramatic touchdowns in quick succession on three long forward passes, all engineered with consummated skill by Captain Rea McGraw, of Buffalo, who covered himself with glory in his last game for the Red and Blue.

The first score came on a remarkable 40-yard heave which George Thayer, stellar end, plucked from a circle of would-be tacklers on the Cornell goal line, while the second came a few minutes later when Jess Dugas, speedy halfback, took a short pass over the line from McGraw and dodged 40 yards through the big Red defense to reach the final chalk line.

This sudden shift in a tide which had looked none too promising for Pennsylvania with Cornell showing characteristically formidable driving power, settled the outcome of the game, but the Quakers added a third touchdown for good measure in the third quarter when Douglass again broke into the spotlight, picked a Cornell pass out of the air on his own 40-yard line and raced down the side-lines a distance of 60 yards, crossing the goal line as Whetstone, the last Ithaca defender, missed a desperate headlong dive for a tackle.

Thus was Pennsylvania's triumph gained in a few swift, but nevertheless effective plays in a game otherwise marked by brilliant defense line play on the part of both forward walls, three menacing but futile attempts to score by Cornell, epidemics of blocked punts and fumbles and the fine punting of Al Kruez, Pennsylvania's big fullback, whose left-footed kicks accounted for two points from tries after touchdown and repeatedly moved the Quaker forces out of danger zones.

Except for sporadic gains, Pennsylvania found Cornell's line impregnable, with Captain Henderson and Frank Kearney standing out as the most formidable obstacles, but the Quakers, balked at this means of advance, capitalized the Ithacan's chief weak spot to obtain victorious results.

Twice before this season, against Williams and Dartmouth, Cornell tasted defeat largely through lack of a forward pass defense and today the Ithacans can attribute another setback to this weakness.

Loose handling of the pigskin also figured conspicuously in Cornell's downfall, for the Big Red backs tossed away two of their three chances to score by fumbling. The Ithacans came in striking distance of the Quaker goal in the first period, only to lose the ball on the 16-yard line when Whetstone fumbled and Mattaw recovered for Pennsylvania. Again in the second quarter, Cornell gained the Quaker 15-yard mark when Molinet recovered a blocked punt but this advantage was nullified quickly when the Cayuga halfback fumbled and Papworth recovered for Pennsylvania. Another "break," a kick knocked by Thayer at midfield and recovered by Coleman for Pennsylvania, started the Quakers on the way to their second touchdown.

The third and last Cornell scoring threat came in a final, last-quarter, when a 33-yard pass, Whetstone to Henderson, and several line thrusts by Patterson and Molinet put the ball on the Quaker fifteen-yard line. Here Pennsylvania stiffened, however, and when two forward passes were grounded behind the goal line, Cornell lost the ball on downs.

Pennsylvania's line play, with McGinley, Coleman and Thayer standing out, was only slightly less effective than Cornell's but it was Quaker versatility and alertness that proved deciding factors. In Kruez, the Quakers had a punter of extraordinary ability. In McGraw a past master at forward passing and receiving punts, in Douglass a brilliant broken field runner, in Thayer a "ball Hawk" who recovered two fumbles, blocked three kicks and was down the field under punts like a flash and in McGinley one of the deadliest tacklers on the gridiron.

Statistics of the game show Cornell outrushed her rival, 142 yards to 36, but more vital to the outcome are the facts that Pennsylvania completed six out of ten passes and intercepted one Cornell aerial for gains of more than 150 yards, while the Ithacans completed only two out of nine for gains of 38 yards. The line up and summary:

PITT OUTPLAYS PENN. STATE ON SLIPPERY FIELD

Pittsburgh, Nov. 27.—A roaring lion met a snarling panther on Forbes field today and, despite the fact that the king of beasts drew first blood, the University of Pittsburgh football elevens sent Penn State, their old rivals, home carrying the small end of a 24 to 3 score.

At times it seemed to the thorng of spectators that packed the field that Pitt was getting the breaks of the game, but as the contest wore on it was plain that the Panthers had come out of his secret training place in the woods in perfect fighting condition and was outplaying the lion that had been picked by most experts to win the contest.

Penn State missed virtually its only chance to put over a touchdown in the first period when Pitt had the ball on their own 30-yard line. Johnson, Pitt's center, made a wild pass and the ball landed on Pitt's one-yard line but was recovered by Pitt. State was unable to hold and the ball was on Pitt's 20-yard line before they recovered it and prevost's toe came to the rescue for a field goal and the only tally they could score.

Pitt caught its stride in the second period when Gustafson slidover the slippery field to within one yard of State's goal line and then added the necessary punch to a line buck to carry the ball over. In the third period Gustafson again went over the line after a series of plunges and end runs and the second touchdown in that quarter was the outcome of a perfectly executed pass from Brown to Harding. Platt's fourth and last touchdown came in the last quarter when McCutcheon took the ball around right end. Gwosden, who was sent in for kifer to do the kicking in all four attempts to kick goal and made to fizzle boot s at the ball for field goals.

The field was slippery after a slight rain and fumbles by both teams were numerous.

FRENCH TENNIS TITLE OPEN TO WORLD PLAYERS

Paris, Nov. 27.—The French tennis championship of 1925 will be open to all tennis players in the world, like the American and English championships, the French tennis federation has just decided. Heretofore, only players of French nationality could compete.

The federations committee on ranking is having great difficulty to reach agreement concerning the respective positions to be allotted Borotra, Cochet and Lacoste for the 1924 season. The committee virtually has decided to rank them as last year, as all even, "No 1 players of France."

It is pointed out that Lacoste, in spite of victories over Patterson and O'Hara Wood in the Davis cup matches, cannot be ranked higher than Borotra, who besides winning at Wimbledon, defeated Lacoste twice, and then Cochet, who defeated both Lacoste and Borotra during 1924, cannot rank lower than either of them, especially as he was a finalist in the Olympic tennis.

BONNIE OMAR EASY WINNER AT BOWIE

Bowie, Md., Nov. 27.—Bonnie Omar, 3-year-old son of Omar Khayam-Bonnie Mary, owned by E. Reuge, was an easy victor in the Thanksgiving day handicap, and ran the mile and three-sixteenths in today's feature in 2.03, shattering the former track record of 2.04 made by Bunga Bunk.

The Josquin stable's Ploughboy, and H. P. Whitney's Initiate, after encountering bad luck in the early stages of the race, closed immense gaps in the home stretch, Ploughboy taking the place by a nose from the Whitney colt, which, in turn, was a nose ahead of Sunsirl to capture third money.

Bonnie Omar was well up at the start and shook off all opposition as the home stretch was entered to win by five lengths. The winner paid $47.20 for a two dollar mutual ticket.

Howard Wins Colored Classic.

About 25,000 alumni and friends of the two schools from all parts of the country crowded the stands of the big American League park to cheer on the dusky warriors.

TUFTS GOES DOWN IN DEFEAT IN WEST

Cleveland, Nov. 7.—Displaying a real aerial attack for the first time this year and plunging through the opposing line with the power of a battering ram, Western Reserve university defeated Tufts college of Medford, Mass., 33 to 0 in its final game of the season here today. At no time after the first five minutes of play did the easterners show much fight except at the start of the second half when Reserve was composed of two regulars and nine substitutes.

Few of the many forward passes attempted by Reserve were intercepted, three of the locals' touchdowns being the result.

Considering the cold, wet weather, the consistency with which the Northwestern players held on to the passes was remarkable.

Only once did Tufts appear dangerous. At the start of the contest the easterners gained 35 yards on a pass, French to Perry. Line plunges by French netted them sixteen more, placing the ball inside Reserve's ten-yard line; but three bucks failed to accomplish much and a forward pass over the line was grounded.

WEST VA. SWAMPS W. AND J. WITH STRAIGHT FOOTBALL

Morgantown, E. Va., Nov. 27.—West Virginia university wiped out the sting of old memories today by submerging its ancient rival, Washington and Jefferson college, under a score of 40 to 7 in their annual Thanksgiving day football game here. From the start Nardicci, Ekberg and Farley plowed their way through the line and skirted the Presidents' ends for consistent gains, while only in brief spurts were the men from across the state line able to make an impression.

Washington and Jeffersons only score came in the final minutes of play, when in rapid succession each team got away with a long pass and a longer run for a touchdown.

PENN PLAYER IS SEVERELY INJURED

Philadelphia, Nov. 27.—Clark Craig of Shawnee, Okla., Pennsylvania's veteran left end, was badly hurt in making a flying tackle of Halfback Patterson today in the Cornell game. Dr. Arthur Light, the team physician, said that Craig had a slight concussion of the brain and that while his condition was not critical, it would take several days to determine the full extent of his injuries. He was knocked unconscious and had to be carried from the field in a stretcher.

ALUMNI TEAM PROVES TOO STRONG FOR ACADEMY VARSITY AND WINS, 18 TO 0

Before a large Thanksgiving crowd, the Alumni defeated the Academy, by the score of 18 to 7. Never before have the undergrads been beaten in their great annual game and the alumni can now point to that classic yesterday which was won through the marvelous playing of that great hero, "Snappy" Bruckner, the speed demon. His dazzling speed in recovering fumbles and throwing the Academy boys for large losses was the feature of the game.

Bruckner won a place in the heart of every fan and they cheered him continually. It is a wonder that he is not playing on the Yale or Harvard varsity, for from his playing yesterday the local supporters find they have a candidate for All-American honors. Bruckner was supposed to have played in the backfield, but he was needed more on the line, so "Snappy" played guard.

Second to Bruckner was Phil MacNamara, who made long dashes, one for 80 yards for two touchdowns. The other one was made by Sterrill Chase after catching a forward pass and running 50 yards.

The Academy made their lone touchdown in the last period on a fumble. Jack Hinrichs drop-kicked the ball over the bar for the extra point.

As a whole, the game was exciting. The players were covered with mud from the wet field and it was hard to discern the difference between the Academy and Alumni.

The Alumni owe their victory to their individual stars, while the Academy fighting hard, showed a great deal of teamwork all through the game.

Besides Bruckner "the speed demon" and Phil Mac, the other Alumni who starred were Chase and Fred Williams.

Alumni		Academy
Byrnes	Center	Haslam
Bruckner	Right Guard	Gilman
Paul McNamara	Right Tackle	Scott
Harris	Right End	Carlin
F. Williams	Quarterback	J. Williams
Phil McNamara	Right Halfback	Higgins

Referee, H. Hull; field umpire, McKnight. Substitutions, N. F. A., Polsky for Hagberg, Holdredge for Higgins, Tombari for McGowan, Dunn for Carlin. Alumni, Mitchell for Mileski, A. Williams for Bruckner, Bruckner for Mitchell, Fedel for A. Williams.

MCBRIDE'S MIGHTY TOE BEATS COLUMBIA, 9 TO 6

New York, Nov. 27.—An orange menace literally kicked a blue threat into submission at the Polo grounds today when Syracuse defeated Columbia 9 to 6 in a game featured by the spectacular kicking of John McBride, Orange halfback, who booted the ball across the uprights three times when his team had been checked by a stubborn blue line.

Outplayed during most of the game and handicapped by the infliction of severe penalties and disastrous fumbles, the Orange fell back on the trusty toe of McBride to subdue Columbia and each time the brilliant kicking star came through, bringing his total of goals to eleven for the season.

Syracuse found the Columbia forward line an impregnable wall and its ends difficult to evade. A line thrust, a sweep around the wings or a pass gained a few meager yards for the Orange in midfield but when the Blue found itself backe dup to its own goal line the Orange advance was halted in its tracks and the burden of attack placed upon the accurate toe of McBride.

The elusive Koppisch gave the Orange forwards plenty of anxiety. Aided by a superb interference the Columbia captain was a serious threat on almost every play and he gained many yards, but poor strategy near the goal line cost the Blue an opportunity in the first quarter and except for one other occasion when Koppisch caught a pass from Pease and ran 15 yards for a touchdown, he was kept away from the goal line.

Columbia opened up impressively, running the ball directly to the Orange five yard line by straight line plunging. Then Columbia shifted its attack and attempted the Orange ends but Hanson and Noble, both individual stars on defense, kept their lanes blocked and the Blue found progress in this channel impossible

It was in the second quarter that McBride first inserted his toe into the picture. The Orange advanced the ball to the Columbia 30-yard line but was stopped dead and McBride, with Simmons holding the ball, dropped back to the 37 yard line and sent the Orange into the lead with a beautiful kick, directly between the uprights.

A short time later Columbia scored a touchdown when Koppisch gathered in Pease's aerial thrust and romped over the goal line, untouched by Orange hands. The first half ended with the Blue enjoying a three point lead as Krissell's try-for-point after touchdown was blocked by the Orange line.

Standing in almost the exact spot from which he kicked the first field goal, McBride booted another one across in the third quarter and tied the score.

Then came Columbia's golden opportunity which was frustrated by the Orange and subsequently converted into an Orange opportunity which resulted in McBrides third boot.

Columbia was halted after a march down the field on the Syracuse 15 yard line and Krissell, Columbia's lone kicking threat, was called in from the side lines to try for a field goal. His attempt was blocked by Waldorf and the ball rolled to the 46-yard line where Simmons recovered it for Syracuse.

On an exchange of punts, Clark, fleet Orange halfback, received the Columbia kick in the center of the field and behind beautiful interference ran the ball to the Columbia 17-yard line. The next play proved fatal to the Orange as it was penalized 15 yards for holding. Foley then wiggled through the Columbia line for a 15-yard gain, bringing the ball to the Columbia 16-yard line. Two more plays failed to gain and McBride stepped back and from a difficult angle booted across his third field goal of the game.

The summary:

Syracuse (9)		Columbia (6)
Noble	Left End	Manning
Waldorf	Left Tackle	Smullen
Bayley	Left Guard	Raphael
Fivaz	Center	Schmittisch
Rugg	Right Guard	Wiberg
Starobin	Right Tackle	Price

WESTERLY AND STONINGTON BATTLE TO 6 TO 6 TIE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, Nov. 27.—A drawn battle with a 6 to 6 score was the outcome of the football or Thanksgiving contest Thanksgiving morning between the Westerly High school and Stonington High school football elevens on the Playground field off H— street. Even Referee Jameson, easily picked out by his white athletic shirt, did not "elect" to signal a fair catch when the ball was tossed him, far preferring to carefully pick the ball up and wipe it on the grass before putting it in play again.

From the nature of the muddy field holding of the lines, sureness of tackling or accurate punting did not hold their own in strategy with forward passes, from which both scores of the morning resulted, 6 points for Westerly in the second quarter and 6 points for Stonington in the final period. Winning the toss Westerly elected to kick off and defend the High street goal line and during the greater part of the scrimmage play the ball was near the center of the field. In the second quarter Salimeno successfully completed a forward pass for a touchdown but the kick for goal was blocked.

It was near the end of the game when Stonington player Coffey crossed to the south side of the field on the High street goal line for a touchdown on a forward pass. In the try for point after the touchdown another forward pass was not completed.

The summary:

Westerly		Stonington
Grills	Right End	Nichols
Brindle	Right Tackle	Emmet
DeRocco	Right Guard	Adams
Larson	Center	Cowan
Edmond	Left Guard	Rover
Blake	Quarterback	McCaffery
Turco	Right Halfback	Levanti
Salimeno	Fullback	Duke

Substitutions were: Westerly, Capalbo for Milby, Smith for Edmond, Payne for DeRocco, Daley for Smith; Stonington, Foote for Rover.

Referee—Jameson of Providence; umpire, Foley of Providence; head linesman, Butler. Ability of Salimeno to make ground gains for Westerly and Levanti for Stonington were features. W. H. S. Seniors who played last high school game on Thanksgiving day were Brindle, Grills, Blake, Milby. Attendance about 1500.

ARMY AND NAVY TEAMS PRACTICE AT BALTIMORE

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 27.—The Cadets and Midshipmen who will battle in the annual Army-Navy football tilt in the Baltimore stadium Saturday met there today, but in a different spirit from that which will prevail two days hence.

The West Pointers, 38 strong, arrived here today, and almost immediately after detraining were whisked to the stadium, where Johns Hopkins university and the University of Maryland were fighting a duel which resulted in a scoreless tie.

Navy's gridders, too, had unexpectedly turned up on the scene to witness the contest and inspect the playing field. Between halves the two service squads got together for an exchange of greetings and a friendly powwow generally.

SUNNY LAND WINS OPENING FEATURE AT TI JUANA

San Diego, Calif., Nov. 27.—The Inaugural handicap at a mile and 70 yards, feature race on the opening card at the Ti Juana Jockey club, today was won by Sunny Land with Postillion second and Tangerine third. The time, 1.43 4-5, was within four-fifths of a second of the track record.

Runstar, winner of the Coffroth handicap, was away poorly and pulled up lame after the third furlong. Nine horses were entered but the race was between Sunny Land and Postillion, the latter closing fast in the stretch to finish second by half a length.

MANY NOTED FOOTBALLISTS SEE PENN-CORNELL GAME

Philadelphia, Nov. 27 (By the A. P.)—Football heroes of by-gone days are many outstanding figures in the modern game were prominent in the gathering that witnessed the Cornell-Pennsylvania battle this afternoon.

Close to thirty "old-timers," men who gained gridiron fame while wearing the red and blue, were given a rousing reception as they paraded on the field behind the university band prior to the game. Their ranks included 16 of the 19 members of the famous undefeated team of 1904, among them such stars as Bill Hollenbach, Vincent Stevenson and Bob Folwell, now coach at the Naval Academy.

Others in the line were T. Truxton Hare, all-American guard when mass play was the vogue; "Buck" Wharton, another All-American guard; Jack Minds, former captain; and Andy Smith, coach of the California university eleven which Pennsylvania will play at Berkeley, Calif., New Year's day. Smith, who also was a star on the 1904 team here, was cheered as the student band played "California, Here I Come" for his benefit.

A. A. Stagg and Bob Zuppke, coaches of the Chicago and Illinois teams, respectively, which play here against Pennsylvania next season, were in the stands, together with such other prominent tacticians as Bill Roper, of Princeton, Knute Rockne of Notre Dame, Tad Jones of Yale, Captain Macewan of West Point, Clem Thistlewaite of Northwestern and Spaulding of Minnesota.

COLGATE UNABLE TO STOP KEEFER'S BROKEN FIELD WORK

Providence, R. I., Nov. 27.—Brown concluded the season by completely outclassing and defeating Colgate, 20 to 6, before a capacity crowd at Andrews field this morning.

Working with machine-like precision, the Brunonians gave the best exhibition of the year, Jackson Keefer rising to unsurmountable heights to bring the spectators to their feet time and time again. Keefer raced 55 yards through the entire Maroon eleven in the beginning of the second period, and in the final period gave one of the fanciest exhibitions of running, sidestepping and field reversing seen here in some time when he slid off tackle for over 35 yards.

Klump was not far behind Keefer, taking the open kickoff back 40 yards, and sliding off tackle for fine gains, including 17 yard getaway before Tryon nabbed him. Pohlman, Sweet Myers, Richardson, Higgins and Mishel all showed flashes of offensive brilliance for Brown while Captain Sheldon, Eckstein, Sayward and Stifler were performing wonders in the line.

Brown scored in the opening quarter after Colgate was stopped on the Brown 25-yard line, Hynes' recovery of a Brown fumble putting the Hamiltonians in a position to score. An exchange of punts followed and then Klump booted the ball which rolled to Colgate's 25-yard line, and Myers, who relieved Higgins, hurled a pass to Pohlman for a score. The next quarter brought forth marches by Keefer and Pohlman to the Maroon 24-yard line. Myers changed his tactics and shot the pigskin to the alert Stager, who shot across the goal line.

Colgate was completely at sea, and their bewilderment may account somewhat for Keefer's ability to race through the entire eleven for Brown's third score. But Colgate was a different team in the second half when it elected to try the aerial game. The last five minutes saw Colgate furnishing the thrills. Tryon started things when he intercepted a Myers pass on his 35-yard line, and sprinted to midfield. Tryon tried passing, and his second toss landed in Stratton's fingers, and the Maroon end tore 50 yards for the score which prevented a whitewash.

Again Tryon, who with his mates was unable to get a first down throughout the first half, flashed. He ran to midfield after the final kickoff and was successful in reaching the Brunonian 20-yard line in two passes. But the whistle blew, permitting the fans to go to their Turkey Day dinners.

Captain Sheldon and 16 Bruins wore the togs for the last time on "the hill." Captain Crowther, who played a great game at guard for Colgate, also turned in his last gridiron performance.

MARQUETTE CLOSES SEASON WITH WIN OVER VERMONT

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 27.—Marquette university closed its 1924 football season here today before a record crowd, defeating the University of Vermont 61 to 7.

The gridiron warriors of the Golden Avalanche worked as a well-oiled machine, gaining at will. Cross ducks, line smashes, double and triple forward passes all were employed by Marquette, netting huge gains and numerous touchdowns.

At the end of the second period Coach Murray made liberal substitutions and these second string players were as good as the veteran lineup. Vermont's failure lay principally in the weakness of her end, both in offensive and defensive plays. Where Marquette was eminently successful in forward passing, Vermont made but two first downs in this department of play, although she tried these tactics many times.

Tarpey, Vermont quarterback, and Yarnell, right half, starred for the visitors, while Harms, captain and left tackle, was the bulwark of the Vermont line defense.

For Marquete, Dilweg, Demoling, Curtin, Leichtfuss, Heinsch, Skemp, O'Neil and Shotola all figured in spectacular plays wherein long runs for touchdowns or heavy gains from forward passes were the principal features.

DICKINSON UPSETS DOPE AND BEATS BUCKNELL

Lewisburg, Pa., Nov. 27.—The sensational array of 1924 gridiron upsets added another victim to its ranks today when Dickinson conquered the powerful Bucknell eleven which, in previous battles, downed the Navy and shattered the winning streak of Rutgers. The final score of a game in which Dickinson came from behind to win in the final period was 11 to 7.

Two spectacular 60-yard runs by M. Goodwin, Bucknell halfback, the second of which resulted in a touchdown, gave "Uncle Charley" Moran's eleven a lead in the second quarter but in the final two periods Dickinson rallied to check Bucknell's advances and engineer a victorious offensive of her own, scoring a touchdown field goal and safety to roll up the winning points.

LOCKHART DRIVES FAST RACE AGAINST VETERANS

Los Angeles, Nov. 27.—A youngster of the dirt track speedways, Frank Lockhart, today drove his car to victory against a field of 43 starters in the Ascot Thanksgiving day road race of approximately 350 miles. His time for the estimated distance was 3 hours, 21 minutes, 40 seconds. A crowd estimated at 50,000 saw the race.

Lockhart made only one stop and that was within 25 miles of the finish post, when he flashed into the pits for a moment to drop his mechanic and thus lighten the load on his car. E. "Cannonball" Baker, veteran transcontinental driver, who led the field for a great portion of the grind, was forced into the pits at the 150-mile mark with a flat tire, and never again gained the head of the procession. A second flat tire slowed him down on the home stretch, but he bumped his way into second money on the rim. C. A. Chamberlain was third and Ted Simpson fourth.

Lockhart's victory gave him a cash prize of $16,000 while Baker went home with $8,000. The remainder of the $52,000 offered in purses was graduated down to $1,500 for the ninth finisher.

Al Menasco finished fifth and then came followed in order: Edward Dangler, Jack Thiele, Jack Vickers, Cliff Bergere and Edward Newton.

PENN'S VICTORY TIES HER WITH YALE AND DARTMOUTH

Philadelphia, Nov. 27.—(By the A. P.)—Pennsylvania's victory over Cornell today gives the Quakers a record of nine victories and one tie out of ten games this season and brackets them with Dartmouth and Yale at the top of the eastern gridiron heap. Today's game marked the close of the eastern season, so far as title prospects are concerned, for the remaining contests, including the Army-Navy struggle Saturday at Baltimore, will have no bearing on the standing of the leaders, all of which have completed their eastern schedules.

Pennsylvania's record shows two more victories than Dartmouth and three more than Yale. The Quakers were held to a scoreless tie by Penn State, but conquered Lafayette, Georgetown and Columbia, in addition to Cornell. The only break in Dartmouth's winning stretch was a tie with Yale, which was held to a second deadlock by the army.

Dartmouth had the best scoring record of the three title contenders, the statistics showing the big Green eleven rolling up 225 points to 31 for its opponents, while Pennsylvania scored 187 points against 17 and Yale 144 against 36.

SUB BASE EASILY WINS FROM ALL-NEW LONDON

New London, Nov. 27.—In a game marked by as many fumbles as there were substitutions, the Submarine Base found the All-New London football eleven an easy mark and piled up the largest score of the present season, winning from the Whalers by a 47 to 6 count. The game had progressed but two minutes when it was quite apparent that the best at New London was not any too good for the gabs, who fighting in their usual manner gave early indications that the ultimate tally would be a large one. Earl indications did not fail to prophesise that the tars would gain a victory by the overwhelming margin by which they did.

BOSTON BOY WINS ANNUAL MARATHON RACE

Berwick, Pa., Nov. 27.—James Henigan, Boston, today won the 15th annual Berwick marathon over a mountainous nine and one-quarter miles course in 49 minutes, 13 2-5 seconds. William Kyren of Helsingfors, Finland, was second in 49.41 2-5, and John Bell, Syracuse university, third, in 50.28. Twenty-four runners started.

CROSBY BREAKS LEG IN KILLINGLY-PUTNAM GAME

Danielson, Nov. 27.—John Crosby, 16, quarterback on the Killingly High school football team, broke his right leg this morning in a game with Putnam High school here. He was taken to the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam.

The accident occurred with but four minutes to play at the end of the game. It was Killingly's last contest of the season. Crosby had caught a forward pass and it is believed that he stumbled over a base bag as the game was played on a baseball field. Putnam won the game 6 to 0. Crosby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Crosby, well known residents.

FREEPORT HIGH TRAMPLES ANSONIA IN THE MUD

Ansonia, Nov. 27.—Freeport, Ill., High school eleven trampled over Ansonia in a 33 to 0 score before a crowd of close to 10,000 persons here this afternoon in an intersectional contest.

Brill, Freeport's right halfback, was the outstanding star of the game. He heaved two forward passes that netted a pair of touchdowns and scored three others himself from scrimmage. Brooks, center and captain of the Freeport team, kicked three goals after touchdowns.

Freeport holds the championship of Illinois and closed its season today with 11 straight victories.

BRADFORD BEATS RANGERS IN EXHIBITION GAME

Bradford, R. I., Nov. 27.—Playing their first game outside of Connecticut league contests, the New London Rangers journeyed here for an exhibition match this afternoon. But experimenting proved costly to the Whaling City soccure team and the Bradford team hung a defeat upon the visitors by a 3 goals to 2 count. Both teams played fine soccer throughout, but a stronger finish by the Bradford eleven gave that team a one-goal margin at the termination of the contest.

FORDHAM FOOTBALL COACH IS ILL WITH APPENDICITIS

New York, Nov. 27.—Frank Gargan, head coach of the Fordham football team and graduate manager of athletics, was operated on this afternoon for acute appendicitis. Tonight his condition is satisfactory and a speedy recovery is predicted by his physicians.

Gargan was stricken this morning. He is graduate of Fordham and has been head coach and manager of athletics for the past two seasons. Before that he was coach of the New York University team.

The Georgetown game will be played Saturday. Fordham officials said tonight, unless there are unexpected developments in Gargan's condition.

NEW LONDON RABBIT HUNTER FINED IN WATERFORD COURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 27—Joseph Purpuro, 35, of 74 West Colt street, was arrested late this afternoon in Waterford charged with violation of the hunting laws in hunting for game without a license and being an alien. He was taken before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton and fined $15 and costs.

Purpuro, who is employed at the Connecticut College, started out during the afternoon in search of rabbits. While scouring the woods he was encountered by Deputy Game Warden George L. Bliven and taken into custody.

After sundown all the laundries suspended business and these places of business were in darkness. The only Chinese places open were two restaurants.

Daniel Rollinson will come before the police court Monday for trying to cheat the Volstead law that prohibits the sale of liquor. He was in the court this morning, but his case was continued till Friday that the federal authorities may investigate it. Rollinson is a sailor on the United States ship Jouett, a destroyer assigned to chasing rum-running vessels, and is stationed at this port. What the federal authorities will do with Rollinson is not known. Rollinson was detected Wednesday night when he had two quarts of gin and was selling drinks from the bottles. He is supposed to be of the gang of sailors that get a supply from the liquor seized on crafts smuggling liquor into various ports and which get their supply from what is known as Rum Row. The sailors are supposed to get the liquor at the coast guard station before the seized liquor gets to storage. His case is like those which The Bulletin has heretofore disclosed and which Supt. Hinckley of the Coast Guard station designated as "lies." Rollinson is now held in jail to appear tomorrow. His bond was fixed at $500 and that he could not furnish.

Andrew Trione sought to introduce his countrymen to a scheme for getting something for nothing by way of the lottery route, but he misstepped and got into the police court and he had to pay $60 to get out. He was selling lottery tickets that came from Rome and which cost ten cents to whoever took a chance of winning $50 by drawing the right number. It was only a chance however and Andrew was accused of promoting a lottery, which scheme is contrary to law in the United States and against the peace. Sergeant Smith found Trione in a barber shop surrounded by a group of Italians who were anxious to try their luck. He had a book of tickets that was founded upon the old policy playing game relegated from the gambling method years ago. Andrew had no defense to make so through his attorney he demurred to the complaint. This was overruled and he was fined as stated right out of the box. He paid and said the experience was enough to teach him that he was in the wrong business.

These occasions have been many in the past, but with the accommodations at hand conditions were not such as would warrant the detention of accused persons.

When Niagara Engine Company members had a most enjoyable time Wednesday evening in celebration of the 74th anniversary of the organization of the company as a unit of the New London fire department, city officials were guests of the company, as were the representatives-elect to the legislature and those who were candidates for that body and other guests here State Treasurer-elect Ernest Rogers and Fire Chief Howard L. Stanton of Norwich. Chief Stanton was interesting as he spoke from the experiences of a fireman in both volunteer and paid departments. His remarks were thoughtful and pleased those who heard them. A feast was served in the hall of the Odd Fellows and then the party adjourned to the engine house where they continued the observance of the birthday. John C. Geary was toastmaster and introduced the speakers with apt and witty comments.

There was a large attendance at the Thanksgiving Day Union services of the churches of this city, at the Methodist church, where Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth delivered the sermon in which he made particular reference to the day as one on which all should be thankful for blessings enjoyed and for the liberty and the surroundings that are those of the people.

Captain of Police Charles A. A Red Cross car is touring the country giving a course of instructions to various organizations on first aid treatment. The car and its staff of physicians will be in New London and Midway three days.

Patrolman Howard Sloan observed a youth of 7, residing at 76 John street, throwing cigarettes promiscuously about North Bank street this afternoon and interrogating the youth, the latter declared that he found a carton of cigarettes in the yard of his home and accompanying the officer to the latter place delivered to the patrolman 43 boxes of "Tip Style" cigarettes, a brand of apparent inferior quality.

Perhaps some of the older readers of The Bulletin recall twenty-six years ago this morning there were several inches of snow on the ground and traveling was accomplished with great difficulty. The sidewalks were covered and the streets blocked with snow that lay several inches deep upon the surface. Today, in marked contrast the temperature was well above 60 degrees and there was no indication of even winter weather.

Fred Bell, watchman at the former plant of the H. K. & H. Silk company, corner of Hempstead and Home streets, reported to the police this morning that a quantity of broken bottles strewn about the highway corner of Franklin and Jay streets, creating a menace to automobiles. Members of the city highway department caused the broken glass to be removed from the highway.

The funeral of Antone Molinaro, 28, whose death occurred at Home Memorial hospital several days ago, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

TUG WITH FOUR OF CREW MISSING IN LAKE ERIE

Dunkirk, N. Y., Nov. 27.—The fishing tug Harold G. Beck, her master, Captain John Beck of Buffalo, and his son, Harold G. Beck, engineer of the tug and two members of the crew, were believed to be lost tonight after two of the deck hands had been picked up by the rescue Belgian and taken to Buffalo.

The tug was about 25 miles off this port in a fierce storm last night when a shaft of the propeller broke.

Flares were sighted by the master of the Belgian, who was put about to attempt a rescue. Three hawsers were put on the tug, rolling in the troughs of the heavy seas, but they all snapped like threads. In maneuvering with the lines, two members of the deck crew of the tug succeeded in scrambling aboard the Belgian.

After the third line parted the Beck drifted away in the fog. The master of the Belgian stood by for two hours trying to locate the tug, but did not sight her again. He then proceeded to Buffalo.

Local fishermen say that last night's storm was one of the worst of the year. The wind blew at 70 miles an hour and there was a dense, shifting fog.

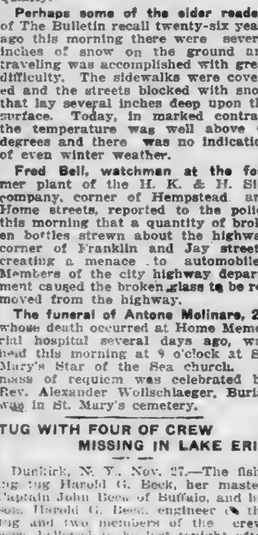
Famous Radium Expert Dying From Effects Of Rays



UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N. Y.

With death at his door, Professor Bergonie, world famous French radiologist, is devoting his last energies to drafting a report on a project to make Bordeaux, his city, the biggest center in France for radium research and the treatment of cancer. The rays with which he saved scores of others have taken, first his fingers, then his hand, then his right arm; and Professor Bergonie has just said to his doctors: "Why do you prolong my existence artificially? I know better than anybody else that nothing can save me from the grave. Another three or four days and I shall be dead."

By DAVID CORY

Everybody Was Happy

Let me think a minute or two,
Or maybe three and four
So many people are coming so fast
To Uncle Lucky's door.

Yes sireebus. Whenever dear Uncle Lucky gave a party everybody in Rabbit Land was there in plenty of time and with many smiles.

"We're not late, I hope," panted Mrs. Cottontail, who had just hopped up on the front porch in the last story, you remember. "Dearie me, it takes time and patience to dress four little cottontails," and, with a smile at Little Miss Mousie, she led her family into the sitting room.

"Uncle Lucky's waiting for you," smiled Little Miss Mousie, pointing down the hall. Just then there came a great noise at the front gate. "Can't squeeze through," shouted the Circus Elephant.

"Walk in the big gate," squeaked Little Miss Mousie.

"How stupid of me," laughed the big animal, trotting up the roadway to the little garage. "Guess I was thinking of pink lemonade and popcorn," and he sat down on the grass under the chestnut tree. "I'll sit out here. Might break a chair if I came into the house."

"Whoa!" all of a sudden shouted a voice and there sat the Old Dog Driver atop the Billy Goat Stagecoach.

"Drive through the big gate," shouted Uncle Lucky from the sitting room window. "Tell the billy goats I'll bring out a dozen lollypops for them."

"Glad you came," said Little Miss Mousie as Timmie Meadowmouse jumped up on the porch. "Little Jack Rabbit is in the sitting room with Uncle Lucky."

The next minute a loud neigh sounded on Lettuce avenue and up galloped the Old Brown Horse. He knew enough to come through the big gate and to sit down beside the elephant under the shady chestnut tree.

"Everybody's in the sitting room," said the pretty little mouse housekeeper. "Dear Uncle Lucky is so happy. He's just like a boy with a new toy."

"I'll sing my latest song," laughed the kind little robin and Uncle Lucky can play the tune on the piano," and down the hallway hopped the bird callers as Little Miss Mousie turned to greet the Big Brown Bear in his beautiful fur overcoat.

"How's my pretty one?" he asked, hanging up his cap. "This is a neat little place. Wish my cosy cave house were as spick and span," and down the hall he ambled to say howdy to the dear old gentleman bunny.

SCHOONER VERONICA WAS TOWED INTO PORT AT HALIFAX

Halifax, Nov. 27.—The four-masted schooner Veronica, which recently was towed into port after her master had stopped the United States liner President Harding on the high seas, and regaled him with a weird tale of piracy, was in further trouble today.

She was taken into custody by Sheriff Hall, acting as marshal of the local admiralty court, on libel proceedings instituted by the owners of the steamship British Gorderer, who want $25,000 salvage. It was the British Gorderer that picked up the Veronica off Cape Sable and towed her here.

The same day the Veronica was towed into Halifax harbor Captain Grening of the Harding arrived in New York to report that the British-er had hailed him with sos flares two nights previously and told a sensational tale of having been robbed of his cargo and navigation instruments by hi-jackers who had left his ship helplessly adrift off rum row. Captain Grening reported that in all outward appearance the Veronica was in no distress and had, as a matter of fact, attempted to flee from him after having halting his ship.

BATTLE AT SEA BETWEEN CREWS OF TWO RUM SHIPS

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 27.—The story of a battle with pirates of New York matching in thrills old tales of the Spanish main, was related by the supercargo of the French steamer Francisca which arrived here today bearing marks of the stirring scenes which took place on her decks.

Two days ago, the supercargo said, the Francisca unloaded her cargo to a small schooner lying off Rum Row and the crew retired for the night. The schooner, after standing by for some time, suddenly attacked the Francisca. The stranger's crew, apparently bent on recovering the money paid for the cargo, swarmed over the sides of the Francisca and forced the supercargo into his cabin. He managed to escape, he said, and roused the members of his own crew, who after a short gun battle, drove the attacking party, composed of Americans under a Canadian leader, back to its own boat.

WINSTON CHURCHILL WILL HEAD BRITISH DELEGATION

London, Nov. 27.—Winston Churchill, as chancellor of the exchequer, probably will head the British delegation at the meeting of finance ministers and experts in Paris late in December or in January. Mr. Churchill, it is expected, will confer with Prime Minister Baldwin shortly as to the British proposals regarding payments under the Dawes plan and the distribution of the money collected in German occupied territory.

OPIUM CONFERENCES IN GENEVA RESUME TODAY

Geneva, Nov. 27.—(By the A. P.) Public interest in Geneva is centered tonight on the plenary meeting of the international opium conferences, which is fixed for tomorrow afternoon. At this session Stephen G. Porter, the American delegate, is expected to fight out on the floor the question of his reservations touching the American proposals. Mr. Porter today asked for the convocation of a plenary meeting to discuss two points in the American program which were objected to as being outside the agenda of the conference. The objection was made by the delegate from India when the agenda was being considered by the business committee.

One point refers to the total prohibition of the manufacture and distribution of heroin. The other concerns chiefly the production of opium, and India has opposed it because she deems it would have the effect of stopping the growth of opium in India which is eaten by the natives.

An American proposal which Mr. Porter desires incorporated in the new convention would control production and distribution both of raw opium and coca leaves so that there would be no surplus available for purposes not strictly medical or scientific.

An exception is provided for raw opium which is needed for those countries where opium smoking is. Hague convention.

The first opium conference, which is still dragging on, was supposed to devise a plan for ending all smoking in the Far East within a specified time, but it has failed to take any action. The American want it stopped in ten years. They will make a fight on this question at a later stage of the present conference.

HOW THANKSGIVING WAS OBSERVED IN PARIS

Paris Nov. 27.—The feature of the American colony's observance of Thanksgiving today was the union service held at the American church in the Rue De Berri, at which Ambassador Herrick administered the American Boy Scouts' oath of allegiance to the flag to the Boy Scouts of the colony in Paris. Dean Frederick W. Beekman of the Episcopal pro-cathedral, delivered the sermon and the Rev. J. W. Goodrich, pastor of the church, pronounced the benediction. Robert W. Skinner, the consul-general, read President Coolidge's Thanksgiving proclamation. A large congregation was present.

The Thanksgiving mass in the Church of the Madeleine was equally well attended. Mgr. Chaptel, coadjutor bishop of Paris, officiating. The evening was marked by dinners and dances of the American students and Artist clubs and the American Legion.

Nature's Salt Works

The salt supply for a large part of the country in New Mexico and Texas is obtained from Shafters Lake, a body of water that covers about 2,000 acres of land. It is situated in Andrews County, Tex., 50 miles from a railway. The source of this salt supply is a mystery which the few scientists who visited the spot have been unable to solve.

The entire lake has no outlet and is fed by rain water which is drained into it from the adjacent territory when the soil is free of alkali and evaporates the lake in a pure state. It is produced in enormous quantities by the process of evaporation by the sun's rays. During the heat of summer this evaporation is very rapid, and thick layers of salt are quickly formed in the shallow parts of the lake. Within a few days after a heavy rain when the reservoir receives an increase of water supply new layers of pure, white crystal salt covers the shallow places. The salt is utilized chiefly by stockmen, and it is extracted from the bed of the lake by means of shovels and is hauled by wire cable in boxes to the shore. The surface of this remarkable lake is 50 feet below the level country which surrounds it. It is situated at an altitude of 3,257 feet. In the same locality are other small lakes, but they are all of fresh water, although the supply of salt from Shafters Lake appears to be inexhaustible.

Temperamental Geese

When a flock of rare geese became temperamental and refused to eat the grass on the lawn of a London Zoo, the keepers sprayed various liquids on the grass until they found something the geese liked, and now the grass is short again.

NORWICH MARKET SHOULD BE SUPPLIED FROM CONTIGUOUS TERRITORY

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

I was much interested in The Bulletin's recent article summarizing Market Specialist Mehl's report of the vegetables and fruits Norwich imports every year. According to Mr. Mehl these imports run about a carload a day for every week-day of the year. And they include the following somewhat formidable list:

Potatoes, onions, apples, grapes, oranges, lemons, bananas, peaches, cabbage, celery, turnips, watermelons, muskmelons, berries, pears, tomatoes, spinach, kale, lettuce, peppers, egg-plant, asparagus, beets, parsnips, chicories, prunes,—even fresh dandelion greens.

It is not asserted that this is an absolutely complete list, or includes the name of every fruit or vegetable [illegible] Norwich from abroad. But it probably takes in the more important ones.

Twenty-seven kinds, as I reckon them over on my fingers. From that total we can pick out three,—oranges, lemons and bananas,—which must be imported, if eaten at all; which don't grow earlier and bigger and sweeter in Georgia, and prunes, which are more economically produced and dried in the hot, rainless districts of the Pacific coast. That leaves twenty-two, most of which are already grown to some extent near the city, and all of which can be grown there in quantities ample to supply the city's entire demand, and of quality high enough to satisfy its most exacting taste.

Preston has shown by repeated demonstration that it need take no back seat behind Aroostook county in the matter of potatoes, either as regards yield or quality. There are other towns within easy haul of Norwich whose soil and conditions are just as well fitted for potato production as Preston Plains. Yet Norwich imports, mostly from Maine, an average of a carload and a half of potatoes every week, according to Mr. Mehl.

Kittamaus peaches don't need any wordy advocate to set forth their worth. They speak for themselves. I have eaten peaches ripened in North Stonington and Storrs which were just as good. They will grow or can be made to grow in almost any [illegible] of southeastern Connecticut. Yet Mr. Mehl reports about four carloads a week coming into Norwich from Georgia, New Jersey, etc., during the peach season.

Apples. Why, there are hills by the hundred within an hour's motor run, which were expressly made for apple and pear orchards. They not only grow wild apples naturally, wherever a bird drops a seed, but are capable of producing the finest shaped best colored and highest flavored "grafted" fruit. Anybody who was ever allowed the run of the late Thurston Lillibridge's orchard wouldn't go wandering outside in seach of something to nibble.

I don't know so much about grapes. Perhaps Connecticut might not be able to compete with California or Spain in the production of Tokays or Malagas. But it would be absurb to suppose that a climate which permits luscious wild grapes to ripen in the woods wouldn't with equal facility produce Concords and Catawbas and Delawares and Muscatines and forty other semi-hardy sorts, all of desirable quality.

As to muskmelons, the very best I ever ate, the ripest, richest, sweetest, juciest have been grown in latitudes a hundred miles farther north than Norwich, and under much less favorable conditions as regards both the late spring and early fall frosts.

When it comes to such things as tomatoes, asparagus, celery, lettuce, spinach, beets, cabbage, and the like, there's no need of my saying a word. Every farmer, every suburbanite, every city man with a ten foot square back yard knows that they can be raised almost anywhere in any quantity desired. They're not as easy to grow as weeds, any one of them. Nor is any other useful crop. They all take some work, some intelligence, some "gumption," some forehandedness. Also, they cause some trouble.

Ah, that "trouble!" That, I suspect, is where the shoe pinches tightest. The average man and woman today seems clammily incapable of "taking trouble" to accomplish anything. He or she will walk eleven miles around to avoid taking ten steps through an area of "trouble." His or her idea of success is the attaining a point where nothing will ever again be any "trouble." Or where some one else can be hired to take the "trouble" which can't possibly be avoided.

Now, the profitable raising of fruits or vegetables as a rule involves a good deal of "trouble" and no little work. To say nothing of ambition and energy, and a stubborn determination that holds on with bulldog grip and won't be shaken off. In this field, as in most others which the farmer is permitted to work, "dorged does it." I don't know whether the dictionaries authorize such words as "stick-to-it-ativeness" and "stand-by-ativeness." But we'll authorize them, you and I, for they're essential to our business. Especially if we set out to raise fruits or vegetables. In either case, when we have planned out a campaign we have got to stick to it, against bugs, and blights and scales and a hundred other malevolent opponents. We're also got to stand by all the time, ready with hoe and cultivator, with fertilizer drill and spray pump to jump in the first instant our crops send forth the Macedonian cry. "Come over and help us." We simply must stick to the job, regardless of all discouragements, and we must stand by it in vigilant readiness for rescue, regardless of our own inclinations.

But, having those two qualities of "stick-to-it-ativeness" and "stand-by-ativeness," and practicing them persistently, there is no reason why the farmers of such a territory as that which surrounds Norwich shouldn't be able to produce at least 23 of the 27 products which Mr. Mehl reports as being now brought in from as far away as Oregon and Georgia and Maine and New York.

When the present freight rates, compelled by high railroad wages, are considered, it seems incredible that such things can't be raised locally cheaply enough to compete with imported products.

Of course, the local season is comparatively short. Those who want and must have their fruits and vegetables out of season, must continue to hunt for them in warmer latitudes, where they can be matured earlier than in our colder northern climate.

Nor do I pretend to know how to meet the labor situation, with its pitiful scarcity of adequate help and its exhorbitant wage rates. But it certainly seems as if the things which easy-going Georgia and California manage to accomplish could, somehow, be matched by canny New England thrift.

We can't raise oranges and bananas, because the climate is too cool and the seasons too short. But we can—and some of us do,—raise just as good potatoes as Maine, just as good apples as New York, just as good peaches as Delaware, just as good cabbages and lettuce and spinach and asparagus, etc., as Long Island or New Jersey.

Last week's issue of a widely circulated farm paper gave a long list of the foreign markets which were asking for various agricultural products from this country. That's all well enough. The foreign market cannot be ignored and should not be sneezed at. When we have surpluses we need it to unload them on. But the farmer of New England has and can find no market anywhere on earth comparable to the home market composed of such cities as Norwich and New London and Willimantic and Danielson and Putnam. The nearer the market the shorter the haul and the smaller the transportation expense. And the pay is surer and more collectible; don't forget that, you farmers who are still grouching over the way in which distant dealers in remote cities have stung you, over and over again.

Six weeks or two months ago, I drove by a field of perhaps two or three acres in cabbages within a few miles of Norwich. I slowed down my car to give myself ample time to appreciate that field. The rows were not only regular in layout but the fine, round heads were as symmetrically aligned as could be thought possible. They were astonishingly even in size and development. I couldn't see half-a-dozen missing or "sprangly" plants in the whole patch. To the eye of an old market gardener the spectacle was a delightful one.

That field showed me what cabbages can be made to do in southeastern Connecticut, when they are put on the right soil and properly cared for.

Yet Mr. Mehl's investigation shows that cabbages are brought into Norwich from way off. Lord knows where, in considerable quantities. Why aren't they raised and sold right at home? You answer that question. I don't propose to try to.

The same thing is true of more than a score of other products. The soil is right enough; the seasons are propitious enough; the weather is seldom prohibitive. There seems to be nothing in nature to prevent the farm lands immediately contiguous to Norwich from supplying practically all Norwich's need for vegetables and fruits. Yet they don't.

Since the fault isn't in natural environment, it seems as if it must be somewhere in the human element. That doesn't necessarily mean in the farmer's lack of initiative or energy. It may be due to marketing conditions in the cities themselves. You all know what I mean: no need to enlarge on that topic or say harsh words about dealers and buyers. "Soft words butter no parsnips," it is true; but they sometimes help to sell 'em!

What I'm trying to get at is just this: The nearby city market ought to be the handiest, the surest, the cheapest to reach, the most certain to pay, in other words, the most profitable of any. It ought to be the first one sought and the one most assiduously cultivated. It ought to be the "stand by" for all producers within hauling distance. If there is nothing in natural conditions to prevent its being such, surely it must be within the capacity of human wit to so manipulate the human and artificial conditions as to effect the desired result.

I'm not presuming to tell you how to run your farm. Saint's forbid! I'm just trying to point out that Norwich is paying to Delaware and New Jersey and California and Maine and other distant farmers thousands of dollars every year, which might, could and should go into the pockets of the farmers living within fifteen miles of city hall.

This is uneconomical, to say the least.

One might even go so far as to call it wasteful.

Is there no remedy for it within the vision of you keen-eyed, sharp-witted farmers of New London county?

RAILROAD HANDLED 50,134 IN FOOTBALL CROWD

The New Haven railroad operated 93 special trains to and from New Haven last Saturday on account of the Yale-Harvard football game, in addition to the regular service. Total number of passengers handled on these special trains was 50,134. Private and special car movements were in excess of former years, there being 56 such cars which were in addition to the private trains arranged for the exclusive use of the Harvard Club of Boston, the Harvard Club of New York and the Yale Club of New York. From Boston and Providence there were 810 less passengers to New Haven than in 1923. Many people from those cities did not travel according to their original plans, due in all probability to threatening weather conditions, although it did not commence to rain in eastern territory until the specials were well on their way to New Haven. The railroad accommodations, however, were available.

In 1923 there were 56,978 passengers handled, or 6844 more than this year. More people, however, went to New Haven the day previous to the game this year than in former years. Of course a substantial proportion of the attendance at the game was highway travel, but accurate comparison with the automobile travel of 1922 is not available.

The travel from New York and intermediate points did not equal that of 1923 by 2924 people, which was doubtless due to the rain during Friday night and also to the fact that it began to rain in New York before the departure of the first special train and continued throughout.

It was anticipated that travel this year would be in excess of that of 1922 and arrangements for handling the travel were planned accordingly. The result was that some train service which had been scheduled was omitted. Long distance travel from points beyond New York was in excess of any for which the company has record.

From 10 a. m. until 1.30 p. m. there was a train unloaded at New Haven on an average of every 3 minutes 16 seconds; while on the return from 4.52 p. m. to 8.28 p. m. a train left New Haven on an average of every 4 minutes and 54 seconds. On Saturday, Nov. 22, the New Haven system operated 1278 regular passenger trains; adding to the number 93 special trains to and from New Haven, there were 1370 passenger trains operated in the 24-hour period, with the very excellent record of 84.16 of all passenger trains operated on time. This performance is the more noticeable when it is appreciated that interchange of freight cars with connecting lines and the local loading and unloading of cars was upon a normal basis.

In addition to the equipment necessary for regular train service there was used for the accommodation of football traffic 77 locomotives—45 steam and 32 electric; 7 baggage cars, 289 coaches, 73 Pullman cars, 56 special or private cars, and some other miscellaneous equipment.

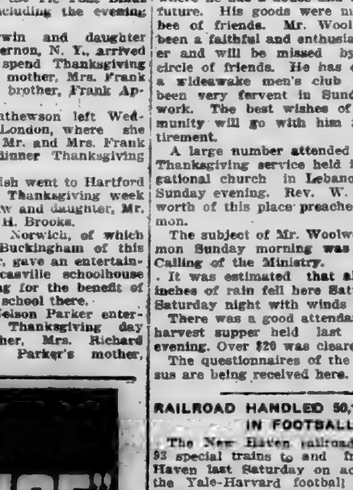
Good Thing to Know about stopping a cold

At the first sniffle take a stiff dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, expel the congestion and avoid a cold



THE commonest afflictions of mankind are constipation and colds. Combined they indirectly cause the majority of untimely deaths. It is when constipated that you are most subject to colds, so keep the bowels open.

Sneezing is almost always the first warning of a cold. Don't wait; don't hope that it will go away of itself. Take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, cleansing the intestines of accumulated poisons, bundle up warmly and the cold will be gone by morning. Colds cannot "run their course" when stopped at the outset. That spoonful of Syrup Pepsin may stop it.

A good laxative is a necessity in the home. Since Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, over 10 million bottles being sold annually, the majority of families must prefer it.

And rightly so, for in the 30 years it has been on the market it has relieved thousands of people of those ailments it was designed to remedy, such as constipation, biliousness, indigestion, flatulency, sour stomach, dyspepsia, bad breath, fevers and colds. It will relieve any disorder associated with constipation. It is the safest, most gentle intestinal treatment you can get. Mr. J. C. Boney, 969 Main St., Biloxi, Miss., and Mr. Walter Dumiadke, 797 Wheelock St., Detroit, Mich., are never without a bottle in their homes. They attribute their uniform good health to having it handy when needed. You will find it in every drug store. A dose costs about a cent.

There is no secret about the contents of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and you will find it stated on the package, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant aromatics, free from narcotics and opiates. It is just such a laxative as is ideally suited to families, safe for the young and effective for the old. Make up your mind to buy a bottle, and if for any reason whatever it does not come up to your expectations, your money will be refunded.

Free Sample Bottle Coupon

There are people who very rightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. Let them clip this coupon, pin their name and address to it, and send it to the Pepsin Syrup Co., 518 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them postpaid by mail. WEAK, RUN DOWN AFTER SICKNESS

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Mrs. Dube Well and Strong

E. Hartford, Conn.—"After a severe sickness I was so weak that I could not do my housework, so my mother told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The first bottle helped me so much that I took six more bottles and felt fine. I have just given birth to a nice baby girl and am feeling strong and well. So different from the way I felt before. I am taking the Vegetable Compound right along while nursing. The baby seems to be in good health, and my friends say they see a big change for the better in me."—Mrs. EUGENE DUBE, 59 Woodbridge St., E. Hartford, Connecticut.

The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine to bring back health and strength. Many mothers have found this true, as did Mrs. Dube. There are women everywhere who know by experience the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

WESTERLY

Thanksgiving in Westerly was begun on Wednesday evening with a union meeting of the Protestant churches, when the pastors joined in a fitting service at 7.45 o'clock in the Broad street Christian church. This was largely attended by different church members. Following the invocation, an anthem was rendered by the church choir. Scripture reading by Rev. Lewis A. Walker, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, followed the responsive reading of Psalms 100 and 111. Prayer was offered by Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church. Miss Bessie Cross of Charlestown sang during a collection taken for the benefit of the People's Mission on West Broad street, Pawcatuck, of which Mrs. Dagmar Smith is superintendent. The Thanksgiving sermon was by Rev. Marvin S. Stocking, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal church, who chose for his text II Corinthians, ix. 15, "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift." Benediction by Rev. Mr. Stocking closed the service.

The early morning of Thanksgiving day was frosty, with occasional appearances of the sun from obscuring clouds. With moderating temperature, the frosted ground softened and walks became muddy. Holiday closing of all public buildings, mercantile and manufacturing plants was a feature, and in the afternoon drug stores and even restaurants closed their doors for a time. Holiday running of steam car trains without extra freight or express business was the order, but many of the through express trains Wednesday were operated in two sections, and many Westerly people left town to visit relatives and friends away. A very large crowd tried to be as enthusiastic as the conditions of the muddy field would admit when the football elevens of the Westerly High school and Stonington High school slipped and slid around in their annual contest, which resulted in a drawn battle, score 6 to 6, due chiefly to the muddy gridiron. At 12 o'clock and on one was free to enjoy the indoor sport for which the day is famous.

At the annual meeting of Westerly fire district next Wednesday evening the following matters are to be acted on To receive and act upon the reports of the officers of the district; to make such appropriations as may be deemed necessary for the year ensuing; to order a tax for the purpose provided in the charter and to provide for the collection of same; to give the treasurer authority to hire such sum or sums of money as may become necessary during the year; to hear the report of the board of tax assessors as to the advisability of extending the boundaries of the district.

Patrolman Michael Curtin completed his duties as day policeman Tuesday, on which detail he has been for the previous week. Officer Robert Kessel is on the day tour for the current week.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl G. Stillman of Pawcatuck were Thanksgiving day visitor with Hartford relatives.

Miss Elizabeth Cundall and Miss Lois Babcock of the Sargent school are passing the Thanksgiving recess at their homes in Pawcatuck and Avondale, respectively.

Hiram Barber arrived Thursday morning from Lynn, Mass, to be the holiday guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Barber.

A carelessly thrown cigarette stub Thursday afternoon caused rubbish and waste matter which had collected between the shoe shining shop and the Pawcatuck river bridge to be ignited and smoulder for some time before a pedestrian called the proprietors attention to the smoke rising before the shop door. A well directed pail of water made short work of the fire.

The damaged freight car which delayed a freight train near the Westerly station early on Thursday morning was sent west by a switch engine in the afternoon. The westbound New England express stopping at the Westerly station at 6.45 was switched to the westbound track, taking its Providence passengers on that side, and at the time the disabled freight train having been sidetracked, the eastbound accommodation came into the station so that a choice could be made of a fast or slow trip to Providence.

Automobilists who are accustomed to use the Boston post road from Westerly to Wakefield, R. I., notice the renovation of two well known landmarks before Charlestown, R. I., is reached. One is the building of a large wooden barn on the foundation of what was known as the "stone barn ruins" on the Champlin farm, so-called. The other and more recent construction is on the site of the ruins of the old King Tom farmhouse of Thomas Wilkinson, which was burned, where the old chimney left standing is surrounded by a new wooden cottage, with high pitched roof.

An attmept is being made to strengthen the iron supporting post for the southwest corner of the Briggs block, recently visited by fire, at the junction of Main street and the Pawcatuck river bridge. The iron post, which rests on the river bottom, has shown signs of moving and in an effort to make a better foundation bags of sand have been placed about it, a wooden crib built about the base of the epost and the inside filled with cement, but frequent comment is heard as to other sides of the business block being out of line.

INJURED WHEN THROWN FROM TOURING CAR

Providence, R. I., Nov. 27—Thrown from a powerful touring car which overturned on the shore drive of the Colt Farm at Bristol this afternoon, Roswell C. Colt of New York, son of the late Col. Samuel P. Colt, millionaire head of the United States Rubber Company, was badly injured. His companion, believed to be John Parker, or John Peck of New York, may die from injuries.

Parker or Peck was taken to the Rhode Island hospital in the Colt Memorial ambulance, making its first trip. Police records carried the name of Parker and hospital records that of Peck for the critically injured man. Colt was taken to the home of Col. Merton A. Chessman, present occupant of the estate of the late Col. Colt.

In a similar accident on the same curve, several years ago, Le Beron C. Colt, son of the late Senator Le Baron B. Colt and cousin to Roswell C. Colt, was fatally injured and his companion, Albert Chesebro of Bristol, instantly killed.

TO SPEED UP TRIALS IN FEDERAL COURTS

Washington, Nov. 27—(By the A. P.)—Important changes in rules for the transaction of business in the federal courts throughout the country, which are expected to speed up the conduct of trials, are outlined in letters just sent to all Federal District Judges by Chief Justice Taft.

The proposed changes were worked out at the recent judicial conference here of senior circuit judges, who considered them vital as a means of expediting the orderly transaction of all federal litigation and preventing the clogging of the court dockets. Chief Justice Taft, as chairman of the conference, in transmitting the recommendations to the judges, expressed the opinion that they would contribute largely to "the practically dispatch of business in the conduct of your court."

To force prompt disposition of all cases, the district judges are urged to adopt a rule providing that when any case might have been brought to trial but had not within one year, the counsel and the parties to such proceedings shall be given notice of the first term of court following January 1 each year, thirty days in advance of its opening, and if no action is taken in such cases within that period of grace, the court shall upon opening the term enter an order of dismissal.

The district courts are urged to adopt a rule which would prevent the continuance of cases to another term by agreement of counsel. Other engagements of counsel should not be accepted as a ground for continuance, it is held, and no continuances should be allowed except for good cause hown by affidavits, such as sickness of a party or unavoidable absence of an important witness.

It is also suggested that the courts at frequent intervals fix times for the hearing of motions and the settlement of issues. Postponement of matters on such calls should not be permitted, the conference agreed, except for causes that would justify continuance of a case set for trial.

Another suggestion, designed to prevent delay frequently incident to the selection of a jury, is the adoption of a rule by the district judges whereby the examination of prospective jurors would be made by them alone. Should counsel on either side desire additional inquiry to determine jurors' qualifications beyond that conducted by the judge, the new rule would require that he submit questions to the judge for presentation at his discretion.

THREE NEW MEMBERS OF FRENCH ACADEMY

Paris, Nov. 27—(By the A. P.)—Three more "immortals," as the members of the French Academy are designated, were created today.

The first vacancy to be filled was that of Frederick Masson, who died in February 1923. After six ballots George LeComte, president of the French Authors' Society for the last ten years, was elected from among six candidates.

Emile Pickard, mathematician, was elected ot the place of Charles De Freycinet, who died in May 1923. M. Picard received 17 votes, against 10 for Pierre Mille and one for Senator Hugues Le Roux.

The couple avoided Los Angeles proper, leaving the special car in which they traveled from Emplam, Mexico, where they were married, at Shorb, near Alhambra.

At his home the comedian greeted newspapermen with few words.

"Just tell everybody we are happy and thankful and glad to be home," he said.

AUTOMOBILE INJURIES FATAL TO JAMES H. RING

New York, Nov. 27.—James H. Ring of Boston, father of Blanche, Frances and Julie Ring, actresses, died tonight in a hospital as the result of injuries sustained several days ago, when he was struck by an automobile while crossing Broadway. The body will be sent to Boston for burial.

Mr. Ring was the son of James H. Ring, who for a score of years was the head of the Boston museum. His mother was Julie Fisher, a celebrated actress in her day.

RADIO TELEPHONE AS A GOVERNMENT MONOPOLY

Paris, Nov. 27.—Perre Robert, under secretary of state for posts, telegraphs and telephones, announced in the chamber of deputies today that he considered radio telephone broadcasting should be organized as a government monopoly service. He proposed, he said, to submit a bill to that end to the parliament in the due course of time.

LEGAL NOTICES

BY HIS EXCELLENCY,
CHARLES A. TEMPLETON,
Governor of the State of Connecticut,
A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, at a General Assembly of the State of Connecticut held at Hartford on the Wednesday after the first Monday of January, 1921, the House of Representatives did propose an amendment to the constitution of this state, which is in the words following: "The governor shall have power to disapprove of any item or items of any bill making appropriations of money embracing distinct items while at the same time approving the remainder of the bill, and the part or parts of the bill so approved shall become effective and the item or items of appropriation so disapproved shall not take effect unless the same are separately reconsidered and repassed in accordance with the rules and limitations prescribed for the passage of bills over the executive veto. In all cases in which the governor shall exercise the right of disapproval hereby conferred he shall append to the bill at the time of signing it a statement of the item or items disapproved, together with his reasons for such disapproval, and transmit the bill and such appended statement to the secretary. If the General Assembly be then in session, he shall forthwith cause a copy of such statement to be delivered to the house in which the bill originated for reconsideration of the disapproved items in conformity with the rules prescribed for legislative action in respect to bills which have received executive disapproval." And

Whereas, The resolution so proposing said amendment was by order of said House of Representatives continued to the next General Assembly, and was published in the manner prescribed by the eleventh article of the Constitution; and

Whereas, At said next General Assembly held at Hartford on the Wednesday after the first Monday of January, 1923, two-thirds of each House thereof approved of said resolution and amendment by yeas and nays, and said General Assembly did, by an Act entitled "An Act Submitting a Proposed Amendment to the Constitution Concerning Appropriations," provide for the presentment of the same to the inhabitants qualified to vote at Electors' meetings of the several towns holding meetings on the first Monday of October, 1923, and of the towns holding elections subsequent thereto, for their consideration in town meetings directed to be held for that purpose, and also the manner in which it should be made to appear whether a majority of the electors present at said town meetings approved or disapproved of the same; and

Whereas, Copies of said proposed amendment were, in pursuance of said act, transmitted by the Secretary of the State to the town clerk in each town in the state, and said amendment was presented to the inhabitants thereof for their consideration at a town meeting in each town, legally warned and held for that purpose, on said first Monday in October, 1923, and at town elections held subsequent thereto; and

Whereas, In pursuance of said act, the Secretary, Treasurer and Comptroller as the Board of Canvassers, did, as provided by law, duly canvass said votes and have transmitted to me their certificate under their hands in the words and figures following, viz.:

To His Excellency, Charles A. Templeton, Governor:—

We, the undersigned, having been designated by law to canvass the votes given in by the electors at their meetings in the towns holding town meetings on the first Monday of October, A. D. 1923, and in other towns at their next regular town elections, in favor of and against the proposed amendment to the constitution "Concerning Appropriations," hereby certify that we have entered upon and duly canvassed, as by law provided, said votes which were received according to law from all the towns in this state.

The whole number of votes received and counted relative to said proposed constitutional amendment "Concerning Appropriations" is forty-six thousand, eight hundred and fifty-eight, of which number thirty-six thousand, two hundred and fifty-seven are in favor of approving and adopting said proposed amendment, and ten thousand, six hundrde and one are against the approval and adoption of said amendment.

All of which is respectfully submitted.
FRANCIS A. PALLOTTI,
Secretary.
ANSON T. McCOOK,
Treasurer.
F. M. SALMON,
Comptroller.

And, Whereas, It appears from said certificate that a majority of said votes are in favor of approving of said proposed amendment, I do therefore herein so declare; and I do also herein declare that a majority of the electors present at the town meetings aforesaid have approved of said proposed amendment and that the same is valid to all intents and purposes as a part of the constitution of the state.

In testimony whereof I have caused the seal of the state to be hereunto affixed and have hereunto set my hand, at Hartford, on this 25th day of November, (SEAL) in the year of our Lord one thousand, nine hundred and twenty-four, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and forty-ninth.

CHAS. A. TEMPLETON,

Emanuell Reinhart, of Lancaster, Pa., has a pair of airplane ducks. The ducks were hatched by a hen and seemed to be the same as all other ducks until their wings began to develop, and then it was found that the ducks had two pairs of wings. As a railroad motor passenger car was rounding a curve at Troy Junction, Kas., a 300-pound hog, grazing along the right-of-way, stepped on the track in front of the motor. After the impact the hog picked himself up and walked away, while the motor was derailed, the mechanism damaged and the train delayed for three hours.

A double use has been found for one of man's fungus allies in his fight against insect pests, according to Dr. E. W. Berger, entomologist of the state plant board of Florida. Orange growers in Florida have for some time been using a red fungus, known as Aschersonia, to infect and thus control the whitefly pest of citrus fruits. A similar insect has been causing serious trouble for sweet potato growers, and now the discovery has been made in several localities that the same fungus attacks this pest also. Tests are now being made in the field to determine whether the fungus can be used economically on a large scale to protect the sweet potato crop.

OLD TESTAMENT TRANSLATED INTO EVERY DAY LANGUAGE

New York, Nov. 27.—Publication of a translation of the Old Testament in modern English in which the Garden of Eden is called a park, Noarh's Arc is termed a barge and the City of David is named Davidsburg, was announced today.

It is the work of Dr. James Moffatt, eminent Scotch theologian and Greek Hebrew scholar, who two years ago translated the New Testament into modern English. Announcement of the book's publication in this country was made by a firm of prominent publishers (The George H. Doran Company). It will be released December 1.

Dr. Moffatt, who is professor of church history in the United Free Church College, Glasgow, explains in his preface that it is his belief that the Bible cannot be properly understood by the present generation unless it appears to them in the language of their everyday life.

Dr. Moffatt began the book of Esther as follows: "It was in the reign of Xerxes, the Xerxes who reigned from India to Ethopia, over a hundred and twenty-seven provinces." The King James version reads: "Now it came to pass in the days of Ahaseurus, (this is Ahaseurus which reigned from India even unto Ethopia, over a hundred and seven and twenty provinces)."

Dr. Moffatt's story of the creation follows:

"Then the God Eternal molded man from the dust of the ground, breathing into his nostrils the breath of life; this was how man became a living being.

"In the Land of Eden, in the Far East, God the Eternal then planted a park, where He put the man whom he molded.

"And from the ground God the Eternal made all sorts of trees to grow that were delightful to see and good to eat, with the tree of life and the tree that yields knowledge of good and evil in the center of the park.

"From Eden a river flowed to water the park, which on leaving the park branched into four streams."

He interprets the story of the flood as follows:

"So God said to Noah: 'I have resolved to put an end to every human being, for they have filled the earth with insolence and outrage. I will destroy them and the earth together.

"'Build a barge of cypress wood; build cabins inside the barge, and cover it with pitch inside and out.

"'This is how you are to build it: The barge is to be 450 feet long, 75 feet broad and 45 feet high.'

"'You must put the roof in the barge 18 inches from the roof and make a door in the side of the barge; also put three decks in it.'"

REV. PERCY STICKNEY GRANT DISCHARGED FROM HOSPITAL

New York, Nov. 27.—Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, former rector of the fashionable Fifth Avenue Protestant-Episcopal Church of the Ascension, was discharged from New York hospital today. His physicians said he had been unable to sleep in the hospital and planned to go to his country home near Bedford Hills, N. Y., to recuperate.

Dr. Grant was removed to the hospital last Sunday. Nerve specialists announced that he was suffering from a severe attack of anaemia and that a number of examinations would have to be made.

"Dr. Grant is suffering from a severe form of primary anaemia which has resulted in considerable loss of flesh and strength and in some degree of nervous exhaustion," Dr. Lewis A. Conner, the churchman's personal physician, said. "For some years also he has had a tendency to increase in blood pressure and arteriosclerosis.

"The examinations thus far made have shown no evidence of organic disease of the brain or spinal cord. Improvement is likely to be slow and he will require a long period of complete physical and mental rest."

Dr. Grant left the hospital this morning, and returned a few hours later, after which his release from the hospital was announced. No explanation was given of his several hours' absence.

DENIES ADMISSION OF SLAYING HIS NIECES

Fredericton, N. B., Nov. 27.—Harry D. Williams, held here in connection with the murder of his two nieces, Cynthia and Olivia Foster, at Fosterville, N. B., near the Maine border, denied today that he had made any admission of guilt when first confronted by authorities.

Williams said he had surrendered to the authorities upon discovery of the double murder in his cabin because he knew "he would be suspected and blamed." Cynthia was 14 years and Olivia 10.

Williams appeared to be unconcerned over his fate. He said he had made no arrangements for counsel, as he had no money.

THERE IS A LAND

There is a land in the hills of dreams—
A place of a heart's desire—
Where white sheep lead their lambs to play
Among the stones of fire.

Where tigers dance to the shepherd's pipe,
And the reeds and branches sing,
Where the partridge folds her brood to sleep
In the wind of an eagle's wing.

Where the fields run down to a topaz sea
That chants in the coral piers,
And never's the day but ships come in
That have sailed a thousand years.

Where the feet of time are shod in silk
And never a head turns gray,
Where the wise men stand at the garden gates
To hear what the hare-bells say.

Where elves have planted a tall Maypole
And decked it in ropes of joy,
Where love and laughter are all that move
In the heart of girl and boy.

But they who go to the hills of dreams
Shall seek what they cannot find—
O bells of a hale world, call them back
To the loves they left behind.

NEED INTELLIGENT INTEREST AT STATE FARM

Intelligent interest throughout the state would solve many of the problems which are confronting the managers and patrons of the state farm for women in Lyme. In a talk before the Prinsoners Aid chapter of the King's Daughters at Hartford, Mrs. Mary Waters, a member of the committee on delinquent women, which inspected the farm last spring, emphasized this and spoke of the more salient points of the daily life of the women committed to the care of the state, and of the methods which are being taken to fit them for a life of future usefulness.

In the farm women of over sixteen years of age are taken. The state has no other facilities for caring for them. Connecticut, in building up this institution, had the advantage of starting in late and could profit by the failure and successes of other states. Eight hundred acres were put aside for the use of the state, and a fine institution is now being conducted. Beside the women, twenty-four babies are being cared for until they shall reach two years of age. The problem then is, Mrs. Waters said, shall they be entrusted to their mothers, or shall they be put in institutions? Mrs. Waters feels that a good institution is better than a poor mother, but on the other hand, having her child with her has often been the means of a woman's regeneration.

Statistics show that sixty per cent. of the women discharged from the farm are doing well. As to the ways in which they spend their days, they do almost all the work of the farm, the laundry, cooking and sewing. In their leisure moments they swim and fish in the lake, which is included in the farm's property, go on picnics and give amateur dramatics. Mrs. Waters spoke of the ill-ordered homes from which most of these girls and women come and asked that a greater interest be taken in the problem, not only of those already at the farm, but in those who may have to go there if they are not cared for.

PETER A. TOOLIN FOUND DEAD IN HIGHWAY --- FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED

Peter A. Toolin, about 50, 11 Colver street, New London, and employed as assistant paymaster by the Robert Gair company, Montville, was found dead at Station 15, Waterford, early Thursday morning and from all appearances Toolin was the victim of an assassin's weapon, for his head was so terribly crushed that it was practically impossible for him to have sustained such extensive wounds in any other manner than by being beaten by a blunt instrument, for the skull was beaten so terribly that the ground in the vicinity of where the body was found showed plainly the victim's blood and brains a distance of about 15 or 20 feet.

Toolin could not have received such extensive injuries by being struck by an automobile and had he been lying in the highway he would be next to impossible for the victim to have received such injuries possibly a heavy motor truck passed over the top of the skull and so far as can be determined no heavy truck was observed by autoists in that vicinity immediately preceeding the finding of the body.

The state police, Groton barracks, conducted an investigation throughout today and were unable to unearth a single tangible clew that might lead to revealing the manner Toolin sustained his death, and the authorities are totally in the dark as to how Toolin came to his death.

Toolin was well known, being the son of Peter and Annie Toolin, and is survived, besides his parents, by four brothers, Thomas M. Toolin, of Waterville, N. Y.; John M. Toolin, Detroit, Mich.; William E. Toolin, Forrestville, Conn., and Robert Toolin, New London.

Toolin was a member of the Coon club, Chesterfield, and with others conducted a dance there Wednesday night. About midnight Toolin and several friends motored to the dance hall at Station 15 1-2, owned by Carl Reynolds, and where another dance was in progress. While at the Reynolds dance hall something occurred that displeased Toolin and he left the building, going outside and away from the other dancers and his friends. When a search was made for Toolin by his companions he was nowhere to be found. About 2.15 o'clock an automobile in which William Buckley, 82 Blackhall street, New London, and Hewitt Brake, 946 Ocean avenue, were passengers, came along and observing a form alongside the highway, investigated only to find that the victim was apparently dead and terribly lacerated. The autoists came to New London and reported their gruesome find to Patrolman Michael Dorsey, on lower Bank street. Officer Dorsey hurried to a police signal box and reported the information to Lieut. Benjamin Beebe. Lieutenant Beebe communicated with the state police barracks, as the New London police were without authority to act outside the city limits. Sergeant Clifford Gorgas hastened to the scene of the accident, arriving there about 2.30 o'clock. Toolin's body was identified through papers found in the clothing and the body was still warm, showing that death had occurred but a short time before.

An examination of the body showed that the entire top of the skull had been crushed, so great was the disfiguration of the head that it was with difficulty that identification could be established by the facial features and expression. Medical Examiner Ross Black was notified and after conducting brief examination caused the body to be removed to the undertaking establishment of James N. Kelley in New London.

The state police and the county authorities will continue to conduct an investigation Friday and are hopeful that information then obtained will unravel the mystery.

Toolin always carried a considerable sum of money on his person but only $5 was found in his clothing.

THOUSANDS OF WORKERS TO SELL CHRISTMAS SEALS

More than a thousand adult and 25,000 juvenile workers will Friday morning begin the 17th annual Christmas Seal sale in Connecticut.

Acting as local agents of the State Tuberculosis Commission, 65 general health or specialized tuberculosis organizations will launch the campaign in the cities and large towns of the state, while the commission will conduct a mail sale in towns where no tuberculosis unit is organized.

Methods of conducting the canvass by which every city and large town raises its tuberculosis fund for 1925, include personal solicitation by the society or committee, a mail sale of $1 or $2 worth of seals, or a booth sale. In most cases these various methods are mingled.

In perhaps 25 communities of the state, school children are used in the campaign more or less generally. In two or three places, no other canvass is made than that of the school children.

The mail sale was the original seal sale method when the movement 17 years ago was begun in different states. Then letters containing seals were sent to friends of the health movement. The plan secured general support and sympathy, the booth sale followed and in some places the campaign has been expanded by solicitation for larger amounts for community tuberculosis work.

From a seal sale of about $7,000 the first year, the sum of $93,000 was raised in Connecticut last year, by the State Tuberculosis Commission to promote its educational and preventive work, tuberculosis nursing, relief in acute cases, and to aid in continuing the 25 tuberculosis clinics which it has organized in different cities and towns of the state.

Dr. Stephen J. Maher, chairman of the state commissioner said that he hoped that $100,000 would be raised this year, because of the need for expansion of the local tuberculosis work in several communities. Of the sums raised by each local unit 85 per cent. remains for its home tuberculosis warfare.

Aside from the financial canvass, talks will be given in the schools and films and slides shown in the motion picture theatres, pointing out how the disease can be prevented by proper nourishment and fresh air and how successfully the state and local agencies are curing cases reached in time.

Next Sunday the country over, the clergymen will refer to the national campaign against disease, particularly tuberculosis, and in several cities, talks on disease prevention will be given before men's luncheons and women's clubs under the auspices of the local organizations.

The campaign which will open Friday will continue until Christmas eve.

VETERANS UPGED TO FILE BONUS APPLICATIONS

The war department is making every effort to "speed up" the rate at which bonus applications are being received. There are approximately four million veterans of the army entitled to the benefits of the adjusted compensation act of whom only 1,500,000 have filed applications. A clerical force of several thousand men are engaged in preparing bonus applications for settlement and the final date on which applications may be filed has been set as January 1st, 1925. However, the sooner all applications are filed, the earlier this clerical force can be released, and a very large saving to the government, and the taxpayer, effected. Before it can be released, however, it will be necessary to have heard from each veteran or dependent whether or not he intends to make application, since no indication at all from the veteran obliges the war department to remain in readiness until the final date to meet the claim, if presented. The war department therefore urges all veterans either to apply for their bonus or to write the adjustment general stating they do not intend to apply.

It is apparent that compliance with this simple request on the part of all veterans and dependents will be to the best interests of all concerned. The taxpayers will be saved a huge sum of money in salaries for clerks engaged in this work, the burden of the post office department will be earlier relieved and the veteran will sooner have the insurance, and greater protection for himself and family. Many veterans will die before January 1st, 1925, leaving their families in financial distress. More "red tape" will be required then for the distressed wife or children to secure the bonus, whereas a few minutes time on the part of the veteran now will save that bother for the loved ones.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS COVER FIVE MILES ON TREASURE HUNT

The treasure hunt conducted by the Y. M. C. A. Thursday morning, under the supervision of Boys' Secretary Emery Davis, proved to be the most successful ever held by the association and 125 boys participated in the hunt for treasures which took them over a course of about five miles.

The treasure seekers left the "Y" building on Main street at 9.30 o'clock and followed the trail to Franklin square, then back through Main street and over Preston bridge to the Buwell Athletic field where the first of the 35 treasures was found. The hunt then continued out the Westerly road for a distance of about two and one-half miles, treasures being found alongside the road, behind trees and in abandoned barns and sheds about the road side. The boys proved themselves to be clever treasure seekers and the treasures were soon captured by 45 of the boys, many finding more than one. These treasures were valuable articles donated by Main street merchants and will be greatly prized by the boys.

After the last outside treasure had been located a marathon race was held back to the Y building and Frank Barber captured the prize making the run in the best time. Four treasures were found at the Y building after which the hunt concluded about 12.30 o'clock. The affair was a great success and the boys are looking forward to another hunt in the near future.

URGE VETERANS TO FILE CLAIMS BEFORE DEC. 6TH

All veterans in Connecticut are urged to file their claims for the adjusted world war compensation on or before December 6th, 1924. On that date, all army recruiting stations through the state will be open from 8 a. m., till midnight, and have on hand a supply of applications, envelopes, etc. They are anxious to help all veterans, or any one entitled to the bonus to file his claim.

The veterans of the World war throughout the country have been slow in sending in applications. Connecticut has sent in about one-third of those expected, and the delay results in idleness for the thousands of war department special clerks assigned to the task of preparing claims.

All veterans are urged therefore to take advantage of the bonus by December 6th in order that the adjutant general may release this force, and relieve the taxpayer of this needless salary burden.

It is also pointed out many veterans will die before January 1, 1928, the final date on which applications may be filed. Those who have delayed will simply cause their wives or mothers extra trouble in securing their insurance. In thousands of cases the money will be sorely needed at that time, but the validity of each claim will have to be examined before payment will be made. A little foresight now, will save loved ones many anxious hours in time of tribulation.

Those veterans who do not desire to take advantage of this congressional award are asked to go to a recruiting office and sign a form letter to that effect. An expression of this kind will enable the adjutant general to reduce the force engaged in this work, since an intelligent estimate can be made of the amount of work remaining undone.

Bear in mind that date of December 6th, and for your own sake go to any authorized army recruiting office or American Legion, and file your claim on or before December 6th.

To Hold Annual Meeting.

AUTOS WORTH $1,000,000 RETURNED TO OWNERS

Through information secured from the files of the state motor vehicle department, stolen automobiles valued at over a million dollars have been recovered and returned to their rightful owners in the past seven years, according to a statement made by a Hartford agency which is engaged entirely in running down motor vehicle thefts.

New Haven has led the state in the number of motor vehicle thefts reported. In the first three months of this year, 90 cars were reported stolen in that city as against a total of slightly over 200 reported to have been stolen in the entire state during all of last year.

This epidemic of thefts resulted in a thorough investigation, in which the state motor vehicle and police departments co-operated with insurance companies and detectives. Thousands of original applications in the files of the motor vehicle department have been examined to date and 200 photostat copies of suspicious applications were prepared by the state library, as a result of which twenty arrests were made within two months, several of those charged pleaded guilty in the superior court at New Haven to counts charging them with the theft of four or more machines. When examined at the New Haven county jail, these prisoners gave information to detectives which accounted for at least sixty of the ninety cars included in the investigation. The value of these sixty automobiles was estimated conservatively at $50,000.

The results were so satisfactory that one of the detectives who took a leading part in the investigation wrote to the state motor vehicle department a letter of appreciation in which he said: "Coming in contact with the various motor vehicle departments throughout the country as I do, it has been forcibly brought to my attention that the system under which your department operates is so far ahead of the others that it leaves little opportunity for comparison."

Drink Hot Water With Meals to Stop Stomach Disorders

WHAT PHYSICIANS ADVISE

Thousands of unfortunate people suffer almost daily from dyspepsia, indigestion, fermentation, sour, acid stomach, flatulence, gases or distress after eating. If they would only form the agreeable habit of slowly drinking after each meal a glassful of hot water containing a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia, they would soon find their stomach so strengthened and improved that they could eat the richest and most satisfying meals without the least symptom of indigestion.

Nearly all so-called digestive troubles are caused by an excess of acid and an insufficient blood supply in the stomach, causing the food to ferment and sour before digestion can take place. A glass of hot water will draw the blood to the stomach and the Bisurated Magnesia will neutralize the stomach acids and make the food contents bland and sweet. Easy, natural digestion without distress of any kind is the result. Bisurated Magnesia is not a laxative, is harmless, pleasant and easy to take and can be obtained from any reliable local druggist. Do not confuse Bisurated Magnesia with other forms of magnesia—milks, citrates, etc. but get it in the pure Bisurated form (powder or tablets) especially prepared for this purpose.

CAREER OF CHARLES CURTIS, REP. SENATE FLOOR LEADER

Had Served Fourteen Years in the House, Before Entering the Senate of Which He Has Been a Member For a Like Period—Mr. Curtis Was the First Senator of Indian Blood—First Ten Years of His Life Was Passed on Reservation in Kansas—Then Became a Jockey—Later Became a Newsboy and Hack Driver — Subsequently Studied Law—Fought the Liquor Ring in Topeka When Kansas Became a Prohibition State—Has Been Republican "Whip" in the Senate—Senator Watson of Indiana is to Be Assistant Leader and "Whip".

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 28.—Thirty-two years ago, Charles Curtis began at Washington a career, which was crowned today with his selection as republican floor leader of the senate. He served fourteen years in the house of representatives and has been in the senate an equal time. Mr. Curtis was the first senator of Indian blood. His father was a soldier in the Union army during the Civil war and his mother a member of the Pottawatomie Indian tribe. He is a member of the Kaw Tribe. The first ten years of his life was passed on a reservation, where he learned the horsemanship that sent him throughout Kansas for nine years as a jockey. The boy recognized the need of schooling, however, and left the race tracks for the public schools of Topeka, selling newspapers and driving hacks to earn his livelihood.

In 1879 he entered a law office here and five years later climbed to the first rung in the long political ladder he has persistently ascended since. His first office was as Shawnee county attorney and in this capacity he fought the liquor ring in Topeka, under the then new prohibition law of Kansas. It was said he never lost a case as prosecutor in these years.

Elected to congress by a flattering majority in 1892, he remained there, serving part of the time as "whip," or until 1907, when he was sent to the senate. He immediately became assistant "whip" there.

With the exception of 1912-15, when he was defeated by W. H. Thompson in the democratic landslide, Senator Curtis has been a constantly powerful force in the senate. He was an early advocate of woman suffrage and has been a leader in farm and Indian affairs legislation. He was born in North Topeka, Kas., January 25, 1860, the son of O. A. Curtis and Helen Pappan-Curtis, a daughter of Julia Conville, who was mentioned in the treaty of 1825 between the United States government and the Kansas Indians.

Senator Curtis was married in 1884 to Annie E. Baird, who died last summer after a long illness. They had three children.

REPUBLICAN ORGANIZATION IN SENATE COMPLETED

Washington, Nov. 28.—Republican organization of the senate in preparation for opening the new session on Monday was completed today by the unanimous election of Senator Curtis of Kansas, as the party leader and of Senator Watson of Indiana, as assistant leader and "whip."

Senator Curtis was unopposed for the leadership, Senator Warren of Wyoming, the senior member of the chamber in point of service, announcing that he did not desire the post, and other potential candidates withholding their names when the question was up. The Kansas senator lost no time in announcing a new programme designed to expedite legislation and afford harmonious co-operation with the executive branch.

The steering committee will be contened periodically Senator Curtis said, to arrange lights of way for important measures, and more frequent party conferences will be held on legislative matters than has been the custom in recent years.

The legislative calendar for the coming session will be confined largely, in the opinion of leaders, to routine appropriation measures and to such farm relief and reclamation bills as have administration backing. Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, a leader in the senate reclamation group, conferred with President Coolidge today on the congressional calendar. He reiterated his opinion that an extra session would be necessary to afford adequate consideration on farm relief and irrigation problems.

While the report of the committee on committees, assigning the three new members—Senators Means of Colorado, Metcalf of Rhode Island and Butler of Massachusetts—and filling vacancies left by the deaths of Senators Lodge and Frandegee will not be rendered until next week, the line-up of standing senate committees was clear today as placing the west in control of more than one role to senate leadership. Thirteen of the principal committees will be supervised by senators from west of the Mississippi against five headed by eastern senators. Those credited with western helmsmen are agriculture, Norris, Nebraska; appropriations, Warren, Wyoming; claims, Gooding, Idaho; commerce, Jones, Washington; education, Phippis, Colorado; finance, Smoot, Utah; foreign relations, Borah, Idaho; immigration, Johnson, California; Indian affairs, Harreld, Oklahoma; privileges and elections, Spencer, Missouri; public lands, Ladd, North Dakota; rules, Curtis, Kansas; judiciary, Cummins, Iowa.

PROPAGANDA ABROAD BY COMMUNISTS OF RUSSIA

Moscow, Nov. 28—(By the A. P.)—That the communist international is carrying on propaganda abroad was admitted today by Premier Rykoff in discussing Russia's present situation among the world governments. He argued, however, that the international was an organization independent of the soviet government.

"Affiliated with the communist international," he said, "are communists parties which are prosecuting their work legally in England, France, the United States and other countries. We have no reason to refuse representatives of these parties protection or the right of refuge, nor can we forbid them to co-ordinate their activities."

The premier said he considered the political movement to the 'right' in Great Britain, Germany and the United States, but that this movement only brought Europe much nearer an armed struggle. He felt that Germany's acceptance of the Dawes plan forfeited that country's economic independence, but he foresaw the ultimate joining of Germany and the soviet in the closest relations.

The soviet premier said nothing had happened in the past year to persuade the soviet government to join the league of nations.

"We shall never link our foreign policy with the decisions of a league which is organized for the sole purpose of exercising an entente dictatorship over Europe," he added.

Remarking that Russias' international importance had been greatly enhanced since last year by reason of her recognition by numerous foreign powers, M. Rykoff admitted, on the other hand, that the present international situation represents a most complicated period in the history of Russia's foreign policy.

"It is quite clear from the notes recently received from Great Britain," he said, "that our foreign relationship is undergoing a transformation which may possibly prove dangerous to the soviet union."

HISTORIC FLAG OVER THE TOMB OF WOODROW WILSON

Washington, Nov. 28.—The historic American flag, carried at the head of the first contingent of American troops to parade in London after the entry of the United States into the World war, is to be placed above the tomb of Woodrow Wilson.

American Engineer troops carried the flag overseas and throughout the war. When they paraded in London in the summer of 1917, the flag was saluted by King George, and its bearers were described as the first foreign soldiers to march in the British capital since 1688.

Officers of one of the engineer regiments presented the flag to President Wilson and Mrs. Wilson has decided that it shall be placed at the crypt in Bethlehem chapel here, where the commander-in-chief of America's World war forces is entombed.

FIRST AWARDS SOON BY THE WOODROW WILSON FOUNDATION

New York, Nov. 27—The Woodrow Wilson Foundation's jury of award, meeting at Boston, has decided to grant its first annual prize of $25,000 for "meritorious service of a public character tending to the establishment of peace through justice."

Norman H. Davis, president of the foundation, is expected to announce the name of the winner next week.

The 1924 award will inaugurate the work of the foundation created two years ago by public subscription in recognition of the president "who furthered the cause of human freedom and was instrumental in pointing out effective methods for the cooperation of the liberal forces of mankind in the world."

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president-emeritus of Harvard University, is chairman of the jury of award which, from nominations reported to have been received from all of the world, chose the brand of meritorious service to be awarded and the winner of the $25,000.

Under the foundation by-laws there are four classes of "meritorious service of a public character"—devoted to the establishment of peace through justice, to democracy, to public welfare and to liberal thought.

IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS WITH FAVORABLE ROSPECTS

New York, Nov. 28.—November is closing with definite improvement in business, and with favorable prospects. There is more confidence now and more disposition to increase commitments, with larger buying basis to fill immediate needs and to make provision for future requirements. The change for the better, alike in sentiment and in actually transactions, is evident in all sections of the country, reports generally indicating a distinct gain in activity, and those from the west reflecting the special stimulus of the higher prices for agricultural staples. Except in a few instances there has been no rapid expansion of operations but the current movement is the more wholesome on this account, and the sound basic conditions are regarded as foreshadowing a continuance of the commercial recovery along conservative lines.

REPORT ON AMERICAN RAILWAY CAR SERVICE

Washington, Nov. 28—Although railroad loaded more than one million cars of revenue freight during the week ending Nov. 14, reports to the American Railway Association's car service division show a surplus on that date of 145,589 freight cars in good repair, an increase of 39,141 over the week ending Nov. 7.

The surplus was divided into the following classes:

Coal cars, 79,111; increase 19,014; box cars 45,304, increase 8,570; stock cars 7,786, increase 1,303; refrigerator cars 4,096, increase 728.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Egyptian Protest in Belgium

Brussels, Nov. 28—The Belgian senate and chamber today received the protest of the Egyptian chamber against the recent British ultimatum. The socialists of both houses decided to interpellate the government, especially foreign minister Hymans, regarding the situation.

SENATOR PEPPER URGES ELECTION OF BINGHAM

Washington, Nov. 28.—Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania today sent the following telegram to J. Hnery Roraback, chairman of the republican state central committee of Connecticut:

"The country has declared for Calvin Coolidge because of its confidence in his ability to get sane results. Without a sustaining majority in the senate, he will be powerless to justify the confidence of the voters. Without a republican in the late Senator Brandegee's place, the administration majority will be jeopardized. Connecticut will be doing the nation a service if it sends Hiram Bingham to Washington. He thinks straight, talks sense, works hard and is loyal to the high ideals of public service."

PLEADED WITH RHINELANDER NOT TO MARRY HIS DAUGHTER

New Rochelle, N. Y., Nov. 28.—George Jones, father-in-law of wealthy young Leonard Kip Rhinelander who recently sued to annul his marriage to Alice Beatrice Jones, pleaded with Rhinelander not to marry his daughter before the marriage took place, Samuel F. Swinbourne, Mrs. Rhinelander's attorney, declared today. Testimony to this effect will be introduced in opposition to the annulment suit, Swinburne said.

Swinburne said that in his answer to the suit, which he will file in the Westchester county court at White Plains tomorrow or early next week, he will make general and specific denial of the allegations on which the annulment proceedings are based.

In his suit Rhinelander alleged that Miss Jones had concealed from him "the fact that she had negro blood in her veins." Also, the papers said, Rhinelander ceased to live with his wife as soon as he learned of her antecedents.

"I will enter general denial to all this," Swinburne said. "I also will introduce some letters into the case which should prove interesting. They were written by Rhinelander to Miss Jones during courtship, when he sometimes sent her as many as three letters a day. This question of 'color,' I think I will be able to show, is discussed in these letters.

"I will also prove that Mrs. Rhinelander's father called on the young man sometime before the wedding and pleaded with him not to marry his daughter. He told him that he had his daughter's interests at heart in making this plea, saying that the alliance must come to a bad end. He pointed out that he and his family were English working people and that there was a social gulf between his daughter and Rhinelander which could not be bridged."

The attorney denied reports that attorney for Rhinelander's father, Philip Rhinelander, had made an offer of settlement of the affair out of court.

NEWS FROM EGYPT NOT CONSIDERED ALARMING

London, Nov. 28 (By the A. P.)—The news from Egypt today was less reassuring than yesterday, but still, in the opinion of the authorities, it should not be considered alarming.

The precautionary process of arresting nationalist leaders in Egypt whose possible activities are considered dangerous to the maintenance of order, continued today, when a large number of deputies and other prominent persons were placed under safe keeping.

Those arrested appeared to be mainly men connected with the organization of former Premier Zagloul Pasha, and it is reported that some of them were engaged in plots against the lives of Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, the high commissioner, and others.

It is said the Egyptian government now is responsible for the business of interning persons of the dangerous element, who include some of the student leaders. The student activities, which appeared to have ceased upon Zagloul's advice to refrain from agitation, have broken out afresh and seem likely to form the center of attracting nationalistic efforts throughout the whole country against the British government's demands upon Egypt. Nothing, however, is y teavailable to test the possible strength of such agitation.

PROBING FOR POSSIBILITY TO DEPORT CHARLES PONZI

Washington, Nov. 28.—An investigation has been ordered by immigration officials into the presence in the United States of Charles Ponzi.

If assertions made in a statement filed by persons whose identity was not revealed, are substantiated, it is indicated that deportation proceedings may result.

Under the immigration law, as construed at the labor department, a person who has been admitted to the country may disqualify himself for remaining through criminality, becoming a public dependent, or in other ways demonstrating his unfitness to continue a resident of the country.

The statement filed with the department is said to point out the number of years Ponzi has served in prison since coming here a few years ago and to contend that his continuance in the country was under the circumstances contrary to the law.

FRENCH DEPUTIES VOTE CONFIDENCE IN MINISTRY

Paris, Nov. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Premier Herriot and the members of his government were given a vote of confidence in the chamber of deputies tonight 299 to 246—the smallest margin in a vote of confidence on strict party lines which M. Herriot and his colleagues have received since they resumed power.

The chamber gave a virtually unanimous vote on the appointment of a special commission of inquiry to inquire into election funds in the 1924 elections, but an effort by the right parties to extend the investigations to the 1919 elections was opposed by the government, M. Herriot making it a question of confidence.

Two More Slayings in Tong War in New York

New York, Nov. 28.—Two Chinese slayings in 24 hours told New York authorities today that the tong war was on again.

Close on the murder of Gong Chong Food, assassinated in a Bronx laundry a few hours before the tongmen's armistice expired, came today the fatal stagbinb of Cok Un as he lay abed in a Chinatown tenement.

Five reputed members of the rival Hip Sings and On Leongs were in Tombs prison tonight charged with homicide, while police accumulated four automotic pistols and a 14-inch butcher's knife as the spoils of war.

Chin Jack Lem of Cleveland and Chicago, called by the authorities the "most dangerous tongman at large," continued to occupy the spotlight among oriental leaders of the feud and their corps of legal counsel. He was captured here as a fugitive under indictment at Cleveland in an attempted $76,000 blackmail scheme and as a fugitive from Chicago, who put up $10,000 bail on the Cleveland charge, and then came to New York incognito to take command of hostile activities for one of the tongs.

After several weeks in the Tombs without bail, Chin Jack Lem today was placed by General Sessions Judge Koening in the custody of Cleveland detectives, to be taken to that city for trial.

Before the prisoner could be led out of court to the taxicab that was to take him to a railroad station, his custodians were served with a writ, issued by Supreme Court Justice Lydon, admitting the Chinese to $30,000 bail. Counsel for Chin Jack had obtained the writ on a contention that his client should be held for extradition first, since that was the city he last fled.

Police indicated today that Congressman Frank Oliver would be a witness against Mock Yiek Tong and Le Ha, whom the congressman is reported to have identified as the Chiscene of the Gong Chong Food murder, flinging away pistols as they ran.

After a conference with Ziang Ling Chang, Chinese consul general, Acting Police Commissioner John A. Leach tonight ordered police commanders to station, whenever advisable, uniformed policemen in Chinese restaurants, laundries and other places where celestials congregate in order to prevent further outbreaks of tong warfare. The commissioner said that his department would ask for speedy trials of all Chinese arrested for criminal offenses, and promised that special vigilance would be observed in order to protect peaceful Chinese.

Bank Robber Was Foiled by Teller

Bandit Fled When Teller Disregarded Threat and Sounded an Electric Alarm.

New York, Nov. 27.—The courage and resourcefulness of Abraham Greengold, teller at the Chelsea Exchange bank at Broadway and Forty Eighth streets, today frustrated an attempted hold-up and saved the bank several thousand dollars. The holdup man, young and well dressed, entered the bank during the noon-day rush when the streets outside were crowded and many patrons were in the bank.

The teller, counting currency, looked up as the young man shoved into his cage a check for $3,000 payable to "W. J. Robinson," and drawn on the Bayside, N. Y., national bank. "Look at the back of it," tersely commanded the check's owner. Typewritten on the reverse side Greengold read:

"My partner and I have you covered. If you move hand or foot to sound an alarm you die. At ten thirty this morning we killed a teller in the Gotham National bank when he tried to duck below the counter. If an alarm is given we have to shoot our way out and the first bullet will be yours. Step back six inches, keep your eyes on the counter, and pay this check quickly."

Greengold had noted that the young man carried his overcoat over his left arm and held his right hand in his side coat pocket, clasping what looked like a gun whose muzzle was aimed directly at the teller. The highwayman stood at ease, smiling quizzically. Before Greengold had finished reading his orders, another note, pencilled on the back of a deposit slip, was thrust at him. It read:

Greengold dropped to the floor, reaching down to an electric alarm communication with the bank's special police. The highwayman turned to run and collided with Leyis Rothchild, vice president of the bank, who sought to hold him. The fugitive flung him off plunged through a half score startled bank patrons and into the street, where he was lost in the crowd.

JURY FINDS CONSPIRACY TO EXTORT MONEY FROM PRINCE

Londno, Nov. 28 (By the A. P.).—The jury delivered its verdict today in the extraordinary suit brought by C. E. Robinson, a former bookmaker, against the Midland bank, but judgment was deferred pending legal arguments which will be heard at a later day. For eight days the case aroused widespread interest, because of charges brought out that an unnamed Indian prince, referred to as "Mr. A.," was held up for blackmail after he had been discovered in a Paris apartment with Mrs. Robinson.

The jury found that there had been a conspiracy to extort money from the prince and that the mysterious potentate, whose name was kept secret for "reasons of state," parted with £150,000 while his mind was unsettled through fear. It found, however, that neither Mr. Robinson nor his wife were parties to the conspiracy.

In the course of his summing up, Judge Darling remarked on the risk being taken by Montague Noel Newton, who had testified to having posed as the husband of Mrs. Robinson. "He is in danger now," the judge said. "There is no doubt of it."

Newton's appearance, when it was supposed he was abroad, has been one of the most startling incidents of the trial, and the judge's remark is considered very significant.

TWO WOMEN YOU KNOW

There's the one who puts on her street costume, dabs a bit of powder on her nose and sallies forth to shop. She looks here, there and everywhere. She hunts and hunts, and h-u-n-t-s. When she arrives back home she is jazzy and jadded—all mussed up, mentally and physically.

There's the other who really has learned the shopping art. She reads the advertisements before she starts out. She finds out exactly what she wants and where to get it. Then she goes straight downtown and right to the store which has it. In this way she saves time, money and effort. She comes home fresh as a daisy and ready to get the family a good meal instead of wishing they could go to a cafeteria.

And the moral is—"Bulletin advertisements form that straight line which is the shortest distance between two points."

A DECISION ON SUGAR DUTY SOON TO BE MADE

Washington, Nov. 27.—President Coolidge expects soon to announce his decision on the report of the tariff commission recommending a reduction in the sugar duty.

The report was presented to the president sometime ago, and he subsequently asked for additional data from the commission and the department of agriculture, which has just been received. The commission, it is understood, is divided three to two in favor of a cut in the present sugar duty, with the minority opposing any change in the present rate.

BORAH CALLED INTO CONFERENCE BY COOLIDGE

Washington, Nov. 28—Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, was called into conference by President Coolidge today on farm and reclamation legislation. After the conference the senator reiterated his belief that an extra session of the new congress would be necessary after next March 4 to take up farm relief, although he would give his support to enactment at this session of the legislation to be recommended by the agricultural commission.

LEAKS IN OCEAN BOTTOM CAUSE OF EARTHQUAKES

San Francisco, Nov. 28.—Leaks in the bottom of the ocean are the prime cause of earthquakes and volcanoes, Captain T. J. J. See, govergment astronomer at Mare Island, Calif., told the Commonwealth club today.

Captain See has come to the conclusion after years of research, that sea floors contain certain "leaks." Water seeps down through the earth's crust to merge with a molten rock below and, by increasing the volume of the molten mass as well as by the creation of steam, sets two mighty forces at work alternating the contour of the enveloping earth crust.

He also cited the world ridge which surrounds the Pacific and Indian oceans and the Andes of South America as typical samples of "readjustments." He held that the classification of earthquakes as volcanic and tectonic and without a common origin was an error.

"The only difference between volcanic and tectonic quakes is that in one case (volcanic) a vent exists for the escape of vapor into the atmosphere and in the other case (tectonic) the forces are relieved by adjustment of the earth's crust without a visible eruption," he contended. "The cause is everywhere the same—ocean leakage."

U. S. DEBT COMMISSION TO DISCUSS THE FRENCH DEBT

At a Meeting in Washington December 1st the Commission Will Be Informed of Results of Conferences Between Secretary Mellon and Ambassador Jusserand—Government Officials in Washington Are Pleased With the Information That France is Looking to a Refunding Settlement.

Washington, Nov. 28.—The French debt to the United States will be discussed by the American debt commission at a meeting here December 1. Members of the commission will be informed at that time of results of a series of conferences between Secretary Mellon and Ambassador Jusserand looking to a possible basis for refunding the French government's obligation, which is the second largest amount loaned by the United States to its associates during the World war.

Meetings between Mr. Mellon and the ambassador have been entirely informal and their discussions are understood to have been directed to a clarification of the understanding between the two governments with respect to the French fiscal position. The talks, however, are expected to lead to tangible results, although the meeting of the commission, which was called today by Secretary Mellon, probably will do no more than go over the situation as it is now known by the treasury head.

In some quarters, it was indicated tonight, there is a belief that a policy toward the French debt might grow out of the meeting of the commission and that a definite statement to that government of what the United States can and cannot do might be forthcoming. Official comment was refused on these reports, however.

The American commission always must have in mind that its settlements are subject to congressional approval, it was explained, and the views given the French representative therefore have been of a character designed for information rather than statements delimiting the terms which may be incorporated in a settlement.

Government circles concerned with fiscal policies received the information that steps were being taken by France looking to a refunding settlement with undisguised satisfaction. To them it meant another move in the direction of cutting more off the great public debt, much of which was built up through borrowing from the American people with which to advance funds to the allied powers.

EDUCATIONAL CENTER IS MOVING WESTWARD

New York, Nov. 28—America's educational center is moving westward, Dr. John Martin Thomas, president of Pennsylvania state college, told delegates to the sixteenth annual session of the inter-fraternity conference today.

"The fraternity world cannot afford to be indifferent to the expansion of public higher education," he said. "No fraternity claiming to be national can keep the geographical center of its chapters east of the Allegheny Mountains or ignore the state colleges and universities. If it adopts such a provincial or prejudiced policy it will find in a few years that it is outside of the educational life of the nation."

Dr. Thomas said investigation had shown that public education was increasing. From 1890 to 1918, he said, state colleges and universities increased their attendance 309 per cent., while private institutions in the same period registered an increase of 143 per cent.

"Time may come when Harvard and Columbia and all the distinguished colleges of the northeastern section will play as small a relative part in the collegiate education of the nation as the historic academies of the same section now play in a secondary education," he added. "There are now 15,000 public high schools in America. A hundred years ago there was none. Now we are building one a day."

Dr. Harry E. Mock said the report of a college health survey committee which submitted a questionnaire to 131 schools showed that only 25 per cent. did not list and inspect rooming places for students and 58 per cent. had no general program of sanitation.

Cornell, the University of California and the University of Michigan lead in the maintenance of health among students, he said the report showed.

MUTINY IN KHARTUM WAS LIMITED TO ABOUT 200 MEN

Cairo, Nov. 28 (By the A. P.)—It is understood here that the Egyptian troops in the sudan are giving no trouble to the British, and that the mutiny at Khartum today, in which one British and two Syrian physicians were killed was limited to about two hundred men of the Eleventh Sudanese regiment, among whom there were several casualties when British troops fired upon them. The remainder of the Sudanese battalion aided the British in overpowering the mutineers.

No undue alarm, it is said, need be felt regarding the situation at Khartum; but it is not known just what the exact status there is as the telegraph lines are cut.

The students committee today published a manifesto declaring its opposition to the present Egyptian government and calling the attention of all classes of the people to a rumor that efforts are being made to form a new party "which will recognize the acts of the aggressors."

The students urge that the entire nation pursue a policy of non-cooperation. They themselves have decided to remain on strike.

PLATFORM ANNOUNCED BY SENATORIAL NOMINEE HOLT

New Haven, Nov. 28.—Hamilton Holt, democratic candidate for United States senator to succeed the late Senator Brandegee, in a statement issued tonight, announced his platform as follows:

"I favor America's entry into the world court as proposed by President Harding, Secretary Hughes and President Coolidge.

"I favor a statesmanlike revision of federal taxation based on economic fact and I hope to see abolished the outrage of publishing income tax returns.

"I uphold the Constitution of the United States and the supreme court, the bulwark of our rights and liberties.

"I deplore the tendency towards federal encroachment on traditional local self-government and home rule.

"The tariff should never be a political issue. It is economic. I favor having the tariff in the hands of experts."

Mr. Holt will make a number of speeches in the principal cities of the state, developing in detail his stand on the declarations in what he terms his political creed.

LAFOLLETTE READ OUT OF REPUBLICAN PARTY

Washington, Nov. 28.—Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, who bolted his party to become the independent candidate for president, and who long has been a thorn in the side of the republican senate organization, virtually was read out of the party today at a conference of senate republicans. Named with him in the formal resolution barring him from further conferences of republicans of the senate and from appointment to committee vacancies that may arise in the future were Senators Ladd, and Frazier, of North Dakota, and Brookhart of Iowa. These three men have been the principal supporters of the Wisconsin senator in fighting administration palns.

Action by the conference came unexpectedly. It was forced by a group of the younger senators, who did not agree with the older leaders that the question of reading out of the party those senators who failed to support President Coolidge and his running mate, Charles G. Dawes in the last election should be deferred at least until after the convening of the new congress elected on November 4.

The resolution, offered by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania was vigorously opposed in the conference by Senators Cummins, of Iowa, Howell of Nebraska and Harreld of Oklahoma. Its adoption also brought strong statements of disapproval from Senators Borah of Idaho, who is slated to succeed the late Henry Cabot Lodge as chairman of the foreign relations committee, and Norris of Nebraska, who is one of the insurgent leaders. Neither of theeg senators attended the conference.

Senator Borah expressed his views to President Coolidge at a conference arranged for the discussion of other matters. Afterwards, it was stated at the White House that the president had formed no opinion relative to the action of the republican conference. It was added that he likewise had reached no conclusion as to whether the action would be likely to have the effect of placing additional difficulties in the way of the administration's legislative programs.

Representative Longworth, of Ohio, the republican leader in the house, said that as far as he was concerned the action of the senate republicans would have no bearing on the previously voiced decision against such action by the house republicans at this session in the cases of Representative John M. Nelson, of Wisconsin, who was LaFollette's campaign manager, and other house insurgents identified with the LaFollette congressional bloc.

FORMER PRISON GUARD HAS BECOME INSANE

Hartford, Nov. 28.—Samuel C. Ritchie, former guard at the state prison at Wethersfield, convicted in the superior court of carrying a letter from a prisoner to a person outside the institution, has gone insane as the result of his confinement in the Hartford county jail, where he was sentenced to serve a four months' term. He is now in the state hospital at Middletown, where he was committed on an emergency order of Governor Templeton after serving 50 days of his sentence. So far as is known Ritchie was perfectly sane when he was first taken to jail. His affliction is said to be curable. The time he spends in the state hospital counts as a part of his term. His wife and four children in Waterbury are said to be in destitute circumstances.

J. McCormick.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office, 771 Main Street
Telephone 1131
Office Hours: 9:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 6 p. m.

Judge George E. Hinman occupied the bench at the short calendar session of the Windham county superior court, held in this city Friday, Judge William M. Maltbie was absent, due to the death of his mother. At Friday's session nearly all the civil business of the November term of court was completed, although adjournment was taken until Friday, December 12, when final business will come up which was to have been heard by Judge Maltbie.

A continuance of one month was ordered on the case of Frederick E. Wilcox vs. Eva M. Bland, a motion for further statuory continuance and other of notice which appeared on the short calendar.

Judgment for the plaintiff to recover $643.20 as per bill of particulars was given in the case of the Dyer Supply Company vs The Vito Construction Company. Judgment for failure to answer. The case of Philias Jodoin vs. The Connecticut Mills Co., arguments upon agreed statement of facts, was continued until Friday, December 12, to come up before Judge Maltbie, as was also the case of a motion of Attorney Frank B. Munn, of Winsted, to have the verdict recently rendered by a jury in the case of Morin vs. Pierce set aside and a new trial granted.

The uncontested divorce case of Emily E. Latham vs. Burt H. Latham was heard. The two are residents of North Windham and Chaplin, respectively, at the present time. Plaintiff alleges intolerable cruelty by her husband. They were married May 5, 1917. The plaintiff states that she was forced to leave her husband twice on account of his acts, which consisted of slapping her and driving her out of doors. She had reached the limit of her patience with her husband. The plaintiff's father, Henry Carpenter, corroborated this testimony. Judge Hinman granted the divorce and the restoration of the plaintiff's maiden name, Emily E. Lewis. Attorney King represented the plaintiff.

A special hearing was held on the application of Jesse Bryan, of Worcester, Mass., a former resident of this city, to have the court restore to him the custody of his three minor children, Ernestine 13, Alice 14, and Russell 11, now with their mother in Sacramento, California. The wife of the plaintiff secured a divorce from him a few years ago in the superior court, in a case that was contested by Byron. At that time Mr. Byron was given the custody of the two girls and the mother was given charge of the boy. Mrs. Byron who was Miss Watrous, was privileged to have the custody of the daughters during August each year. According to Byron, the mother spirited the children away one year ago and took them to California. Just before leaving with the children Mrs. Byron married a local man. It was later discovered where the children were. Byron was questioned by the court as to his work in Worcester, his home there and the manner in which he would care for the daughters if he had them back. Judge Hinman took the papers in the case and reserved decision.

The case of Elmer Brindamour vs. Phelias Beachemin was next taken up. The case is a suit to recover a sum of money for board at the rate of $8 a week for 44 weeks and five days. The plaintiff claims that at the request of defendant he took the latter from a hospital in Rhode Island to his home in Brooklyn, after agreement was made to board him, and that when he died the Brindamour family was to be taken care of. Mrs. Brindamour testified, as did also a number of neighbors from East Brooklyn that the defendant had not done any work about the Brindamour home. Other neighbors testified for the defense. Mrs. Brindamour said that the defendant was her uncle and had property that he never did any work around the house and simply came and went as he saw fit. He had never been requested to do any work and Mr. and Mrs. Brindamour denied that at any time had they asked the defendant to make out a will in their favor.

Phelias Beachemin testified that Brindamour had come to him four times at the hospital to beg him to come and live with him and that on the fourth occasion he accepted the offer. He had assisted in the chores around the place, taking care of a heifer, police dogs and chickens and on a number of occasions had made pea soup for the family. He claimed that the plaintiff had asked him several times to sign a paper but that he had refused to do so. He claimed that there had never been any agreement about board and that he had been told that he was welcome. He had left the Brindamours because the work was getting too hard and he had had words woth the plaintiff. Brief arguments were made by the attorneys in the case, Woodward for the plaintiff and Weisard for the defendant. Judge Hinman took the papers and reserved decision.

Court was then adjourned for two weeks.

From his home, 210 Jackson street, the funeral of Charles P. Baker was held Friday morning with services at the Brooklyn Congregational church at 11 o'clock. Rev. J. R. The bearers were Edward Bolles, Byron Hamblen, Herbert Ladd, Al [illegible] Richmond and John [illegible]. Arrangements were in charge of Kilmurray Brothers.

A Thanksgiving dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fryer, included Mr. and Mrs. Minot Fryer and children of this city, and Dr. Douglas Fryer and Dr. Lorine Pinette (Mrs. Lorine Wood) of New York city. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fryer were formerly of this city, residing for several years in Rockville and returned to this city in the fall. JEWETT CITY

Joseph La Bonte died at his home Friday morning, following an attack of heart trouble. Mr. La Bonte, who survived his wife eight years, was born in New York state, coming here 22 years ago.

Ill health, some little while ago, was the cause of his giving up his duties as sexton of St. Mary's church and caretaker for the rectory. Mr. La Bonte was conscientious in all matters, and faithful in every trust. His employers have only to say that in all matters at the church and rectory he was efficient and trustworthy.

The children who survive are: Joseph La Bonte Jr., of Brooklyn; George of Danielson; Eugene of Fall River; Dr. Napoleon La Bonte of Indianapolis, Ind., and Misses Mary and Antoinette of Jewett City.

Mr. La Bonte was an honored member of the order of St. Jean the Baptist, and of the Holy Name society.

Fine Vermont turkeys were offered in local markets Friday for 55 cents per pound. Without a doubt this is the lowest price ever reached for fine birds. Some of the papers told about 25 cents in Boston, but the observant citizen says they looked like the last rose of summer, to say nothing of suggestions offered by the olfactories.

FLEISCHMANN COMPANY IS NOT INVOLVED IN MERGER

New York, Nov. 28.—The Fleischmann company of this city today denied that it was involved in the proposed merger of the Continental Baking company, or any baking company or companies.

The federal trade commission at Washington recently announced that the Feischmann company was among several companies "which it is reported are considering the question of merging." The commission at the time said it was conducting an investigation to determine whether any of the anti-trust laws were being violated in connection with the proposed merger.

"Close Harmony" a New Comedy Produced By Arthur Hopkins Due at Lyceum, New London, for Matinee and Night Today.

One of the most interesting of the season's dramatic events at the Lyceum theatre, New London, is promised for this afternoon and tonight when Arthur Hopkins will present a new comedy entitled "Close Harmony" written by Dorothy Parker and Elmer Rice. The New London engagement of this play will be the occasion of the only performance of "Close Harmony" that will be given previous to its New York engagement which begins on Monday next at the Galety theatre, in that city.

Mr. Hopkins is noted for two major achievements in the world of the theatre; the ability to discover plays that are genuinely worth while, and the knack of gathering presenting companies of finely coordinated merit. His production of the already world-famed war play "What Price Glory" is a very recent instance; while his presentations of Ethel Barrymore in Pinero's "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" is another of his present season's achievements. Also within the space of a few years, Mr. Hopkins has to his credit such notable triumphs as John Barrymore's "Hamlet," "The Old Soak," "The Jest," "The Hairy Ape," and "The Deluge."

"Close Harmony" is heralded as a play unique in a plot, treatment and characterization. Its story has to do with a stamina-lacking, wife-ridden young man whose slightest wish is subordinated to the tyrannical dictation of his spouse, and the most surprising manner in which this subdued male is emancipated from the domination of his shrewish wife. In its minute and subtle study of character, the comedy is said to be comparable with "What Price Glory."

The cast assembled by Mr. Hopkins for this production includes the delightful Wanda Lyon, James Spottswood, Georgie Drew Mendum, Marie Curtis, Robert Hudson, Marie Haines, Frederick Burton and Arleen Blackburn.

Broadway Theater

We thought Rudolph Valentino had about reached the heights in screen entertainment when he chose Booth Tarkington's Monsieur Beaucaire as his "comeback" vehicle for Paramount after an absence of two years.

But "the sheik" has fairly outdone himself in A Sainted Devil, his latest production, which opens at the Broadway theater for four days starting Sunday. It's a Joseph Henaberry production and adaptation by Forest Halsey of the magazine story, Rope's End, by Rex Beach.

A Sainted Devil has to do with South America and South Americans—pictorially beautiful story of old Spanish customs against modern city life. It shows the virility of the Pampas against the sophisticated culture of Buenos Aires, the Paris of the Americas.

Valentino has a role that fits him to perfection. As a dashing young South American, fired by the pure Castilian blood of generations which courses through his veins, he makes a picture never to be forgotten.

Heleen D'Alcy, Nita Naldi, Louise Lagrange, Dagmar Godowsky, Ralphael Bongini, George Siegman and others have prominent roles in the strong supporting cast, and all give exceptionally good accounts of themselves.

Comedy orchestra and Kinograms are the short subjects. There will be no advance in the regular Sunday night prices so we advise you to be there early.

K—The Unknown

K—the Unknown who has successfully eluded the inhabitants of Norwich for the past four days will ride through Franklin square at noon time in a Buick car furnished by Mr. Williams of the Bu. agency.

The management of the Palace advises that he is not to be accosted while in the car but that he will leave the car within a quarter of a mile from the theatre after he has rode around the square several times so as to give every one a chance to see him. K— will be masked and will wear a fur coat but will come back into the square wearing the same clothes as shown in the picture in front of the theatre now. The winner will have to say: Are you K— the Unknown who is coming to the Palace theatre Sunday and carry a copy of either paper in his hand.

K— has issued a challenge to the police department, the boy scouts, the treasure hunters and all Norwich to identify him.

Watch for him on the square at 12.45 until one o'clock and be sure and carry a copy of The Bulletin in your hand.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Announcement is made that the gymnasium fund of Killingly High school is now in excess of $1600. This tidy sum has been accumulated by students at the school—students who by reason of circumstances will have passed out of the school, in all probability, before the gymnasium ever becomes a reality. This very fact is evidence of the spirit of those who are working for an ideal—not so much for themselves as for a school that has done so much for them and will do so much for others. It is the spirit that eventually will focus the attention of the townspeople on the need of a gymnasium for the school and get the action that will make it a reality. Year by year, through one effort and another, the students have accumulated a few dollars at a time until their gym fund is now over the $1600 mark. Having done that, they can do all, inasmuch as they have pointed the way and backed their ideal with their effort.

It will interest the hundreds of members of Christmas and Thrift clubs that are to draw down approximately $75,000 in checks within the next few days, these representing weekly savings over a period of 50 weeks, to know that throughout the United States such club members will receive from banks approximately $250,000,000.

This gigantic sum has been saved since last December by those who believe in spreading the burden of Christmas shopping costs over 50 weeks rather in the fortnight just before the holiday. It is of special interest that such a large sum as is to be released here will be paid out by Danielson's three banks. Although that is supposedly its object, not all the $75,000 will go for Christmas gifts. It appears that many club members like the idea of saving something through this medium each week. They spend part of what is represented in their checks and return the remainder to a permanent savings account. They have the fun of saving for Christmas and the additional joy of setting aside something out of this for a rainy day.

Within the next ten days the usual campaign for funds to buy Christmas cheer for the needy of Danielson will be under way. This custom has been long established in Danielson and is now regarded as a fixed benevolence of the holiday season. There is no great number of really needy families in Danielson, but some. Much of the real need is not within the knowledge of the general public, but there are those who know the deserving families and individuals and strive each year to do something for them at Christmas time. The public has its opportunity to aid in this good work by giving to the fund that will be created.

It is occasionally possible to print something that doesn't arouse more or less opposition. An occasion like that seems to have occurred recently. In a hopeful mood, a list of highways that may be made into state aid improved highways in this territory, under a plan suggested by the state highway commissioner, was printed in this column. Within a day letters began to come in from residents along these highways. "Keep after 'em" was the tenor of these missives; "it will do us good." And therein lies the point—"it will do us good." The aim of all worthwhile propaganda should be the general good of all, not a benefit for the individual. Therefore, the road list holds good. Improved highways are for the general benefit of all, even the person that has a trip over them as infrequently as once a year. It seems good to find a subject that doesn't rile someone, even though it be necessary tomorrow to write something that does.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Kennedy returned Friday from Hartford, where they spent the holiday with relatives.

There is a suggestion here that a bill may be introduced at the coming session of the legislature providing for inclusion in the automobile law of a provision that motorcyles shall carry lighted at night a small colored light mounted directly over the headlight. Such an arrangement, it is claimed, would at once establish an on-coming vehicle with only one headlight as a motorcycle and not an automobile with one headlight not working. It is believed the device would serve to prevent accidents.

The trapping season in this territory is now entering its best period. Furs are becoming prime. Though this thickly populated territory, one might be surprised to know the volume of the fur trade hereabouts and the money that is made out of it each year by trappers and fur dealers. The bulk of the pelts taken here are picked up by dealers in or near this territory, though some trappers sell direct in the large markets of the east. The business runs into scores of thousands of dollars each year.

Recent rainfalls in this section measure about 2 1-2 inches. This only partly makes up the shortage that was existent when the big drought was broken by the rain of a week ago. It is estimated that from 5 to 7 more inches of rain on the level will be required to restore the water supply to what is regarded as normal at the opening of December.

Assessors of Killingly will continue to be engaged during the next few weeks on the compilation of Killingly's grand list, based on returns made up to the opening of November. The ne wlist, as made by the assessors, will be complete in January.

A most astonishing bottom layer

YOU'LL be surprised (delighted, too) the first time you eat Lowney's Gold Stripe Chocolates. For they are packed with a bottom layer as fine, as choicely assorted, as the top.

That's unheard of in chocolates at only 60c a pound. It's unusual in packaged chocolates costing more than half as much again.

Lowney's Gold Stripe Assortments are based on a novel idea — chocolates of really fine quality in very inexpensive packages. "The high quality. They are the last-

High-Priced Chocolates in the Low-Priced Box!" No other 60c packaged chocolates can compare with them. Many 80c and $1.00 packages don't equal them.

Take home a box of Lowney's Gold Stripe Chocolates tonight. Three assortments:

Standard Chocolates and Bonbons

Brittles, Chewys and Nugats

NOANK

About 1 o'clock Thursday morning, after the watchman at the Main street railroad crossing had gone off duty a Nash car from New York, with a party of four, two men and two women, ran into a fast freight train going toward Providence. The two men were injured, the driver of the car had two teeth knocked out and his hip was swollen. He had to go to a doctor in town. The other fellow hurt his hip. Some of the railroad officials were over later. This is a bad crossing as motorists cannot see a train coming until it is right on the crossing. The front of the car was badly damaged and it will take about $500 to fix it up. The car was towed to a Mystic garage.

A Massachusetts automobile had hard luck on the way to spend Thanksgiving. The steering wheel gave way on Main street, near Jane Cousin's store. It was several hours before the party could go on its way.

GOVERNOR'S NEW VETO POWER.

The governor of Connecticut has long held the veto power. He has not, however, had the power to veto part of a bill and approve the remainder. Time and again the wisdom of such action has been recognized. Repeatedly would it have been an admirable thing could he have done so. Probably there hasn't been a governor who has not recognized the need of such authority.

Connecticut hasn't given complete authority in this direction to the governor, but it has, after a period of nearly four years, made it possible for the governor to deal in this manner with appropriation measures. When it was advocated back in 1921 the legislature gave its sanction to the amendment to the state constitution that would be necessary. Having received the approval of the legislature two years later, it was submitted to the people for ratification with the result that it received a three to one endorsement as disclosed this week in proclaiming the effectiveness of the law.

One of the important duties of the legislature is to appropriate money. Upon its expenditure depends to a large extent the revenue that must be raised. In the enactment of legislation it is no secret that the appropriation measures are crowded with much that might better be dispensed with, but which gets approval because there is no way of eliminating it, after it reaches the governor, without vetoing the whole measure. The impossibility of this can be appreciated when such bills fail to get to the governor in time for such action, and when it is understood that the passage of such bills are necessary for the conduct of the business of the state and its institutions.

By the new constitutional amendment which is now in effect, Connecticut has taken a wise step. It has acted upon a condition which clearly called for a remedy, and it has applied that remedy by providing that the governor can place his veto on those portions of an appropriation measure which he does not approve, but giving his approval to the remainder of the measure. It relieves a hitherto bad situation.

INTERSTATE BUS LINES.

Transportation problems multiply as the automobiles increase. In the regulation of machines and even bus lines within a state there appears to be no doubting the fact that the state has the authority. When it comes to bus lines from one state into another there is the claim that it is interstate commerce and that the authorities of the states are powerless.

Inasmuch as this question is bound to arise in more instances it is perhaps well that one case has already found its way to the United States supreme court. It is a matter in which Connecticut is interested as well as other states.

In the state of Washington the person who had intended to operate an interstate bus line was refused a license. He took an appeal to the state courts but there the state action was upheld. The appeal now comes before the United States supreme court where it was argued this week. The Washington state authorities denied the license on the same ground that lines which are intended to unfairly compete with others are denied the right. It was declared that existing service was adequate.

There is no interstate regulation of busses at the present time, but that is a point in connection with transportation which may require special attention in the not distant future. This is especially true if it is found that the states have no authority in such cases.

It was only recently that just such bus lines were established in Springfield running to Providence and to Hartford. In the latter instance in particular it was maintained that such a line would seriously interfere with the business of existing trolleys but because there was a situation which did not seem to have been provided for, because of the rapid development of bus lines, the disposition was to proceed until the time came when legislation should be provided to meet the situation. It is not improbable that if the highest court in the land accepts jurisdiction in this case that it will determine where the regulatory power lies and how far it can be extended.

PEACE OR BLOODSHED?

Is the world about to witness the opening of a new era in Mexico? In the interest of peace it is certainly to be hoped for. In the prospects which such a situation holds for Mexico it is greatly to be desired. Mexico has been torn and retarded by the action of its own people. If the day has come when they recognize the errors of the past and are determined to eliminate them in the future it is certainly worthy of worldwide attention.

At the same time when the present congress of this country is convening for its last session the new president of Mexico will be assuming his duties. It is to be a change from President Obregon to President Calles. During the presidency of Obregon revolution was ended and the country has gone along with but little trouble from the deplorable conditions which are created by such an upheaval. Obregon has been a revolution suppressor. President-elect Calles was favored by Obregon as his successor. For this reason it might be supposed that he was quite as much opposed to revolutions and would do his utmost to carry out the policies of the present chief executive, under whose administration there has been a marked improvement in the relations with this country.

Whether they amount to any more than rumors, the claims which are now being made that the inauguration of Calles will be accompanied by a revolution causes much interest to be attached to the change in administrations. Denials of any such development from both President Obregon and General Flores, who was defeated in the recent election and whose name has been connected with revolutionary activities, tend to establish confidence in the continuance of peace. For the well-being of Mexico the less it experiences of that kind of trouble the better for itself and for others. Mexico certainly needs the benefits of a long period of uninterrupted peace. Developments which have been retarded because of the lack of it are awaited and Mexico will be wise if it places a greater importance thereon than to seeking the blood of fellow countrymen.

BINGHAM FOR THE SENATE.

When the voters of Connecticut were called upon to choose a governor they selected Hiram Bingham. They made his plurality so large that there was no questioning the sentiment of the people. They expressed their desire at the same time in no unmistakable terms for the retention of Calvin Coolidge in the white house and for the giving him of every possible support by increasing the republican delegation in the lower house of congress to the full strength of five votes.

Since the election on November 4th there has been no change in the sentiment of the state concerning the ability of Hiram Bingham or the desirability of having Connecticut, through its representatives in Washington, give President Coolidge its solid support. Connecticut most certainly does not wish to place obstacles in the way of the president by sending as members of congress those who by their political complexion can be relied upon to stand in opposition to rather than in support of his policies. We do not believe that Connecticut is ready to send as its representative in so important a position as United States senator one who has been a voter in this state but three months.

The fitness of Hiram Bingham for senator has never been questioned any more than his ability to administer all the position of governor. He is a Connecticut man, not a summer visitor, and Connecticut has, invariably insisted upon sending one of its sons to a seat in the United States senate. Without a question it will continue to do so and all that is required to insure it is for the voters to get out to the polls on December 15 and insist upon it. Connecticut should show as much interest in backing up the president through electing Bingham as senator as it did in giving such big pluralities to both Coolidge and Bingham.

Both Coolidge and Connecticut need Bingham in Washington.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

November at least gave us a bit of good practice on the firing of the heater.

The man on the corner says: Some puzzles get much more attention than others.

The close of the football season today will permit more attention to be directed to indoor sports.

Every day people are finding out that the dictionary contains words they never knew or suspected.

Another way to tell when the heaters are working overtime is to watch the man who builds the ash piles.

Of course if there's no game, it matters little to the hunters whether they have a long or a short season.

Those who are having so much fun with the stock market may realize that what goes up invariably comes down.

It taxes the credulity to believe that Bryan and La Follette will remain quiet long enough to write their autobiographies.

Delightful as November has been, there's a strong desire in this locality at least that December show a decidedly wet disposition.

If Santa Claus hasn't been anticipating a brisk Christmas trade he has failed to properly interpret the sentiment of the people.

Senator Norris may be bitter because of the talk of disciplining insurgents, but he knows the cause of it and what will prevent it.

Down on Long Island catchup bottle caps have been pounded into lumps and sold for gold nuggets. Every minute yields a new one. Next!

Big money is said to have been made on the stock exchange since election, and sooner or later through the income tax, Uncle Sam expects to lead all the rest.

Has anyone stopped to consider the lesson in thrift of the hot dog vender in Boston who bought the building in front of which he was denied the privilege of doing business?

Connecticut voters were right when they voted November 4th and unless we are mistaken they will be right when they express the same sentiments at the special election next month.

If your Christmas presents haven't all been bought and wrapped, think of the help that can be given to clerks and postal clerks by getting busy now. There's also a chance to show a bit of consideration for one's self.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Temperatures are so variable that outside of weather bureaus (and sometimes inside) the rank and file of people have some reason for disputing the claim that these remarkable changes are regulated by unchanging law. It is amusing to compare the weather forecast for last Saturday with what actually happened. The weather man said for New England it would be clear and somewhat colder. This has been disputed by the 74,000 who sat in the Yale bowl and watched the aquatic sports between Yale and Harvard. But isn't it true generally in one's observation of life? Very many years ago a young student graduated from Amherst college. He had not been a brilliant scholar, and when he received his diploma he was told by one of the professors that "it is the last we shall ever hear of you." That student became one of the greatest pulpit orators of America.

How far is a man justified in acting on the promptings of a strong personality? The following incident makes this question clear: At a certain agricultural fair a well-known lawyer watched a fakir wheedle five dollars out of a green country boy by some gambling device. The crook had paid his license to ply his trade at the fair. The lawyer was not a public official who had any jurisdiction at the fair. He was, however, a man of very strong personality; one of those born leaders who have great influence. He told the fakir to return that five dollars to the boy. The fakir fumbled at first and told the lawyer to mind his own business, and then he whizzed but eventually paid the money back. The lawyer told him that he had broken the law and he would make it hot for him if he refused. Was the lawyer justified in using his powerful personality?

Ruth Sawyer in her "Seven Miles to Aden" has this suggestive sentence: "If every man had more kindness than gold would neighbor ever have to fear neighbor or children go hungry for love?" The inference here is true even in countries far poorer than ours. There is also the inference that kindness and gold do not easily assimilate, and while this does not follow as a logical fact, one fears that it is frequently and painfully true. If one lives mainly to accumulate gold it has a tendency to harden the softer and finer elements of the heart. We love to think of the many instances in which kindness and gold go together. How many charitable institutions are supported by American gold! The cry of suffering and pain never go unheeded in this country. And still the writer's contention is true—at least here in America—if we had more kindness than gold the millinnium would soon dawn.

Say, fellow man, do you realize that the end of November is close at hand? Have you taken off the screen doors and put away the screws where you can find them next May? How about storm windows and doors? Going to walk, are you, till it is ten below zero and a strong gale blowing? Is the front lawn in decent shape? Is the garden raked over and the rubbish burned? Are those expensive carrots and squashes carefully garnered and put in the cold cellar? If they are still in the ground the inference is that you will never be a Gould or a Rockefeller. Just one thing more, fellow man, have you thought about the Christmas present that your good wife deserves? I fear not, but she has been working on something for you at least for a month, and you have not even given her present a passing thought. You really ought to be ashamed of yourself!

Just a word also to you young folks who do not have this class of cares. You are considerably over your baseball season and are just over the football season. Your life has been quite strenous during this period of athletics. You have doubtless gained great vigor of body from this out door exercise. Perhaps you are to carry this line of exercise further by basket ball. Now all this is laudible because it is healthful. But is it not also expedient from now on till the beginning of next year's athletics to use some of this accumulated vigor in making three baggers and touchdowns in the class room? I wish it was the custom to applaud a student when he makes a home run in mathematics in the class room as it is when he does it on the ball field. That applause is no small factor in urging him on to do the thing again. Let us show the same appreciation for good done in the one place as in the other!

The long-expected biography of Mark Twain, possibly the greatest of our American humorists, by Albert Bigelow Paine has now arrived and it gives us a splendid pen picture of a remarkable personality. The appearance of this book is timely because tomorrow (the 30th) is his birthday. The years between 1835 and 1910 have rarely been surpassed in the line of literary industry. It is one of the marvels of authorship how much a man could accomplish with such a meagre education. It is a good illustration that great men are born not made. If writing was not a natural endowment with Mark Twain then his life is a mystery. The character of his literary productions stands out in a class by themselves. He was not an imitator, because everything he said and did stand out in striking originality. Many of his writings have a permanent place in literature.

If there is ever a tendency among us native-born Americans to set the idea we are the "paragon of animals" and of all the races, it will do us no harm to sit down quietly and think how much we may learn from others. The Anglo-Saxon race has been dominant so long that it is obsessed with the idea that no other race is qualified for world leadership. The Nordic races will be supreme only so long as they outdistance other races in the necessary qualities for leadership. There is some evidence that the white race has reached the peak of its power and influence, and that in time its mantle will fall on other and worthier shoulders. There should be an endeavor to cultivate the best virtues in all the races and so amalgamate that naturally the leadership shall come from those who are fittest to rule whatever may be their color, race or creed.

It may also be wise for us to consider how we are going to end up the old year. From this date we have just thirty-two days to balance up the annual account. It may be that you will have to cope after the industries and run night and day to bring the year up to the average. But whether you need to or not, you must find out mighty soon, for the world will not stop just to let you catch up. The way to find real satisfaction is not to slump along through September and the two following months, and then work with a frenzy the rest of the year. If you do you are neither physically or mentally fit to start out in January with new resolutions. That is the main reason why so many good resolutions fail. We are not in a condition to make them a go. To do the day's work as it comes is the only way to success and satisfaction.

CROSSING THE CONTINENT BY AUTO.

If all New England, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware were placed inside the boundary lines of New Mexico, there would still remain unoccupied 700 square miles. Some state!

Here in the north central section, 7000 feet above sea level, it is very wonderful to my eastern eyes. To the east, the Santa Fe and Sangre de Cristo mountain range, their snow crowned peaks glistening in the sunlight, and to the west, San Pedro and Sandia mountains, the latter piney cut against the skyline, to all appearances not more than ten miles distant, yet I know that near its foot hills lies the city of Albuquerque and that Albuquerque is 60 miles away!

Stock raising is the chief industry with about twice as many sheep raised as cattle, but the state is also rich in minerals. The immense Santa Rita copper mine lies near Santa Fe. Just south at Las Cerrillos, Tiffany, the jeweler of New York city, owns the most important turquoise mine in the world and there are also vast coal fields, beds of iron ore, and gold, silver, zinc and mica mines.

Santa Fe

The capital city of New Mexico, Santa Fe, was founded in 1606 by Juan de Onate, who called it La Villa de Real de Santa Fe de San Francisco de Assisi. (The Royal City of the Holy Faith of St. Francis of Assisi.) When the Pilgrims first landed at Plymouth rock, Santa Fe already maintained eleven missions among the Indians, where Franciscan fathers endeavored to convert the heathen.

The streets of the city are well paved and electric lighted and the excellent water supply is obtained from reservoirs which are fed from springs and streams which have their sources high up the mountains. Outside of these modern conveniences, one might have stepped into another world.

The business section of the city surrounds its tree shaded plaza. Here the benches are occupied by sleepy eyed Mexicans, wearing high crowned hats of black or gray, gay blanketted Indians with huge silver earrings and strings of beautiful turquoise, the squaw, perhaps, showing her high rank by boots of soft, white doe skin, and a papoose, with eyes like black shoe buttons, slung in a blanket on her back, or a cowboy in wide brimmed sombrero, gorgeously banded with hand beaten silver conchas, and studded chaps, testers by on his high heeled riding boots, with spurs a clatter. Every one is pleasant and hospitable; no haste, no hurry. It surely is another world!

Palace of the Governors

On the north side of the plaza is located the historic old Palace of the Governors, so called because from 1609 to 1909, it was continously occupied by the governors and captains-general of New Mexico. Built in 1604, of the native New Mexican adobe, with walls four feet thick and surrounding a patio, or open court, which is a riot of vividly colored flowers, it stands as staunchly as though, for it, time had stood still. Now it is the Museum of New Mexico and the home of the School for American Research.

The great rooms, in which once danced the Spanish don with his senorita in high back comb and lace mantilla, are now filled with collections of ancient Spanish and Indian trophies, —blankets of finest weave and beautiful colorings, baskets, fantastically figured and water tight, so closely woven are they, bows and arrows, wonderful potteries in all states of preservation and all sorts of Indian hatchets and tomahawks.

Beautifully executed models of military forts, long since abandoned and of ancient Indian pueblos are here also. It was in the Palace of the Governors that General Lew Wallace wrote the concluding chapters of Ben Hur, when he was the chief executive of the state. It is a beautiful building that is the very essence of charm and romance and history.

The End of the Trail

On the south side of the plaza, the Daughters of the American Revolution have erected a granite monument to mark the spot of the end of the old Santa Fe trail. The commerce over this trail was first begun in 1606 and started from Independence, Mo., 1100 miles distant. Over the desolate prairies across mountains and through rocky gorges the prairie schooners were driven, constantly menaced by hostile Indians, but opening up such vast new country to the traders that by 1844, the business amounted to $750,000 a year.

And the fascinating shops around the plaza! Beautiful jewelry of beaten and filigree, silver, studded with turquoise or amethyst, beautifully beaded moccasins, baskets and blankets and pottery. The paintings of nearby beauty spots, with their lights and shadows and flashes of brilliant color—all so vital—and so wonderful.

Houses of Adobe

The houses are nearly all built of adobe and in old Pueblo, Spanish, or Mission architecture. Adobe is a native clay, mixed with a small proportion of chopped straw and water. It is thoroughly mixed like cement and is then packed in molds, each of which holds four bricks, each brick being 14x10x4. They are then set in the sun to harden for two or three days. The clay from different parts of the nearby country is of different tints—tan, brown, gray, cream or creamy pink.

When a man starts to build a home, the walls are laid up of these bricks, rather carelessly plastered between with adobe mortar, which is the same material of which the bricks are made only they use no straw. The ceiling and roof beams, or vigas as Santa Fe calls them, are of pine tree trunks, peeled and oiled and spaced about two feet apart. On top of the roof beams are placed loosely laid boards then the roof and side walls are heavily plastered with the adobe mortar, both in and outside, leaving the beautifully oiled beams exposed on the inside of the house. When it is finished, the walls are at least eighteen inches thick. And the houses are said to be very cool in summer and warm in winter. Often the window frames, shutters and doors are painted bright blue or cream and blue. Occasionally one sees a house of more than one story, but they are not numerous and nearly always they are built with two or three wings, a wide veranda with big columns which are made of pine tree trunks, peeled and oiled as are the roof beams, and a patio brilliant with flowers. To see one of these homes, with soft cream walls and graceful outline, set among trees and shrubbery is to see a most artistic picture, and it is so that the homes of Santa Fe may be found all through the city.

Orchard Camp

Orchard camp, the finest motor tourist camp here (and there are three) lies only three blocks from the plaza in an old apple orchard and on the banks of the Santa Fe river—said river not being as large as a healthy Connecticut brook until the fall rains come. The camp has every convenience—nice cottages, laundry, baths, facilities for cooking. The sanitation is perfect and the whole place is beautifully clean. The community hall is extremely attractive with beautiful adobe fire place, decorated with gay colored Indian designs, reading and writing tables, comfortable couches and chairs with Indian blankets and pillows.

The Charm of Santa Fe

Today, after three and a quarter centuries, Santa Fe is the capital of a great state, and archiepiscopal see, and a center of art—for there is an artist's colony here—a colony of beautiful homes where very beautiful pictures are painted. One wonders just what is the charm of this very old city, for charm there certainly is. They say here that it is because it is not a mile-made city, that it is because it is so "different." The sun sets behind the Sandia mountains. No pastel shades of pink and blue in New Mexico but the real thing—copper green, purple, gold and flaming scarlet. The sun is gone and the entire heavens are deep cobalt blue and the brilliantly glittering stars appear. Again it's night in Santa Fe. May it be that it is true that Santa Fe is the last romantic jewel of the brave old days when America was young and chivalrous — the days of the First Frontier? Surely that is charm enough!

Mrs. Knox Weighted With Grief and Duties

Although she had taken special interest in learning the details of her husband's business, Mrs. Charles C. Knox found the burdens heavy when, soon after his death, she was compelled by the illness of her son to take charge.

Up to the time of her marriage she had had practically no business experience. Knox then was a knit goods salesman on a small salary and he had just left after paying the minister who performed the marriage ceremony.

Resolving to save, they laid away $50 the first year. Slowly his salary was increased and slowly the savings fund grew until they had $5,000. Then came an opportunity to go into the gelatin business.

With his savings augmented by borrowed capital, he started a factory at Johnstown, N. Y., but did not have enough business to go on the road for it, alone, so became a traveling glove salesman and sold gelatine as a side line after his day's work with glove sales were over.

Taking a deep interest in her husband's progress, Mrs. Knox established a budget for the household expenses, cared for their two boys, helped at the office and at times went on the road with him.

The gelatine business grew and Knox devoted all his time to it, then acquired a newspaper at Gloversville, a string of race horses and some airplanes in connection with his advertising plans.

Soon after he had decided to build a five-story building for the newspaper, he was taken ill and his wife was compelled to look after the details of construction.

Left a widow with two sons aged 15 and 18, she had the responsibility of caring for her own and her boys' interests in the business. Summoning the elder son from the Wharton School of Finance when her husband became ill, she placed him in charge of the business. Soon afterward the son was taken ill and never was able to take an active interest in the business. He died six years later.

In charge of the concern, Mrs. Knox faced many problems new to her. She did not know the fluctuating prices, did not understand the use of credit, was a woman in a men's business world and she had a home to manage as well.

Concentrating on the production of Knox Gelatine she trebled the business in 15 years, acquired an interest in a factory at Camden, N. J., opened a branch in Canada and became the leading gelatine manufacturer in the world.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Grand Duchess Cyril of Russia, who is due to arrive in New York today to aid in the work of Russian relief, would become empress of Russia if the legitimate monarchy were restored in that country. Her husband is a first cousin and nearest surviving male relative of the late Czar. The Grand Duchess was Princess Melitta, daughter of the Duke of Edinburgh and granddaughter of the late Queen Victoria. Her marriage to Grand Duke Cyril in 1905 was the culmination of a love romance of many years' duration. The two were lovers in their youth, but there were political objections to their marriage, and Melitta was compelled to become the wife of the Grand Duke of Hesse. The marriage turned out to be extremely unhappy and ended in divorce. As soon as the divorce was announced Grand Duke Cyril renewed his suit and the two were married in total disregard of all political and family objections to their union.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Good Soldiers

Thou therefore endure hardness, as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. 2 Tim. 2-3.

Abraham patiently endured, trusting when everything was against Him, staggering not even at the promises of God, but believing. Moses endured as seeing Him who is invisible. Joseph endured through many years of suffering, testing and misunderstanding. David endured getting his eye off of Saul and his enemies and being prepared for the throne by his many days of waiting and testing. Christ endured the cross, despising the shame for the joy that was before Him. Can we see the joy set before us? Can we see Christ on the throne? Can we claim our position in the heavenly places with Him?.

We are to be soldiers. Enduring hardness is the preparation for a soldier life. If a man is not ready for roughing it, for self-denial and self sacrifice, and to forget himself in his undertaking, he is ill fit for the army. A soldier leaves all of his dear ones, his earthly possessions, his home comfort behind him; he wears a simple uniform, and is known everywhere as a soldier; he often sleeps on the ground, eats the plainest food, marches in the ranks, ready to obey at a moment's notice, following the direction of his captain without asking any questions, expecting hard blows and not easily frightened when the enemy shoots at him.

Are we really soldiers in the Lord's army? Are we not only willing and ready but do we choose sacrifice, self denial and a little hardship for Him. Can we trust our captain without any questions? Shall we expect hard blows and not mind them. Can we forget ourselves in the great cause in which we have enlisted? Shall we remain in the army all the days of our life, not only have spells of enduring hardness, but realize that we have enlisted for life; marching at the bid; or standing as He chooses, keeping rank with our eyes upon Christ?

Stories That Recall Others

A "Snappy" One

Thomas inquired of his aunt whether grandfather had any old "pants holders." She suggested that suspenders that went over the shoulders were what he wished.

"No," he replied, "it goes around your waist."

He wished to make a whip.

Why She Cried

A Greeneville daddy went hunting the other day, but his luck was not with him and he brought home only one rabbit. He dropped it on the kitchen floor and the children came out of the living room to see it.

His little daughter looked on a moment, then she sniffed and shortly began a first-class cry.

"Here! What's the matter with you?" her father asked.

"I wish you hadn't killed that rabbit," the young daughter answered, between sobs.

"Why?"

"Just because I do," she continued. "But why?" father insisted. "Didn't you want a nice rabbit to eat?"

"Well, I wouldn't feel so bad about it," the little girl said, "if I was sure that wasn't a mother rabbit and she didn't leave a family out in the woods that won't ever see her again."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

New Facts About Ancient America

Neil M. Judd, leader of the National Geographic Society's expedition to Pueblo Bonito, the pre-Columbian "apartment house" of Chaco Canyon, New Mexico, has brought back to Washington an amazing array of exquisite art objects and domestic utensils which shed new light on an early metropolis of Indian America.

Perhaps the most beautiful piece in the collection is a turquoise necklace of 2,500 pieces and four pendants—the only complete specimen of such a necklace known. The method by which the Indians ground down the tiny pieces, and bored them out to be strung on sinews, has won the admiration of modern jewelers who have seen it. The four pendants are remarkable specimens of turquoise, deep blue, and with them, Mr. Judd said, he could have purchased every Indian horse in San Juan county.

Other unique objects d'art are jet rings, perfectly rounded, on which are mounted tiny carved turquoise birds. The mounting was done with pine gum, the adhesive of the American ancients, which dated through the ages the rings lay buried in the pueblo ruins.

To get these, and other tiny pieces, the Geographic explorers this summer sifted tons of debris, after building a minature railroad, and set mule-drawn steel dump cars to work hauling out the rubbish.

Recovered by this tedious process are some of the closest woven and finest specimens of Indian basketry yet discovered. To preserve these required the utmost dexterity, for often upon exposure a zephyrlike breeze would dissipate the specimens. The hope of preserving them lay in waxing them immediately upon their exposure.

Historically one of the important finds in a double basket, the like of which has hitherto been unknown in ruins other than cliff-dwellings, and the use of which has not yet been determined. It may furnish another clue to piece out further the habits, customs and religious beliefs of these aborigines. Although they left no written words, nor even any pictograph records that can be deciphered, they attained a civilization as interesting as the early cultures along the Nile and in Mesopotamia, yet distinctive from the old world peoples. Already the daily life of the Bonito dwellers has been pieced out patiently in great detail.

"That object looks like a 'vanity box,'" remarked one geographer who viewed the collections.

"Not only that, but here is a bit of the rouge the Bonitans used," replied Mr. Judd, and he displayed a lumps of reddish clay, which still will color the flesh. These "makeup" devices were used by the Bonitan men, however, rather than their women, and they served principally for the beautification of participants in their dramatic religious ceremonies.

Pipes also are in the collection. Some of these were "pleasure pipes" resembling very much the short, large-bowl English models. Others resemble cigar holders, with flaring bowls, and these were used to "make clouds" in the Bonitan's kivas, or worship chambers.

Objects which shed light on the economic habits of the Bonitans are the fleshers, with jet and turquoise inlays, used to remove flesh from the skins of animals; flint knives, which are chinned down with infinite skill and patience; and bone needles, used in sewing skins.

The broad area of communication of the ancient peoples is disclosed by objects found in their "apartments" which were brought from points as distant as the Pacific coast and the Valley of Mexico.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Lollypop Party

Goodness me, as I commence this story I see a long line of little people from the Shady Forest and the Sunny Meadow marching up Lettuce avenue to Uncle Lucky's little white house on the corner of Carrot street. Yes sir, they are all going to his lollypop party, and so would I if I didn't have to write this story in time for the Bunnybridge Bugle.

On the front porch stood Little Miss Mouse to welcome the guests. Indeed she had been standing there for the last half hour, as I told you in the last story. But dear me, so many little people have been invited to the dear old gentleman rabbit's party that it has taken your Uncle Dave a long time and many sheets of paper to tell what has happened.

All of a sudden, a voice inquired, "Am I late?" and Little Miss Mouse turned to see Teddy Turtle vainly trying to climb up the front steps.

"Don't hurry, you have plenty of time," answered the kind-hearted little housekeeper. "Wait a minute and I'll lay the washboard over the steps. Then you can walk up without slipping." and she hurried into the kitchen. It was then an easy matter for the little turtle to carry his shell house up on the porch and down the hall to the sitting room.

After a while, and many a howdy and many a smile, all the guests were in the house waiting for Uncle Lucky to pass around the lollypops. When everyone was contentedly sucking the fine rainbow-colored candies, Bobbin Reavest hopped on the top of the piano and dear Uncle Lucky sat down on the little three legged stool.

Then the dear little bird sang such a sweet song, while the nice old gentleman rabbit ran his fingers over the keys that everybody almost forgot to eat lollypops.

When the clapping ended, Little Miss Mouse did a toe dance, holding up a pretty pink lollypop and waving it to and fro to the music.

Then the lollypops were passed around for the third time. It was mighty lucky that the dear old gentleman rabbit had ordered a barrel of them. Yes indeedy.

By and by the Big Brown Bear asked Uncle Lucky to sing a song. Everybody like Uncle Lucky's tenor voice, and although the dear old gentleman rabbit had a touch of rheumatism in his left hind toe, there wasn't a crack in his beautiful voice.

With a bow and a smile, Uncle Lucky began:

"When all the world was green and young,
And every bird a carol sung,
When Old Man Trouble stayed away
And every hour was spent in play,
I never felt more free and heartsome
Than at this Lollypop Party.

"I know the reason," said Lady Love, the little rabbit's gentle mother. "It's because you are always giving happiness to others." And Lady Love is right, little boys and girls. Making others happy is the sweetest thing in all the world.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

PROHIBITION AGENTS WORKED IN DISGUISE

New York, November 28.—A new ruse by federal agents to uncover violations of the prohibition law resulted in the arrest of eleven persons and the confiscation of a large quantity of liquors early this morning.

Three agents made the arrests. One was attired in an evening suit, a second as a more or less beautiful female while the third posed as a cab driver. This disguised the trio entered seven places of amusement and in each, they claim they were served.

A long career of devotion, marked by extraordinary success, began for the young religious with her appointment to St. Mary's school, New Britain. She remained in New Britain for 28 years and was then transferred to St. Patrick's, Norwich, a field that claimed her attention for three years. She later taught at St. Charles' school, Bridgeport, and St. Peter's, Hartford, until failing health compelled her retirement to St. Mary's home, where she remained until her death last week Thursday. The funeral was held at St. Mary's last Saturday with several priests, former pupils of the devoted nun, assisting at the solemn mass of requiem. Burial was in the Sisters' cemetery at the home.

Poquetanuck Cove railroad bridge was somewhat damaged by fire late Friday night, over a dozen heavy ties and several of the huge stringers under the bridge being burned and charred, weakening the bridge to such an extent that trains will be unable to run over the span until new stringers and ties have been laid.

The fire was discovered about 11.20 o'clock by Mrs. Elmer Tubbs who lives in a house about a quarter of a mile above the bridge, reflections on the window of her bedroom causing her to awaken. She aroused her husband, who with Louis Patridge, who lives nearby, secured ropes and pails and using water from the river beneath the bridge fought the blaze for about an hour and had it practically all out before train crews arrived from New London and Norwich.

The fire had started in two places on the bridge, beneath the draw and toward the north end, and it was at the north end that the greatest damage was done, over a dozen ties being practically burned through and the stringers supporting them badly charred and burned.

Switcher, No. 14 from the New London yard of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad arrived soon after midnight in charge of Conductor W. J. Duggan, bringing up a crew of men and Assistant Train Despatcher W. J. Smith and Chief Train Despatcher Fred Atwood who made an examination of the bridge. They found it unsafe for the passage of trains and quickly made arrangements for a crew of men to start work immediately repairing the damage.

Work of laying new ties and placing new stringers was begun later in the morning, Saturday, and it is expected that the bridge will be safe for the regular passage of trains sometime this morning.

Train Dispatcher Van Osendale with two men from New London came up by automobile from New London with fire extinguishers but these were not used as water had done the work.

The fire evidently got its start from sparks dropped from a locomotive which passed over the bridge earlier in the evening. The fact that this bridge is far from travelled roads and away from houses gave the flames a chance to gain much headway before the fire was discovered.

JUNIOR BRANCH GAVE THANKSIVGING DANCE

Odd Fellows' hall was the scene of a pretty Thanksgiving dance Friday evening under the auspices of the Junior Branch of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women. Music for the dancing was furnished by D'Atri's orchestra, many new selections being rendered to the enjoyment of over 75 couples who were in attendance.

The affair was planned by the following committee, Miss Catherine Sullivan, chairman, assisted by the Misses Carol Kane, Stella Guertin, Elizabeth Sullivan, Helen O'Rourke, Katherine McVeigh and Anna Carroll.

Hosts and hostesses for the dance were Mr. and Mrs. Roderick Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Cummings, Miss May Maher, Miss Margaret Murphy, Mrs. Sylvia and Mr. and Mrs. James P. Sheridan.

During the evening punch and soda were served, the refreshments booth being in charge of Omar and Andrew Guertin.

BLAZING SOOT MAKES SHERMAN ST. BELL ALARM

Blazing soot in a chimney at the boarding house on Yantic street, foot of Sherman street, conducted by Benjamin Woodmansee, was responsible for a bell alarm from box 36, Friday afternoon about 4.50 o'clock. The fire was extinguished with no material damage. A pipe hole at the base of the chimney had been covered with cardboard. A wood fire had been started in a stove on the second floor of the house and sparks set fire to the soot in the chimney. The fire burned through the cardboard covering at the base of the chimney. The building is owned by the Falls company.

THANKSGIVING SOCIAL FOR INTERMEDIATE B. Y. P. U.

About 35 young people attended a Thanksgiving social held Friday evening at Bushnell chapel by the Intermediate B. Y. P. U. of the Central Baptist church. Games were enjoyed and refreshments of punch and cheese crackers were served. Announcement was made that the pastor, Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., will speak on How 100 Young People Spent Their Money, at the Sunday morning service at the church. Miss Dorothy Gildersleeve was in charge of the arrangements for the social and was assisted by Miss Helen Hastings.

Family Dinner Party

Mr. and Mrs. Dell La Pre of Asylum street entertained a family dinner party for Thanksgiving, the guests including Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Duhamiel and daughter, Irene, Mrs. Adeline Beausoliel, all of Ware, Mass., and William H. Russell of Palmer, Mass.

NOTHING TO SUSTAIN CHARGES AGAINST SAILORS

After several days' inspection of the report of the board of inquiry in regard to statements made by three chief petty officers from the Sub Base at a Ku Klux Klan meeting in Cheshire several months ago, Capt. E. T. King, commander of the Base, has approved the report and forwarded it to Washington, where it will be taken under consideration by the navy department.

Although it was within his power to take action, if he so decided Captain King said he preferred to leave it to the department, "under the circumstances." The three men who were the principals of the investigation were Chief Machinist Mate Johnson, Chief Machinist Mate Capdeville and Chief Electrician's Mate Hess.

No evidence to sustain the statement of a Waterbury newspaper, which quoted what was purported to be the statements of the three men, was found in the inquiry, according to Captain King.

"We know," he said, "that the three men were at the meeting and that they were in uniform. One of the three evidently said something, although he doesn't know quite what. Whatever it was it was given their own interpretation by his hearers, and their interpretation was entirely erroneous."

Under the circumstances, Captain King said he would prefer not to name which of the three men in question it was.

Captain King said there was no evidence to sustain the report that one of the men as to how he came to be at the klan meeting, any more than there is to the credited statement that one of the men said officers in the navy get promotion when they belong to the klan.

WILL MAKE INVESTIGATION OF PROBATE COURT RECORDS

United States department of justice agents from Washington began a sweeping investigation Friday of every probate court in Connecticut to examine the records of conservators since 1919 who are handling government compensation funds for incompetent war veterans.

The investigation was begun at the suggestion of Judge Paul Miller of the Bridgeport probate court and Miss A. C. Wenderworth, executive secretary of the Bridgeport branch of the American Red Cross, both of whom are at present investigating the alleged embezzlement of $9,000 from Nicholas Schwentz, now an inmate of the Norwich state hospital for the insane, and of $1,850 from Joseph G. Bruzenak, who was discharged from the institution in 1920. William Earl Bennett of Hartford, who is under arrest while the probe is being made into the affairs of these two ex-soldiers, is conservator for the latter. He was removed as conservator for Schwetz on Tuesday.

According to officials at the state hospital, Schwetz has a credit of about $35 to his account there now.

FORMER NORWICH CURATE GIVEN NEW HARTFORD PARISH

Henry E. Quinn, who goes to Willimantic as successor to the late Rev. John E. Clark, pastor of St. Joseph's parish. Father Gildea was born in Danbury, where he attended St. Peter's parochial school, and the public high school, before entering Niagara university. On the completion of his philosophical studies at Niagara in 1903 he studied theology at St. Brieux, France, and at Eichstaedt, Germany, and was ordained to the priesthood at the cathedral in Hartford in 1908. His first assignment was in Norwich, where he labored for two years at St. Patrick's church, before going to Torrington. Father Gildea will assume charge of his parish tomorrow (Sunday).

AUTOMOBILE HIT TRAIN AT NOANK CROSSING

Four people narrowly escaped injury when a large touring car in which they were riding from New York to Providence crashed into a freight train at Sawyer's corners, Noank, Thursday morning at 1.45 o'clock. The train had been at a standstill at the crossing for some time and was just getting under way when the car crashed head on into it.

The passengers in the car were Thomas and James Healey and the Misses Julia and Katherine McIntyre. None of them were injured and they came to New London shortly after the accident to take a train for their destination. The car which was badly damaged, was taken to a Mystic garage for repairs.

JUDGMENT ENTERED IN BREACH OF PROMISE

Judgment was entered Friday by Judge George E. Parsons, clerk of the superior court in the breach of promise suit of Mrs. Matilda Bendett vs. Charles Slosberg of this city in which Mrs. Bendett was given a verdict of $4,500 on Wednesday. The time has expired in which motion to set aside the verdict and for a new trial might have been made.

Loses Hunting License.

As a result of his conviction on a charge of hunting during the banned season, the hunting license of Harry Korrenick of East Lyme has been suspended, County Game Warden Robert B. Chappell announced Friday.

Korrenick was arrested before the governor's ban on hunting was lifted by Deputy Tice of Niantic, and before Justice of the Peace Marion R. Davis was fined $3 and costs.

Freeman's Election Expense $548.

Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London spent $548 during his recent campaign for re-election to congress from the Second Connecticut district, according to a return filed with the clerk of the national house of representatives Friday. This figure is far below that expended by most of the other congressional candidates in this state.

BULKELEY CLOSES SEASON TODAY WITH GAME AGAINST FAST WESTERN A. C.

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 28.—This (Saturday) afternoon will see the greatest football eleven ever to be turned out at the local institution making its valedictory. Temporarily side tracking contests with high school teams, Bulkeley will engage a team which has already annexed the City professional football honors. The team which will act as an opponent for the school boys is the Western A. C. It is without a doubt that one of the great grid duels of the present year will be in progress when the referee's whistle starts the game.

Relying upon the speed and ability to overcome a weight and experience handicap, the Bulkeley eleven, one of the leading high school teams in the state, and at present awaiting recognation for the recent claim made for state honors, will enter the field Saturday with odds of 4 to 1 against it. There is much rivalry between the teams in the city. The game has been pending for nearly a week and a half, but Bulkeley was bound by an agreement with Stamford High.

While it is uncertain that this contest on Saturday will be the termination of the season, yet it will be the last opportunity for fans in the city to see the Bulkeley team in action. Stamford High, which is anxious to play Bulkeley may receive the open date of a week from tomorrow. Bulkeley is as anxious to play Stamford, for much depends upon the result of this contest toward deciding the state title. And then after seventeen years of futile attempts to defeat Stamford, Bulkeley at last has found a smooth enough combination to express belief that no matter how potent the Stamford eleven is this year, a better Bulkeley team will face it in event of a game being finally scheduled.

The city title both in professional, amateur and High school departments will be Bulkeley's if a victory over the Westerns can be effected Saturday. The title will be conceded to the High school eleven, for the Westerns have already polished off the All-New London eleven by a 19 to 0 score. The game will tend to prove or disprove that the present football played by teams or various clubs is a better brand than that played in high circles. It will be a definite match between an eleven which will rely upon cunning, speed and other constituents which go to make up a perfect and harmonious eleven.

A combination of football players, both on the line and in the backfield of other seasons will make up the bulk of the Western eleven. Among those are Butch McGowan, former quarterback for the Submarine Base, O'Connor, end for Bulkeley last season, Locke of the Submarine Base team along with McKernan, Compton and O'Hare, Rankin, fullback for Chapman Tech two seasons ago, King, wing for Tech last year, Turelle, Gadbois and Brewer also of the Tech team which broke relations with Bulkeley three seasons ago.

The game itself is the biggest local attraction in years along the football line, and while the Western will have a large field to pick their players from the same Bulkeley team will smash them with against the strength of the Westerns. Walker Rice, brilliant halfback I othe only individual who will probably not get into the game for Bulkeley. He is suffering from a case of hiccoughs.

The game will be controlled by central board officials and will get under way promptly at 2 o'clock.

Bulkeley		Western A. C.
Rankin	Right End	King
J. Watterson	Right Tackle	McKernan
Brown	Right Guard	Turelle
Dillon	Center	H. Watterson
Wilson	Left Tackle	Gadbois
Benkie	Quarterback	McGowan
Gray	Left Halfback	Locke
Shedett	Right Halfback	Ruddy
Barry	Fullback	Rankin

He succeeded John Dobbs, who has signed a contract to act as manager of the Birmingham Club.

SEVERAL IMPORTANT GRID GAMES THIS AFTERNOON

New York, Nov. 28.—(By The A. P.)—The eastern gridiron season, marked by an astonishing array of upsets and new attendance records, comes to a climax tomorrow with the Army-Navy classic at Baltimore as the feature of a brief but spectacular closing programme.

Besides the annual service struggle, where a crowd of 75,000 will rival the high attendance marks set for this fall at the Yale Bowl, and California's new stadium, the gridiron finale will witness another renewal of ancient rivalry when Boston College and Holy Cross clash at Boston. While Notre Dame the only major unbeaten or untied eleven of the season, invades Pittsburgh in quest of further intersectional honors against Carnegie Tech.

Keen rivalry also exists in two other concluding contests, one between Haverford and Swathmore, at Franklin Field, Pennsylvania's Stadium and the other involving Georgetown and Fordham at the Polo Grounds.

NATIONAL LEAGUE MAY HAVE NEW HEAD NEXT YEAR

New York, Nov. 28.—When the National League celebrates its semi-centennial next year there may be a new man serving as executive head of the great baseball organization. According to unconfirmed reports, John A. Heydler, who has been at the helm for six years, is to have opposition when he comes up for re-election as president at the annual meeting of the league next month.

President Heydler is being criticised, it is said, because of his vigorous attempts to cut down rowdyism and gambling. Rather strange, such criticism, when it is remembered that in the past the chief fault found with "Johnnie" Heydler was that he was too modest and conciliating.

Whatever may be the true reason for the opposition to Mr. Heydler, it seems to be an accepted fact that one of the powerful clubs in the league is grooming a candidate for his place. The identity of this candidate and his backers is now a subject of lively speculation in baseball circles.

The National League has had eight presidents during the half century of its existence. When the league was formed Morgan G. Bulkeley, the future United States senator from Connecticut, was selected as president. Although a warm friend of the game, Mr. Bulkeley had little time to devote to the affairs of the league and after one year retired. There was no salary that went with the position until 1884.

In 1877 the National league was reduced to a six-club circuit, and William A. Hulbert, a Chicago lawyer, was elected president, a position he held for six years, showing remarkable ability. Upon his death, A. G. Mills of New York was selected for the position, which he held for two years. Mr. Mills was responsible for the original National agreement.

Nicholas E. Young of Washington had acted as secretary and treasurer from the first, and was responsible for all the details. He was elected president in 1885, and continued as the chief executive for 18 years. During this long period he was "the whole works" of the National league. He was the sole judge of every dispute between the minor leagues of the whole country, and the best of it was he made friends of all. But after the advent of the American League in 1901 "Uncle Nick" found the work too strenuous, and retired to his quiet home life in Washington.

Then came Harry C. Pulliam, a young Louisville attorney, who was elected to the presidency in 1901, and died while serving his seventh year. Mr. Heydler, who had been serving as secretary, filled out Mr. Pulliam's term in the presidency. Heydler had picked up his baseball knowledge from Nick Young. He liked his work as secretary and had no ambition to become president.

Thomas J. Lynch of New Britain, Conn., well-known as an umpire, was elected to the presidency in 1910 and continued to fill the office for nearly four years. The honesty of Lynch was never questioned, but he lacked diplomacy and there was considerable dissatisfaction with his rule. In 1913 Governor John K. Tener of Pennsylvania, who in his early years had been prominent as a baseball player, was named to succeed Lynch.

When Governor Tener suddenly resigned in 1918, Heydler again acted as a pinch hitter. He went into the presidency from the place of secretary and did so well that in 1920 the league magnates chose him for a three-year term for the years 1922, 1923 and 1924 at an increased salary. This contract expires with the present year and whether or not it shall be renewed is the big question that will be decided when the league club owners get in session about ten days hence.

SQUAD OF 50 OUT FOR BASKETBALL AT CHAPMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 28.—The first call for basketball at Chapman Tech brought out a record squad of 50. It is by far the largest number of applicants to report for any one sport at the local institution. Considering that the Red and Black had the best basketball team in this section of the state, they will again reign supreme upon the marked court. It appears that basketball is Tech's sport, and a fine record is hung up yearly by Tech's quintet.

Captain Hewitt who will play center together with Red Andrews at forward will form the nucleus for a fast team. The axe is expected to be dropped, and a cut in the squad from the present large number will be made. The squad is too large at present to attempt to do any real work.

While the schedule is not completed at present Manager James Deady expects to have it completed in a short time football team will also act as mentor of the basketball team with E. Stanley Taylor.

ARMY MOVES TO BALTIMORE EARLY THIS MORNING

West Point, Nov. 28.—The Army moves on to Baltimore tomorrow morning at daybreak where the cadets are to meet the Annapolis Midshipmen in their annual Army-Navy gridiron contest. One thousand cadets under command of Colonel Merch B. Stewart, commander of the battalion of cadets, will make the trip which will start from the army barracks at 5 o'clock.

A monster football rally was held here tonight. As the hour for the game approaches confidence in the army team's ability to turn in a victory and thus break the tie with the Navy on games won, is increasing in cadet circles.

NOTED ATHLETIC DIRECTOR DIES AT CHICAGO

Chicago, Nov. 28—Dana M. Evans, director of athletics at Northwestern University, died suddenly today of heart disease.

Evans had been ill for several months due to worry over the health of his wife. But after a summer's rest he was able to resume charge of athletic affairs at Northwestern at the start of the football season. He had been director of athletics there seven years and was about 53 years old.

Before coming to Northwestern he was director of physical education at Indiana university.

Mr. Evans attended the medical school of Boston University and later served the Y. M. C. A. of Manchester, N. H., and Cornell University. While at Manchester he coached one of the first basket ball teams in the country.

ARMY AND NAVY CLASH TODAY IN THE ANNUAL GRIDIRON CLASSIC

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 28 (By the A. P.).—The Army mule and the Navy goat are primed and ready for their annual tug-of-war.

Tomorrow the rival service elevens will battle for football supremacy, with the odds of victory favoring West Point, but with all indications also pointing to the likelihood of a spectacular and closely fought game.

With its scene laid in Baltimore for the first time since this gridiron classic was inaugurated in 1890, the 27th game of the long series will be fought out before the greatest crowd that ever saw the cadets and middies come to grips—a vast assemblage of 75,000, including President and Mrs. Coolidge and a host of other notables—that promises to rival in spirit and color any of the gatherings that have annually made this game the most picturesque of all.

Banked around the wide flung horseshoe-shaped Baltimore stadium whose capacity has nearly been doubled for the service battle, this throng expects a brilliant game with the Navy, despite a previously disastrous season, rallying its forces in a final drive against an Army team which, on earlier form, is admittedly superior, with one of the greatest individual stars of the game in Harry Wilson, former Penn State and All-American halfback.

There will be an added incentive for triumph tomorrow, if any were required, in the desire of both West Point and Annapolis to break the deadlock in their long series, which now stands at 12 victories apiece, with two tie games recorded.

Army, with its individual stars and a far more impressive record over the 1924 season so far, is expected to display a formidable attack, but the Navy, despite the loss of five games in seven starts, has pointed its preparations for this main objective and will go into the fray tomorrow fit and confident.

The frequency with which upsets have occurred in the Army-Navy series, and the fact that previous performances have often meant little in comparing the rivals, also have served to brighten Navy hopes. Cadets and midshipmen alike have had a habit of rising to unusual heights in this hist test and it may take only a slight "break," a sudden shift in the tide of gridiron warfare, to upset all well laid calculations. Observers go back only a year for an example of the unexpected, when Navy, in the mud at the Polo grounds in New York, held a more formidable Army eleven to a scoreless deadlock.

Navy banks heavily upon her forward wall, which outweighs its opponents an average of more than ten pounds a man, to check the onslaughts of the Army backfield stars, particularly Wilson, around whom the cadet offensive is largely centered. Behind the line, the midshipmen have an all-around threat in Shapley, veteran back, and dangerous weapons in Filippin and Wellings, but these two do not rank as highly as Wilson, Gilmore and Bill Wood, whose mighty toe will be an important factor. Baltimore, incidentally, takes great pride in Wood as a native son and his exploits tomorrow will have more than military suppo[rt].

An eleventh hour shift in the Navy line was announced tonight by Coach Bob Folwell. The change involved the displacement at right guard of Chillingworth, an Hawaiian, by Eddy of Saratoga Springs, N. Y. Eddy's greater weight and ability at placement goal kicking earned him the place in the final tests, although Chillingworth also is an adept at kicking.

Final reports from the midshipmen's camp also indicated a lively battle had taken place for the center job, with Osburn of Greensburg, Ind., who has held the post most of the season, winning out over Zuber of Elizabeth, N. J. Here, again, weight was a deciding factor, as Osburn has a 15 pound advantage over his rival.

Some uncertainty exists as to whether Baxter, regular end for the Army, who has just recovered from the effects of an ankle broken in the second game of the season, will start. If not, Davidson will hold down the left wing.

The vanguard of the crowd that will watch the service struggle descended on Baltimore today, and the city took on a gala holiday appearance.

Elaborate preparations were made for the reception and entertainment of the president and Mrs. Coolidge, who will motor from Washington in the morning and be the guests of the city at a luncheon in the banquet hall of the stadium building at 12.30 o'clock.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE ADOPTS DRAFT RULE

New York, Nov. 28.—The International Baseball League gave up an eight year fight against the major leagues today when it unanimously adopted the modified form of the draft similar to the one in operation in the Pacific Coast League and American Association Leagues last season. This legislation was effected at the annual meeting of the league held here today.

Under the terms of the modified draft a team may take optional players and players by sales agreement from major league teams under a contract containing a provision that only players so acquired shall be subject to selection in the draft. All other players are immune from the dreft. Under the existing major league agreement, each big league club can send eight players to a Class AA club which gives International League clubs an offering of 128 players if the maximum number was sent to them.

The draft price was fixed at $5,000. Players taken by option or purchase can be recalled or repurchased by the major league club sending them to the International League on or before September 15 of the current season. After that date the combined major leaguers can draft only one player from each International League club through a driving system.

HOLY CROSS- BOSTON COLLEGE GAME CLOSES N. E. SEASON

Boston, Nov. 28—The college season in New England will be closed tomorrow with the annual game between Holy Cross and Boston College at Braves Field. An attendance of 30,000 is assured.

The speedy team from Holy Cross was slightly less favored in wagering than the heavier line and backfield of Boston College, but score comparisons were indicative of a close game.

Boston College casualties, as represented by William Cronin, halfback, and Harrison, left end, were reported pounding into shape, and the local team was expected to present its full strength. Holy Cross will be without Lowery and Coleman, but has two strong backfield combinations available.

SMITH TO CAPTAIN YALE HARRIER TEAM

New Haven, Nov. 28.—At the annual banquet of the Yale cross country squad here tonight, Macauley Smith, 1927, was elected captain for next year. He is the first sophomore elected to that position for some years but has earned the honor by winning every race he has entered this year and breaking several records.

Volleyball Games

The first game of a series of volleyball games between the teams representing the various gym classes at the "Y" was played in the Y gym last night when the senior gym leaders defeated the senior class team in an exciting contest. The match consisted of three out of five games, the final game winding up in a tie which required extra playing. Both teams are fast and will undoubtedly stand close to the top when they meet the volley ballers representing the other classes. The leaders were represented by R. Harris, Fred Handy, A. Pineault, R. Shaw, H. Ludlow, H. Lucombe, O. Mosesian and D. Parsons. On the seniors were A. Grobe, B. Polaski, J. Barwell, L. Browning, P. Hollander and E. Alexander.

Shugrue Gets Decision.

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 28.—Johnny Shugrue, of Waterbury, was awarded the decision over Sailor Byron, of Worcester, former New England lightweight champion, in their 10-round bout here tonight. Shugrue won seven of the ten rounds. He weighed 139, Byron 142.

Bike Race Starts Sunday.

New York, Nov. 27.—New York's thirty-seventh international six day bicycle race gets under way in Madison Square Garden Sunday night with a field of 15 teams involving American and foreign riders. The starting gun will be fired at midnight by Will Rogers, noted comedian.

Zivic Wins

Detroit, Nov. 28.—Jack Zivic, of Pittsburgh, was given the unanimous devision of the judges in a 10 round bout with Johnny Mendelsohn of Milwaukee, here tonight. They are lightweights. Newspapermen credited Zivic with everyround.

Fuente Matched With Weinert

Newark, N. J., Nov. 27—Tony Fuente, Mexican heavyweight, and Charlie Weinert, Newark heavyweight and recent conquerer of Luis Angel Firpo, were signed today for a 12 round match at the Newark Armory Monday, Dec. 15.

ROJAS WINS DECISION OVER JOHN RISKO

Rojas had Risko in a bad way in two rounds—the seventh and eighth, the bell saving the latter in the eighth. Risko came back strong, however, and won the last three rounds.

Risko was on the aggressive in the early part of the bout. Rocking Rojas ith a hard left after the first gong. The Chilean landed but few clean blows until the fourth when he lifted Risko with uppercuts and sent him back with body blows to the stomach.

Rojas slipped to one knee in the tenth and took a count of three. This was the only time either went to the floor.

Rojas weighed 197; Risko 190.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

CONSERVATION OF FUR BEARERS IS APPROVED BY FUR TRADE

Possibility of cooperation in insuring the future fur supply was discussed at a conference held at Washington early in October between representatives of the raw-fur industry and officials of the United States department of agriculture. Conferees from England and Canada, as well as from all parts of the United States, attended. It was the general opinion of those present that the available supply of raw furs can be materially increased through proper legislation. Fur dealers are anxious to prevent illegal trapping and to bring about standardization of grading of skins, so as to eliminate unfair practices between traders and trappers.

The fur trade also indorses the policy of the department with regard to the conservation of wild life by preventing the indiscriminate draining of swamps and lowlands and by promoting forest preservation.

Most trappers are farmers and their sons, who derive their income in the winter from trapping fur-bearing animals at a time when the farm duties are light and their is little cash income from the farm. It has been estimated that from fifty to sixty million dollars is earned annually by farmers through trapping activities. This sum, according to the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture, can be greatly increased by proper conservation of fur bearers, and especially by preventing the taking of animals at seasons when their skins are unfit for commercial use.

TRAINING AND CULTURE MAKE DEWBERRIES PROFITABLE

Any fertile soil with good drainage and a good supply of humus to retain moisture is suitable for growing dewberries, a close relative to the blackberry, found in many markets, says the United States department of agriculture. Although suited to many types of soils, it is grown most extensively on coarse, sandy loams. Its deep-rooting system enables it to obtain moisture from such soils better than many other crops.

At present the dewberry is grown more widely in North Carolina and New Jersey than in any other states, but it is adapted to nearly all parts of the country. It is grown commercially also in Michigan and New York. In these four states the skill of the growers in using special methods of training and culture make the crop very profitable. In North Carolina and New Jersey these special methods involve training to stakes, in New York and Michigan to wire trellises.

Dewberry plants are usually set during the winter and early spring in the south and in early spring in the north. As the tips of the canes that root in the fall continue to develop until very late more mature plants will be obtained in the spring. For this reason fall planting is not practiced.

The Lucretia is the leading variety except in the gulf coast states. Texas prefers the Mayes and California raises large quantities of Gardena.

GROWING LETTUCE IN GREENHOUSES

Crisp, tender lettuce, such as may readily be produced in greenhouses and be placed in the hands of the consumer within a few hours from the time it is harvested, is increasing in popularity. The crop may be grown in simple inexpensive greenhouses, says the United States department of agriculture, but correspondingly better results can be had when a large greenhouse is used.

Lettuce growing in greenhouses is the subject of a new bulletin just issued by the United States department of agriculture as Farmers' Bulletin 1418. The purpose of the publication is to make available to present and prospective lettuce growers information which has been gathered from successful growers of greenhouse lettuce and other forcing crops and to bring together in one publication descriptions of the best practices in the production of the crop.

Success in the growing of greenhouse lettuce, says the bulletin, depends on the use of a soil well supplied with organic matter and available plant food, the control of disease and insect enemies of the crop, the use of varieties and strains adapted to the needs of the grower and the market to be supplied, and the closest attention to every detail of the management of the crop.

Satisfactory financial returns can be secured only when a well-grown high-quality crop is packed in an attractive manner in containers of suitable size and placed in the hands of consumers in the shortest practicable time.

Lettuce is not particular as to the type of forcing structure in which it is grown, and it is produced in many kinds of greenhouses, but cucumbers and tomatoes, being very particular as to their growing conditions, require greenhouses of a special type. Owing to the fact that the vegetable-forcing industry usually includes the production of several crops, it is necessary to use structures suited to the requirement of all crops grown. Lettuce, cucumbers, and tomatoes are the crops to which the most attention is devoted, and they comprise a large proportion of the annual value of the vegetable forcing crops grown in the United States. Naturally the houses must be made to suit these difficult crops, which must have a rather high and very uniform temperature and freedom from draft, thus necessitating excellent heating equipment. While such houses are not absolutely essential to the successful production of the more hardy types of lettuce, it is unquestionably true that the crop thrives better in good greenhouses, than in very simple structures. Those proposing to grow lettuce as their main crop will find it advantageous to build a good type of greenhouse.

SHOULD GIVE SHRUBS WINTER PROTECTION

Roses and other tender shrubs should be given winter protection in this section where we have comparatively severe winters.

Many methods can be used. These vary from simple earth mounding to burlap, straw and crate casings. Packing and mounding earth about the base of the bushes will prevent injury to the crowns and lower stems of the plant. When leaves, straw or well rotted manure is to be used, this earth mounding is good practise as a supplementary protection. But, earth mounding is not alone sufficient to protect medium or tall shrubs or very delicate plants from winter injuries, and for this type of plant more elaborate precautions are taken. Valuable rose bushes for instance may be well protected by packing about the pruned stalks and branches a layer of straw or evergreen branches and binding this covering with heavy twine. This will prevent snow and ice from breaking the bush or branches and if all stems are covered well they will not winter kill.

Another way to achieve this result would be to bind leaves or chopped straw or shavings about the plant with burlap and tie this in place.

For shrubs pruned in ornamental shapes where the breaking or killing of twigs and branches would seriously impair the symmetry and beauty of the plant, straw and burlap wrappings are often reinforced by constructing a close fitting crate or frame around the bush.

HOME CONSUMPTION OF FARM MEATS

One practical way of cutting down farm expenses is the slaughter and storing of beef and pork on the farm for home consumption, say the experts. Why hunt around for a buyer for that veal calf, those cows, or the cow that dries off quickly and puts on fat after she has been milking only a few months? Even if hogs or cattle command a good price, if you sell them to the butcher and buy back meat for the family, you pay a better price to the retail butcher. On the other hand no farmer needs to depend on salt pork, good as it is in the winter months, or on an occasional fowl when there are many ways in which meat can be cured, canned or preserved for home use.

The by products, such as soap, lard, and tallow, are saved to the farmer when he butchers for himself. During the winter months, time can be used for home butchering and curing that at other seasons of the year is more valuable to spend on other farm work.

Pork is probably the most satisfactory meat for curing. It keeps better in warm weather, and a hog dresses a higher percentage of edible meat than any other animal, but beef and veal can be kept readily in the winter months of freezing temperatures when nearly every farm can supply a storage room.

Gosh All Hemlock

Said the little red rooter, "Gosh all hemlock! Things are tough.
Seems that worms are getting scarcer and I cannot find enough.
What's become of all those fat ones is a mystery to me;
There were thousands through that rainy spell, but now where can they be?"

The old black hen who heard him didn't grumble or complain,
She had gone through lots of dry spells, she had lived through floods of rain.
So she flew up on the grindstone and gave her claws a whet,
As she said 'I've never seen the time when there wasn't worms to get.'

She picked a new and undug spot; the earth was hard and firm.
The little rooster jeered, "New ground! That's no place for a worm!"
The old black hen just spread her feet, she dug both fast and free.
"I must go to the worms," she said; "the worms won't come to me."

The rooster vainly spent the day, through habit, by the ways
Where fat round worms had passed in squads back in the rainy days.
When nightfall found him supperless, he growled in accents rough:
"I'm hungry as a fowl can be. Conditions sure are tough."

He turned then to the old black hen and said: "It's worse for you, For you're not only hungry, but you must be tired, too.
I rested while I watched for worms, so I feel fairly perk:
But how are you? Without worms too? And after all that work?"

The old black hen hopped to her perch and dropped her eyes in sleep, And murmured in a drowsy tone
"Young man, rear this and weep:
I'm full of worms and happy, for I've dined both long and well.
The worms are there, as always, but I had to dig like —"

Magic Medicine

There's a heap o' consolation
In the handclasp of a friend;
It can wipe out desolation,
And bring heartaches to an end,
It can soothe a troubled spirit
Like not magic in the land:
Heaven? You are pretty near it—
When a good friend grips your hand!

Have Faith

Have faith—though loud the angry cannon roar,
And thick the dead lie on the battle plain!
Though earth is filled with anguish and with pain,
The time will come when war will be no more.
Have faith—though sunken ships pave every sea,
And children's bones lie with the heaping dead,
Though vultures of the air sail ever' head,
And blazing ruins stand where homes should be.
Have faith — from this world-wreck new lands shall rise,
Where neither King nor Kaiser may decree
The cannon's boom, the flashing sword set free.
To make a weaker Nation's place its prize.
Have faith—for Justice still uplifts her scales,
And right shall win, though for a time it fails.

ALWILDA: Your name has been added to the Corner list.

JUST PETE: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

LONESOME: Many thanks. Season's greetings.

THANKS TO SISTERS

Dear Corner Sisters: I wish to take this opportunity to extend my thanks to sisters and friends who sent me birthday remembrances—Joan Primrose, Avon, Drusilla, Cakkit, Rural Aunty, Whirlwind, Theoda, Rosy Posy, Chelsea, White Dawn, Black Eyed Susie, Scottie, I. J. B., Robin, Aunt No. 1,Sarepta, Tiddly Winks, Calla Lily, Savilla, Necia, Chocolate, Savage's Daughter and two friends. The sentiment on each card convey to me the true feeling of our friends. How much it does mean to us as each year passes. I also received nine handkerchiefs and several other pretty gifts.

Lucy Acorp: Do try and come up to another meeting before winter sets in.

Catnip: Have you got that apron made to wear sent meeting?

Cakkie: Will look for you Dec. 3.

Marigold: Just heard about that sixteen pound turkey.

Best wishes to all and trust all have had a pleasant Thanksgiving with no ill effects from too much turkey.

TRUE BLUE.

GREETINGS FROM 1492.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I hope we shan't all be so busy this week that the Corner will be entirely empty.

Balsam Fir: I haven't forgotten that I owe you a letter. Will give you a surprise some day. Your cousin told me the other day he had had a letter from you.

Nelly Gray didn't say she could see my house, but I look over to her's every day and watch for her light every night. I saw it burning Monday forenoon.

Honorary Kykatinebusqui: Moby, dear, you angel child, if you had signed your name plain Jim Brown or Mary Ann, for instance, no one would have known who was who but when you made such a "bl" it was a plain giveaway. No other wooden nutmeg would have thought of such a pseudonym. Could Uncle wear the raincoat after you got home Sunday night? Ask Lalla if I haven't guessed who is who.

Jennie told one time of her father's meeting two soldiers that were in the Revolutionary war. I have an aunt who used to know two men that were in that war. One was a private soldier if I remember right and one was a surgeon, he was quite a noted man in those times. They used to live near neighbors to her father.

My greatgrandfather came from New York state once upon a time probably in the year 1830, and visited his son (my grandfather) in Rhode Island. He drove a pair of horses and brought a load of butter, then carried it to Providence and sold it. It would be interesting to know how much he got for his butter. His home was way out on Lake Ontario near where it empties into the Saint Lawrence river. Such a contrast between the mode of travel then and now. I am thinking if we had to travel that way now we wouldn't attend many S. C. picnics. We would not think we could start to Willimantic, and meet the Sisters there and have dinner, spend a few hours visiting and get back here in time to get supper.

Keziah Doolittle: I saw your uncle on the car the other day, if I had had a chance I would have asked him if he had found what he was looking for. I don't think he knew me.

SHOWING OUR COLORS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters; I have just been reading an article on, Why She Picked On Me, telling of a young lady entering a train and as she had some distance to go she passed several attractive looking young men who seemed to make room for her as she came came down the aisle. Finally she came to a sheepy looking young man who perhaps was hoping she would pass him by so as not to disturb his slumber. She stopped and asked if the seat was taken by a companion. He told her it was not and made room for her. Do you know why she chose this young man? It was because he wore a Christian Endeavor pin on his coat.

Now, sisters, we know we need to be careful in whose care we put ourselves. It is also a good thing to show our colors. There are many kinds of pins or badges worn to show to what order or lodge they belong. It is the same in life we need to stand up for our colors to be true to the best that is in us and now the Thanksgiving season is here we show our colors to many a poor needy one, by a word of cheer. And O how many do need that by offering a helping hand to one in sickness perhaps or to a lonely soul! Can you think of just one to help? We can send a card of good will, a long neglected letter, a song a smile. O, so many ways to show we are thankful and to try and make others so. Yes, show your colors. Your Social Corner color is your yellow bow. Clasp the hand of a fellow sister when you meet her with a yellow bow. There are so many sisters who wish for a pin. Just make a pretty bow and show your color.

Crimson Rambler: The poem, When Ma Takes a Vacation, was good. There are many who do need a vacation, and if only to go for a day does break up the long, long day.

Thanksgiving Plum Pudding: The ingredients needed for this old fashioned pudding are one quart each seeded raisins, chopped apples, chopped beef suet, stale bread crumbs, flour and sweet milk and one pint each of currants, citron and sugar, one grated nutmeg, one teaspoon salt and six eggs. Dredge the fruit well with the flour. Into a large bowl beat the eggs and stir in the bread crumbs, also fruit and suet, then sugar, nutmeg and salt. Dip the baking bag into boiling water, pour in pudding which is stirred rather stiff, tie loosely and boil three hours steadily in plenty of boiling water. Serve with plenty of rich sauce. Wishing you all health and prosperity.

WISE CARE OF CHILDREN.

Dear Sisters: How foolish to think you can wait on your children, hand and foot, and make them what they are intended for. Every child is a dynamo of abilities. Bristling activities in children are the index of their limitless possibilities. I think we should give our children every chance to develop every ability. Sometimes I think it is a miracle that a modern child lives at all or develops normal powers of mind and body. Children are surfeited with indulgence. So waited on, coddled, every wish anticipated. A baby is a little animal. But indulgence has changed many into little ornaments: adorned with a hundred dollars worth of lace and breathless frills, stored in a fifty dollar crib, perambulated in a sixty-five dollar carriage. God save every child a world of green and blue with bits of color and neutral tints, but indulgent parents vitiate its little life with folds of glaring whiteness. Instead of a baby having a chance to roll, kick, sprawl, stretch and scramble, the baby is carried, huddled, fondled and stifled in place of giving baby a chance to be taught by Mother Nature. Letting the little animals loose and teaching the little darlings to be happy alone. As soon as a child understands self-help, self amusements, self care, it begins to display hidden abilities. I think it a nice way to give a child regular service to perform as soon as it is capable of doing so and see how delighted it will be to be doing responsible and necessary work. You can also teach a child to make its own playthings. Do you know a child will take better care of a toy it works hard to make? All a child can do with costly toys bought for it, is to break them. Once while going to Chicago I rode a whole day on the train with a mother who had 11 children. The oldest was 22. The older ones waited on the younger ones, but for the most part each cared for itself, or waited on the mother. There was no crying, fussing, teasing, quarreling. The mother reached her journey's end in comfort. On the same train was another mother with one child. That she coddled, indulged, anticipating its uncontrollable wishes. That mother was a frazzle when the trip ended, and I thought to myself "that is just the way I used to do."

Children tease, fuss and quarrel for things, because they have never been taught the joy of doing things. The boy with energy pins in school is a mischief maker because the school isn't big enough for his abilities. He gets his lesson and then what? Nothing to do but "cut up." I love boys and I know whereof I speak. Many a boy has been expelled from school because the school system was not big enough for his energies plus. The big rebuke and stigma of being expelled from school is not on the child always, but on the institution. Energy plus is a germ exterminator. If there was a shop adjoining the school he could go there and make things.

I do hate to hear the word "afraid" used to a child. Always teach them love. A baby never knows fear until it is taught him never to fear God but love Him. Sin is fear, cowardice is sin. Courage is supreme self-mastery. Fear is thought poison injected into the imagination. Cultivate positive assertion of self. Every child is a royal child, the universe is that child's plaything, its battlefield, its kingdom of honor and glory. There is so much to say about children I could write forever, I know our children have some teachers that are wonderful but do you know I think any kind of a teacher that just teaches for the money in it would make a better junk dealer, as Dr. Croft says. The teacher is a brain trainer, nourisher, organizer, unfolder. The real teacher never proves a right by showing a wrong. Education is not knowing things, it is knowing life, knowing human, throbbing beings.

The great Teacher, Christ, caught that positive mind was supreme. "As you think, as you believe, as you desire, it shall be." Mary Tryon had that ideal as she told the girls as they left Holyoke college: "Do greater things than have ever yet been done." Emerson said: "If you write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse trap than your neighbor, though you build your house in the wilderness, humanity will make a beaten path to your door." Mind is ever making better things.

O, teacher, in your little red school house far back in your obscure corner of the earth, sitting before you in every child is the unfolded, latent, pulsing throbbing supreme, positive mind that gave Christ, Abraham, Moses, Daniel, Paul, Dante, Socrates, Plato, Phidias, Demosthenes, Caesar, Cicero, Huss, Newton, Shakespeare, Milton, Washington, Lincoln, Franklin, Greeley, Whittier, and the endless line of mental giants to the upbuilding of the world. Always remember something better is waiting for you down the road of Happiness. A chap in Harlem met a Newark friend. "Hello, Jimmy. I hear you are married, where did you get your wife?"

"At Woolworth's," was the reply.

CHRISTMAS SUGGESTIONS

Dear Social Corner Folks: I have wanted to write ever since we went to East Killingly but have been very busy. We had such a nice time that day and I am delighted that so many new members have been added to our list. I wish I had the names of all the writers from E. K. but expect that is something I shall have to find out the best way I can.

Pape's Boy: I do not live in Norwich and was not on the street there the time you mention. Would like to see you again.

Priscilla: "You have doubtless" forgotten me. We met at the Buckingham Memorial a number of years ago but the gathering was not a Social Corner one.

Honeysuckle: Thank you for telling us how to start fires without kindlings. We have proved it to be a thing worth knowing.

Kitjo: Do you live near Mt. Ochepetuk? With Avon and Last Rose of Summer I enjoyed a visit there a little over a year ago. The day turned out to be a stormy one and we could not see far. All that has been said of the wonder and beauty of the place is true and of the charming hostess who is an old friend of mine. In the line of Christmas ideas, someone in a letter to me a few days ago wrote that while she was at the beach last summer everyone was making napkins and doilies of colored voile. While perhaps not very durable, they were very dainty and pretty and she was going to make some for Christmas. Another gift that is sure to be appreciated is a guest towel made of colored linen, the end to be scalloped or hemstitched as preferred. Two thirds of a yard of linen will make two towels.

Rural Aunty: You make me long to be with you by the fireplace eating apple jelly. I have a bedquilt made in 1815. Can you beat that in your collection?

PRIMROSE.

HOW TO KEEP LIQUID CORN REMEDY

Dear Editor and Sisters: Perhaps those who have corns have used a liquid corn remedy.

The corn is cured for a while, but in course of time might appear again and we get the bottle to use what is left, only to find it has evaporated.

The cork was put in place after use and tightly corked yet, in a short time it will evaporate and when next wanted one has to purchase another bottle.

Melt a little paraffin wax and each time after using the corn remedy push the cork down tight and dip into the melted wax.

You will find all that you left in the bottle will be right for the next time. Hope this will help some one, as it has me, since I found out how to keep it.

Have not answered to the roll call, so will say present.

I was sorry to read in today's Bulletin that the Westminster parsonage was burned to the ground.

All are nearly strangers to me there now, but it will seem more strange without the parsonage.

White Dawn: I am sure you will miss it too.

With best wishes.

GREETINGS FROM HEATHER

Dear Social Corner: Enjoyed the poem sent in by Caro and am glad she is a neighbor.

Am glad to hear that Esmaralda is gaining in health. Take care of yourself Esmaralda, for we want to see you with us again soon.

Lalla: Hope 1492 has a better thinking cap than I, but if I am not mistaken "I always wear my rubbers."

I also knew Lilac Lady as D. M. A.

Best wishes to all Social Corner members.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Editor and Cornerites: Have been standing just outside for a long time and received many invitations to come in and join the Social Corner.

When I read the Bulletin Saturday and saw all the new names I got scared and said to myself, "Make a move, Pete, or you will not get a seat."

I picked out and discarded several names and finally decided, if you will receive me as a member, I will be

SOOTHING EFFECT OF MUSIC

Dear Social Corner: I saw on last Saturday's Corner page that a sister is asking for the poem about The Black Berry Girl. I have read a great many favorite poems but have never come across that one. Wish some one would send it in, also the Barefoot Boy with cheek of tan. I was pleased to read a few weeks ago the poem about Neighbors.

Sweet Adeline is an old timer that I often find myself humming through those two words are the only two words in it that I can recall or remember but the tune sung with all four parts, soprano, alto, bass and tenor, seems most captivating to me.

I was in a small boat one evening, where we had enough singers to carry all four parts of Sweet Adeline, and as our voices, male and female, rolled out over the water farther and farther away in the dusk and stillness of the evening, and then picked up and swelled in full ringing tones, to lazily roll off the sweetness of the song voices would thrill me. We tried it once singing from an old bus. We had our mandolin and one of us had a flute and as the music echoed through the trees on each side of the road and was turned back to us by the hallows and cliffs, I was afraid some animal living in the caves might be tempted to approach us for I know how much wild animals love music if it is soft and soothing, but I guess the occasional blast from the warning horn of the bus would have scared away the most venturesome of wild animals.

At one time we were spending a fortnight at a very, very old tavern. As it drew near the end of a perfect day, I sat alone in a sleepy hollow chair in a very large room of the tavern and indolently played the strings of a mandolin. As it became darker, I felt tiny twitches at my skirts, at my sleeves, on my shoulders and in my lap. I sat covered with tiny live creatures and suddenly sat up straight, as the mice dropped from me and scampered in every direction. I did some quick thinking and scampering myself and it did not take me many minutes to drop from the top step to the bottom of a long flight that led to the outside door which, I thanked my luck stars, was wide open and then I flew into the arms of my husband who was coming for supper. He was so startled by my frightened face and wild flight that he thought the house was afire. Never again would I touch the mandolin strings while we were in the tavern and as I could not shut my eyes to trust myself in sleep we were soon moved from the tavern.

You can charm any animal with music if it is not harsh, rasping, or discordant. Even dogs will love it if they can detect nothing about it that gets onto their sensitive nerve. For they are very particular that the performer on a musical instrument is a real, soul inspired musician. How music will sooth the sick, the tired fretting child, the weary old and the uneasy young. The mother of a child will hold him close to her while she rocks and sings a lullabye. She knows the power of music and the soothing effect of her lullabye which will close his eyes in peaceful slumber.

Her husband heard her byelowbye baby, one evening while he was in his study and reckoning his bills. He called to his wife: That's right, teach the baby to buy low and sell high. He had found some thing that to him was more important than music, but his baby will live many years before he finds anything more soothing, if ever, than his mother's lullabye.

WHY DIANA HAS NOT WRITTEN

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I want to write, as I want others to write for the Corner, worried and anxious since August that I could not do so.

I suppose some of you wonder why I do not answer your nice letters. I will soon as I feel stronger and my mind is clearer, and by writing these few lines you will see why I have not written. Well, first the weather conditions have been such that crops failed. We did not have any rain perhaps a sprinkle after Memorial day until the middle of August. Beans did the best of anything. This of course was a great disappointment to us as we are dependent on our crops.

Then in September on going to the henhouse my sister found that during the night some thieves had taken all our hens but five and chicks all but two. Then later the first of October we lost a cow. You believe me we could not see our way and now we are trying to do the best we can but without the egg and that milk money each week it is a hard struggle. Then worst of all a dear sister who lived in Massachusetts sickened and has now been brought home and laid to rest. So you see how it has been. I have been very poorly and am now but am doing the best I can.

I wish you one and all a pleasant Thanksgiving and to those who are sick or have lost a dear one during the year you have my love and heart felt sympathy.

I hope the sick ones are better.

Best wishes and love to all the sisters.

A WEEK IN PORTLAND

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: Nearly a month since I wrote to you folks but have enjoyed every minute of the time though.

The first week of November the mercury stood at 69 above—just ideal weather. I was on the lake most of the time when not in the woods. I have been to Portland for a visit and now I will tell you how I got there.

I was getting ready to go one morning when a friend came in and said: "Why are you going all dolled up?"

Of course I told him and he said well Arthur (that was his son) will be done pretty soon. If you are not fussy you can go in on the truck. That of course pleased me, a 29 horse power truck loaded with pine boards and 20 miles to Portland. I was ready and waiting when he came along and we were soon sailing along at great speed when we found that there was trouble.

The gas pipe had sprung a leak, so of course my chauffeur had to go to the nearest garage for help and of course that had to be Dry Mills.

Arrived at North Deering at 11:45 not so bad after all for it was 9:45 when we left Lakeside. The first thing I did when I alighted from my seat so high was to pick dandelion blossoms.

Well there were strong persuasions for me to stay there and not go any further, but I had promised and I would not disappoint the friends who were watching for me at Money Hill, on Eastern Promenade. The last named place is over looking the harbor. A much prettier view than western promenade for that overlooks the railroad yard though a body can see the White mountains also.

Well I arrived at my destination in time for tea. Then the invited guests began to arrive—a full house. The evening passed very quickly with vocal and instrumental music, story telling and refreshments. The party broke up at a very late hour and soon everything was quiet again. Then the next day a long ride around the city. Out Washington avenue, over Turkey's bridge, around Baxter boulevard where thousands of our wild ducks could be seen in Back bay, out through Deering Oaks to Brighton avenue, down St. John's street, over Vaughan's bridge to the Secony Oil Works. Turning to our left we were at Forest City cemetery. We rode through that for it is the largest cemetery I was ever in. Then on to Cape Elizabeth where we had a chance to sit in the car and watch the broad Atlantic spotted with white sailing vessels. We made quite a few calls for we had been around South Portland and were coming back to the city over the million dollar bridge, up High street, down Congress street for Congress street is the main street in Portland. Then on to Fort Allen's park, there again to park our car and enjoy a look at the islands—Mackworth, owned by our Gov. Baxter, Peaks Great Diamond, Little Diamond and many others.

There is also Fort Gorges out in the harbor. It is years since I had seen those familiar scenes so you can imagine how good it did seem to be over them once more. Arrived home at 8 p.m., had tea and then went out for the evening, where we were well entertained. Then Friday we attended Keiths theatre. Saturday my friends brought me home and that ended a week of great pleasure. Trust everybody had a very pleasant Thanksgiving. It is snowing today the 24th, the first heavy fall only two flurries before. A man in Framington predicts a short winter with early spring and I say, hurrah!

I did some electioneering, had a bundle of pictures, reading matter and stickers and pins sent me, and a neighbor volunteered to use her Lincoln to help me out. So down street we went and of course did not know who was who, so accidentally I handed a roll to a friend who was a democrat. She was really mad but did not say anything to me, but told a friend. Another lady would not accept the roll until she found out whether the picture was Coolidge or Davis, but when I assured her it was Coolidge she took it and thanked me.

Anna Z: I don't seem to find your address. Please send it to me if want to write you a letter.

I am saving those Crossword Puzzles for they will make pretty patch work patterns.

Rosy Posy: Where is that letter, I am waiting to answer it.

Best wishes to one and all.

GRANDMOTHER'S DINNER

Dear Sisters: Take a fat young hen, dress, cut in suitable pieces and cleanse thoroughly in cold water. Place the chicken in kettle. Pour on boiling water till well covered. Add a pinch of soda.

Boil ten minutes, drain off the water and return to fire. Cover with boiling water. Add one tablespoon of salt, half teaspoon of sugar, one-fourth teaspoon of black pepper. Boil slowly for two hours.

Take one tablespoon of butter and two tablespoons of flour, heat in pan till well browned. Pour over this one and a half pints of rich sweet milk, let come to a boil and pour over chicken. Let simmer five minutes. Take one quart of flour, half teaspoon of salt, half teaspoon sugar, two heaping teaspoons of baking powder and enough sweet cream to make a soft dough. Roll out two thirds of the dough (not too thin,) line a flat pan, place the chicken evenly and pour in half the gravy, dotting the top with little chunks of butter and pepper. Roll out remaining dough and cover.

Bake till crisp and brown. When ready to serve take a fork, break crust in six or eight places and pour the remaining gravy, boiling hot, over the pie.

Take six good sized sweet potatoes, and boil twenty minutes, remove the skins and have ready a gravy made as follows, one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour, two tablespoons sugar, one-half teacup of boiling water. Place the potatoes in pan, pour gravy over them and bake a golden brown. Baste several times while baking. Soak one cup of rice over night. Take one egg, a scant cup of sugar, one tablespoon salt, a chunk of butter, plenty of nutmeg. Beat all together, stir in three pints of rich sweet milk. Butter a baking dish, pour in the mixture, adding the rice last. Bake one hour, stirring the pudding three times the first half hour to keep from sticking to bottom. Let brown, but not burn. Serve with whipped cream sweetened.

Will answer present to the roll call.

CHRISTMAS GIFT IDEAS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Some one of the sisters asked for Christmas gifts am sending in ideas how to make t hem.

Handy Holders

To make a very acceptable yet inexpensive gift, buy six asbestos mats (hot iron holders) five cents apiece. Cover these with cretonne and bind with a contrasting shade of bits of ribbon or bias binding. I find that a chain stitch along the binding makes an attractive gift—six of these as a gift would be very much appreciated by any housekeeper.

Bridge Lunch Set

Get 1-2-3 yards of Japanese crepe. Cut a piece thirty inches square(it is 30 inches wide) and cut from square 16x16 napkins. Fringe the edges for about an inch and put a simple initial, cross stitch design or lazy daisy design, in the corner of each piece. A pale green, or old blue worked in pastel shades is pretty. Gray crepe embroidered in bright colors is especially lovely.

Fruit Napkins

One yard and a quarter of white Japanese crepe cut into 15 inch squares and marked with cross-stitch letter makes a present of 6 fruit napkins, is always welcome and saves linen.

HAS CHRISTMAS PLAN

Dear Social Corner Folk: Lost, ink dried up, why so silent. Oh no, as usual eveready so just rushing from one task to another.

Thankful to be able to work and for health.

My latest is teaching this week, and getting up a Thanksgiving dinner for a good sized family party.

Next is Christmas which I love to prepare to make others glad.

Am going to make up bouquets of berries and greens for Christmas and can make some wreaths. If any of you sisters wish to order some just write me a line or phone 446-13, and I'll bring to Franklin hall at out rest.

Will not charge over twenty-five cents.

Yours for the Corner.

RECIPES.

Baked Potatoes: Wash, clean with pearline or borax, rinse well, grease all over with butter then place in oven on asbestos plate and cover over with a pan. This is nice with "dried beef creole."

Dried Beef Creole: About one-half cup of dried beef, one cup of tomatoes, two tablespoons of grated cheese, and one-quarter teaspoon onion juice.

Judge Peters Pudding: One small box of gelatine dissolved in one-half pint of cold water; add one-half pint of cold water and at the same time one cup of sugar, juice of two lemons, two oranges, two bananas sliced; two oranges sliced, six figs and a few nuts put through the grinder screw with cream after it has been allowed to mould.

Fruit Bars: One cup of dates (cut up), one cup of nuts, one cup brown sugar, two eggs, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon baking powder, five tablespoons of buttermilk, one and one-quarter cups flour, mix dry ingredients; add milk, eggs, dates and nuts. Butter pan, put oil paper in. Have a moderate oven and bake thirty minutes. After slightly cooled, roll in bars and roll in powdered sugar.

Orange Flower: Select one thin orange for each person to be served. Wash and dry; then with a sharp fruit knife cut the peel into eighths from the top down toward the bottom. Separate from the fruit without breaking apart, and lift the fruit out. Clip the peel off about one-third down, then with sharp scissors cut each eighth into thin strips. Remove all the membrane from the orange, pull the sections apart without breaking at the bottom and clip away the fibrous portion. Place the fruit back in the peel and set on ice. When ready to serve, fill each one with pine apple sherbet and cover with shredded cocoanut.

THE BEST LOSER

Dear Social Corner Sisters: As our page has not been very full for two weeks perhaps there will be room for me again. Some of the sisters are asking for a Social Corner pin as a means of identification of the members.

Oh yes, I think the idea of a pin is good, butdidn't some one say several weeks ago that that plan had been voted on in days gone by and was voted down?

I enjoy the recipes the sisters give. Does anyone else cook sweet apples with quince? I cook them about half and half. We like them better that way. I cook them slowly and a long time.

I have read the story mentioned by Kitty Lou in Woman's Home Companion, The Man Who Nobody Knew. It is fine.

The American magazine is having a prize contest for the best letter on The Best Loser I Ever Knew. I shall not try for the prize but these verses (which I learned several years ago) came to my mind when I read of the contest:

As some great bird,
Who's hurt wing answering
Still beats the air
In useless striving."
And dying with strong talons
Holding fast its hard earned prey
While with wide hungry beaks
Its foe off young are vainly calling,

Or a spent swimmer breasting angry waves to save a life
With dying eyes fixed on the rescuing boat.
And knowing it is all too late
Yields not the life he gave his own to save!
That is not failure:
For bird nor swimmer give up purpose!
Long, long centuries a gone.
One walked the earth.
His life a seeming failure:
Dying, he gave the earth a gift.
That will outlast eternity."

MAKING A VANITY BAG

Dear Social Corner Sisters: A vanity bag I made of wide ribbon, and then attached a mirror on the bottom. This required half a yard of four-inch ribbon, the same amount of half-inch width, a yard and a quarter of baby ribbon, a tiny mirror, and a small box of face powder. Cut a circular piece of card board, the size of the mirror and cover with ribbon. Sew the half-inch wide piece half an inch from the top edge as a casing. And button hole an eyelet at each side. Gather the bottom edge; and sew to the covered circular piece. Glue the mirror to the bottom, outside and the box of powder on the inside of the bag. Sew small silk cord around the edge of mirror to give a perfect finish. Run the baby ribbon of contrasting color. To close the bag twist the top halfway around and let it fall on the bottom. The weight of the loop keeps it closed. This is large enough for a dozen or more handkerchiefs. This may be scented by a small sachet or you can put sachet powder in between the circulars of cardboard. I think sandal wood sachet the nicest for this.

ANSWERING THE ROLL CALL

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am late in answering the roll call, but I am present just the same. I am not able to attend many meetings at the Buckingham, as I am a member of the D. A. R. and their meetings comes the first Wednesday in the month also and I usually attend.

True Blue: Thank you, for the birthday card. It was thoughtful of you to send me one. I see others are thanking you for the same, so think you took the right pen name. No, it has not been so I could attend the picnics this summer, but I hope to see you all again sometime in the future.

Saturday I made a cake from Rural Aunty's recipe, sent in some time ago. It says will keep a year. It may in theory, but not in my family. It's much too good.

Am glad to see so many new members. Hope they will write often.

With best wishes for the coming holidays to the editor and all the Social Corner sisters from

ISADORE.

PLAN FAILED TO WORK OUT

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I saw by Saturday's Corner page that two at least of the Corner sister's were looking for a letter from Deliah Deal with something about suggestions in regard to a pin for street wear which they said they approved. Now that was not my suggestion originally but I did and do heartily approve of the idea and thought I had a plan whereby I could give it a boost. But that all exploded and I cannot help as I hoped.

I thought I could suggest a place where we could purchase a celluoid one for five or ten cents that would answer the purchase just as well as one that would cost more. Then we could have three, four or five of them and if any of the others were like me and losing and misplacing little things like that they would always be able to find another somewhere around. So before I told you I thought I would write to be sure. I did so, but the answerwas not as the sample I received was unsatisfactory so dropped it but think it best to make this explanation. But if anyone can think of a feasible way I'll surely be glad to join the ranks although I should not be able to make much use of mine unless you traveled by my house as I cannot get out to mix with the people these days.

Rosy Posy: I know your real name and where you live although I never have met you. I have friends in your village and 30 years ago I used to spend the biggest part of my summers there with my grandparents.

Mavis: I don't even know your real name or place where you live. Wish I did.

Jacks Wife: I received the box of samples all right and the nice letter from you. Thanks. There was a crochet hook in the box too, I don't think it belongs to me. Have you missed one? I wish every one of the sisters could have a piece of your lovely cranberry pie such as I had the day I spent with you. It was delicious as was all the entire dinner that day.

One of the sisters spoke of raisins settling. I find if I mix the raisins with all of the flour used in the cake then add it part at a time, as you always do, there is very little danger of their settling.

One thing more in regard to the pin idea. It was suggested by one sister that S. C. S. be the letters used on a pin. As there are several brothers who will and sometimes attend the meetings would it be best to have the last S. left off and just use S. C. or would the brothers not care to wear a pin anyway?

I like the thought of one of the sisters of adding to our signature the name of our home town so I try to always remember to do so.

It was my mistake when I did not receive a reply from Saturday Eve as I directed her letter to Malden, Mass., instead of Melrose, Mass. She wrote me a short time ago and said that had happened several times before but usually she got them after a little delay.

Now will close with best wishes for a happy holiday season to Corner editor and all Cornerites.

SEASON'S GREETINGS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: The season's greetings to one and all. Can any one find fault with this lovely fall weather? It seems like a treat to hear the pitter patter of rain against the window pane. Those that have plenty of water have a good deal to be thankful for.

Sweet William: Your call was short and sweet, I phoned E. I suppose the children are looking forward for the short vacation.

I send sympathy to all in trouble and those who have lost dear ones.

Best wishes to all

GREETINGS FROM BIRDEY

Dear Corner Sisters: Finding there is room for another on the membership list of the Social Corner I want to pay my dues by writing, even though it is briefly, to the Corner page. I trust all the members had a delightful Thanksgiving.

Happy Go Lucky: Better put on your thinking cap and take notice of the new styles in "bunnits."

Mary Gusta: Congratulations on what happened Wednesday.

Best wishes to the Social Corner.

MAKING SOAP AT HOME

Dear Sisters of the Corner: I am wondering if many of you ever make your own soap. I will say I do and have just made up quite a large supply. Warm weather is the best time to make up the year's supply for laundry purposes. A large iron kettle is a good convenience, as with it quite a large amount can be made at once. I have made many a batch in a large granite dishpan on the kitchen range letting it cook while I do my morning's work. A single recipe, which I will give later, will cook in a little more than an hour from the time it begins to boil. The advantage of cooking soap this way is that one need not take a day off to do it but can cook a batch whenever convenient. To each can of lye, (I always use Babbit's) use seven quarts of water (soft) and six pounds of grease. This may be cooked or raw, it must be cut in pieces the same as for rendering into lard or tallow. Of cracklings and meat skins allow six pounds if this is used instead of just plain grease. The cleaner the grease is the whiter and nicer the soap will be. Five ounces of borax and a small bottle of ammonia about two ounces added to the soap is excellent. This recipe will make from 14 to 16 pounds of nice soap. Never use a tin vessel for cooking as the boiling corrodes the tin. The soap will not be injured but the tin will. Granite or iron is best. The vessel must be at least half as large again as the quantity of soap to be cooked as the liquid boils up quite a little. First put the water in the vessel in which the soap is to be cooked, add the lye, and stir well. Let this come to a boil, but do not skim, then add the grease and stir this well. If a smaller amount only is needed use only half this recipe, letting it cook slowly for an hour or an hour and a half. Larger quantities take longer. Should the soap boil over, decrease the heat. A small quantity of cold water stirred in well when the liquid is about to boil over will prevent this if seen in time. I always use a flat stick or paddle for a stirrer. I always test by letting the boiling liquid drip from the paddle. When it strings in good shape the soap is done. Now pour into pans or boxes to cool. Boxes should be lined with paper for the paper sticks to the soap and cannot be gotten off very easily. Cheese cloth or muslin is good to use as a lining, as it can be peeled from the soap when cold and used over and over again. If the ends of the cloth are left hanging over the top of the box the soap can be easily lifted out. When the soap is cold and firm, which generally is in the morning, if left to stand over night. I lift from the box and cut into bars. Set it in a dry place to harden. Make the bars of a good size, otherwise the soap may dry out too much. Never let soap freeze till after it is well dried—frost can't hurt it then. If the proportions given in this recipe are used the soap will not be hard on the hands. If a little less grease is used the soap will be stronger in lye and hard on the hands. Considering the grease worth four cents a pound, and counting the fuel, etc., the cost of soap is about two cents a pound. When well cooked and stirred it does not contain much more moisture at that time than ordinary soap sold at the stores. When dry, it goes farther than factory made laundry soap which, depending on the quantity bought at one time, costs from six to nine cents a bar. The matter of cost aside, however, this home made soap will do laundry work much better than any factory made product. Especially is this true where the water is the least bit hard or brackish as a good many wells are. I have made this soap for a long time. Generally I make two batches by using each time half this recipe, twice a year. Some times I put two tablespoons of oil of bergamot in the soap to make a sort of a perfumed soap. I have given some of this soap many times to Social Cornerites when they have been at my home and neighbors too and they have always pronounced it very good.

J. E. T.: Did you receive the "owl" I sent you? Hope so, he is perfectly gentle and next time I will send you his mate. They are not of the vicious kind.

Joan: I hear you are again under the weather, but trust it is nothing serious.

I will ring off now for this time or else I will have to pay extra toll as I have held the wire way beyond the limited time.

Yours for the floor of the Corner.

CARING FOR AN IRON SINK

Dear Editor and Corner Folks: I have been very slow in saying thank you for the prize check which was received some time ago. It came just in time to pay my Eastern Star hospital assessment with and I was pleased to know I could earn a dollar so easily and then spend it where it could do so much good.

And now I want to extend greetings to all the new members who are coming into our Corner and especially those into Club 4. We feel that we have passed the infancy stage, are getting quite grown up and expect to be heard from quite frequently in the future. When a name like Honora Yfykaytinebusqui appears on our page most of us are going to set up and take notice and I am wondering if Mahkinipi Essurddrawde would not be a better name for the writer.

The East Killingly sisters are to be congratulated on the good time they gave all members and visitors at the meeting there. They know just how to do it and the church and grounds are an ideal place for just such a gathering, so if you ever have another chance to visit there don't miss it.

Avon: Weren't you a long time getting home from there?

Some time ago Thirty Two was asking for information about caring for an iron sink and I have had it in mind all the time to help her if I could. My own experience has been to keep the sink as clean and dry as you possibly can at all times.

I have used the one we have for twenty-two years and am proud to say that it is as smooth as glass and polished so you can see your face in it and not be able to see all the little wrinkles and crows feet that may be appearing. I am not claiming credit for all this for the same sink had been used for more than 20 years before we had it so you see it has always been well cared for. I always make it a point to leave it thoroughly dry over night and also after every dish washing. If it get rough at any time, use sand paper on it, grease it over with lard and leave over night then wash thoroughly with good soap and hot water, and I never use a sinky sink cloth. Find it helps a lot to hoop a basin or pail to catch the drip in place of letting it spatter over the sink at all times.

Happy Go Lucky: I remember you once had something to say about some people having a "good forgetfery." Now that must have been what was the matter with me when I failed to give you credit for being a member at the time club 4 was started at the home of Primrose. Well do I remember your presence at that time and how nicely your served the dinner, but when you recall how few and far between your letters had been at that time you must not blame me for forgetting to give you all the credit due you.

POETRY

THE VACANT LOT.

They're going to build a flat house on the lot next door to me;
And Roger Jones, the janitor's boy, is mad as he can be.

That lot was a tropic isle, with weeds
and rubbish fair,
The rusty cans and coffee pots, that looked like Roger's hair.

'Twas oft we strolled among the weeds,
we were in love, you see,
And Roger Jones was going to build a
bungalow for me.

We used to rest upon a rock, just where the weeds were tall;
We were engaged, I think, until the builders spoiled it all.

MOONSHINE IN MY GARDEN.

Moonshine, Moonshine,
From your pearly throne stoop down
You shall bring your yellow crown
Deep inside my garden.

Flit and wander here with me
On these paths where night elves be Smile with jovial majesty
And your lantern lend us;
Night invites your golden shower
On each bush nad fairy bower,
Music, with your stately power,
Hand in hand attend us.

Silver o'er the lovers' kiss,
Gild anew their dream of bliss,
Never dreamed they dream like this
Since your eye has found them;
While the song from life's guitar
Softly reaches from afar,
Summon from each potent star
Heaven's blessings round them.

Lo, the primrose from its bed
Drooping in your presence dread,
Oh, incline your kingly head,
Give the sleeper pardon;
So the night shall gleam with love,
Purple cloak with silver wove,
Moonshine coming from above
Down inside my garden.

—Edward Vieta, in "Ad Somnum."

The deep black heartwood, which is most highly prized in a number of trees of the ebony family is mentioned in the Bible in Ezekiel 27:15, in connection with ivory, probably on account of their value and of their contrasting colors. Ebony was once supposed to grow in the ground "without root or leaves" and to it were ascribed many miraculous powers. The chief source of the ebony wood is the Island of Ceylon where huge logs of the pure heartwood are cut and hauled to the coast. For interior decorations and furniture ebony has been superseded by rosewood and mahogany, but for cabinet work it is still widely employed being exported from Madagascar, Jamaica, India and Egypt. A species of the ebony tree which is used as a veneer also grows in the southern United States.—Washington Star.

IRVING WALTERS, OF NEW LONDON, FATALLY INJURED BY AUTO TRUCK

New London, Nov. 28.—William Glynn, 3 Rosemary street, a truck driver, employed by O'Neill the baker, was arrested early this evening by Traffic Officer Frank Linehan, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. In default of a surety on his bond Glynn was locked up at the police station pending the convening of the police court Saturday morning. Glynn was operating his automobile through Main street shortly after 6 o'clock when it crashed against a delivery automobile of the Main Street Market, the latter machine being considerably damaged. Glynn showed signs of having imbibed too freely and was taken into custody. His truck is being held at the police station.

Desk Sergeant Frank Howard of the night shift, is again absent from duty at the police station, having been taken ill last night and is now under the treatment of a physician at his home on Walker street. Sergeant Howard only resumed duty a few nights ago after having been incapacitated by illness.

John W. Flynn of Hartford and Miss Agnes C. Harvey, daughter of Mrs. Anna Harvey, 3 Harrison street, were married Thursday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Agnes' church, Niantic, the nuptial mass being celebrated by Rev. Edward A. Flynn, pastor of the church and brother of the groom. B. B. Hennessey of Ansonia, was best man, and Miss Alice M. Quinn of this city, attended the bride.

Frank Reichenbach, chief machinist's mate, stationed at the submarine base, and Mrs. Frances Beatrice, were married Wednesday afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Seamons, 20 Denison avenue, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J Perry.

Frank W. Newell, of Pacific street, a veteran conductor in the freight service of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, has entered the Huntington Memorial hospital, Boston, where he will probably undergo an operation within a few days.

Charles H. Newton has sold a tract of land on Nameaug avenue to Pearl J. Jones.

Mrs. Daniel Crandall and infant daughter, of Rockville; Mrs. Mary McNich, and John La Point, of Bank street, were patients discharged at Home Memorial hospital today.

Sneak thieves were busy in the eastern end of the city Thanksgiving day if was revealed during today for three residences were entered. In neither case was the amount of plunder of great value.

The residence of Harry J. Kennedy, 903 Bank street, was entered last evening during the absence of the family, by means of a window that was left unfastened. The crooks stole a watch and charm belonging to Mr. Kennedy, the charm bearing the inscription, "H. J. K." The family left the house about 7 o'clock and returned home at 9.30 o'clock.

The residence of James L. Shea, 15 Spring street, was entered during the day or evening and the plunder obtained there consisted of $14 and a flashlight. Mr. Shea and his family left home during the forenoon and did not return until 11 o'clock at night when the discovery was made that the house had been entered. Entrance was gained through a kitchen window that had been left unfastened.

Tonight, Mrs. Rose Cherkaski, 47 Summer street, informed the police that her residence was entered yesterday during the absence of the family, but the discovery of the break was not made until this forenoon. The plunder consisted only of a child's bank containing specie, although a thorough search of the place was made, presumably for money, for silverware and linen that was in plain view and valuable was not disturbed. Entrance was gained through an open cellar window.

Atwell W. Young, a sailor in the United States navy, pleaded guilty in the police court this morning and was fined $25 when he was charged with wanton and lascivious carriage in making an exposure of himself near the telephone office building at Union and Golden streets last evening. Complaint had been made to Police Sergeant Cavanaugh and that officer lay in wait for the sailor. The officer came upon him in the guilty act and secured evidence from a couple of men who were passing so that there was no chance for Young to escape responsibility. The witnesses were in court to testify against Young, but he pleaded guilty.

Daniel Rollinson, a sailor on the U. S. destroyer Jouett, was fined $100 for bootlegging at Plant hall where dances are conducted. The sailor had two quarts of gin and he was peddling the liquor among sailors and others who patronize the dances. Officer Riordan on duty at the hall, discovered what was going on and detected Rollinson in the act of passing the bottle. He was accused of owning and having liquor for sale and to this charge he pleaded guilty. The state was not in possession of evidence that would show that money actually passed for the liquor, but circumstances were such that it was altogether probable that Rollinson was not giving the liquor away. Where the liquor came from was not divulged, but it is pretty evident that it was some of the liquor seized on other craft by the Jouett.

Thomas Carroll, whose home is at Montville and who said he was employed at Thamesville, made his first appearance in two years in the police court today. He was found drunk on North Bank street Thanksgiving day evening and arrested. So he spent the night behind the bars. He pleaded that he fell out of the path that is the way to go and regretted that such was the case. In view of the fact that he had kept away from the court two years, leniency was shown to him and he was allowed to go on a suspended sentence.

Irving Walters, aged 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Walters, of 17 Cole street, was fatally injured this afternoon when he was run down by a commercial truck, owned by the Thames Towboat company and operated by Joseph Gizar. The boy received injuries which resulted in his death a few minutes later in full view of his mother and three brothers and sisters and hundreds of people on State street.

Gizar was arrested by Traffic Officer William Corcoran, but was released upon his own recognizance following an inquest conducted by Coroner Jeremiah J. Desmond, of Norwich.

Master Walters, accompanied by his mother and brothers and sisters, alighted from a main line trolley car at the State street terminal at 1.30 o'clock. As the mother and children stepped to the highway, Irving ran from beside his mother and started to run to the sidewalk. He darted in front of the commercial truck, which was being operated at an estimated speed of 15 or 20 miles an hour. Sizer saw the child and applied the brakes in an endeavor to bring the heavy machine to a stop, but he was unsuccessful, for the mudguard struck the boy and hurled him to the pavements, the left front wheel of the truck stopping with the machine resting across the child's chest and abdomen. Patrolman William Manice was near and rushing to the street with the assistance of pedestrians, caused the truck to be rolled from the boy's body. Patrolman Manice carried the child to the automobile of Charles Glassenburg and Mr. Glassenburg speeded to Lawrence hospital. The child was unconscious when placed in the automobile but regained consciousness temporarily, lapsing into a comatose state as the automobile was nearing the institution.

If the hospital the boy was taken to the operating room where a pulmotor was brought into service. The use of the pulmotor brought life back to the child temporarily and it was believed that his life might be saved, but the child died five minutes after he had been received at the institution.

Grace L. Harris, administratrix of the estate of Annie M. Hebbard, has sold a house and lot at 14 Thames street to William A. and Gladys A. Wainwright.

Mrs. Andrew Morgan and infant daughter of Windsor street, Mrs. Russell Hayne and infant daughter, Huntington street; Mrs. William Sturgeon, Federal street; Mrs. John Stone, Summer street; Mrs. Frank Hart Division street; John Marks, Thames street; Harold Albin, Lewis street; Jesse Maynard Vleta street; and Mrs. William Knipley, Pequot avenue, were patients dismissed yesterday and today by Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

Charles H. Tyrrell, colored, about 60, died late Wednesday at his residence, 22 Hill street, after an illness of about a fortnight. He was employed as a chef and at one time was a restaurant proprietor.

Mrs. Isabelle A. Kenney, 78, widow of Charles Kenney, of Crystal avenue, died late Tuesday at Home Memorial hospital. Mrs. Kenney, who had been in ill health a long time, is survived by three sons, Charles and William Kenney, of this city, and Henry Kenney, Yonkers N. Y.

The funeral of Andrew B. Gard was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 43 Stanley street and was attended by a large gathering of mourners, among whom was a delegation of members of Palestine Commandery, Knights Templar of which organization Mr. Gard had been a member many years. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, the pastor of the Second Congregational church. Members of Palestine Commandery acted as bearers and conducted the committal service in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Funeral services for John B. Collins, former manager of the Standard Oil company agency in this city and eastern Connecticut, was held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at his home, 8 Brooks street, and was attended by many mourners. Rev. Myron E. Coater, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, officiated. Members of Palestine Commandery acted as bearers and conducted the committal service in Jordan cemetery.

There is no change today in the condition of Miss Alice Lyons, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Lyons, 183 Montauk avenue, a patient at St. Francis hospital, Hartford. She is suffering from a fractured skull as a result of being thrown from the automobile owned by Mrs. James L. Crawford, of Norwich and driven by the owner's son, James A. Crawford, when the car was wrecked at "Ten Curves," Glastenbury, early yesterday morning. Miss Lyons is still unconscious, in which condition she has remained since being admitted to the institution. Miss Laura Bottinelli, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Battista Bottinelli, 22 Reed street, who with Miss Lyons, was with young Crawford and William Storkan, also of Norwich, was dismissed from the hospital, today, Miss Bottinelli having sustained only bruises and scratches.

Their active, energetic, little bodies frequently require a large amount of nourishment and much of this is supplied by Baker's Cocoa in a readily assimilable form.

GROTON FERRY BOAT LEASED TO CRANDALL AND SHEEHAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 28.—The city council this evening arranged for the leasing of the New London-Groton ferryboat to George W. Crandall and David J. Sheehan, who was the lessees of the boat during the year to date. A special meeting was held for the purpose and the terms of the lease were read to the council and to the selectmen of the town of Groton, the lease being satisfactory to both parties concerned. Bids for the contract were opened Wednesday. There was only one bidder, that being the parties mentioned. Their offer was to operate the boat for the sum of $5700 a year the payments to be monthly, and they are to assume the ordinary repairs of the boat to the extent of $1,000 during the year. Of the amount to be paid to the lessees New London is to pay 75 per cent. and Groton 25 per cent. The year to date has brought expense of $643, so that the lessees are more generous in this regard than they were last year.

NORWICH TOWN

Under the supervision of the matron, Mrs. May Rollins, those of the Johnson Home family who remained at home were served a very fine turkey dinner at 12 o'clock Thanksgiving day. Besides the bountiful repast which included every thing that goes to complete a typical New England dinner, the members had oranges, the gift of Miss Mary Porteous, who presented a box of oranges to the home.

Those of the family who were entertained at the homes of relatives or friends were Miss Mary Freeman, who was the guest of her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, of West Town street; Mrs. Louisa Young, who spent the day with relatives in Rhode Island; Mrs. Agnes Blackburn, a guest at the home of Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Jones of Bliss place; Mrs. Addie Sanford spent the day with her son and daughter-in-law at the home of the latter's relatives, the Metzger family, of Fifth street, Greeneville; Mrs. Philena Noland was a dinner guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight L. Underwood, of Pecks Corner; while Miss Sarah Armstrong had dinner down town.

Thanksgiving contributions to the United Workers this year, from the local schools, were unusually large, as parents were most liberal in sending generous donations through the children for this worthy cause. At the Town street school, William G. Tarbox, principal, five and one-half ordinary sized barrels were filled with all kinds of vegetables, fruit, jellies, canned goods, boxes of cocoa, etc. Aside from this, two dressed chickens were contributed and nearly $2 in cash. Up to the time of collecting the barrels, those in charge exclaimed that this school was in the lead for the largest collection.

No special exercises were held at this school for Thanksgiving, but songs appropriate to the day were sung by the pupils.

From West Town Street school, Miss Florence M. Bennett, principal, the Thanksgiving donations to the United Workers were also very liberal. Two large sugar barrels heaping full, containing every variety of vegetables, canned goods, jellies and fruit. A good sum of money was donated also. This school also contributed $4 to the Red Cross.

At the closing of school Wednesday for the holiday recess, special programmes were held in Miss Beckley's room and Miss Bennett's room. The two primary rooms, including the first four grades united in Thanksgiving exercises.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Tague and son, George, of McClellan avenue, motored to Springfield and were Thanksgiving guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tague's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Ward. Other guests at the Ward home included Mrs. W. C. Tague of Westfield and Mr. and Mrs. John Tague and sons, Lloyd and Henry Tague of Springfield.

Sidney P. Smith of upper Washington street was a Thanksgiving guest at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. T. Snowden Thomas of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., where Mr. Smith's children, Eleanor and Sidney Campbell Smith have been residing, since the opening of the school term, in September.

There is to be a religious service at the Scotland Road hall Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. J. F. Speerli, pastor of Fitchville Baptist church is to give the address. It is expected that he will be accompanied by the choir of that church.

Dr. and Mrs. N. Gilbert Gray of Vergason avenue as well as neighbors in that locality heard messages over their radio Thanksgiving evening from across the sea. Once when listening in the announcement of a programme and part of the numbers were heard distinctly.

Woodbury O. Rogers of Houlton, Me., spent Thanksgiving with his family at his home, 224 Washington street. Other members of the family who returned to Norwich Town for the holiday were Mr. and Mrs. Rogers' daughter, Mrs. Ronald Nelson and little son, Lloyd Steadman Nelson, of Brooklyn, N. Y., also their son, Allison Rogers, of Boston.

Besides the family gathering, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers had as dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. Owen S. Smith, of Norwich Town.

BIG NEW POWER STATION OLPENING AT DEVON

The Connecticut Light and Power Co., is inviting the public to an inspection of the new Devon power station on the afternoon of Saturday, Dec. 6.

The new power station is located at Devon, on the Housatonic River near the point where the river flows into Long Island Sound.

The Devon Station, which is one of the largest power stations in Connecticut, is unique in many respects. It generates current practically at 68,000 volts for bulk transmission purposes only and not for local distribution. It is situated at one of the few spots in Connecticut which combine the requisites for such a plant, namely, rail and tide water facilities, ample water for condensing purposes, room to expand, open country for the outgoing transmission lines and at the same time reasonable proximity to the load supplied.

The ultimate capacity of the station according to present plans will be 200,000 horsepower, of which 90,000 horsepower has now been installed and is in operation. The turbo-generators are 50,000 horsepower each. The boiler room is 98 feet wide, 130 feet long and 100 feet high. The turbine room is 57 feet wide, 255 feet long and 82 feet high. The stacks are 357 1-2 feet high, 25 feet in diameter at the base and 14 feet in diameter at the top.

The water used in the boilers is all obtained by evaporating the brackish tide water pumped from the river. All of the power generated at this station is produced by superheated steam, at a pressure of 320 pounds and over 600 degrees temperature. Coal storage for 40,000 tons has been provided, but ample space for further storage is available when necessary. The coal requirements at the present time are about 500 tons per day.

So far as possible the operation of all the apparatus in this plant is automatically controlled. Vast mechanism are started by the mere pushing of a button. Many of them once started, operate with more than human intelligence.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

A peculiar taste to the city water was causing the citizens of Norwich no little concern a half century ago and the favorite item for debate was what could be causing this taste. The water of the city had the habit of adopting this peculiar taste about twice a year and everything done to prevent it had failed.

Thanksgiving arrived with the week and with it the usual holiday events and the old fashioned barrel burnings which have become an institution in Norwich and should be preserved as an old custom.

Monday, November 23, 1874—Late Saturday afternoon the gentlemen connected with the Norwich and New York Transportation line presented the late manager, Julius Webb, with a superb silver service valued at $1000. It was obtained in New York and of the most exquisite design.

The benefit concert last Friday at Gale's Ferry for the benefit of the Methodist church there, by the Ossian Glee club of this city, went off in fine style. There was a fine attendance and the concert is to be repeated soon.

The Arctics are claiming the bat from the Stars and by all rights they should receive it for the Stars refused to accept the challenge for a series of games for the permanent possession of the bat.

Tuesday, November 24, 1874—Fosters billiard rooms were reopened last evening and there was a large crowd present, the rooms being filled to capacity before the games of the evening were started. The first game of the evening was played between Francois Ubassy and Melvin Foster, at French caroms, Ubassy winning the contest by the score of 150 to 53. The great game followed between Ubassy and Maurice Vignaux, the champion of the world, Vignaux winning by the score of 200 to 56. The playing was very brilliant and the fancy shots after the matches were over, were marvels of execution.

They are shelling Main street and Laurel Hill under the direction of the selectmen and propose to do a pretty good piece of work there before winter sets in. Considering the nature of the ground and its peculiarities of inclination, a roadway cannot be made of any better material than shell.

It is expected that the common council will take into consideration at its next meeting, the propriety of passing an ordinance for payment of juries at the city court. Probably the jury on the recent horse case will be provided for at the same time.

Yesterdays warm and copious rain was welcomed in this city but a much heavier fall would have been of much more help to wells and cisterns in the city.

George D. Thurber of this city is to attempt a walk of 105 consecutive hours, in Providence in two weeks. A purse of $300 has been offered if he makes it as scheduled.

Wednesday, November 25, 1874—A meeting of the West Chelsea district board of education was held last evening to receive a report from a special committee consisting of E. S. Bishop, Charles S. Peale and John W. Murphy in relation to a new schoolhouse. The primary department on the West Side is over crowded, there being accommodations for about 200 pupils, while there are now 288 scholars. There is a vacant room on Thames street which will be used and if the district will vote to do it a building will be erected which will accomodate the district for an increase for some years to come.

It is likely that the suit of the West Chelsea school district against the selectmen of Norwich will be tried during the present term of the superior court. This suit is of importance for it will settle the arrangement whether or not the school district may collect from the selectmen any funds they may expend over the amount given them by the town. The sum of $3900 in excess has been expended by the West Chelsea district and the selectmen have refused to pay this sum, hence the suit.

Bishop Lynch is to speak this evening at St. Mary's church in Greeneville and explain the Catholic view of the controversy that is going on in Germany between Bismarck and the Catholic church. There is much interest in this meeting and it is evident that the church was to be filled to capacity.

The Young Scalpers of Scalpingtown have issued a challenge to all boys within six miles of their stand to beat the Thanksgiving night. They say they have the boss pile and have on hand from 200 to 250 barrels.

Applications for city water into houses and stores continue to come in rapidly in spite of the trouble now being had with the city water.

Thursday, November 26, 1874—Speaking of local causes for Thanksgiving many of our factories have as many orders as they can desire and some of them are running extra hours. One of the latter is the machinery department of the Mowry Axle and Machine company. Very few firms are shipping as high as 18 tons of machinery away each day but this company has done so. They are now making a paper machine for the Hudson & Chesney Paper company makers of the paper the government uses to make the greenbacks.

When the moon came up last evening there shot up into the sky just above it a soft ray of yellow light, like the tail of a comet. When the moon came up further similar rays of lights were seen coming out from either side. This peculiar phenomenon lasted for about 15 minutes and was witnessed by hundreds.

G. A. Smith of Norwich has been named assistant inspector for the 7th district, posts 31 and 37. G. A. R., one of the inspectors for the state since the department of Connecticut was divided into ten inspection districts by the state commander.

The last vestiges of the old police station under the Blackstone house have now been removed and the room is being fixed up for the company.

Fathers Mullen and Kennedy will go to Willimantic today to attend the dedication of the beautiful new Catholic church there.

Friday, November 27, 1874—There was no Bulletin published on Thanksgiving Day in 1874.

Saturday, November 28, 1874—Thanksgiving began in Norwich with worship in the house of God. Many of the churches held union services and these were largely attended. Trains coming into or going out of the city were heavily loaded throughout the day with people going away for the holidays or returning to their former homes. Many social events were held during the afternoon and evening and the boys of the city held their customary barrel burnings. There were brilliant displays in all sections of the city, every district having many strings to set off in the early evening.

Company G held a target shoot Thanksgiving day on Tyler's lot. The best single score was made by Edward Smith at 150 yards, George Hart scoring best score. In the evening a social was held in the hall netting the society $50.

The first lesson of Prof. Butterfield's singing school was numerously attended last evening. The children sang nicely and Prof. Butterfield received many compliments on his work.

Steiner's new hall was dedicated Thanksgiving night by a Silber Gard social. It is a large and almost square room with a small gallery, ante rooms and orchestra and is built for entertainments of any kind, the day with people going away for the holidays or returning to their former homes. Many social events were held during the afternoon and evening and the boys of the city held their customary barrel burnings. There were brilliant displays in all sections of the city, every district having many strings to set off in the early evening.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS BULLISH.

New York, Nov. 28.—Bullish operations were resumed with renewed vigor in the stock market today. Prices sweeping forward under the leadership of representative industrial issues. Heavy accumulation of buying orders over the Thanksgiving holiday infused new life into trading, which ignored three advances in the call money rate to 4 per cent during the day, and gained increased velocity as sales expanded.

Tangible evidence of business improvement reflected in reports of increased operations in the steel industry and the favorable October earnings statements of the railroads, contributed to the strength of today's market.

United States Steel again assumed leadership of the advance, selling ex-dividend $1.75 a share, it more than recovered from this deduction and reached a price equivalent to the highest levels since 1917. It closed with a net gain of 1 1-2 points on the day. Other steel shares participated in the advance, many of them eclipsing their previous high records.

Eighty-two 1924 high records were established on sales approximately 2,400,000 shares, a volume of business which has been exceeded only two or three times since election. At the close of trading the price average of representative industrials was in new high ground for the year, but that of leading railroad issues failed to equal its 1924 high level, recently attained.

Demand for the industrial stocks was unusually broad, embracing in addition to the steel shares many prominent motor, merchandise, chemical, food, public utility and copper issues.

Among the many stocks from these groups to record new maximum prices were Studebaker, Maxwell "B", May Stores, Mallinson Silk, Allied Chemical, the commercial solvents issues, American Smelting, International Nickel, Texas Gulf Sulphur, United States Realty issues, and Savage Arms, net gains ranging from 1 to 2 points.

Called upon to absorb a heavy volume of realizing sales, the market still maintained its equilibrium, although prices of some of the most active issues tapered off slightly at the close following the rise in money rates. Several of the rails yielded to profit taking, although heavy buying of Baltimore & Ohio, Frisco, Kansas City Southern and Western Pacific preferred carried these issues to new top prices.

One of the most interesting developments of the day was the rise in call money to 4 per cent, the highest rate since May 26. Shifting of funds incident to month-end requirements led to calling of loans, and three advances were made in the rate during the day after renewal at 3 1-2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates remained unchanged.

Foreign exchange trading was featured by an advance of ten points in French francs to 5.38 cents which followed announcement that informal discussions had been held regarding the funding of the French debt to the United States. Dutch guilders sold at the highest point in five years, about 13 points above parity, and demand sterling held steady around $4.63 3-4.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Nov. 28.—The general list of curb securities was carried into higher ground today by heavy buying of the oil shares in broad and active trading.

Standard Oil of Nebraska and Standard Oil of Ohio were leaders of the petroleum group, the former advancing 13 points to 260. Standard Oil of Ohio added to its jump of Wednesday with another rise of 8 1-2 points to 372, the shares being in continued demand on prospects of a stock dividend and a split up of the shares. Others in the group to score were Solar Refining, up 5; Humble Oil, up 2 1-4; Vacuum, up 1 5-8 and Ohio Oil, up 1 1-2. Prairie Oil and Gas and South Penn Oil were exceptions to the upward movement, each closing a point.

Public utilities shared in the forward stride of trading. American Gas & Electric gaining 6 points to 113 and Cities Service 1 1-2 to 169. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore "when issued" also added a point to its previous close.

Pittsburgh Terminal Coal common was in demand, advancing 2 3-4 to 63 3-4. Cleveland Motor moved up 1 1-2 and rail issues were featured by a rise of 1 1-4 in Nickel Plate common shares.

The radios showed a strong tone and the baking issues were well bought.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Nov. 28.—Bond prices sagged today under a heavy load of realizing sales, which brought pressure to bear against virtually all classes of obligations. Trading throughout the day was marked by considerable irregularity, with the individual foreign, railroad and industrial liens contributing to advance while profit-taking caused sharp recessions in some of the speculative rail issues.

Trading in the new French and German bonds was stimulated by recent favorable developments. The French 7s sold at their highest level following announcement that preliminary discussions regarding the funding of the French debt to the United States had been held, while the new German bonds responded favorably to the extension of a $15,000,000 credit to the German Railways, putting the rail provisions of the Dawes plan into effect.

The rail bond issues yielded readily to profit-taking and New Haven bonds failed to maintain the strength which they developed on the basis of the road's refunding program. Reactionary tendencies also governed the price movements of Illinois Central 5 1-2s, Baltimore & Ohio 4s, Atlantic Coast Line, Chesapeake and Ohio and Southern Railway liens.

Wall street heard reports that the next foreign financing would involve a $15,000,000 loan to a land perhaps $50,000,000 for the state-owned railroads of Alsace-Lorraine. The Norfolk and Western railroads has sold a $6,000,000 issue of 6 per cent bonds to local bankers who probably will make a public offering next week.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Nov. 28.—Although temporarily ignored, frost reports from Argentina had much to do with strength which developed in wheat prices today after an early decline. Late dispatches indicated that severe damage to crops had been done in south and West Virginia. The wheat market here closed steady at the same as Wednesday's finish to 1-4c higher, December 1.54 3-8 to 1.54 1-2 and May 1.62 5-8 to 1.62 3-4, with corn 1c to 1 1-2c up, oats varying from 1-8c decline to 1-4c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 37 cents.

Estimates that deliveries of wheat next Monday on December contracts here would perhaps amount to as much as 5,000,000 bushels were something of a handicap to friends of higher prices. Apparent slowness of new export business acted also as considerable of a weight. On the other hand, higher prices for corn after the first hour of trading had more or less effect as a rallying influence on wheat.

STRESSING CAMPAIGN TO BUY CHRISTMAS SEALS

"Buy Christmas seals as you never bought before. Buy till it makes you happy. Place a voluntary tax on all your cheerful Yuletide letters. Brighten your gift packages with these gay little symbols of hope."

Half the people of the country will read this appeal in twenty-five of the largest national magazines with a circulation totaling sixteen million. The message strikes a powerful blow against tuberculosis, officials point out, more timely this Christmas than ever before, because this year has seen the first conclusive proof that the dreaded white plague can be overcome.

The publication of the results of the remarkable seven-year demonstration by the people of Framingham, Mass., in which the deathrate from tuberculosis was cut down 69 per cent., has opened the eyes of health authorities and private foundations everywhere. The achievement of the people of Framingham, aided by the National Health Council, far outstripped the general progress being made against the disease during the same period. As a result similar demonstrations have inaugurated in more than a dozen localities including, Mansfield, O., Syracuse, N. Y., Cattaraugus County, N. Y., and finally this fall a demonstration on extensive scale has been started in New York City, with funds supplied by the Milbank Memorial Fund.

Without these demonstrations the deathrate from tuberculosis has been cut in two during the twenty years since 1904, when Einar Holboell, a Danish postal clerk handling a deluge of Christmas mail, thought what a wonderful thing it would be if every piece of mail going into and out of the city of Copenhagen could carry a health stamp tax for the tubercular children of the city. In the happiness of the season, he reasoned, everyone would find true joy in contributing a little from his bounty to help the stricken ones and the bright seal would add the luster of human sympathy to every gift.

"The feeling is general throughout the country," said one health official, "that now is the time to strike and strike hard. The enemy is on the run. The forces to fight tuberculosis are highly organized. All that is needed is the help and the money from the man on the street. There are 13,000 state and local anti-tuberculosis associations, 70,000 hospital beds, 6,600 dispensaries and clinics, 3,000 open air schools and 10,000 public health nurses devoted to this crusade. And yet, in spite of all the splendid work of the past and this remarkable organization, there are still one million sufferers from the disease in the United States."

The advertisement is published by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company as one of the series of health advertisements. It says:

"Plaintive voices are calling to you for help. Will you help them? Let's all get together to help rid the world of the dread disease that shows no mercy to rich or poor.

"Christmas candles in your heart will burn more brightly because you have helped to smooth away some of the troubles of the world. This Christmas give the greatest gift of all—the gift of health."

In his summary of the tuberculosis situation, Haley Fiske, president of the Metropolitan, declares that a majority of the lives of those now suffering can be saved. He offers, to every one who writes for it, a free copy of "A War on Consumption," a booklet telling how to prevent and cure tuberculosis. The 17,000 agents of the company will urge the purchase of seals among the fifteen million industrial policyholders, most of whom are reached once a week.

PRESENTS
A NEW COMEDY
Close Harmony
BY DOROTHY PARKER and ELMER RICE
(By arrangement with Philip Goodman.)
TO THE PLAYGOERS OF NEW LONDON and VICINITY:
Why wait for the approval of Broadway?
The greatest dramatic successes of our time almost invariably have been launched outside of New York to empty seats.
The playgoer who has ignored a new offering in his own city has later paid exorbitant speculators' prices for the same play in New York.
I am opening a new play at the Lyceum Saturday, matinee and night.
In my opinion it is an important and significant comedy.
In my opinion the play, upon its arrival in New York, will be met by the kind of approval that means a speculators' holiday.
Why wait for New York?
Why not see it in New London?
I urge you to do so, feeling that you will be glad of the experience. I would scarcely risk the chance of having you bank too largely upon my advice unless I had every confidence in the outcome.
I believe you will be grateful for this suggestion.
I may be wrong. If I am I will hesitate ever to sanction this kind of recommendation again.
ARTHUR HOPKINS.

DISALLOWED CLAIM IN COMPENSATION CASE

The finding and award in the case of Oliver H. P. Peckham, Corning road, Norwich, vs Walter N. Block, employer, of Norwich, and the Fidelity & Casualty Ins. Co., of New York, respondents, has been filed by Compensation Commissioner J. J. Donohue.

The hearing was held at the commissioner's office in Norwich on November 24th where it was found that a contract of employment executed between the above named parties on or about Sept. 17, 1924, on which day it is alleged by the claimant that he strained his left side while lifting filing cabinet during the course of his employment.

The medical opinion of three physicians was to the effect that it was quite impossible to definitely connect the abscessed condition from which the defendant suffered with the strain and that the condition causing his disability was due to the claimed trauma, thus it would be impossible to find for the claimant.

The claim of the claimant was therefore disallowed and dismissed, but in this connection it might be noted that the respondent-insurer, from a friendly spirit toward the claimant contributed $50 toward the expenses which he had incurred because of his recent illness.

FOUL PLAY THEORY IN TOOLIN DEATH

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 28.—County Detective William Lewis today began a determined effort to ascertain the facts in the case of the death of Peter A. Toolin Jr., 35, assistant paymaster in the employ of the Robert Gair company, Montville, whose body was found early Thanksgiving day morning, in the highway near Station 15, by Hewitt Brake, 84 Ocean avenue, and William A. Buckley, 83 Blackhall street.

The extensive mutilation of the skull tends to show that Toolin sustained his injury other than by being struck by an automobile and that in all probability he was assaulted with a blunt instrument. It is known that Toolin engaged in wordy quarrels three times during the night. One quarrel occurred at the Coon club, Chesterfield, where a dance was promoted by Toolin and several friends. The second war of words occurred at the Reynolds dance hall where Toolin went following the suspension of dancing at the Coon club, and the third occurred in and out of an automobile near the Reynolds dance hall after the quarrel inside the dance place. The third quarrel is known to have resulted in Toolin using ugly language to the other three occupants of the car and, according to one of the occupants of the machine the quarrel ended only when the machine was stopped and Toolin invited to get out of the auto. This Toolin did, but the occupant of the car, who has been interrogated, declares that no blows were struck. However, a short time afterwards Toolin's body was found in the highway with the head battered to a pulp, the body still warm, but no one around who knew of the circumstances attending the victim's death. Not until yesterday afternoon did the authorities ascertain the identity of the occupants of the machine and last night and today they were rigidly questioned by the authorities, but each time they related the same story of taking Toolin into the car, but ordering him out when he verbally abused them.

Toolin is known to have been drinking, but was declared not to have been void of his senses.

The state police contend that Toolin was hurled from a machine, but medical experts fail to entertain the opinion that the entire ton of Toolin's head could be crushed and his teeth knocked out by a fall from a car and especially as there were no other marks about the body. Had Toolin been struck by a machine he would surely have had innumerable bruises, it is argued, and it would have been impossible for him to have sustained the head injuries other than being struck two or three times by a blunt instrument, wielded with vigor.

It has been learned that two automobiles passed the spot after Toolin had been put out of the machine. The occupants of the first car report that they did not see him, but those in the second car say he was standing in the road and waved his cap at them.

It was reported that a monkey wrench and two caps had been found close to the scene of the fatality, but Coroner J. J. Desmond said Friday night that he had had no official confirmation of such a report.

NEW ENGLAND IS SHARING IN INCREASE IN BUSINESS

The Woolen and Cotten Industries Have Greatly Expanded Since Last June—Production in Shoe Factories During October Was Nearly Equal to That of a Year Ago—Car Loadings of Merchandise by New England Railroads During the Past Three Months Reached the Highest Point For 1924 in October.

Boston, Nov. 30.—New England has obtained its share, at least, of the country-wide increase in business activity. During June the volume of business in New England was at the lowest point in nearly three years; July, August and September were months of marked improvement; in October, due perhaps to the desire to wait for the results of the elections, business seemed, as compared with September, to be but marking time. Now, however, the leading industries in this district have rapidly increased their production schedules to meet the larger volume of orders. From a most all sections of New England reports are being received of a larger number of workers on factory payrolls and of more working hours per week. Some textile mills have announced wage reductions, combined with increased working schedules. State public employment offices report that fewer workers were called for by employers in November than in October, but this is almost entirely a seasonal decline, occurring practically every year.

The improvement in production in the cotton industry of New England from the low point reached early last summer compares favorably with the recovery of 1921. Orders for fine cotton goods have been gradually increasing for several months, and early in the new year there was a sharp rise in sales of print cloth.

The woolen industry of New England, like the cotton industry, has greatly increased its rate of operations since last June. In fact, during October the New England mills consumed more raw wool than in the corresponding month last year. Wool prices are strong and are higher than at any time since 1920.

"Production by New England shoe factories during October was very nearly equal to that of a year ago. During each of the earlier months of the year, production was far less than in the corresponding month in 1923.

Carloadings of merchandise by New England railroads during the past three months have been in excess of those in the corresponding period last year, reaching the highest point for 1924 in October. In fact, October is usually the month of heaviest carloadings, and is followed by four months of declining shipments. The volume of carloadings in New England for the year through November considerably exceeds that for the corresponding period in 1923.

Approximately 50 per cent of the contracts recently awarded for new construction in the district are for residential buildings, a higher proportion of the total than the general average over a period of years. Contracts awarded for residences have increased during the past three months, in accordance with the usual seasonal trend, although in both New England and the country as a whole they were slightly less in October than in the same month a year ago. Contracts awarded for all kinds of construction in New England during October were in slightly larger volume than in October, 1923. The cost of building has changed but little in recent months.

Recent reports of department store sales in this district have not been as favorable as reports of manufacturing activity. Average daily sales of New England department stores in October were less than in the same month last year. A report from the Boston Federal Reserve bank, covering the period from October 25 to November 25 shows a decrease of 7 per cent in sales as compared with the corresponding period in 1923. Department store orders are considerably less than they were a year ago and are now declining, in accordance with the usual seasonal trend, from the peak reached in September. Stocks on hand in the department stores are also less than they were a year ago.

In November there was a tendency toward easier money rates, largely due to a decline in both time and demand rates, the reduction in the weekly average and investments. In fact, commercial loans in the member banks in the larger New England centers were practically stabilized during the first three weeks of November at the highest point reached in nearly four years. There was, however, a reduction in loans secured by stocks and bonds. Member banks' borrowings from the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston are negligible, notwithstanding the fact that during the first week of November the volume of credit extended by the members banks of this district was the highest on record.

DEM. PARTY FAILED TO FILE NAME OF HAMILTON HOLT

New Haven, Nov. 30—Responsibility for the neglect of the democratic party to file the name of Hamilton Holt, democratic nominee for United States senator to succeed the late United States Senator Brandegee, with the secretary of state before Friday at midnight, the time required by the state statutes, was assumed tonight by A. Sidney Lynch, secretary of the democratic state central committee. In a statement given out tonight, Mr. Lynch said:

"Owing to the press of private affairs I was forced to spend the latter part of the week in New York, looking up some data I shall need in court there Tuesday. In this manner I overlooked the formality of filing the name of the democratic candidate with the secretary of state.

"However, Mr. Holt's name was forwarded by mail to Hartford today. We don't look for any serious consequences other than the embarrassment attendant upon discovery of the oversight."

That the filing of Mr. Holt's name in Hartford is merely a formality to give the secretary of state information needed for the printing of the ballots, and is not mandatory upon the party, is the opinion expressed by democratic leaders here.

CALLES TAKES OATH AS PRESIDENT OF MEXICO

The great national stadium in which the ceremony took place was crowded with a vast assembly which taxed the seating capacity of 25,000. Brilliantly uniformed cadets from San Jacinto Military Academy with an infantry regiment guaded the entrance to the enclosed platform where General Calles took the oath.

Fronting the presidential stand were platforms of honor occupied by the members of congress, the diplomatic missions, justices of the supreme court, state governors and high political military officials.

Upon the request of president-elect Calles, General Obregon accompanied him from the palace to the stadium and occupied a seat with him on the platform. Colonel Filliberto Gomez, president of the lower house, administered the oath of office.

The ceremony was extremely simple. Upon the arrival of the president-elect both houses of congress were summoned into joint session, and Colonel Gomez repeated the oath.

LEO KORETZ IS DUE TO ARRIVE IN CHICAGO TODAY

New York, Nov. 30—Leo Koretz, wanted in Chicago in connection with alleged stock swindles totalling approximately $3,000,000, left here for Chicago this afternoon in company of two assistant states attorneys of Illinois. They arrived here this morning from Halifax on the liner Caronia.

Alphonse F. Spiegel, attorney and representative of the Chicago Title and Trust Company, announced that Koretz had surrendered about $100,000. He was said to have told Spiegel details of his financial operations in New York after his disappearance from Chicago.

The Illinois officials said Koretz had boarded the ship voluntarily and that they had served a warrant on him as soon as the Caronia entered American waters.

AFFAIRS IN EGYPT ARE REPORTED IN GOOD ORDER

London, Nov. 30—(By the A. P.)—Despatches to the foreign office today from Viscount Allenby, British high commissioner in Egypt, describe the situation there as being "in good order." Official despatches from the Sudan likewise report conditions "easier and satisfactory."

Nothing, however, yet indicates the real origin of the Khartoum mutiny, which took several hours to suppress.

By that time the building in which the mutineers took refuge was in ruins from gunfire, and the mutineers separated into small parties. Some of them escaped to the surrounding towns, while others were arrests by the soldiers.

The government is still of the opinion that it will not be necessary to employ force, but the steadily reinforcement of British troops in Egypt continues.

TRANSFER WOULD WEAKEN PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT

Washington, Nov. 30.—Transfer of the prohibition enforcement unit to the department of justice as proposed by the recent conference of senior federal circuit judges, would weaken prohibition enforcement, increase its costs to the taxpayer, and multiply the embarrassment to legitimate alcohol users, Wayne B. Wheeler, representing the Anti-Saloon League, said today in a second statement expressing his objections to such a change.

Cross Word Puzzle Lands Man in Jail

Had Spent Three Hours on Puzzle in a Restaurant in New York.

New York, Nov. 30.—Hoping that a place of detention—a four-letter word beginning with a J—is the one place where he can work a crossword puzzle without hindrance, Welz Nathan elected to go to that place today after spending three hours, but little money, at a restaurant table last night in an effort to solve the intricacies of his daily mental exercise.

The proprietor of the restaurant, Rolling Denham, objected to Nathan on the ground that he and three friends had pre-empted one of the best tables from 10.30 until 1.30 and that, aside from enjoying their "intellectual treat," they treated very sparingly.

At the end of three hours, the proprietor said, one of the puzzlers unearthed a bottle of liquor, as if to inspire his colleagues to prolonged efforts. Denham then called a policeman. Nathan refused to be interrupted and he was arrested and fined $5 or a day in jail in magistrate's court today. He took the jail sentence, announcing that he was the first cross-word puzzle striker.

RECRUITING OF FARM LABOR A PERPLEXING PROPOSITION

New York, Nov. 30.—Orderly recruiting and distribution of farm labor is one of the biggest questions confronting public employment offices, according to a report of this type of office made public today by the Russell Sage Foundation. The report is the result of a five-year study of employments, goods and services in every important agricultural section of the country and in more than 70 cities.

"One of the chief obstacles to the work of the public employment offices," the report states, "is that the farmer is often unfamiliar with employment office methods. He may therefore find fault with the work of the office when his own lack of co-operation contributes directly to unsatisfactory service."

It is estimated in the report there are approximately 3,000,000 transient farm laborers in the United States who are subject to seasonal fluctuations in the demand for labor and the necessity of moving from one place to another. As an example of the waste resulting from lack of a central agency for disseminating definite information concerning the supply and demand of farm labor, the report points out that "ten out of 12 non-farm bureau counties have indicated a loss of 50,657 acres of wheat in one year because of lack of harvest labor," while at the same time men were seeking farm work in other places in vain.

TO HAVE SUMMER POLITICAL SCHOOL IN WISCONSIN

Madison, Wis., Nov. 30.—Permanent organization of the national conference for progressive political action, along lines similar to the Cleveland conference, which nominated Robert M. La Follette for president last July, was favored by the executive committee of the Wisconsin conference which met here today.

Formation of a summer political school for young people in Wisconsin and calling of a state convention to be held prior to the national meeting in January were other measures decided upon.

The question of permanent headquarters was not decided. The committee also decided to leave to the state convention, which probably will be held in Milwaukee, the selection of delegates to the annual meeting.

Senator La Follette took no part in the meeting

TO DENOUNCE PROPOSED CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT

New York, Nov. 30.—While expressing approval of progressive child labor legislation by states, the committee on internal trade and improvements of the state of New York announced today that it will present a report in the near future denouncing the proposed child labor amendment.

The report in part says:

"Through the proposed child labor amendment, parents are asked to hand over to congress the control of their children from birth to eighteen years of age. When the government undertakes to regulate the labor of the entire child population of America, it also must ultimately undertake control of this population in those matters affecting its health and education. If it denies persons under 18 the right to labor it must assume responsibility as to how those persons shall spend their time."

DOUBT EXPRESSED AT NEW LONDON SUB BASE

New London, Nov. 30.—Officers at the submarine base here expressed doubt tonight that the U. S. S. Camden, attached to this base, is the vessel, the wreckage of which was washed ashore at Cuttyhunk Island, Mass., today. The naval vessel left this port last Monday with other vessels for Pensacola, Fla., to take part in fleet maneuvers in southern waters. No word has been received from the ship since she left here, the officers at the base said.

The submarine base received a dispatch dated 4.04 yesterday, stating that the cutter Aquidneck had picked up a log book and had taken it to Cuttyhunk. There was no name on the book, the dispatch stated.

SIX OIL DERRICKS BURNED AT SANTA FE SPRINGS, CAL.

Los Angeles, Nov. 30—Fire believed to have started in the boiler room of the Bellevue oil well at Santa Fe Springs, south of here, had destroyed six oil derricks late today, causing damage estimated at more than $500,000 and was still spreading.

Fire companies from Santa Fe Springs and adjoining territory appeared to have made little headway after a three hour battle with the flames. It is though that the fire started through a stoppage in the oil feed pipe of the Bellevue boiler.

The fire companies were handicapped on account of low water pressure and were forced to rely almost entirely on chemicals. There was apprehension of a number of oil storage tanks in the district.

TO DISCUSS STRIKE IN THE ANTHRACITE REGIONS

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 30.—With International Organized David W. Davis in charge of the situation as the personal representative of International President John L. With the 11,000 Pennsylvania workers idle, and the 22,000 employes of the Hudson Coal Company threatening to issue a strike call unless arrangements for a conciliation board meeting have been made not later than next Saturday, the strike situation has reached a serious stage that the business men of Luzerne county are to meet at Pittston tomorrow to ask President Lewis to come to the local district to take charge of the conditions.

Mr. Lewis has warned the strikers that unless they return to work tomorrow the charters of their coal unions will be revoked. The general grievance committee, however, announced it would not call off the strike until complaints were adjusted.

ANNOUNCED THE DEATH OF GIACOMO PUCCINI

Rome, Nov. 30.—(By The A. P.)—At the close of the sitting of the chamber of deputies late last night Premier Mussolini announced the death of Giacomo Puccini, the composer, he said the passing of the maestro was the occasion for mourning not only on the part of the Italian people but of the whole civilized world. He added that although the musician was dead the music he had written, and which had stirred the emotions of the people of the world would never die.

Signor Mussolini requested the chamber, as the representative of the Italian people, to pay tribute to the memory of Puccini, after which the chamber voted to send a message of condolence to the family of Puccini.

In Lucca all the theatres, moving picture houses were closed as were many stores, and the clubs of which Puccini was a member.

FALLING OFF OF GOLD IMPORTS IN OCTOBER

New York, Nov. 30.—While gold imports in October of $20,000,000 were more than three times the $6,600,000 of September, they were otherwise the smallest since April, 1923. Figures to this effect contained in the monthly review of the Federal Reserve bank for the Second district, made public today, also show that the excess of imports for the month was $16,000,000, exports aggregating $4,000,000.

There was no British gold shipped to this country in October, for the first time since January, 1920, according to the report. October imports from the Netherlands brought the total from that country for the first 10 months of the year to $48,000,000—placing it second only to Great Britain.

The return flow of United States currency from circulation abroad was great at $7,243,000. Germany furnished more than two-thirds of this amount, an increase for that country which more than doubled the figure for June, and a feature which was attributed to the greatr stabilization of German currency.

REPUBLICAN RENEGADES MAY PROVE TROUBLESOME

The Key to the Whole Situation in the Senate is Held by the Insurgents—Whether They Will Undertake Reprisals For Being Read Out of the Party Remains to Be Seen—Democrats Decide Not to Caucus on the Expulsion of Senator Wheeler From the Party.

Washington, Nov. 30.—With the breach between the regular and insurgent republican organizations still further widened, the 68th congress which already has established a record as the most turbulent in the nation's history, will reconvene tomorrow for its short and final session.

In the three months intervening before March 4, efforts will be made to put through some important general legislation in addition to the annual appropriation bills, but with little appaent prospect of success.

The key to the whole situation is still held by the insurgents, whose recognized leader, Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin and his three chief supporters in the state, have been read out of party councils by senate republicans. Whether they will undertake reprisals for this action remains to be developed.

One thing is certain, the last chapter on this subject has not yet been written. Senators who have disagreed with this action of their republican colleagues intend to express their views when the senate is called upon to act on the report of the republican committee on committees concerning the new assignments to standing committees.

WRECKAGE WAS WASHED ASHORE NEAR CUTTYHUNK

Cuttyhunk, Mass., Nov. 30.—Wreckage, evidence of possible tragedy which overtook some vessel in the storm which swept the New England coast early today, was washed ashore near the Cuttyhunk coast guard station this morning. The wreckage, consisting chiefly of portions of a pilot house and deckhouse, might have come from a boat which was the victim of a collision rather than of the storm, it was said.

A chart bearing the lettering "S S Camden" and a section of the pilot house with a discolored log book carrying as its last entry "under way" at 5.30 a. m., Nov. 30, and medical stores from the United States submarine base at New London, Conn., were among the wreckage which the coast guardsmen found strewn on the beach at 8.30 this morning.

Not the Camden.

Portland, Me., Nov. 30.—Possibility that the Eastern Steamship vessel Camden, which plies between Boston and Bangor, Me., might be the boat whose pilot house was washed ashore today near the Cuttyhunk coast guard station, south of Cape Cod, was eliminated tonight when it was reported from Rockland that the Camden had sailed from that port for Boston at 6 o'clock tonight. She had been held at Rockland over night owing to the storm.

CAN RECONSIDER THE PAROLE OF BRINDELL

Ossining, Nov. 30.—Dr. Elmer Larkin, one of three members of the state board of parole, announced today that the board could reconsider its action granting the parole of Robert P. Brindell, former head of the New York Building Trades Council, if good reason be shown why the parole should not be granted. The next meeting will be held before Christmas it was said.

"We can rescind or withdraw a parole any time before the expiration of the maximum sentence" Dr. Larkin said.

Dr. Larkin's statement was issued in reply to public comment on the announcement made yesterday that the board of parole had, on November 19, signed a parole for Brindell, effective December 26. On that date the former labor leader will have served three years, eight months and 24 days of a five to ten year sentence for conviction on an extortion charge.

Samuel Untermyer, who as special attorney general, prosecuted Brindell and others alleged extortionists in connection with their reputed activities as officials of New York building trades unions, also issued a statement today in which he deplored any attempts to "hound" Brindell and his family.

FOUNDER OF FASCISTI EXPELLED FROM PARTY

Rome, Nov. 30.—Massimo Rocca, who was one of th founders of the Fascisti, but who was expelled from the party in May by Premier Mussolini owing to criticisms he had launched against Signor De Stefani, minister of finance, because of the minister's concessions to the Sinclair oil interests, has formed a new nation-wide organization known as "the Italian Revisionist Association." FOUR MEN SHOT TO DEATH IN CHICAGO IN 24 HOURS

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Four hoodlums, police officer, were shot to death or two policemen seriously wounded here in the last 24 hours.

Hugh Stewart, cashier for the West Highland State bank, is being held pending the outcome of the inquest over the body of Detective William Perrin, who was shot dead by Stewart in front of the latter's house. Detectives David Van Dorn and Frank Warburton also were wounded when the bank cashier opened fire on a police crime squad which he mistook for a gang of holdup men.

Sergeant Peter Carey, in charge of the squad, said that he and his companions had driven up to Stewart's car as Mrs. Stewart stepped out and ran toward the house. The officers, thinking that she had been a victim of kidnappers, called upon Stewart to get out. Instead he drew a pistol and began firing.

Charles Hendricks was shot and killed tonight by Luke Reeson, agent at the Western Avenue elevated station, when, according to Reeson, Hendricks attempted to hold him up as he was counting the day's receipts. Reeson was held. No firearms were found on Hendricks.

Joseph A. Roberts was fatally wounded in a West Side boarding house about an hour later. He refused to tell who shot him or under what circumstances the shooting occurred.

Detectives working on the Dion O'Banion and Eddie Tancl murder cases today connected the slaying of Walter Langille, reputed wealthy head of a motor truck company, with the recent beer wars. They advanced the theory that the shooting may have been another phase of the gang struggles which led to the deaths of O'Banion and Tancl.

Langille stepped from a taxicab late last night and was immediately surrounded by four men, one of whom began shooting. Langille had greeted his assailant a moment before as "Eddie." With this clue, a description of the slayer furnished by a witness, the police began to comb the city for suspects.

Chief Shoemaker today notified the Peoria, Ill., authorities to arrest Dewey Calvert, who is believed to have vital information concerning the murder of O'Banion. Calvert was reported by the Springfield, Ill., police to have left that city for Peoria.

Five men early today held up The Midnight Frolics, a cabaret in the old Tenderloin district, and made away with jewelry and currency to the amount of $60,000, most of which was obtained from a back-room pinochle game. No report of the robbery was made directly to the police until several hours later, when a patron informed them of his losses.

HOWLING SNOWSTORM IN NORTHERN NEW ENGLAND

Boston, Nov. 30.—A howling snow storm, the first serious one of the winter, swept over New England last night and early this morning, virtually cutting off telephone communication with Maine and New Hampshire, and causing many automobile accidents where traffic was not entirely suspended by deep drifts. The New England Telephone and Telegraph company estimated that more than a thousand of its poles had toppled under the weight of the snow and impact of the wind. So widespread was the damage that practically every trunk line was cut. Today a force of 1,200 men, assisted by 25 truck repair crews, were at work. The gaps, scattered through Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts, were being gradually closed by temporary wires laid along the ground. Officials said tonight that the system would be in operation by Tuesday night, but that it would be weeks before permanent repairs were completed.

Careful driving by motorists prevented any fatality, but there was scarcely a city in New England that did not report collisions between automobiles, pedestrians knocked down and machines leaving the roads.

Eyzmont Wojcik, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Johan Wojcik of 36 Jackson St., this city was seriously hurt when he was thrown from his bicycle to the pavement on one of the main thoroughfares of Meriden Saturday morning. The youngster was taken to the Meriden Hospital and after an examination his name was placed on the dangerous list. Chief of Police Allan McArthur was notified of the accident about 10.30 o'clock Saturday morning and he in turn communicated the news to the boy's parent's. The boy's brother, Stanley, left shortly later for Meriden. It was said that Wojcik was riding a bicycle in the rear of a truck when in some manner he was thrown to the road. The nature of his injuries was not made known. Young Wojcik returned to the Natchaug grammar school last Tuesday to resume his studies after three days of truancy. The urchin is apparently of a roving spirit for during those three days he was neither at school nor at his home. It appears that his trip to Meriden was also unannounced.

Howard Lucas, whose Dodge car was partly wrecked in a sideswiping accident on the North Windham road Thanksgiving evening with an Essex owned by George C. Labonte of Columbia and driven by his wife, Mrs. Eva Labonte was charged with failure to turn to his right to allow the other vehicle to pass and also with failure to secure an operator's license. Lucas pleaded guilty to the first charge but not to the second. Lucas was driving alone for the first time, he having had an instructor with him on previous occasions. He had driven about one thousand miles but had not as yet secured his driver's license. There was a sudden glare as the two cars approached from opposite directions and he could not tell which car struck the other first. Mrs. Lucas, two women, cousins of the accused and Joseph Lucas of Chaplin, passengers in the machine testified on behalf of the defendant. For the state, Mrs. Labonte, her husband, George C. Labonte and Oscar Legary, also of Columbia and another passenger in the Essex testified that there was plenty of room for the Lucas car to pass and it was the latter machine which struck theirs. State Policeman Russell Harmon of Stafford Springs gave a report of his investigation to the effect that the road was eighteen feet wide at the point of the collision and wheel marks showed that Lucas' machine occupied about ten feet of this space. The headlights on both cars were of the legal type. Judge Foss found Lucas guilty on both counts and imposed a fine of $25 on the second count and $5 and costs on the first.

He took it home and when a friend came to him, he was sick and needed liquor. Cherosky sold him the pint. The prosecutor and chief of police recommended clemency and it was accorded.

A decision proclaiming the defendant not guilty was reached by Judge Foss Saturday morning in the case of William Cunningham of Columbia and Manchester, charged with the theft of a transmission cover and other automobile parts from Morris Spector of Quarry street. The case had been continued from last Monday. A number of witnesses were heard, among them being Wilfred Burdick for the state, Spector, Cunningham and Herman Shufft. The theft was alleged to have been committed on November 10. The defense denied any guilt in the matter. For lack of sufficient evidence to bring about a conviction the accused was discharged by Judge Foss.

The slippery surface of the pavement on Main street caused by the light fall of snow, was the cause of an automobile collision at the foot of Bank street about 10 o'clock Saturday morning when a Jordan coupe, operated by Bertram Carvalho of 312 Bloomfield avenue, West Hartford, struck a Chevrolet touring car driven by Eben Bass of Scotland. The spokes in the right rear wheel of the Chevrolet were broken and Mr. Carvalho agreed to settle for the damage.

Like many other towns hereabouts Willimantic makes announcement of its first real fall of snow. At 9.30 o'clock Saturday forenoon the ground was hidden under a coat of white which disappeared later in the day under a light, but persistent rainfall. The city streets and nearby highways were offered a rather dangerous surface to travel and tire chains made their initial appearance here. The little snow storm was the second calling card to be presented this year by Old Man Winter himself, the first coming in the nature of a jarring cold snap a few weeks ago.

As Mr. Collins was starting out into the street a Dodge sedan owned and operated by Herman Ledoyt of South Coventry came down Union street in an easterly direction and collided with the front wheel of the Reo, the blow causing Ledoyt's car to swerve to the right and run into the left front fender and running board of the parked Buick. The hub cap on the left front wheel of the Reo was broken off and the bumper on the Dodge was slightly bent and several spokes were broken the right front wire wheel. DEATH COMES TO NEW LONDON MAN WHILE ATTENDING SUNDAY SERVICE

New London, Nov. 30—William E. Patterson, about 70, well known carpenter of 10 Adelaide street, died suddenly this afternoon of heart trouble while speaking at a meeting of the Men's Club in the Methodist Episcopal church, corner of Broad and Huntington street. He is survived by his wife, two sons, Arthur Patterson, Dr. Cleveland Patterson, Bridgeport and a daughter, Mrs. Walter B. Barker, Niantic. Mr. Patterson was well and favorably known and at one time was building inspector employed by the city of New London.

Mr. and Mrs. Patterson attended morning worship at the church at 10.45 o'clock and apparently was enjoying sound health. At the conclusion of divine worship, Mr. Patterson went to the rooms of the men's club and Mrs. Patterson attended a meeting of ladies connected with the church. Mr. Patterson arose and addressed the men's meeting and while speaking he collapsed and became unconscious. A hurry call was sent for physicians and it was while medical aid was being sought that Mr. Patterson breathed his last. Dr. Frank M. Dunn finally arrived at the church, but when the physician examined the victim it was found that he was dead.

T. R. Krysanowski, a suave Pole, may consider himself as very fortunate that he is not in jail for a long stay, because he resorted to a sharp practice and induced Antonina Rubicky, a mill girl of his own nationality, to part with more than $100 of her hard earned money. Kryzie was in New London and learning that the girl was of an inventive turn of mind he ascertained that she had secured patents for a number of what she believes are labor-saving articles and things that are of general convenience. Kryzie proceeded to pose as one who could dispose of the patents so that Antonina would receive a sum in royalties that would make her rich. He proposed first to have the articles patented in England, France and Belgium and to do that he needed money. The girl provided it. Then Kryzie, instead of spending the money for the purpose he had obtained it, left the city and nothing was heard from him till he was located by chance at Scranton, Pa., whence he wrote to Rubicky the collusion and undoing of Kryzie. Miss Rubicky complained to the prosecutor and laid the facts before him so that the arrest and the prosecution of Kryzie was sought and accomplished. He was brought here and Saturday was arraigned in court. Friends interceded with financial assistance and Kryzie was saved from jail. They settled with Miss Rubicky, paid all the expense attached to the arrest and arraignment of Kryzie, and, because the latter's wife is in a delicate condition and needs his support the case was nolled as the most satisfactory way of settling a case that would mean hardship for several people.

William Glynn was fined $25 in the police court Saturday for the reckless operation of an automobile. The police officer who grabbed him at the corner of State and Main street where his car was in collision, declared that Glynn was intoxicated at the time of the collision occurred, but of that there was not evidence in the opinion of the prosecutor to convict Glynn so he was prosecuted for reckless driving and pleaded guilty.

George Ross, a negro, who appeared in the police court twice in as many days, was Saturday fined $10 and sent to jail for intoxication.

Bertha Provete, the wife of a freight handler for the Central Vermont company, was fined $200 in the police court Saturday for selling booze at her home at 89 North Bank street, in the rear.

She had the cash to pay that fine and costs and regarded herself lucky in getting away with that expense, saying she saved half of it by not having secured a lawyer to defend her. Police Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh made the arrest. After he had observed men going in and coming out with a disposition to use a handkerchief to wipe their lips. When Joe Landry and a couple of friends came out the sergeant requested them to give up "that bottle" just as if he had seen the sale made. Landry gave up a soda bottle filled with booze and admitted that he purchased it from Mrs. Provote. The woman was arrested. When Officers Cavanaugh, Hill and Graham made their visit to the house with a search warrant they found a cigar box on the table which was used for the deposit of cash from patrons of the place. There was more than $60 in the box.

Both youths were released by furnishing a surety on their respective bonds of $50 for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

Gorman, who is a former member of the United States navy, has long been known as "Bigey," a nickname given while in the federal service. When he was discharged the nickname still clung to him. Gorman is known to not enjoy the nickname, and for that reason it is often applied to him. Saturday night when near the post office Gorman passed a group of young men and when the nickname was yelled several times Gorman sought and obtained the arrest of Sullivan and Devine.

Beckwith, of Waterford, were in collision this morning at the corner of Montauk avenue and Perry street. Beckwith's car was extensively damaged. Both Schwartz and Beckwith placed responsibility for the crash upon the other and Patrolman Howard Sloan placed both under arrest, charged with reckless driving. They will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning. Beckwith declares that Schwartz was entirely at fault and has retained counsel to look after his interests.

Residents in that section admit the acts of the boys, but declare that the machine has been parked in the open for months, is never used and could not be disposed of except for junk. NEW LONDON WOMAN SUFFERS LOSS OF $250

New London, Nov. 30.—Mrs. Robert Tetreault, 132 Ocean avenue, complained to the police Saturday evening at 8.30 o'clock that she had lost $250 either in the Far East restaurant, State street, or the Crown theatre. Mrs. Tetreault had the money in her coat pocket in the restaurant, but when she reached the interior of the Crown theatre the money was missing. STILL NO SOLUTION OF PETER A. TOOLIN, JR.'S DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 30.—The funeral of Peter A. Toolin, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Toolin, 15 Colver street, and former assistant paymaster at the plant of the Robert Gair company, Montville, whose lifeless body was found at Station 14, Waterford, early Thanksgiving day morning with an extensive fracture of the skull, probably sustained by being attacked in the highway, was held Saturday morning at 8 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by an immense throng of mourners, among whom were a delegation of employes of the Robert Gair company and a delegation of members of E. L. Allen Hook and Ladder company, of which organization Mr. Toolin had been a member several years. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callaghan, assisted by Rev. Timothy M. Crowley as deacon and Rev. Alexander Woischlaeger as sub-deacon. The bearers were Eugene Leahy, John Casey, Charles Gallagher, Robert Champion, Robert Wheeler and Fred Hawthorne. The flower bearers were John McGuinness and Edward Connors. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The state police and County Detective William Lewis are continuing their investigation in an effort to determine who is responsible for Toolin's death. The state police contend that Toolin was thrown from an automobile and landed in the highway upon his head. Detective Lewis is inclined to disregard this theory as the fracture was of such an extensive nature, extending from the middle of the forehead across the entire skull to the back of the head, that it would be next to impossible to sustain such an injury by a fall from a machine or being struck by a car. County Detective Lewis was in New London this afternoon attempting to obtain further facts in connection with Toolin's death.

Jewett City, Nov. 30.—When the chamber of commerce comes out of its Rip Van Winkle act, the first thing it will do will be to tackle the job of trying to dispel the darkness Sunday nights at the depot.

There was a dozen passengers to go on the 7.03 p. m. trolley for Norwich. All about the station, within and without, it was as dark as the inside of a cow. People bumped into each other and fell over the various bags and luggage that had been set down by prospective passengers. Some lighted matches, while others felt along the sides of the depot to see if they were really there or not. Yet all was not bad, for select and private spooning parties had it all their own way in the dense blackness around the various corners.

When the trolley came, people, by means of the light from its windows, were able to scramble aboard, heaving meanwhile heartfelt sighs of relief.

When the trolley departed, those who had arrived upon it, either groped about in the darkness or sung out for pilots with matches to guide them up to the lighted area of the street.

ENCOUNTERED DEEP SNOW IN NORTH BROOKFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Jewett City, Nov. 30.—Sunday was a fine day in the borough with the temperature not much below freezing, but those who took trips to western Massachusetts struck in to the Arctic proper. Dennis Griffin went by automobile to visit friends in North Brookfield, returning at night with his running boards packed with snow. He found 11 inches there with snow plows out, and men with teams breaking out the roads. Frank Palmer, a former Jewett City man, lives there. Mr. Griffin found him with a gang of men working to clear the highways, that were blocked with snow.

Broadway Theater

An exceptionally big program of vaudeville and pictures is the offering at the Broadway theater starting today. Of the Keith vaudeville the following acts are scheduled:

Direct from B. F. Keith's theater, Boston, Gene Jim McLaughlin and Blanche Evans in a comedy riot entitled On a Little Side Street.

The Exposition Jubilee Four bring with them a southern breeze of mirth and melody.

A Sainted Devil opened yesterday at the Broadway. It's a Joseph Henabery production of Forrest Halsey's adaptation of the magazine serial Rope's End, by Rex Beach. Nina Naldi Helen D'Algy and many others well known on both stage and screen play in support of the star.

You haven't seen Rudolph Valentino at his best until you've seen A Sainted Devil.

Breed Theater

There are three reasons for this. First, Mabel Wagnall's story of the little Parisian waif who won her soul back through the gentle influence of posing as the Madonna, makes ideal screen material, with its swift action and vivid romance.

Second the picture has a wonderful all-star cast that includes Viola Dana, Monte Blue, Lew Cody, Marjorie Daw, Frank Currier, Edward Connelly, Geo. Siegmann, Kathleen Key, Otto Matiegen, Bruce Guerin, and Ethel Wales. Third, it shows the best direction in the career of George D. Baker. It's a masterpiece of screen art.

At St. John in Never Again and the Pathe news make up the remainder of the bill.

For Golden Rule Sunday

The weekly calendar of many of the churches Sunday contained a reminder of the approach of the International Golden Rule Sunday on Dec. 7, when we shall all have a chance to practice to the point of sacrifice the Golden Rule. The treasury of the Near East Relief is now empty more than 100,000 meals a day must be served the orphans before the Golden Rule offering to be made on that day becomes available. This should be a question of not how much must I give but how much may I give.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Invited out for what was represented to them as being a special meeting of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Fulton of Academy street found upon their arrival at G. A. R. hall that they were the central figures in what was a decidedly surprise observance of their golden wedding anniversary. Upyards of 50 of the members of theorganizations mentioned, Sons of Veterans and relatives and friends had attended to every detail of the plans for the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Fulton were escorted to seats under an arch prettily done in gold and white and there in the midst of a wealth of cut flowers and ferns and with their daughters, Mrs. Helen Young and Miss Saidie Fulton, beside them received the congratulations of their hosts. An orchestra played during the reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Fulton participated in a grand march that followed the reception and preceded the dance programme of the evening. Though Mr. Fulton will be 82 years of age in June, he as well as Mrs. Fulton enjoyed the dances in which he took part as thoroughly as many of the young people who were present.

Refreshments were served during the evening and their was a wonderful wedding cake.

The dance programme of the evening was incident to the playing of games and other diversions.

From the W. R. C. Mrs. Fulton received $5 in gold and a similar gift was presented Mr. Fulton on behalf of the G. A. R. and Sons of Veterans. Mr. and Mrs. Fulton also received other gifts of gold and various other remebrances.

An incident of the evening was the reading by Mrs. Effie Bailey of a poem written by her sister, Mrs. John Leach of Wauregan, in honor of the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fulton when they were residents at Wauregan 25 years ago.

Saturday evening's observance was on the exact anniversary of their wedding, for Mr. and Mrs. Fulton were married here in Danielson at the Methodist parsonage, then located where the Berna building now stands, on November 29, 1874.

With the exception of a few years spent at Wauregan, Mr. and Mrs. Fulton always have lived in Danielson.

Mr. Fulton is a native of New York state. He is a veteran of the Civil war in which he served as a member of Hawkins' Zouaves, known officially as the 9th New York. He was enrolled as a member of 1 Company.

Mrs. Fulton was Miss Annie J. Chase before her marriage.

To the congratulations and good wishes Mr. and Mrs. Fulton received Saturday evening is added those of their hundreds of friends and acquaintances here and hereabouts.

On the strength of a happening of Saturday night and Sunday, Danielson might set up and defend a claim to being something of a winter resort as compared to some of its neighbors and more Arctic towns just to the north. Of course, it could not be fairly represented that Danielson is a second Palm Beach in December, but it can be related that the ground is apt to be clear and free of snow here when snowplows are out clearing the highways in such towns as Putnam, Pomfret and Thompson. At any rate, that was the situation Sunday.

State highways here were free of snow and almost as dry as a bone on Sunday at noon when state highway plows were clearing road surfaces of snow in Pomfret, Woodstock and Thompson. In these towns the snow was apparently between 2 and 3 inches deep and it was responsible for slushy going for the motorists. Farther north, just over the border in Massachusetts, there was 4 to 5 inches of snow in places and cars coming through from Springfield were fairly blanketed with snow late Saturday night and during the early hours of Sunday morning.

In view of all this Danielson, which got a trace of snow, is entitled to boast a bit about the mildness of its climate. Of course, Plainfield, to the south of Danielson, might set up a claim that it was stoo hot for comfort down there on Sunday, but Plainfield will have to boast its own weather. Danielson, as the Los Angeles of eastern Connecticut, is merely tooting its own horn.

If you care to start right in with the opening of December to do something that is really worth while in the Christmas season, you may buy a supply of Red Cross seals today and proceed to use as many of them as you may find conveniently possible.

The seals will be put on sale today at stores and other business places in the borough and they also will be available at the post office. School children also will aid in a programme of distribution intended to make the sale of the seals as widespread as possible.

This year Danielson has an allotment of 75,000 seals as against 50,000 in 1923. During the last Christmas season 48,000 seals were sold here. It is hoped to far eclipse that record this year. It will be possible to do this if all help such a worthy cause. In case the 75,000 seals are disposed of, $400 of the amount realized will remain in Danielson for use here. In is very generally known what good work is done in behalf of afflicted humanity with money derived from the sale of Red Cross seals. By buying seals, all have an opportunity to share in this splendid work.

Friday evening of this week the Service Battery basketball team will play the Brown University Collegians at the state armory here. The Service Battery outfit will try hard for this game as a sort of balm for the contest it lost last Friday evening, 20 to 19, to the West Ends of Willimantic. This was a highly interesting game and, as the score indicates, was very closely contested. Donald Armington led in the scoring for the soldier boys. The Service Battery will round a fast and efficient team into form before the season is very old. This is assured from the personnel of the team and the showing that it made last year, when it won the military championship of the state.

Sunday evening at her home in Hawkins street Mrs. Leo Gauthier gave a dinner party in honor of those with whom she has been associated in the office force of the L. A. W. corporation at Putnam, this concern hereafter to have its main office in Worcester. Mrs. Gauthelier is to remain in charge of the Putnam office. Those who came here Sunday evening were Thomas Howarth, Misses Sophie Harrison, Bella Simon, Madeline McCoy, Doris Kosmaler and Ratherine Thayer, all of Putnam.

Mrs. Peter Jodoin and Miss Goulet have returned from North Attleboro, where they spent the holiday season with relatives.

Mrs E. H. Keach will have the members of the Fortnightly club at her home for a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Venturesome children were risking drowning again Sunday by trying out their sleds and skates on various small ponds in this territory.

These are the days when local residents who have relatives and friends abroad are making ready for their Christmas gifts of money and other things, to be sent on their way overseas.

Herman M. Coulter will this week begin his duties as assistant treasurer of the Passaic mills recently acquired at New Bedford by the Goodyear and Fiske rubber interests. Mr. Coulter is retaining his position as assistant treasurer of the Goodyear Mills, Inc., of this town and his home will continue to be here util spring.

The Treble Clef club, which usually meets weekly, will hold no more meetings util after the Christmas season.

A building that has been occupied by the Birch market on the Longo property on Main street is to be removed to a new location on the Davis property at Railroad square.

William C. Wendell of Springfield was a visitor with friends in town over Sunday.

The current issue of a periodical published by one of the largest commercial schools in New England, located at Springfield, Mass., has a portrait of Miss Sybella Gilman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Gilman of this city. In a typewriter contest some months ago while she was a student at the school she won a typewriter offered by the manufacturers of the machine for her proficiency and accuracy in operation. For a period of 10 minutes Miss Gilman took dictation on the machine at the rate of 60 words a minute without an error.

She is now assistant teacher in the commercial department of the Tourtellotte Memorial High school. Her father is the head of the Gilman Hardware company, president of the Chamber of Commerce and was postmaster of the city for eight years under the Wilson administration.

In police court Saturday Arthur Turgeon paid a fine of $200 and costs for violation of the liquor laws On a second count he was sentenced to 30 days in Brooklyn jail. Sentence was suspended. Captain of Police Jarvis' suspicions were aroused by the references made by prisoners arrested recently for intoxication to Turgeon's place on Canal street, and a decoy with a marked bill was sent to the house, purchased a small amount of moonshine and gave the bill in payment. Shortly afterward the captain and Officer Ryan arrested Turgeon, found a bottle partly filled on his person and also the marked bill. He admitted his guilt.

Mrs. Emily Cogswell, mother of Mrs. Leon S. Walker, is so seriously ill at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Walker on Grove street that a day and night nurse are constantly in attendance. Her son, Frank E. Cogswell, of Louisville, Ky., came here to see her in response to a message notifying him of her condition, but he had to return to his home Saturday. It is not believed that Mrs. Cogswell can survive.

Mr. and Mrs. Danforth and daughter, Miss Florence, of Holyoke, Mass., have been the guests of Putnam friends. Mr. Danforth was for a number of years the New Haven station agent in this city.

Mrs. Ruth Chandler of Fremont street has had for guests Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Chandler of Danielson and Miss Bessie Stout of Maqrshal, Mich.

Harry Davis, a student at Dartmouth, was at his home here over Thanksgiving and the week end. His father, Ernest L. Davis, will leave Tuesday for Dafety Harbor, Fla., to spend the winter.

Officer Chandler found a 16 year old boy on the streets last night, penniless and no home. His name is Edgar Roberts and he had come here from New Bedford, Mass. The officer called Mrs. D. C. Parks, matron of the children's home, and she agreed to take care of him until it is determined where his legal residence is, if he has any. His parents formerly lived in New Bedford, but they are both dead and the boy has no other near relatives.

Mrs. H. F. Arnold of Dayville attended the funeral Friday of her stepfather, Charles F. Baker, in Willimantic. Mr. Baker also has a number of relatives in Pomfret and Abington.

The motor busses that are to replace steam locomotives to haul passenger trains between Putnam and Worcester and Putnam and New London have not yet been placed in operation, although they have been looked for for more than a week. Delay in delivery by the manufacturers is given as the reason for their not being in use.

Officials say that this type of motor driven bus or truck has been thoroughly tried out as to efficiency and that they will mean a great saving in cost of operation. At first they will make but one round trip daily between Putnam and Worcester and Putnam and New London. But the latter one will in addition make two daily round trips between Norwich and New London.

Mrs. John P. Cronin was one of a number of Putnam people who went to Boston Saturday to see the annual football game at Braves' field between Holy Cross and Boston college. She is a football fan in her own right and knows the fine points of the game, but she had a particular and personal interest in the contest Saturday, as Jack Cronin, one of Boston's halfbacks, is her husband. She was formerly Miss Alice Fallon, whose father, John Fallon, is an executive of the Scully Press Mfg. Co., and who became acquainted with most of the printers of New England during his long connection with the American Type Founders Co. He is a Putnam boy, a graduate of Putnam High school, and for several years was a reporter on the Windham County Observer.

After the death of his wife three years ago he and his two daughters came back here to make their home. Two years ago the older daughter married Jack Cronin, who has been making a name in football annals by his brilliant playing. They have a year old daughter.

The body of Albert E. Lippitt, 89, who died in Worcester Thursday, was brought here Sunday for interment in Grove street cemetery. The services at the grave were in charge of a committee from Quinebaug lodge of Masons, who carried out the ritualistic rites of the order.

Up until six years ago Mr. Lippitt had made his home in Putnam, in the Harrisville district, where he operated a small farm, kept a herd of cows and delivered milk by wagon when he was almost 80 years of age. The infirmities that came with years finally compelled him to give up active work and he went to Worcseter and made his home with his daughter Minnie, wife of Dr. George E. Boyce. He leaves one other daughter, Grace, daughter of William Law of Dorchester, Mass., and sister-in-law of Louis E. Law, superintendent of the Putnam mills of the H. K. H. Silk Co. A nephew, John Lippitt, has a farm near the children's home.

There were but few residents of Putnam better known that Mr. Lippitt, and certainly but few who kept actively at work until they had attained four score years of age. For the past year and a half he has been an inmate of a hospital.

BINGHAM NEEDED AT WASHINGTON.

When Hiram Bingham was nominated for governor there was no vacancy in the United States senate from Connecticut. Had the death of Senator Brandegee occurred a sufficient time before the election to have permitted the regular convention to have acted there is no reason to suppose but what Lieutenant Governor Bingham would have been nominated for senator even as he has been by the special convention.

It is being pointed out that it is an unusual situation for the governor-elect to be named for the senate and possibly elected to that office before he has a chance to serve as governor. It is a situation out of the ordinary chiefly of the circumstances under which it was created.

Connecticut has shown that it believes Mr. Bingham would give it excellent service as governor, and Connecticut is not unmindful of the fact that that same ability which would have been displayed in the governor's chair can be admirably applied in the administration of the state's interests in the United States senate.

Hiram Bingham is not an unknown. Having long been a resident of Connecticut, for years a member of the Yale faculty and thoroughly conversant with the best interests of the state, he is prepared to give the Nutmeg state the service it desires. The republican convention has not called upon the voters to support a rank outsider, whose claim for support is to stand upon an international question and whose time is spent mostly outside the state and who has been a voter in Connecticut only a matter of a few weeks.

That small group that is displaying opposition to Mr. Bingham because its interest in the league of nations is so great that it overshadows the rest of the service that is expected from a representative in the senate of the United States, or those who are undertaking to draw a red herring across the trail because of the success of the republican organization, make a poor impression. Their talk of insulting the voters of the state through accepting a nomination for the senate falls flat when they indicate their willingness to support a summer caller, or a carpetbagger, as a representative of this state.

Connecticut knows Hiram Bingham. It knows he is fit for the office of United States senate and it knows that just because he was elected for governor it is not going to be insulted just because he accepts the call from the same state to a position where his services to the state will probably be greater, though of a different character. The voters of the state on December 16 should, and unquestionably will, insist that his recognition of his duty in accepting the senatorial nomination was the correct one.

Republican senators from other states declare that Bingham is needed in Washington. Connecticut likewise understands the need of sending him there to give support to President Coolidge and republican policies.

DROPPING THE TURNCOATS.

One isn't permitted to remain a member of an organization very long after he works against it, does his best to handicap it and denounces it. As a matter of fact it cannot be expected, under such circumstances, that he would want to maintain any connection with it, but there are those who have persisted in getting a recognized benefit from membership in the republican party only to become a turncoat just as soon as the end to office through such membership appears to have been obtained.

Thus when the caucus of republican senators at Washington adopted a resolution in which it was set forth that Senators La Follette, Ladd, Brookhart and Fraizer are not to be invited to any more caucuses of the republicans and are not to be given committee positions as vacancies occur, it was action that had been fully anticipated.

In the first place it was action which they invited by their own conduct. Possibly the refusal of invitations to caucuses may not be resented. They may consider that by not being present they will not be obligated, though of course they have not hitherto been bound by any such action. But when it comes to committee assignments it is a different thing. There are coveted places. Under present arrangement length of service determines the committee heads and it will be no small penalty when they are obliged to see others hold the positions of influence to which they as good republicans would be entitled.

But it is no time to cry over spilt milk. They picked their course and they have now reaped the reward. It is as Victor Berger, the socialist from Wisconsin, says, they have no right to expect to remain in the republican party after their action than he would to claim advantages as a member of the republican party.

The republican caucus did only what the situation called for, and the martyrdom affected created the situation intentionally. The idea of crying "I'm a republican" and then proceeding to obstruct the republican efforts, denounce the republican candidates and aid the opposition is one of those two-faced acts which cannot be tolerated.

CHRISTMAS SEALS.

Probably there is no campaign in which the people of Norwich have entered with greater enthusiasm than in the raising of funds for the fighting of tuberculosis through the sale of Christmas seals.

For a number of years this excellent movement has made a deep impression. It would be impossible to tell just how much good it has accomplished, but there is the satisfaction in knowing that every bit of work, every additional effort, that is done in backing the fight against the white plague is bound to be fruitful of good.

No better evidence of its possibilities could be wanted than the demonstrations which are being made in the clinics and the institutions of the state for the prevention of the much dreaded disease and the curing of those who are afflicted. In Norwich, as well as throughout the state, there can be no misgivings concerning the value of persistent and increased effort in this direction. The good work which has been so well begun and maintained deserves all the support that can be given it.

It is through the Christmas seals that each and everyone is able to lend a helping hand. The seals are simply the means of enlisting your aid. They are obtainable in large or small quantities, so that there is a chance for those with the little as well as the big pocketbooks to join in the good work of fighting disease.

Inasmuch as Norwich has never been unmindful of its opportunities to push along this good work in the past, there are good reasons for believing that it will put its shoulder to the wheel and provide the additional means of preventing consumption that are known to be necessary and therefore surround the community and others with the protection that means so much to humanity. The bigger the sale the bigger the work that can be done.

MUST CHRISTMAS TREES GO?

In connection with the efforts to conserve the timber supply and to make the best possible use of such as is now available there is a demand for a law against the Christmas tree. Such advocates would put an end to such a wastage as exists from the cutting of the small pines, savins and fir trees each season about this time and sending them by the carload to market, some of which reach the dump much quicker than others, but all eventually finding a resting place there.

Christmas trees have become such an established fixture that it is likely to be a hard job legislating against their use. Whether anyone will undertake to provide some form of artificial substitute that will really meet the requirements remains to be seen. It is to be remembered, however, that while there is much conservation work required in connection with the timber supply there are many of the small trees that are used on Christmas that would never make timber. Probably the most that go into the Christmas tree trade, however, are of a type that would, but with proper attention given to the necessary reforestation there might well be enough trees set out to provide for a future timber supply and from among those that must be thinned out a sufficient number could be obtained each year for the holiday trade.

What is needed is the manifestation of the proper spirit toward the reforestation work, the conservation work and the prevention of waste. This latter may well be extended to the Christmas tree trade. If reforestation has been carried to the limit and then the present situation existed there might be a greater sentiment for legislation against the Christmas tree. Till there is there is likely to be much opposition.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There are only 16 days to the special election and 25 to Christmas. Neither should be overlooked.

Unless there was something phenomenal about it, the turkey has long since reached the soup stage.

That hunter who shot down a man in mistake for a rabbit must have been in the habit of seeing big rabbits.

The fascination of the white way is one of the new excuses offered by those who remain down town till late hours.

The man on the corner says: Few are influenced by the fact that tuition is high in the school of hard knocks.

Every little rain storm has a welcome all its own. Little drops of water in sufficient number will fill the reservoirs.

For congress to have a busy session mapped out is one thing. To get it to carry out the programme is something else.

Ramsay MacDonald is planning a trip to this country. Strange how an ocean trip has such a hold on the defeated on both sides of the Atlantic.

The republican senatorial caucus at Washington was virtually one minded as to the need of cleaning house. It was decisive, it was open, it was courageous and it was expected.

Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania asks Connecticut to elect Bingham and says he is needed at Washington. Connecticut has a duty to perform in this respect which it must meet.

Mayor Kendrick of Philadelphia says General Butler is to remain as director of public safety for three years. Their little squabble seems to have been the beginning of a thorough understanding and friendship.

It is impossible to suit all. Had the insurgent republicans been allowed to stay in the party there would have been the cry of "fraidcat," while now that they have been thrown out it is claimed it will encourage a third party. There's no question about its being time they were placed where they belong.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Sponging with salt water will revive the colors in rugs and carpets.

A mixture of warm milk and turpentine will make oilcloth look like new.

The tops of long kid gloves come in handy to cover the buffer of the manicure set.

A little ammonia in the hot water in which the tea towels are washed will remove any disagreable odors.

Pack away the summer flannels in dark tissue paper.

Ammonia will take away that greasy look from coat collars.

Unslacked lime applied with a garden spray to the mouldy cellar walls will freshen the atmosphere of the entire house.

Hot vinegar will remove white wash or distemper splashes.

If parsley is washed with warm water instead of cold it will retain its flavor and be much easier to chop.

Cheese wrapped in damp muslin sprinkled with vinegar will not become dry.

If you keep your brown sugar in an open crock in the refrigerator it will never get lumpy.

Obstinate stains can be removed by soaking in a weak solution of chloride of lime.

Blocks of camphor in all the corners of damp rooms in a new house will banish dampness in a very short time.

To avoid lumpy cereals, stir a little cold water into the cereal, then pour and stir this mixture into the boiling water.

Warm dish covers as well as dishes if you want your dinner to be served really hot.

Add a few drops of ammonia to the water in which you intend washing your jewelry and it will be brighter. Make a tepid suds and then add a few drops of ammonia.

MARKS ON LINOLEUM

Light-colored linoleum is very attractive for the kitchen and bath room, but in both apartments it is apt to be badly stained. If a mark refuses to come out after washing with soap and water, make a paste of fuller's earth and milk. Put this on and leave it for a little time before washing off and drying with a duster.

THE KITCHEN SHEARS

Keep a pair of clean, sharp shears hanging on a convenient hook in the kitchen. You will find them the greatest possible convenience for many unexpected purposes. They are much better than a knife for trimming off the rind of bacon. They are especially desirable when snipping up marshmallows for a salad, and often save getting out a chopping knife and bowl when only a few pieces of green pepper or other garnish is ot be cut in strips or small pieces. The shears should always be wiped and hung up where steam will not strike them to cause rust.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Narrow nails go with scientific ambitions. Their possessor will be studious, but not particularly gentle or amiable.

The reason why some people dread cold weather is because their circulation is poor. The chief reason for failing, lusterless hair, sallow skin, aging tissues and many other beauty ills is poor circulation. Do you not see, then, that while you are learning to take a zestful joy in winter weather you will also automatically improve your beauty.

For grace of movement, as well as for health, it is very important to choose comfortable and well-fitting foot-wear. And when the heels show the first signs of wearing at the sides, or the uppers are at all inclined to spread the shoes should at once be sent for repair. To wear shoes which are the slightest out of shape is the worst possible treatment for the feet and the cause of many ensuing troubles.

Here is a good external treatment for improving the appearance of the red, shiny nose that suits many types of skin. After cleansing the face at bedtime add a few drops of cologne or spirits of camphor to the rinsing water. Dry and apply the following ointment: Ichthyol ointment, 1 dram; oil of almonds, 1-2 oz.; cold cream, 2 oz.; tannic acid, 20 grains; oxide of zinc, 2 oz., and oil of rose, 10 drops. Leave it on overnight. Wash off in the morning and apply the following lotion: Sulphate of zinc 4 grains; tincture lavender, 30 drops, and rose water, 4 oz. Bathe the nose several times a day in the lotion.

AN EXCELLENT SHAMPOO

There's an excellent shampoo which you can make at home and which will keep, if you put in an air-tight jar.

It requires 6 ounces of white castile soap, 1 1-2 ounces potassium carbonate, 9 ounces of water, 2 ounces of glycerine, 7 drops lavender oil, 15 drops of bergamot.

Cut the soap finely, add it to the water and potassium carbonate. Heat until melted. Add glycerine and oils. If a little more water is needed to give it the right consistency, add it.

Shake your hair out well before you wash it. Be sure that there are no tangles in it for they'll get worse during the washing. Be especially careful about the rinsing. Don't leave a bit of shampoo nasty or soap in it, because it will not only look dirty but will eventually cause dandruff.

POPULAR LINENS

Linens most popular at this time are those of natural unbleached coloring, gray, or old blue, embroidered in white. The white embroidery stands out in a most decorative way and is very effective. Table scarfs appear in a number of pleasing shapes most of them stretching their length on top of the table instead of falling over the ends. Fringe is seldom seen as a finish to the scarfs. The hemstitched hem or embroidered edge is now considered a complete finish. And it is well for pieces certainly launder much better without the fringe.

HOME REPAIRS

If you have Colonial furniture you are probably bothered with the knobs coming off the bureau drawers as they are wont to do. Should this occur, place a toothpick in the hole in the knob and break it off even with the knob. Then place the knob on the screw and holding the screw taut with a screwdriver turn the knob till it is tight to the dresser. You will find it more secure than if glued there.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Light fur is still being used on dark fabrics, but there is a tendency to match the fur to the fabric.

Fine lace, particularly in gold, silver or bronze, are used very discriminatingly with gold-faced cloth.

Velveteens are very popular now for afternoon wear. They are often striped or printed in contrasting colors.

All shades of purple are very smart indeed for the young and old alike and for daytime as well as evening.

The newest coats button in the front and have muffs to go with them. Consequently little fur is used on the sleeves.

A black satin gown is given an unusual treatment by the addition of a color with long ties of white panne velvet.

Very wide, full sleeves lined with cloth of gold of vivid colors are seen on the evening coats of rich colored velvet.

Flesh colored organdie or voile makes very dainty collars and cuffs for dark colored frocks of bengaline or serge.

The straight-brimmed hat of considerable width is back again today. It has a very high crown. This universally becoming chapeau is made, this season, of velvet.

The headdress favored by brides at present is a high, crownlike affair of wired lace and pearls. It is of the same height all the way across the front.

Buttons are playing a role more important than for many seasons past. There is no gown smarter than the tailleur in cloth which has a row of buttons—often in gleaming brass—unbroken from neck to hem.

Plain shoes have succeeded the fancy styles with the plenteous open work of straps. Some are still worn, but not as much as the plain pump.

The more formal dresses were of chenille and velvet, but still very straight and very smart.

As for bobbed hair, it seems to be holding its own with the "flappers," although young women who have been out six or seven years showed a tendency to go back to long hair.

FOR THE BUSINESS WOMEN

Attempts to standardize clothes for the business woman have failed because those behind the movement ignored the elements of individuality and personality, but the recognition of what is required in the way of simple smart styles is bound to meet with success. Designers are realizing this and as a result it is possible to find clothes that are distinctive and at the same time within reach of a moderate income.

The essentials of dress for the woman who spends the greater part of the day in an office or shop are excellent materials, conservative colors, simple perfect lines and elimination of superfluous details. These are the fundamentals of true chic, which, after all, is founded upon suitability.

CORRECTLY CUT SKIRT

The skirt tide is still rising and while probably it will never reach the knee, its high level today does not fall far short of that mark. The tight skimpy skirt, however, has been replaced with a garment, which, while it gives the effect of slimness, is widened by godets and pleatings which are both attractive and enveloping.

LAUNDRY HINTS

A faded garment can be made perfectly white by boiling it in cream of tartar water.

Wash and dry the electric washer and wringer rolls when the laundry is finished.

To tint lace or soft material a cream color dip the goods in a weak solution of tea and dry in the shade. If a rich shade of tan is desired use coffee.

Always iron tucks lengthwise until dry, pulling them straight before using the iron.

Rice starch is excellent for fine French lingerie. It may be bought in packages or be obtained in bulk.

In pressing woolens have the iron only moderately warm for these materials scorch very easily.

TO WASH PILLOWS

To wash the pillows dissolve plenty of good soap, soapp powder or chips in hot water, add a tablespoon of ammonia, and wash in this. Rinse in clean hot water and with a pair of tongs plunge up and down to remove all soap. Rinse again in lukewarm water. When all soap is out press out as much water as possible and hang pillows where it is windy. When nearly dry punch and shake them frequently. Wash one pillow at a time.

CURTAINS TODAY AND YESTERDAY

In great-great-grandmother's day she took great pride in two things about her window curtains — their stiffness and their snowy whiteness. No matter what the material, whether it were the heavily figured English Nottingham lace that hung in the best parlor, or the scrim or dotted Swiss that hung in the bedrooms and kitchen, stiffly starched, crisp and dazzling white they had to be and always were.

Today, both whiteness and crispness have gone quite out of fashion for window curtains. And there are good reasons for the change.

In the first place, interior decorators as well as oculists have made the discovery for us that dead white hung up at the window produces a strong and unpleasant glare, whereas soft cream, tan, ecru, amber, or other deep tones, diffuse a gentler, more becoming, and more comfortable light for the eyes.

It has also been discovered that a woven cloth, no matter how fine and thin the texture, allows the light to be diffused less pleasantly than a loosely woven net or lace. Try it for yourself. Hold up to the light a piece of scrim, organdie, Swiss or marquisette beside a piece of net and see how much clearer and pleasanter the effect of the light coming through the net will be.

Stiffly starched curtains went out of fashion about the same time that stiffly starched petticoats did, when women discovered that softly hanging folds of fabric are more beautiful than is hard, awkwardly heldout material.

MAKING TEA

Freshly boiled water should always be used in making tea. It is never wise to add new leaves to those already steeped for a second serving. It is much better to brew an entirely fresh supply.

CONCERNING WOMEN

At the age of 77 years, Mrs. John Lee of Wichita, Kan., took her first airplane ride in a plane piloted by her grandson.

Dr. Lillian South, director of the Bureau of Bacteriology and Epidemiology in Kentucky, is the only woman ever elected vice president of the American Medical Association.

Very elaborate intelligence tests were recently given at Colorado College to 115 men and 11 women. The average score for both men and women was exactly the same—142 points.

Austria has a prison for women which is conducted without guards and no prisoner has ever tried to escape. The women do all their own work, attending the heating apparatus, laundry, gardens, bakery, kitchen and look after the livestock and poultry.

SILK STOCKINGS

Silk stockings should never be left in a soiled condition for a number of days after once removing them. Wash the hose immediately, as the moisture from the feet will rot them.

CABBAGE MINUS ODOR

A little piece of charcoal placed in the water in which cabbage is being cooked will prevent the odor from circulating through the house.

RECIPES

Psyche's Kisses: Boil the sugar to crack stage. Stir in two ounces of apple juice. While boiling, remove from fire and stir in gradually about 1-3 its bulk in fruit juice, coffee, diluted chocolate or any kind of flavoring desired. Set aside to cool. When cool beat with a wooden paddle, stirring the mass vigorously from the sides and bottom until it becomes soft and elastic. The longer it is worked the better the kisses will be. Let stand over night and warm with a gentle heat 3 or 4 ounces at a time in a sugar boiler with a spout. Stir to avoid burning. When the mass will pour readily, drop from the spout on wet or buttered paper in desired sizes.

Orange Gelatine Pie: Two tablespoons granulated gelatine, 1-2 cup cold water, 2 cups orange juice, 1-2 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 3 cups thick cream.

Soak the gelatine in the cold water for five minutes. Heat orange juice, grated rind and sugar and when hot but not boiling add the softened gelatine and stir over a low heat until it entirely dissolves. Add the lemon juice and chill. In the meantime beat the cream until stiff. When the gelatine mixture has begun to set beat thoroughly and fold in the whipped cream. Pour into a baked pie crust and chill until firm.

Perkins Could Not Follow Rules

Although George W. Perkins did not attend school until he was ten, he was able to solve problems by his own methods quickly enough, but had difficulty in following the prescribed rules and therefore often was in trouble.

Son of a business man of comfortable means, he attended public school in his native Chicago, but at 16 decided to enter the business world rather than high school. He obtained a job sorting fruit in a wholesale commission house, but the pay was small and the work unpleasant and without a future.

Resigning within a short time, he became office boy on probation in the Chicago office of the New York Life Insurance Company, and was made a clerk within a year.

At 21 he was made cashier in the Cleveland office of the company. He devised a new style of ledger that simplified the work and was accused of "breaking more rules of the company than any other cashier."

Tiring of the work, he resigned and went to Denver, where he became a solicitor for the New York Life. He was so successful that at 24 he was made agency director and soon afterward, as inspector of agencies in the west at $15,000 a year, with headquarters at Chicago, he introduced methods that enthused the agents in a result-bringing way.

Chosen third vice president, he went to New York and put in a profit-sharing plan for agents that nearly tripled the business in nine years. At 36 he was made second vice president and a member of the finance committee and two years later vice president, at a salary of $75,000 a year the highest salary then paid an insurance man.

J. P. Morgan invited him to become a partner. At first Perkins refused, but accepted when Morgan proved that his was more than a mere money-making concern. Perkins introduced profit-sharing in the United States Steel Corporation, brought about the International Harvester Corporation merger, and accomplished other great tasks.

At the end of nine years with the Morgan firm, he announced that he had sufficient money, and retired to devote the rest of his life to efforts in behalf of his fellow men.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Eighty years old today is Queen Alexandra, widow of King Edward VII, and mother of the present King of England. Alexandra was born in Copenhagen, the eldest daughter and second child of Prince Christian of Gluckaberg, who later became King of Denmark. The early life of the Princess and her sisters was very quiet and domestic, the income of her father being so small that many economies had to be practiced. It was in 1861 that she first met the Prince of Wales, heir apparent to the English throne. Two years later their marriage was celebrated at Windsor and was the first ceremony there since that of Henry I in 1122. From the day of her marriage to the present time no word other than good has been said of Queen Alexandra. Today she is still spoken of as "the most popular woman in England." Because of her age and physical infirmity, Her Majesty has recently been obliged to retire to a quiet life at Sandringham.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Couldn't Have Been Made Voter in August.

Mr. Editor: I noticed in several Connecticut papers Friday that Hamilton Holt was made a voter in Woodstock in August, 1924, and attended the democratic convention two weeks later as a delegate. This is all wrong, Mr. Editor. No voters were admitted in August 1924, or any other August. He could not possibly have been made a voter until after the democratic convention met, so the democratic convention of 1924 certainly had one non-voter in its midst.

It is safe to elect a resident of Connecticut, who likes to live here, as senator. That's why Colonel Bingham will be overwhelmingly elected.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

PREMPEH

Prempeh, last king of the stalwart Ashantis, is returning to his forest-girt capital, but he goes as a private citizen. He will never again occupy the Golden Stool.

These facts, contained in news dispatches, are explained in the following bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society:

"The capital of the People Who Eat Corn is The City Under the Oakum Trees; which is the translated way of saying that the capital of Aghanti is Kumasi. There are many potentates in Ashanti but, until Prempeh was deposed, the King of Kumasi was the paramount monarch of all the ebon Ashanti tribes. He it was who, in theory at least, maintained the traditional harem of 3,333 wives, drank from the skulls of his would-be conquerors, and impolated relatives of distinguished dead in the Spirit House in the Grove so that the departed might have an ample entourage in the next world.

"Ashanti lies north of the Gold Coast, of Africa, between the Ivory Coast and Togoland. The country, now under British control, is approximately the size of West Virginia. About half its area comprises one of the thickest, densest, most impenetrable primeval forests in all the world. The iron-tree and the bombax, the silk-cotton and the hardwood, bamboos and ferns, and an almost infinite variety of growths engage in a fierce fight for life. Every plant, from slender tendril to giant tree rises erect, seeking a place in the sun, 'drawn out to an absurdly disproportionate height in its endeavor to force its own head above those of its neighbors.'

"The mahogany, the teak and the ebony, varieties which civilization prizes, here crowd each other for life. Fowers, birds and beasts are excluded from these thicknesses; the plant life sucks in every iota of sustenance from the sun and soil. Parasites abound. Velvety moss clings to the decaying trees that have met defeat. There being no more room aloft the lianas, or 'monkey-ropes,' festoon themselves from tree to tree and form weird arbors for lesser horizontal growths.

"The white man, even with all the aids of modern medicine, cannot survive long in such a habitat; only the most stalwart of the black men can adapt themselves to it. In the seventeenth century, or a little earlier, migrating Moslem tribes to the north drove bands of negroes into the country. The newcomers took possession of his forest realm, and, in defending it, developed themselves into a vigorous, clannish people.

"Tradition has it that a famine drove large numbers of the settlers south and that these refugees kept alive on herbs, or 'fan,' in the native tongue; while those left behind ate corn, or 'san.' The former, who inhabit the Gold Coast to this day, are known as Fanti; while those who remained were called Ashanti. Both tribes speak the same language but the Ashanti, in their isolation, have developed a physical superiority to their southern neighbors.

"In 1807 the Ashantis came into first contact with the British by attempting to invade the realm of the Fantis. Not until a quarter of a century later were the northmen driven back from the sea coast. Early in the seventies difficulties arose which caused British forces to undertake the exceedingly arduous task of marching upon the Kumasi. The expedition was successful and it was not until after the elevation of Prince Prempeh to the Golden Stool in 1883—the same Prempeh who now is returning to his former domain—that troubles arose again.

"Prempeh was enthroned after a civil war and he had to consolidate his power; but in 1893, he closed the roads of his dominion to traders from the south, so that the British government had to intervene in behalf of their Gold Coast Protectorate. This intervention resulted in the surrender of Prempeh, three years later, and his exile, first at Elmina, a Gold Coast town, and later upon the Seychelles islands. There he spent 28 years and had, for varying periods, the company of such picturesque exiles as Sand Zaghlul, of Egypt; the warlike Kabarega, of Unyoro, and Sayyid Khalid, of Zanzibar.

"When Prempeh returns to Kumasi he will miss the king's palace, a handsome red sandstone building which has disappeared. Gone, too, is the Spirit House, scene of human sacrifices, which used to lie just behind the market place. Instead there is now a railroad station, terminus of the line from Sekondi, on the coast, 188 miles away. And he will find his old political capital transformed into a busy distributing center for the inland Gold Coast Colony, of which Ashanti now forms a part."

Stories That Recall Others

Sure.

Miss Jones was testing her pupils in observation.

"Mary," she asked of the primary class, "how many legs has the table?"

"One," stuttered Mary.

"That's wrong. Harry, how many legs has the table?"

"Three," confidently exclaimed Harry.

"Wrong," said the teacher. And she continued through the class. Some said the table had one leg, some three and some two.

Finally it came Johnny's turn. "Four," said Johnny.

"That's right," the teacher said. "How do you know the table has four legs, Johnny?"

"Why, I counted them," he said.

An Unusual Meal

William, Jr., was an instructor at a boys' camp and he had a chance to observe the prowess and woodcraft of boys from the city. It was his custom to gather his boys about a campfire in the evening and have each tell what he had noticed unusual or of particular interest in the fields or woods during the day.

One little fellow who had always lived in the city always had difficulty in realizing the unusual things in nature. One night he told of what he had seen as follows:

"Well, as I was going through the woods today I saw a mother robin digging holes in the ground with her bill and feeding them to her little ones. And that's a very unusual thing."

At the same time the boy reported that he had seen five robins flying overhead in pairs, and that was a very unusual thing.

Testing Rail Joints.

As the return current in an electric railway is carried by the track rails, made continuous by bonding the joints between the rails, it is advisable to test out the joints after bonding to see that the bond makes a good electrical connection. Though the resistance to the passage of current in a single poorly bonded joint may be very small, the combined resistance of a great number of joints may amount to a great deal.

Richard of Paris some time ago devised an instrument whose indications enable the tester to measure the resistance of a point in a moment's time. The instrument, with an attachment for gripping the rails and making contact on each side of the joint, is easily carried by the tester, as the galvanometer and contact maker together weigh only 31 pounds. The contact maker in this instance, is connected with the wires leading down to the rail.

In using the instrument the operator walks along the track rail until he comes to a joint. Then, with a quick movement, he clamps the contact device to the two rails so as to bridge the joint. The knife edges grasp the two rails at points one yard apart. Turning a switch, he sends battery current through the rails and joints at a known voltage. This current is measured by the deflection of the galvanometer needle. Knowing the voltage and current it is easy to compute by ohms law, the resistance of the joint in ohms—that is, resistance equals volts divided by current. This resistance, when found, represents the resistance of the joint plus one meter of rail length.

COVT COUNSEL ON BOTH SIDES OF CONTROVERSY

Washington, Nov. 30. — The usual spectacle of government counsel appearing on both sides of a controversy is scheduled for tomorrow in the supreme court.

The situation has developed in the Philip Grossman case. Solicitor General Beck, by special direction of the president, will contend that the executive was clearly within his constitutional powers when he granted Grossman a pardon and Amos C. Miller and D. Bruce Johnstone, special assistants to the attorney general, will attempt to sustain the position taken by the federal district judges at Chicago that Grossman, having been sentenced by them for contempt, could not be pardoned by the president.

Grossman was convicted on a charge of violating the prohibition law and a padlock injunction was issued against his place of business in Chicago. Later he was brought back into court charged with having violated the injunction.

The federal district court held him to be in contempt and sentenced him to a term in the Chicago house of correction. He appeared to the supreme court, which refused to review the case. It was then that President Coolidge exercised executive clemency. The federal judges, however, refused to recognize the pardon, and ordered Grossman's incarceration. Grossman on a writ of habeas corpus appealed to the supreme court, which took jurisdiction and will define the president's pardoning power.

GERMANY TO ELECT NEW REICHSTAG NEXT SUNDAY

Berlin, Nov. 30 (By the A. P.).—Germany next Sunday will elect a new reichstag. While the reight major parties and sixteen non-partisan and unattached groups have qualified for entry on the official ballot, the campaign thus far has failed to evoke the same measure of popular interest that brought out 29,000,000 votes last May. The prevailing political inertia is largely born of popular disgust with German party politics and incompetent reichstagers, and whereas the Dawes plan was the cardinal issue in the May elections, the present campaign has wholly failed to produce a slogan calculated to rouse the voters out of their lethargy.

The three liberal parties—socialists, clericals and democrats—are making the issue one of democratic principles by appealing to the voters to stand by the republic and the Weimar constitution. They are also making an effective bid for votes on the plea that the government's course in accepting the London agreement has been amply vindicated in the progressive improvement in the nation's economies since Sept. 1.

MONEY REMAINING FOR NEW LONDON HARBOR

The New London harbor project which provides for an entrance channel 600 feet wide, 33 feet deep and about 3½ miles long, is about 60 percent completed and $475,882.31 has been expended upon it, according to the annual report of the chief of engineers of the United States army. There were no operations during the fiscal year ending June 30, the report says, and the total administration cost for the year was $211.64.

The chief of engineers is not asking congress for any additional appropriation for this project this year. His report states: "It is proposed to retain the unexpended balance for maintenance contingencies. No additional funds are required as the water-front channel and Shaws Cove appear to be in condition to meet the probable needs om commerce for one or more years and for reasons of economy in expenditures funds for completion of the entrance channel will not be necessary at this time."

The report states that there was an increase of about 11 percent in tonnage coming into New London harbor in 1923 over the previous year. In 1923 it totaled 635,087 tons, valued at $238,605,533 and vessels carried 143,362 passengers while during the previous year the corresponding figures were: 571,655 tons, $237,994,545 and 130,545 passengers.

BEGINNING ANNUAL SALE OF TUBERCULOSIS CHRISTMAS SEALS

Today will mark the opening of the seventeenth annual Christmas Seal Sale. The preparatory work of the campaign has engaged the attention of the general committee for some time past and now everything is in readiness and the work will go forward with all the enthusiasm which a humanitarian movement of this kind always arouses in the hearts of the American people.

Initial Steps in Campaign

The first step in the 1925 campaign will be the sending out today (Monday) of 2000 letters to a list of local people whose names are listed as regular buyers, each year, of the Christmas seals. Unfortunately this list is incomplete as there are many good friends of the movement whose names for some reason or another, do not appear on the list of regular buyers. So if any person is one of those who do not, within a day or two receive a letter inviting contributions to this fund, he need not feel that he is thereby relieved from doing his duty in this campaign. Simply send a contribution of $1.00 or more to Lucius Briggs, chairman, 44 West Main street, or to Harold P. Hull, treasurer, care of the Norwich Savings Society, and in return the contributor will receive the equivalent of the contribution in seals. More than that, his name will be added to the honor roll of those who have enlisted in this great nation-wide movement to prevent the spread of tuberculosis, or as it is sometimes called the "Great White Plague."

Why Letters Are Sent

The plan of selling Christmas seals by mail was the original seal sale method and was adopted when the movement was begun seventeen years ago in different states in the Union. It is this plan which makes the campaign for the sale of Christmas seals distinctive, inasmuch as it is practically the only nation-wide movement to provide funds for humanitarian purposes, that is conducted in this way.

These letters containing Christmas seals are sent to those known to be in sympathy with this health movement and the response is usually one hundred per cent.

The Christmas Seal Letter

Following is the form of letter that is being sent to 2000 Norwich citizens.

December 1, 1924

Dear Friend:

Tuberculosis is no respector of persons—it invades the home of the rich and the poor. Your only safeguard is to wipe it our entirely.

Money obtained from the sale of Christmas Seals and Health Bonds enabled us, during last year, to supply over 4700 quarts of milk to undernourished persons; to make over 700 calls in homes where preventive work was done by the nurse in every home entered and to spend $800 for hospital care of cases where it could not otherwise have been obtained.

Won't you help us continue this work by contributing the face value of the enclosed seals ($1.00) or more?

Money subscribed in Norwich is spent in Norwich, and each little seal on your Christmas packages and letters stands for a definite thing you have done to make this city a more healthful place in which to live.

A stamped envelope is enclosed for the return of the seals you do not buy but we hope it will come back containing your contribution.

Will you help us by doing this today?

Very sincerely,
LUCIUS BRIGGS
Chairman

The Amount Needed

The minimum amount needed to carry on the work of the committee for the year 1925 has been set at $3,000 and of course if a larger sum is raised the money can be advantageously expended in broadening the activities of the committee. In fact while a minimum sum is set as a goal to be reached, the actual amount of the Christmas seal fund to be raised in any district is only limited by the generosity of the people of that community, as there are so many ways in which this fund can be used. It sends nurses into the field to teach the principles of hygiene, fresh air, sunlight, proper food and rest as aids to combat and prevent the spread of this disease. It establishes open air schools and camps in which to arrest its development in those showing indications of tuberculosis, or those who have come in contact with it so that the disease may not spread.

Money Raised Spent Here

Occasionally when someone has been invited to buy Christmas seals the person solicited has replied that they bought their Christmas seal in some other city or in response to a letter sent out by the state or national organization. The buying of Christmas seals through any agency is most commendable as it shows a willingness to cooperate in this great humanitarian work but if anyone really wants to help his own community work he should buy seals through the local committee as the money raised in the Norwich district, in this campaign, is used in Norwich, with the exception of a small percentage which goes to help the state and national organizations. In fact exactly 85 per cent. of the money raised in the Norwich district is expended here under the direct supervision of the local committee. The other fifteen per cent, as previously stated goes toward the support of the state and national associations, who are working together, waging a year-round fight against the spread of tuberculosis.

Amount Spent in 1924

The total amount expended up to December 1st, 1924 was $2,516.72, distributed as follows: 4,754 quarts of milk at a cost of $590.72 was furnished to undernourished persons for the purpose of improving their physical condition and thereby tending to develop a natural resistance to tuberculosis.

$800.00 was spent for hospital care of cases where it could not otherwise have been obtained. $800.00 was paid toward a nurse's salary who made more than 700 calls in homes where preventive work was done by the nurse in every home entered and $326.00 was paid for other phases of the work, including transporting the nurse to the homes in which the 700 calls were made.

Prompt Response to Letter

With each letter sent out 100 Christmas seals are enclosed, the equivalent of a $1.00 contribution to the Christmas seal fund. It is the earnest wish of the committee in charge of the campaign that every person who receives a letter will promptly respond with a contribution of $1.00 or more. For convenience a stamped envelope is enclosed with each letter, in which you can place your contribution and by doing this, upon receipt of the letter, you will greatly aid the work of the general committee. As one friend of the movement said: "Buy Christmas seals as you never bought before Buy till it makes you happy. In the happiness of the Christmas season everyone will find true joy in contributing a little from their bounty in this fight to help rid the world of this dread disease that shows no mercy to rich or poor."

ROLLED DOWN BANK ON JEWETT CITY ROAD

The Studebaker touring car, registration No. N-7627, owned and driven by William Ogden of 420 Central avenue left the highway and rolled down a 15 foot embankment on the river road to Jewett City near the switch Sunday afternoon about 12 o'clock. The accident happened when he attempted to pass the Ford coupe bearing registration Number N-306, skidded in the sand and shot across the highway.

The other occupants of the car were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Michon and two boys of Norwich avenue, Taftville. Mr. Ogden received a cut on his nose, Mr. Michon a bruised lip and one of the boys a cut on his hand. Mrs. Michon and her other son escaped with a good shaking up.

The car, which lay on its side perpendicular to the highway, was almost a complete wrack, having the radiator pushed in, a door ripped off, mudguards bent, windshield broken and top torn to shreds.

The other automobile is registered in the name of Daniel W. Goff of 321 Washington St.

HOLT NOT MADE VOTER IN AUGUST

Regarding a statement that has appeared that Hamilton Holt, the democratic nominee for governor was made a voter in Woodstock in August, 1924, which is criticised in a leter from C. B. Montomery which appears in the Bulletin this (Monday) morning, Wm. C. Child, registrar of voters in Woodstock, said Sunday night that he was not certain that the date mentioned was right, but he knew Mr. Holt was made a voter this fall on the first day on which voters are made before the town election in October. What the date was Mr. Child said he couldn't tell. Mr. Child added that Mr. Holt would have been made a voter a year ago but he was in Europe at the time.

ALL FASCISTI DEPUTIES HAVE DEPARTED FROM ROME

Rome, Nov. 30 (By the A. P.).—There is considerable speculation here over the departure from Rome of all the Fascisti members of the chamber of deputies who preside over the meetings of the Fascists in their respective constituencies. Each deputy befroe he left Rome was given a circular letter signed by Premier Mussolini. The instructions were that the envelope should not be opened until the deputies reached their home towns and were ready to read the enclosed letters before Fascisti meetings.

ACADEMY GIRL DETECTS K, THE MYSTER Y MAN

A keen eyed and keen witted girl, Miss Dorothy Stanton Whitney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Whitney of 48 Oak street, beat out the Boy Scouts and others who were watching Saturday to discover K—The Unknown, the mystery man of the Palace theatre who has been traveling the streets of the city for several days.

Mr. K kept his announced programme for Saturday afternoon by driving around in an automobile through the city streets, fully masked and wearing a heavy fur coat. Boy Scouts chased the machine up and down Main street, but he eluded them at length and made a quick trip up Washington street to the garage of Julian L. Williams where he changed his clothes and was driven down to the top of Broadway hill by W. Russell Baird, who was driving the car. From the top of the hill Mr. K walked down into the business section, visited several stores, without being noticed, and finally came to a stop at Engler's corner where he stood around for a while watching the Boy Scouts and others who were looking for him.

Miss Whitney had left her home with her older sister, Mildred, on purpose to look for Mr. K, and had one guide to his identity in her mind. This was the fact that all his pictures she had seen at the theatre had shown him wearing a coat with eight buttons. Miss Mildred too had a guide to follow for she had seen a man in the Boston Store the day before who she felt sure was the mysterious Mr. K.

Suddenly they discovered the man standing at Engler's corner, but they held back from approaching him then because of the crowd of boys around. Soon he moved away and crossed the street toward the Palace theatre. They were close after him and caught him in front of Savari Bros., where Miss Dorothy tapped him with her umbrella handle at the same time asking, "Heigh, are you Mr. K?" She was nearly knocked off her feet when he answered "Absolutely Yes," for just before that she tried another man, who growled back at her, "Absolutely no."

Mr. K at once put on his mask and invited the two girls to follow him to the Palace theatre, where Manager McEvoy paid over the $10 which was the reward for discovering The Unknown. In audition he gave Miss Mildred six tickets to the theatre as she had been the one first to discover the man and urged on her sister to ask him.

The Unknown was impersonated by Edward Sweetie, press agent of the Palace. He had been at door of the theatre every night last week.

LIEUT. BEEBE RETIRES FROM ACTIVE POLICE DUTY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 30.—Lieutenant Benjamin Beebe, the veteran member of New London's police force and for many years in charge of the night shift, concluded his service in that capacity tonight, for he was automatically transferred to the veteran reserve force through an ordinance being passed by the city councilor recently that after Dec. 1st no police officer should continue to serve in that capacity when he has attained an age of 70 years or more. Lieutenant Beebe long ago attained that age, so that the ordinance compelled his retirement tonight. Lieutenant Beebe, who had served 38 years as a member of the police force was presented with a living room chair tonight by the members of the department, the presentation being made in the squad room in the presence of the entire departm at 6.30 o'clock. Desk Sergeant C. Sullivan made the presen speech and in making it Lieuten Beebe was visibly effected, but found words to extend his appreciation of the gift and his appreciation of the cooperation of the other officers while he was at the head of the pirht force.

Saturday afternoon Capta Charles A. Pinney temporarily pointed Desk Sergeant James D. Caffney acting lieutenant to take the place of Lieutenant Beebe until such time as City Manager William A. Holt makes a permanent appointment. Captain Pinney also temporarily appointed Patrolman William Babcock desk sergeant to fill the vacancy caused by the temporary appointment of desk sergeant to that of acting lieutennt. City Manager Holt, with whom entire power of appointment is vested, conferred the power of temporary appointment upon Captain Pinney, but the city manager will, it is understood, make the permanent appointments next month.

TWO POLICEMEN SHOT BY BANDITS IN BOSTON

Boston, Nov. 30.—With the two patrolmen who were shot last night by bandits still fighting for life, the police department was scouring the city tonight for the assailant and his companions, with but slight clues. Two men in the Dorchester district were arrested as suspects and after a two-hour grilling were released under surveillance.

Two physicians reported to the police that three men came to them early today, one with a blood-stained bandage on his right hand. The first doctor declined to treat him and the second advised hospital treatment. The second physician said the men answered the description of those sought by the police.

Patrolmen Thomas F. McCabe and Joseph F. Condon were reported at the hospital to have shown slight improvement, although their names were still on the danger list. They were shot down when they attempted to intercept one of three men who had held up and robbed the two proprietors of a market in the Back Bay district.

One of the marketmen, Martin Ribbitts, was taken to the hospital for treatment of wounds inflicted by a cleaver wielded by a bandit after he had robbed Ribbitts. Daniel Wofosky, the other man in the store, was locked in the icechest after his pockets had been rifled.

The three holdup men escaped, two of them by separating and dodging through rear streets. The third delayed a (perhaps woulded by his duel wit the policemen, forced a taxi driver to carry him more than a mile to the heart of the city, where he jumped from the running board and vanished.

Miss Kittie Palmer spent last week as the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Arthur G. Billings of Natick, R. I.

The death Tuesday morning of Mrs. Fidelia Chapman Gallup removes from our midst a beautiful womanly character. Although nearly ninety five years of age, her mind was as active and alert as ever almost to the very last. She has fought a good fight and well merits the crown which is here.

Almost her last piece of work was a beautiful bed quilt which she had pieced for the Ladies' Aid Society. Next to her family her church has always been Mrs. Gallup's first interest.

It was a privilege as well as a pleasure to visit her often, and there was always a treat in store for her many guests.

The Red Cross drive for this district met with a splendid response and was most successful ever conducted in this community.

There were two 100 per cent. families, that of Mr. Maine and Clifford B. Thompson, while the family of Henry Johnson displays the largest number of Red Crosses.

Clarence Edwin Maine has a force of men and horses at work on the Ledgin Wood road.

The recent meat pie supper netted $27.50 for the church.

FOOTBALL IN WEST CLOSES AFTER MOST SUCCESSFUL SEASON IN HISTORY

Chicago, Nov. 30.—(By The A. P.) Cheer leaders have hung up their white flannels, the last cheer has died away in the cold, empty concrete stadiums, and the colorful crowd has gone to the firesides to discuss the most nerve-racking football season the mid-west has known in years.

The 1924 gridiron season in the western conference which closed with Chicago as champion and Illinois, the favorite, tied with Iowa for second place, presented two outstanding games that resulted in the upsetting of Illinois, besides notable exploits of individual stars.

Perhaps the outstanding game was Chicago's 21 to 21 tie with Illinois, which the "Fighting Illini" with their famous "Ed" Grange entered as almost certain winners. Chicago rooters cherish the memory of the first half of that game when Austin "Five-Yards" McCarthy tore the Illinois line to threads while he and his mates shoved three touchdowns across. They also remember the exploits of Grange, who staved off defeat for his team by making three touchdowns.

Ranking next in importance was the Illinois upset and the stopping of Grange, by Minnesota, the following Saturday. Clarence Schutte, the Minnesota plunging halfback, played the Grange roll for his team in this sensationally fought battle, overwhelming Illinois to the surprise of every one, by a 20 to 7 score. It was Minnesota's final chance to win a conference victory.

Illinois will remember the battle with Michigan when Grange brought the gridiron world to its feet by sprinting 95 yards for a touchdown after he received the opening kickoff, and then adding two more touchdowns so quickly that the spectators were dumbfounded.

Admirers of Amos Stagg, the "Old Man" of Chicago, will long cherish memories of the defensive game which Chicago put up against Wisconsin when the Badgers threatened to deprive Stagg's warriors of the title. They will also remember how the diminutive Bob Curley saved the Northwestern game by booting a field goal in the last few minutes of play which gave Chicago a 3 to 0 victory. They will also recall how he kicked a field goal which enabled the Maroons to tie Iowa.

Michigan is in a position to boast of staging it's comeback after a disastrous defeat by Illinois. The Wolverines won four successive games after the slaughter at Champaign, three of which found their opponents unable to score. But in the final game the Wolverines were upset by Iowa, 9 to 7, giving Bert Ingwerser Iowa's 25 year old coach, a tie for second place.

Wisconsin suffered its most disastrous season in years, its best game being a tie, with Minnesota until it held Chicago to a scoreless tie on the last day of the season. Ohio was likewise handicapped by injuries and lack of sterling material.

Northwestern fans regard their team as one of the best in years. Their first conference victory in more than two years and close battles with Chicago and Notre Dame embellish their record. Ralph Baker's toe figured largely in their scoring.

Northwestern stopped the "four horsemen" of Notre Dame twice within the 15 yard line on the last day of the big ten season, but the famous quartet finally put over two touchdowns for their sixth straight victory. Notre Dame was the only major eleven in the country not defeated or tied this year, with the scalps of Princeton, Army, Georgia Tech and Nebraska among those on the saddle horns of Coach Rockne "cavalry."

Indiana and Purdue had fewer conference games than usual, but each had one conference victory when they met for the Hoosier title, Purdue defeating its new stadium with a clear cut victory.

Missouri, by defeating its ancient rivals, the Kansas Jayhawers, 14 to 0, Thanksgiving day, captured the championship of the Missouri Valley Conference, with Nebraska finishing second and Drake third. The Missouri Tigers went through the season with only one defeat, losing to Nebraska.

Baylor university won the Southwestern Conference championship nosing out Southern Methodist university. Neither team was defeated in competition but the Southern Methodists played four ties while Baylor had only one tie battle.

SULKELEY WILL OPEN BASKETBALL SEASON SOON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 30.—Considering that Bulkeley basketball schedule, which has been drawn up by Manager Arthur Shugrue, too strenuous for a team which has resumed this sport after its abandonment of a year, Coach William R. Canty of the quintet is expected to make several radical changes in the program before long. His contemplated cut of several teams will be made soon to insure a mediocre season for the court team.

His first step, to cut the schedule the changing of the game with Bridgeport High from January third to March 21. The first game of the season will be played at home instead of away, and only a week's practice can be had to get the team into shape for its opening game. The game will be probably played at the Y. M. C. A. although the activities of the Bulkeley court men will probably be shifted from the Y. M. C. A. to the State Armory, where the court can be given over for practice purposes every day in the week, while at the Y. M. C. A. only two days constitute the week's program.

The opening game is the South Kingston High of Rhode Island, and that team will meet a team which has had little time for preparation. However, if Coach Canty can whip that same basketball knowledge into the basketball team as he has already done to the football team, the Orange and Black will surely be a hard combination to defeat.

WESTERN A. C. AND BULKELEY PLAY TO A 7 TO 7 TIE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 30.—As twenty two mud-besmirched and thoroughly drenched athletes stopped their football difference at Morgan Park Saturday afternoon, the curtain dropped on local football. Forty minutes of real football, under conditions that have not been encountered locally for some time back, saw two teams—Bulkeley High and the Western A. C.—battle to a 7 to 7 tie.

The field was covered with mud, with an innumerable number of small puddles and deep bogs dotting the surface of the playing field. The two teams gave as good an account of themselves as could be desired in a contest played under such adverse conditions. The field at the time the game got under way was in fairly good condition for the contest, but the second quarter found the weather man unleashing all the elements upon the unsuspecting twenty two athletes who were struggling for supremacy. While locked in that belligerent embrace, every minute brought a fresh down pour of rain that presently settled in all parts of the field, making football playing a hardship under those conditions rather than a systematic advance by two teams in their effort to outstrip the other in reaching their objective—the goal line.

Acclimated as the Bulkeley eleven is to hard ground, and depending upon their consistent and steady plunges to gain ground for them, they were robbed of their effectiveness throughout the battle. The speed which has been a determining factor of every Bulkeley victory this season, was missed miserably. Missed because the Bulkeley back found it difficult to traverse a field which gave the players no firm footing. Their starts were slow in coparison to the previous efforts of the Bulkeley backfield. There was no other course to pursue but the course of that watchful waiter, waiting for an opportunity to score. But even though the mud robbed the Bulkeley eleven of its most effective method of advancing the ball, yet Bulkeley with Rice fine under the conditions, kept the play continually in the Western territory.

The Western A. C. with her heavy backs, gained ground more consistently than did Bulkeley, but her gaining was not consistent enough and although one score resulted for this eleven it came after a fumble. On the whole the running attack unleased by either team failed to do any damage. It was the over head game which gave the Westerns their touchdown in the fourth quarter. Men in their attempt to cover a rival player often times slipped and fell upon the boggy ground leaving their man uncovered. This happened once or twice, and it proved disastrous for Bulkeley, each time. The Westerns completed two long passes which ultimately brought them within easy striking distance of the goal.

An exchange of punts brought about the first scoring play early in the second quarter. Both forward lines proving to be immovable, punting was the order after one or two attempts at the line failed. Here one of the breaks of the game occurred with Bulkeley benefiting to the extent of a touchdown. Rice had punted down the Western eleven yard line where the two Bulkeley wing men gave the Western quarterback little chance to run back on the play. Two attempts at the ends gained the Westerns but a scant two yards. With Ruddy back in the kicking position for the crowned New London champions, Gavitt broke through the Western forward defense and flashing by the scondary men who acted as a protector around the kicker, he flung himself at the ball in an intrepid manner with a definite purpose in mind and that to block that kick. He succeeded in his purpose, and Tillie Daniels the alert Orange and Black wingman scooped up the slimy ball, and as he neared the Western goal line, he was tackled from behind but the momentum and the slippery surface skidded him across the goal line with Bulkeley's only touchdown. Rice deserves credit for the successful drop kick he essayed after the touchdown.

But there is a contrast to all affairs, and this was shown in the next half. Spurred on by greater efforts, the Westerns began a really menacing drive on the Bulkeley goal line. The quarter was the only element to intercede temporarily from keeping Bulkeley from being scored on. But the quarter ended with the Westerns having possession of the ball on the Bulkeley 21-yard line. Here a Western fumble—one of the few of the game—was apparently covered by a Bulkeley player, but the referee ruled otherwise and the ball was given to the Westerns who continued their successful progress towards the Bulkeley goal. Butch McGowan fromer Sub Base quarter back took the ball over the line from the two yard stripe on a plunge at the left side of the Bulkeley line. The kick from placement which he made, tied the game in a knot at 7-all and left a game undecided between two as evenly matched teams as had been seen in action here this season.

The Westerns proved dangerous near the closing minutes of play, but an opportunity to score failed when McGowan missed a placement kick from the 24-yard line. As the game ended the players, spectators and the officials were not in the least backward about leaving the field.

Surprising as it were that only two fumbles were recorded during the entire afternoon. There was no wiping of the ball before the plays with a towel, or were the backs allowed to thaw out their wet and cold hands before a hot stove before each play. It is remarkable how well the ball was handled as wet as it was.

BENKERT SCORES MOST TOUCHDOWNS; M'BRIDE KICKS

New York, Nov. 30.—(By The A. P.)—John McBride of Syracuse toed his way into second place among eastern football scorers with three field goals at the Polo Grounds Thanksgiving day which defeated Columbia and gave him a total of ninety points. He was unable, however, to overtake Heinie Benkert, and the Rutgers backfield marvel leads the final list with an even 100, the only player to reach the three-figure class.

Eddie Tryon of Colgate, who had two games in which to overtake the Benkert margin, failed utterly before Syracuse and Brown and ended the season one point behind McBride. Walter Koppish of Columbia and Bruder of West Virginia climbed over Hazel of Rutgers during the week. Eckberg, of West Virginia, Graham of Fordham and Douglas of Pennsylvania mounted the latter to finish among the first fifteen.

Benkert scored the most touchdowns 16; McBride the most field goals, 11, and Hazel the most points after touchdown, 25. The twenty high scorers produced 1,215 points which included 164 touchdowns, 132 points after touchdown and 33 field goals.

Jones of the Massachusetts Aggies accounted for 37 points for his eleven without crossing an opposing goal line once, kicking 22 points after touchdown and five field goals. Other outstanding kicking performances were produced by Garbisch of the Army, who booted four field goals against the Navy Saturday, Provost of Penn State, who scored seven three-point dropkicks during the season. Kruez of Pennsylvania, whose left foot accounted for six from the field, and Hazel of Rutgers who sent four between opposing cross bars.

Others who set up admirable records but who failed to finish among the first twenty were: A. Wilsbach of Bucknell with six touchdowns and two extra points, Hall of Dartmouth and Tollnet of Cornell with six touchdowns apiece and Crowley of Holy Cross with four touchdowns, nine extra points and one field goal.

Records of the first twenty players on leading eastern teams follow:

BASKETBALL PRACTICE STARTS AT Y. M. C. A. THIS WEEK

Basketball activities will begin at the "Y" this week when tryouts will be given in the various classes with the purpose of organizing the class teams for competition with outside teams. Both the "Y" Seniors and the "Y" Emps will probably be seen in action again this season and an interesting schedule of games is now being arranged.

The less experienced "Cagers" will not be slighted and those who do not have an opportunity to play on the representative teams may do so during the class league games. The "Y" promoted a lively season of basketball last year and is looking forward to surpass last years endeavor.

Milan, Nov. 30.—Bruno Frattini, the Italian pugilist, today defeated Roland Todd of England on points in a twenty round bout for the middleweight championship of Europe.

COLLEGIATE FOOTBALL EXCEEDS ALL RECORDS IN MATTER OF ATTENDANCE

New York, Nov. 30.—(By the A. P.)—Studded with startling upsets, shattered by attendance records and individual feats of almost unparalleled brilliance, the 1924 gridiron campaign, now virtually at an end, will go down in football history as probably the most remarkable on record.

A few battles remain to be fought in the south while several intersectional features are slated for Pacific coast gridirons, with unusual importance attaching to battle among four unbeaten teams on New Year's day when Notre Dame opposes Stanford at Pasadena and Pennsylvania meets California at Berkeley. The season was brought to its real climax Saturday when the Army mule's kicks proved too much for the navy in the greatest service spectacle ever staged.

The Army-Navy struggle at Baltimore before a record crowd of 78,000 was a fitting finale to a season which has witnessed amazing forward strides in the popularity of the game. This widespread interest has resulted in attendance at college game alone throughout the country estimated at close to 10,000,000, while the radio has brought millions more within earshot of gridiron strife. The previous record single game attendance of about 80,000 set and equalled several times in Yale Bowl, was eclipsed when 90,000 saw Stanford and California in their annual classic at Berkeley, while the western conference games were watched by close to 1,500,000, a figure shattering all previous marks.

With title races settled everywhere but in the south, the array of championship elevens for 1924, includes only a few of those which held the peak a year ago.

Comparing country-wide performances, critics generally pick Knute Rockne's flashy Notre Dame eleven, which blazed a conquering path through opposition from the east south and Middle West, as the greatest combination of the season. The Hoosiers, with nine straight triumphs, were the only major team to finish the season neither beaten nor tied.

Yale, in the east, and California, on the Pacific coast, are the most notable of last year's title holders to retain their grasps on the top again but in both instances their championship claims are disputed. Along the Atlantic seaboard, Yale, capturing the "Big Three" crown for the second straight year, is forced to share chief laurels with Dartmouth and Pennsylvania, both undefeated and boasting fine records, while in the far west, Stanford university presses the Golden Bears for title honors.

The western conference championship went to Stagg's fighting Chicago eleven, the only unbeaten member of the "Big Ten," after Red Grange and Illinois, tied by the Chicagoans, met defeat and elimination at the hands of Minnesota in one of the season's outstanding upsets.

Missouri university captured the Missouri Valley conference title, while southwestern conference honors went to Baylor university, of Texas. The Rocky Mountain conference championship was won by Colorado university for the second straight year. Idaho shares the Pacific Northwest crowd with Gonzaga and Pomona college took the southern California title. In the east Williams won "Little Three" laurels for the fourth consecutive season.

Center college of Kentucky, a sensation several years ago, sprang back to prominence by establishing chief claim to the southern title, due to the victories over Georgia and Alabama, which now is in the lead for the southern conference championship. The "Praying Colonels," are not in this conference, in which the final outcome hinges upon a game next Saturday between Florida and Washington & Lee, both rivals of Alabama for top honors.

Upsets punctuated the season from start to finish, chief among them were the downfall of Illinois at the hands of Minnesota, Princeton's startling show of form to overwhelm Harvard and the defeat of Rutgers previously unbeaten and a strong eastern title contender, by Charley Morgan's little Bucknell eleven in the former's final game of the season.

Three long winning streaks were shattered in the maze of form reversals. Illinois seemed on the road to a second straight season without defeat until it met Minnesota. Cornell, unbeaten for the past three season, had its streak shattered by Williams while Marquette university, of Milwaukee was beaten by Creighton, after four unbeaten campaigns.

California finished her fifth straight year without defeat and now has no rival in this respect. The Golden Bears have been tied four times in this span, two of the deadlocks coming this season against Washington and Stanford.

Among the individual stars, Grange stood out head and shoulders above all rivals, but two unusually notable performances were turned in by Cuddeback, Stanford hero, who almost single-handed enabled his team to tie California, and by Garbisch, Army captain, whose four field goals yesterday gave the cadets their entire winning total against the Navy. As a combination of satellites, Notre Dame's famous backfield quartet, composed of Stuhldreher, Crowley, Miller and Layden, was unrivalled in all around effectiveness.

YALE, DARTMOUTH AND PENN LEADING TEAMS IN EAST

New York, Nov. 30.—(By the A. P.)—Three elevens stand out with strong claims for eastern football honors in the 1924 season. Yale, whose mighty machine a year ago snared the top with Cornell, finished her second successive season without defeat by again conquering Harvard and Princeton for the "Big Three" crown but the Elis were forced to divide the spoils with Pennsylvania and Dartmouth.

None of this trio was beaten but all were tied in a campaign which developed a continuous succession of form upsets. Pennsylvania and Dartmouth, with nine and seven victories apiece, were tied once each, while Yale, held to even terms with Dartmouth, also was tied by Army as an offset to six victories. All three contenders finished their schedules impressively, Pennsylvania and Dartmouth by downing Cornell, while Yale trounced both Princeton and Harvard. Dartmouth and Yale displayed brilliant offensives while Pennsylvania's forte was a remarkable defense, but the merits of all three rivals offer little basis for running them other than in a triple tie.

The only possessors of undisputed laurels in the east were Williams, which conquered Amherst and Wesleyan for the "Little Three" title and Army, which won the service championship yesterday when Captain Garbisch booted four field goals to make up the cadet margin of 12 to 0 over Navy.

Among earlier contenders, Rutgers loomed as a powerful entry until defeated unexpectedly by Bucknell, which in turn was the victim of an upset at the hands of little Dickinson. Lehigh was unbeaten until her final game was lost to Lafayette.

West Virginia, beaten early in the season by Pittsburgh, finished impressively with a smashing victory over Washington and Jefferson and compiled a great total of 252 which placed the Mountaineers at the top of the eastern scoring array. Among Catholic college rivals, Holy Cross, conquering Boston college and Fordham among others, won chief honors.

Cornell's three year march of victory was abruptly checked by Williams and the big red machine suffered further disaster by losing to Rutgers, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania. Columbia, hard hit by the loss of her famous head coach, Percy Haughton in mid-season, rallied after a defeat by Cornell to hold the strong Army team to a tie and put the New Yorkers more firmly on the gridiron map than they have been in 20 years.

Princeton's inspired 34-0 victory over Harvard was the outstanding upset, while another surprise was the defeat of Syracuse by West Virginia Wesleyan, an unheralded team which also overthrew the Navy.

Attendance records were broken throughout the east, high marks being reached at the Yale Bowl, where crowds of 75,000 to 80,000 saw the Army and Harvard games, while 78,000 watched the Army-Navy battle at Baltimore and 56,000 saw Pennsylvania conquer Cornell.

WESTERLY MAKES FAIR SHOWING IN FOOTBALL

Westerly High, although finishing second in the Eastern Connecticut interscholastic league, did not make such an impressive showing on the gridiron this season. However to her goes the credit of being the only team in the league to beat Chapman Tech, Westerly played eleven games winning 4 and losing and equal number and playing 3 ties games. The opponents of Westerly piled up 75 points against her while she made 74 points against her opponents. The season's record follows:

BAXTER ELECTED CAPTAIN OF ARMY FOOTBALL TEAM

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 30—Henry R. Baxter of Chester, Pa., today was elected captain of the Army 1925 football team while the eleven led by Ed Garbisch was returning from its victory over the Navy at Baltimore. Baxter, an end, suffered a broken ankle in the game with Detroit early in the year and his first reappearance was against the midshipmen Saturday. He is a member of the class of 1926.

Twelve hundred cadets met the returning conquerors and drew them up the hill in the ancient stage coach which has been here for a quarter century, Captain Garbisch, whose toe sent four field goals through the navy's posts, addressed the enthusiasts.

BASEBALL KLAN GATHERING IN HARTFORD FOR MEETING

Hartford, Nov. 30—(By the A. P.)—Baseball men from coast to coast started their invasion of Hartford tonight for the annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Leagues which convenes here starting Tuesday and continuing Wednesday and Thursday.

Celebrities from major and minor leagues were among the early arrivals. Others, including baseball's high commissioner, Kenesaw Mountain Landis; "Bucky" Harris, manager of the world's champion Washington Senators; George Sisler, manager of the St. Louis Browns and officials from every minor league club in the association are due to arrive later.

Several important issues will come up before the magnates at this year's session including the inauguration of a program of economy which will curtail salaries, cut down bonuses and reduce the number of optional players on minor league teams. Another issue which will likely prove ot be a barrier to a peaceful session will be the attempt of some of the magnates to put through legislation which will give minor league players sold to the majors 10 per cent. of their purchase price.

Several of the minor leagues will hold their annual meetings here in connection with the big gathering. President John Conway Toole, of the International league has called a meeting of the magnates of his league to be held here on Tuesday while President Hickey of the American association, has issued a call for a meeting of his league here tomorrow. The Pacific Coast league will also meet here during the coming season.

George Stallings and Walter Hapgood, of the Rochester International league club, who arrived here today, brought news that they had stopped off at Bridgeport, Conn., to dicker for the purchase of the Bears. The magnates failed to agree on a mutual purchase price but Hapgood announced that negotiations are still pending and that a shift in ownership is probable during the session. Hapgood and Stallings both expressed a desire to get into the Eastern League field and they let it be known that in the event they failed to come to terms with the Bridgeport magnates they would seek to purchase some other club in the O'Neil circuit.

SEVERAL UPSETS IN SOUTHERN FOOTBALL

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 30—(By the A. P.)—Flagrant and repeated disregard of the form sheet has marked the southern football season. Sensation upsets marked many games.

With 22 members of the Southern Intercollegiate Conference and out three less in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association it is impossible for schedules to be changed bringing all the members together, resulting in a more or less established condition. In addition to other problems the conference game remains to be played.

The conference title is involved. At present, the University of Alabama, leads with five victories and no defeats in the conference. Washington and Lee has won four games in the organization without a tie and has a final tilt with the University of Florida in Jacksonville Dec. 6. A victory would give Washington and Lee a record equal to that of Alabama. Florida is also undefeated, but played only two conference games, winning and a tie. Georgia has played but one and Tulane made a record of four victories and one defeat.

The friends of Centre College claim an All-Southern championship for them. The Kentucky school is a member of the S. I. A. A., but not the conference. However, they played only one game in that S. I. A. A. victory over Alabama and Georgia, two conference teams of the past year, give them prestige.

BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS AT TAFTVILLE TUESDAY NIGHT

The basketball season in the eastern Connecticut league will be inaugurated in an opening meeting at Pythian hall, Taftville, when the fast Army-Navy team will clash with the fives of South Manchester. The local team is practically the same as it was last year with Belair and Allen doing the brunt of the work while the Coleman brothers do their share part of the game. This combination made a great record last year and as the hope of the team that this year will see even better results.

The team practiced all Sunday afternoon showing remarkable speed for the early part of the season. Some of the boys have been playing for three or four years and a good game is expected. The Army-Navy Seconds and the Baltic Five will play a preliminary game.

Bowling Challenge.

Battery F, of Westerly, has a bowling team that is desirous to schedule matches with other service bowling teams in the eastern part of Connecticut. For matches write to George Winterbottom, Westerly, R. I.

No Cornell-Wisconsin Game

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 30—"No football game has been arranged between Cornell and Wisconsin so far as I know," Graduate Manager Berry of Cornell said today when questioned regarding recent reports from the west that the two universities would meet at Madison, Wis., next fall.

Baseball Claims Adjusted

New York, Nov. 30—Several disputes and claims in the minor leagues have been adjusted, according to announcement today of John H. Farrell, chairman of the board of arbitration of the National Association of Baseball Leagues, which has been in session three days.

All other matters have been left for the board's consideration during the annual minor league meetings in Hartford, Conn., this week.

SPORTING NOTES

The season of horse racing in British Columbia is to be restricted to four weeks a year.

All previous attendance records for western conference football games have been broken this fall.

With a record number of clubs in action the curling season has opened in Winnipeg with prospects of a banner season.

Hub Purdue, former big league pitcher, is said to be angling for the job as manager of the Springfield team of the Western association.

At a Scandinavian athletic meet in Copenhagen, Charles Hoff, a Norwegian, made a world's record by clearing 13 feet 6 1-2 inches in the pole jump.

To build the wooden saucer track for the annual six-day bicycle race in Madison Square Garden requires the work of two hundred carpenters.

Hank O'Day, veteran National league umpire, is at Excelsior Springs Mo., where, he says, he is in fine shape. "Look out for me," is his last word.

Miss Hilda James, England's famous woman swimmer who holds every British record from 150 yards to one mile, has decided to turn professional.

The Swimming Federation of the World has decided to hold a world's championship meet every year in future, instead of every four years as heretofore.

A women's crew of London University recently journeyed to Scotland and defeated the women's crew of Edinburgh university in a two-mile race.

Thanksgiving day will usher in the 1924-25 season of winter racing, with the inauguration of meetings at the tracks in New Orleans and Havana.

Jack Barry is being mentioned as the manager of the Worcester team of the Eastern league. The former Red Sox and Athletic star is expected to succeed Jess Burkett, who will not be back.

Boston fight fans expect a treat on the night of December 5, when Quintin Romero, the Chilean heavyweight and Jack Renault, the Canadian heavy who has challenged Jack Dempsey, will come together for ten rounds before one of the clubs in the Hub.

Jose Abel, the old Southern battler who has been in the hotel and hubbub business in Atlanta since he retired from the fight game, is looking after the affairs of one or two promising young pugilists as a side line to his other activities.

The University of Pennsylvania and Cornell, two institutions which from time immemorial have represented the top notch of Thanksgiving day football, still head the long list of entries with their annual 'clash on Franklin Field, at Philadelphia.

Jake Schaefer, who is again contesting with Willie Hoppe for the 18.2 balkline billiard championship, first learned the game from his illustrious father, but it is a strange thing that his style of play is much different. Young Jake's play is less spectacular and more resembles that of the great Frank Ives.

Monroe Sweeney, young umpire of the National league, who made such an impressive showing last season, is keeping himself busy officiating in football games of the collegiate variety. He is on the regular staff of officials of the Missouri valley conference as well as the Southwest Collegiate conference. Including the Washington university-Oklahoma game in St. Louis Nov. 22, he has handled 23 college gridiron contests. Sweeney is a college man himself, being a graduate of Bethany, and knows all of the campus sports. For the winter months he has been engaged as official for 21 college basketball games.

The game between the Army and Navy elevens at Baltimore on November 29 will be the 27th gridiron battle between representatives of Uncle Sams two big academies at West Point and Anhapolis. The first game was played in 1890, and three times the series has been interrupted. No games were played between 1894 and 1898, inclusive; there was another break in 1909, when the game was called off owing to a fatal injury [illegible] in the Harvard game, and the last break occurred in 1917 and 1918, when games were called off owing to the World war.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Tempest

We were crowded in the cabin.
Not a soul would dare to sleep—
It was midnight on the waters,
And a storm was on the deep.

'Tis a fearful thing in Winter
To be shattered by the blast
And hear the rattling trumpet
Thunder, "Cut away the mast!"

So we shuddered there in silence—
For the stoutest held his breath,
While the hungry sea was roaring
And the breakers talked with Death.

As thus we sat in darkness,
Each one busy in his prayers,
"We are lost!" the captain shouted
As he staggered down the stairs.

But his little daughter whispered,
As she took his icy hand,
"Isn't God upon the ocean
Just the same as on the land?"

Then we kissed the little maiden,
And we spoke in better cheer,
And we anchored safe in harbor
When the morn was shining clear.
—James Thomas Fields.

The Three Bells

Beneath the low-hung night cloud
That raked her splintering mast,
The good ship settled slowly,
The cruel leak gained fast.

Over the awful ocean
Her signal fires dealed out,
Dear God! was that Thy answer
From the horror round about?

A voice came down the wild wind,
"Ho Ship ahoy!" its cry;
"Our stout Three Bells of Glasgow Shall lay till daylight by!"

Hour after hour crept slowly,
Yet on the heaving swells
Tossed up and down the ship lights,
The lights of the Three Bells!

And ship to ship made signals,
Man answered back to man,
While oft, to cheer and hearten,
The Three Bells nearer ran;

And the captain from her taffrail
Sent down his hopeful cry:
"Take heart! Hold on!" he shouted,
"The Three Bells shall lay by!"

All night across the waters
The tossing lights shone clear;
All night from reeling taffrail
The Three Bells sent her cheer.

And when the dreary watches
Of storm and darkness passed,
Just as the wreck lurched under,
All souls were saved at last.

Sail on, Three Bells, forever,
In grateful memory sail!
Ring on, Three Bells of rescue,
Above the wave and gale!

Type of the Love eternal,
Repeat the Master's cry,
As tossing through our darkness
The lights of God draw nigh!
—John Greenleaf Whittier.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

At this season of the year many of our smaller animals have gone to sleep for the winter and will not be seen again until the warm days of spring arrive. When summer is gone and the fall days begin to lengthen food becomes scarce for many of the smaller animals. The days begin to get cold too and so to avoid the scarcity of food and the cold days the animals seek lairs in which to pass away the late fall and the winter days. They crawl away and hide in these lairs and drop off to sleep only waking when the weather is warm and when they are sure of finding food.

Many queer spots form sleeping places for the small animals. The squirrel chooses a nice hole at the root of a tree having first well stored it with nuts. He goes to sleep but if he feels that the air is warm he wakes up, has a meal of the nuts he has stored away and perhaps comes out of his hole to look around. When he finds that winter is still here he goes back and to sleep again.

The frogs seek holes near the ponds in which they live during the spring and summer. Their beds are made of mud. Bats choose beams and dark corners of old towers or they find comfortable hiding places in the towers of churches or public buildings. They hang downward and so to sleep for the cold months. Although they are really unconscious during their long sleep and sometimes can be rudely knocked down from their strange perches, they sense the time when the insects will be on the wing again and emerge from their hiding places.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

A Visit to Mexico

Dear Uncle Jed: Our fifth grade children are taking imaginary journeys to other countries. We read about foreign countries and then imagine that we go to see them. It is great fun.

We have just taken such a trip to Mexico. Mexico is so much further south than the United States that we should expect it to be very hot; but it is cool on the higher lands, and on the high mountains, snow stays all the time.

Mexico was settled by Spaniards and we find the people having Spanish customs, and speaking the Spanish language. Many Mexicans are very poor and only a very few of them can read or write. There are many Indians too.

We read that Mexico produces silver and petroleum so we were glad to visit the silver mines and oil fields. We found that the Mexicans are so poor and incapable that they have to depend on Americans to get their silver and oil out of the ground and to market. Near the city of Mexico we saw a volcano. Some Americans are taking sulphur from the volcano. We enjoyed Mexico very much.

Next week we are going to France to see the wheat fields, olive groves and vineyards. We shall have to go to France by boat and I suppose we shall have to sail by compass. My father is a carpenter and my teacher says that the best way to do is to take my fathers compasses, put one leg of the compasses on the map at Village Hill (if we can find it,) place the other leg on the map of France where we want to go, and just sail for that leg. I think he is fooling us. Will you please tell me if he is?

A Cherry's Experience

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a cherry hanging on a branch on the top of the tree. Nearly all the rest of my mates have been picked by the farmer but some of us he could not reach. I happened to be one of those that could not be reached. I hung on that branch till one day a robin came and picked me and carried me off in a pasture where he ate all the meat off me and there my seed lay. One day a woodchuck came and dug a hole right where I lay. The dirt he threw back covered me over and that was when I began to grow.

After I had grown for several years I bore cherries. Every year after that I bore more and more. Every year the farmer would come and pick my cherries and those he could not pick, the robins did.

One day in the summer about a week after my cherries has been picked the farmer had a fire a short distance away from me. The fire got away from him and came and burned me so that I died and I do not bare any more cherries.

Goat for a Playmate

Dear Uncle Jed: One day my father brought home a little goat and gave it to me. I named him Billy. He was so young we had to feed him with a bottle. He would drink the milk very fast. He grew fast and pretty with nice long white curly hair. We had such good times together running and playing. My grandfather made a harness and cart so he could pull me around. When he was tired he would lie down and I would get out and let him have a rest. He liked me so much that whenever he saw me he came running to me. One day he became ill and soon died and I lost one of my dearest playmates. But there is now a nice tree to mark the grave of that dear little playmate of mine.

In Fifth Grade

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a little girl of nine years old. I go to school every day and like it very much. I am in the fifth grade. I try very hard to get ahead in school. I came from North Scituate to this place a year ago. The people at Scituate had to move on account of the reservoir for the city of Providence. I go down there quite often to see them cut the trees and blast. My papa tells me that when the reservoir is finished and filled with water that the water will be at the second story of the house where I used to live. And in some other places it will be 80 feet deep. That is all I can think of at present.

Another New Wide Awake

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a little boy six years old. I have just begun to read the Wide Awake circle and like it. I go to school every day. I like my school. I am in the second grade. I can write pretty good. I can add and subtract. At recess time we play out doors. Sometimes we play dodge ball, black man, tag, and hide and seek.

Mornings I carry milk and mail to a lady. She pays me. I am going to buy a pair of scissors so I can cut pictures. At night I help grandma and grandpa. I help bring water and wood. Evenings I cut our pictures. I hope the Wide Awakes like my letter.

My Visit to Webster Lake

Dear Uncle Jed: One day in August we went to Webster lake. We took our lunch with us. We had cookies, cake, sandwiches, and peaches. After we finished our dinner we saw a baloon go up into the air. A man hung on to it with his hands and after he held on with his feet. After he let go of the balloon. He had two parachutes. One busted and he opened the other one. He fell into the water. He swam to a boat and jumped in and they took him to land.

A Song About Vegetables

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about a song I learned in school. The name of it is Vegetable Song. The tune is Marching Through Georgia. It is about many vegetables which are good for us to eat. Some of them are carrot, lettuce, beet, cauliflower, spinach, potatoes, beans and peas. I like this song very much.

VIOLET G. LYON. Age 8.

Cotton

Dear Uncle Jed: Cotton was first grown in China, India and then the southern states. Cotton is carried by steamships, railroad, horses and carts by men, and by other trucks. The plant will grow rapidly till it is from a foot and a half to six feet tall. When the blossom is one day old it turns pink. A day or two later it falls off, but it leaves a little ball or round pod. This ball grows until it is about as large as an egg. When it is ripe, it splits open, and a small handful of pure white cotton bursts out. It is planted very thick in order to be sure of a crop and plants have to be thinned out with hoes, or "chopped." They are left about a foot apart. A plough can be run between the rows, but there are still many weeds left for the children to "chop" out. Cotton grows in North and South Carolina, Georgia Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas. These states produce the greater part of our crop.

My Birthday Party

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my birthday party. Some little girl friends planned a surprise party on me. But my mother thought they would make too much noise.

I had a little party instead. Seven children were there. We had a few quarts of ice cream. Some candy, soda, cracker jacks, fruit and other things. We played games and I had lots of fun.

An Automobile Ride

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about an automobile ride. One Sunday morning we got up at six o'clock. We had our breakfast and started on our way to my aunt's house in Hanover. We were on the road a long time. We saw a lot of apple orchards on the way. We saw a lot of other things too. We got there at quarter past ten. We played a while. Then we had our dinner.

After dinner we went up on the hills in front of my aunt's house. We saw Mount Tom and lots of other mountains. We came back to my aunt's house. I was tired so I lay down on the lounge for a while. We started for home before dark.

My Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: I have a cat and his name is Buddy. He sits beside me when we are having dinner. He tries to eat what I have on my fork? We have lots of fun with him out doors and in the house.

Peter's Declamation

Dear Uncle Jed: A friend of mine had selected for his speech that part from Patrick Henry's speech which begins with these words, "I have but one lamp by which my feet are guided, and that is the lamp of experience."

He shouted from the stage, "I have but one lamp—lamp—lamp—." He could get no further; he passed his left hand over his frohead and with his right he pulled at his trousers as if it might have slipped into his pocket. He began again, "I have but one lamp—lamp—lamp—." The teacher of the school said, "Come down, Peter, your lamp has gone out."

Mission Class

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the School of Missions that the church I attend is having. We meet every Wednesday night for six weeks from seven to eight o'clock.

The members of the school are divided into classes according to their ages, there is a class for women, men, youths, and children.

The first three divisions mentioned have for a study book, Adventures in Brotherhood, by Dorothy Giles.

I am in the children's class. We have for a study book, Better Americans No. 3 by Mary Da Bardelehen. This book is about immigrants who came from foreign lands and became famous. It also tells stories about the pioneers.

I have a story to learn to tell to the class for the next session. It is entitled, Anna Howards Journey. Anna was a girl of twelve years who was on a journey from her New England home to a new wilderness home (then a place unnamed) one hundred miles from Grand Rapids.

ARTHUR E. GRAY, Age 11.

Visiting a Submarine

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I am going to tell you about the submarine I saw Armistice day. I went to see the parade first, and then I went to see the submarine down at the dock. I went down a ladder to see the inside. Down inside I heard the victrola and looked through the periscope and saw many other things. There is a lot of machinery in the submarine. When you come out a sailor helps you out. I thought the boat was very nice. I hope the Wide Awakes will enjoy my letter.

Mother Nature's Bedtime

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing a story to you about Mother Nature's Bedtime.

When you are in bed at twelve o'clock there are strange things happening outside. All the flowers are asleep except one little flower. Because it sleeps all day. It keeps its petals open all the time and it drinks the mist that falls on its petals. It is called the evening primrose.

In the dusty country road you see the little flowers clinging all together. If you look out of doors at night you would see all these things. What I told you is not a dream. It is true.

Entertained Playmate

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell you about a friend of mine. He came to play with me. My mother said we could play with my electric train. We played with it awhile and then we got out the [illegible] machine. We didn't go to bed until 11 o'clock that night.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

At School

Don't you hear the school bell ring?
"Come to school," it seems to sing.
Hurry on or you'll be late.
You must not a moment wait.

Have you learned your lesson well,
How to read and write and spell?
But when you have finished school
Don't forget the Golden Rule.

Glancing back for one last look, he hopped into the Shady Forest and up the Winding Trail to the little school house in the glen and Professor Crow with his fountain pen. There in the doorway of the small red building stood that wise old blackbird, his glossy swallowtail coat shining under the rays of Mr. Happy Sun.

"Good morning, bunny boy"

"Good morning, bunny boy," cawed the kind Professor Bird. "how's mother?" Everybody always asked after Lady Love. Everyone in Rabbit Land was fond of her because she was so sweet and good and wore a pretty pinky hood when the days were cool and chill and Billy Breeze blew harsh and shrill. Goodness me, there goes my typewriter again making up poetry, just like Shakespeare and Eddie Guest.

"Oh, Mother's well and happy. She always is," augwered the little bunny boy. "I often call her Mother Roses cause she wears three roses in the summertime, one in each cheek and one in her hair. I hop out to the garden every morning before breakfast for a rose. Not in the winter time, of course," and the little rabbit laughed as he hopped into the school room to sit down at his desk.

Pretty soon all the little furry-coated and feathered folk had arrived, and the lessons commenced.

"Tell me, children, can you tell How you feel when you're not well?" cawed Professor Jim Crow, with a funny smile.

At once all the little folks answered, "I-I-I," just like that, quick as the wind that blows off your hat, showing plainly that they all had studied their lesson.

Everything was going on as smoothly as could be, when all of a sudden, who should peep into the window but Danny Fox. Wasn't it a shame that he should be sneaking around when lessons were being taught? Why didn't he wait until school was over and everybody had gone home? I'm sure I don't know. Foxes always come when least expected to henhouses, but I've never heard that they visited school houses.

"Lock the door," shouted Professor Jim Crow at the top of his voice. He couldn't help it even if Danny Fox heard him. That wise old blackbird meant to make sure that Bucky Waddles, who sat nearest the door heard him although everyone jumped up to obey the command.

For dearest me and dearest you, by the time the little duck on pokey wabbly feet had reached the door Danny Fox was turning the knob. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW.

New York, Nov. 29.—Stock prices pressed irresistibly forward this week, propelled by a buying wave of undiminished force. Trading continued in heavy volumn adding another series of 2,000,000 share days to the long list recorded since election day, and ignoring a sharp rise in call money to four per cent., as well as the Thanksgiving holiday interruption.

The upward movement of prices was not so evenly sustained as in preceding weeks. Railroad issues reached their peak early in the week and then fell back slightly, but the price average of representative industrials closed the week at the highest point in several years.

Four-fold over-subscription of the $100,000,000 French loan offered this week, diverted some of Wall street's attention temporarily from the stock market, where it had been centered almost exclusively since election day. It also succeeded in reviving interest for a time in a flagging bond market. Extension of a $15,000,000 credit to the German railways, as reorganized under the Dawes plan, was another important financing development.

The principal feature of foreign exchange trading was a rise in French francs to around 5.40 cents, the highest since early in September. Other European rates showed little change.

NUMBER FIVE

tees to fill vacancies caused by the death of several senators during the last six months.

Leaders of the house republicans have no present intention of following the lead of the senate organization by reading out of their councils Representative John M. Nelson, of Wisconsin and others who supported Senator LaFollette in his campaign as the independent candidate for the presidency. There is no occasion for the calling of a conference of house republicans as there was of the senate organization which was required to elect a new leader to succeed the late Henry Cabot Lodge.

Likewise, there is no occasion for the democrats of the senate to meet in party conference and some of the minority leaders have stated that none would be called solely to consider the question of reading out Senator Burton K. Wheeler, democrat, Montana.

The opening sessions tomorrow of both the house and senate will be brief. New members elected or appointed to succeed those who have died since last May will be sworn in and committees will be named to inform the president that the congress is ready to receive communications from him. Then resolutions will be adopted on the death of members and immediate adjournment will be taken out of respect to their memories.

There will be little activity in either house until after receipt of President Coolidge's second annual message which, under present plans, will be transmitted by messenger on Wednesday and read in the house and senate by their respective clerks.

Early attention will be given by the house to the annual supply measures first of which, that for the interior department, probably will be reported out Tuesday. The appropriations committee has the work on a number of others well under way and Chairman Madden hopes to get them all out before the first of the new year.

While the house is thus engaged, the senate, under plans of the majority leaders, will take such general legislation as the steering committee shall deem of the first importance. Admittedly, however this plan is purely tentative and might easily be altered if the democrats and insurgents desire to do so.

Farm aid legislation is one thing that leaders in both cases are anxious to put through, but early action is not in prospect as congress probably will desire to await the report of the farm commission appointed by President Coolidge, which already has begun its work.

General proposal for this sort of legislation is one upon which all the blocs in congress are agreed, though there is a vast difference of opinion as to the form the measure should take. Such aid constituted a plank in the platforms of the three major parties in the last election and only today Senator Brookhart of Iowa, one of the LaFollette leaders and one of those read out of the party by senate republicans, promised to give his support to such an administration measure.

"If the president," he said, proposes a bill as efficient for the farmers as the railroad bill is for the railroads and the protective tariff bill is for the industries of the United States it will have no more loyal supporter than myself. In fact, I am sure that I will be much more loyal to such a policy than many of the distinguished senators who have assumed to read me out of the party."

Amendments to the transportation act make up other legislation for which there will be a demand from all sides in both houses. Bills affecting freight rates and Pullman surcharges and providing for the abolition of the railroad labor board already are pending in one house or the other, and there will be determined efforts to bring them to the front.

In the house, the Barkley-Howell bill to abolish this board has the right of way, but since there will be no legislative action there Monday the measure will have to go over for two weeks under the rules.

Under an unanimous consent agreement entered into the senate at the last session, the Muscle Shoals question will come up in the senate Wednesday but since Henry Ford has publicly announced the withdrawal of his offer for this power development project the whole subject probably will be sent back to committee for consideration of the several new proposals which will be submitted early this week in the form of bills.

The president's veto of the postal salary increase bill also is pending in the senate and there probably will be a move for early action. Many other matters are reposing on the senate calendar. In fact, there is enough legislation thereon to keep the senate busy for three months regardless of any recommendations for new legislation which the president may make in his annual message.

While there will not be the vast number of investigations this session that marked the last, a number of inquiries will be pushed and other new ones will be inaugurated. Among those to be renewed are the internal revenue inquiry in the senate and the shipping board and aircraft investigations in the house.

Reports also are to be forthcoming soon on a number of the investigations conducted during the last session, including those into the conduct of the department of justic, the operations of the "diploma mill," the leasing of the naval oil reserves and others.

Other subjects which will come in for debate at least during the short session are American adherence to the world court and recognition of soviet Russia. Action on the first rests with the senate with little prospects of action one way or another, while the Russian question is one on which the decision is with the state department.

This afternoon a wireless message was received from New York, saying the pictures were coming beautifully and that the next thing which would be accomplished by radio would be the sending of moving pictures.

The sending apparatus, which is remarkably simple, consists of a transparent drum containing a small high powered arc light. The drum is about two feet long and one foot in diameter. The photo-electric cell is enclosed in a small box which measures about one foot six inches and which has a special lense facing the drum.

The photographs were fastened outside the drum facing the lens, and as the drum revolves, half turning in each direction slowly, the box with the lense moves at a rate of 64 horizontal moves per inch in front of the drum, the photograms being recorded through the lens on the photo-electric cell.

The impressions on the cell, varying with the intensity or weakness of the light cast through the photograph and transmitted to the cell through the lens, are then automatically transformed into wireless rays, which finally are transmitted across the Atlantic as dots and dashes, the method used in sending ordinary messages.

The receiving is carried out by means of a pen or pencil directed by radio, the motors here and in New York being synchronized. It required a half hour to send each picture, but it was explained that it would be possible to send pictures clearly in less than half this time by speeding up the cell movement in front of the drum.

A great advantage of the Ranger system, according to Mr. Whitmore, is its sureness and stability; but he added that the system is still in an experimental stage and cannot be used commercially. Mr. Whitmore explained that the cost of transmission of pictures probably would depend on the time taken to get them across the Atlantic.

PORTRAIT FROM ENGLAND TO THE U. S. IN 20 MINUTES

New York, Nov. 30.—A portrait of the president of the United States was put on the air in London today, and 20 minutes later was reproduced in New York.

As the finished picture was removed from an oscillating cylinder in the offices of the Radio Corporation of America, the jiggling stylus which had drawn it remained poised for a moment. Then there was a buzz, the stylus perked its head this way and that and, putting its inky nose to the paper, traced out a panel in which it embroidered these words from an old Chinese proverb:

"One picture is worth 10,000 words."

Again the stylus rested for a moment, and again it resumed dancing upon that cylinder, until, as the hours passed, it perfected the likenesses of Premier Stanley Baldwin, Secretary of State Hughes, the Prince of Wales, Queen Mother Alexandra, Owen D. Young, showed H. M. S. Reclamation aground in the Tees river and the finish of the Oxford-Cambridge relay races, and topped off the performance with an artistic flourish by reproducing a mural from the Royal Academy.

Radio corporation officials announced at the end of the demonstration that the all-American invention for radio transmission of photographs, paintings, and printed messages was a complete success.

With but little definement, said the inventors, the process could be made available immediately for the almost instantaneous trans-Atlantic transportation of news pictures, of secret business messages, of diplomatic correspondence and of identification photographs in police hunts for international criminals.

The device through which it is expected all these things will become a matter of routine radio transit between continents was developed by C. H. Taylor, chief engineer of the radio corporation, E. F. W. Alexander, consulting engineer, and R. H. Ranger, directing engineer.

Owen D. Young, president of the General Electric company, set the inventors working when he said, on the occasion of General James G. Harboard's inauguration as president of the radio corporation, 21 months ago:

"Radio's big day will come when one can glance at a picture in a London newspaper and say, 'New York newspapers are carrying the same picture today.'"

The first photoradiograms, as they are called, were sent months ago—by wire from New York to the radio transmitting station at Tuckerton, N. J., thence by air 230 miles to the receiving station at Riverhead, Long Island, and thence again by wire into New York.

When these transmissions proved successful, photographs were transmitted by radio to England and return. They could not be received in England, because there was no apparatus there, as the radio impulses bearing the pictures flashed from Riverhead to the Marconi radio station at Carnarvon, Wales, and without being "unscrambled" were radioed back here to be reproduced. Thus pictures actually have been successfully transmitted twice across the Atlantic in a single operation.

A feature of the apparatus is that it operates as a simple accessory to the system of radio transmission now in commercial use. Thus, while a picture was being sent today, the London operator would "cut in" to send a news dispatch, and the picture-making would be arrested. When the dispatch was "clear," the stylus would continue.

To send one picture required about 20 minutes. Computing the cost on the basis of the number of words that could be sent at toll rates during that time, General Harboard figured the cost of transmission per picture at $30 to $40. This sending time is expected to be considerably reduced. A second apparatus which will reproduce messages, advertisements or pictures on an endless spool, instead of on a limited panel is being perfected.

The system of transmission is much like that employed by the American Telephone and Telegraph company months ago when it sent photographs from Cleveland to New York by land wire. There is this difference, however—the A. T. and T. process reproduces a picture with parallel contigues shaded lines, while the radio pictures are made up of thousands of dots, placed in parallels.

The first is the product of a continuous electric current fluctuating under control; the second the product of a series of distinct impulses. Inventors of the latter process said they found it impossible to control a continuous current in radio transmission because of static interference.

CAMPAIGN COST REPUBLICAN NAT'L COMMITTEE $3,063,962

Washington, Nov. 30—The recent campaign cost the republican national committee $3,063,962, Chairman William M. Butler, announced tonight, adding that a surplus of $355,264, which compares with the deficit of about $2,000,000 incurred in 1920, remained in the treasury after all expenditures had been met.

"The campaign was financed by 90,605 individual contributors," said Mr. Butler. "Of this number 83,299 made individual contributions of less than $100.

"While the total amount collected was $4,369,478.82, approximately a million dollars of this amount, $956,525.11 was collected by the national committee in certain states, but only in its capacity as agent for the local state committees and this money was immediately returned to the committees in the states in which it was collected, not yet being available for the national committee budget expenditures.

"Thus, for the actual expenses of the national committee, there was collected and made available $3,402,953.71 which with bank interest and small balances of $16,263.58 made a grand total of $3,419,217.29."

"The campaign from the opening to the closing day was conducted on a budget program," Mr. Butler related.

"Directly following the Cleveland convention a formal estimate was made that a total expenditure of three millions of dollars was necessary for the successful conduct of the campaign. This amount including the campaign expenses of the senatorial and congressional committees, which in past years have been financed independently.

"It is without satisfaction I am able to report that the actual expenditures of the campaign were $3,063,962.74.

A table classifying the contributors by the amounts given and listing the total for each class, including funds collected for state committees, was appended by Mr. Butler, as follows:

Numbers of Contributors	Amount	Total
83,299	—$100	$ 486,525.80
6,087	—$100 to $500	1,218,137.43
744	—$501 to $1,000	729,876.72
270	—$1,001 to $2,500	539,523.51
150	—$2,501 to $5,000	472,315.36
39	—$5,001 to $10,000	335,680.00
16	—Over $10,000	227,500.00

A Ford touring car on the way through the detour on the Plainfield highway skidded and left the cement road breaking the two front wheels. The occupants continuing their journey by train. One of the local garage men is repairing the car.

The motorists of this district were troubled with the sliding and skidding of their cars on the highway as the rain and snow when fell earlier in the day froze as it hit the pavement which coated the highway with a slick sheet of ice. Chains were in great demand and many of the cars stopped long enough to play safety first by putting on chains. No accidents were reported in this district as the machines were driven very slowly and with great care.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Crocker motored to Norwich where they spent the week end.

Thanksgiving services were held at the St. Paul's church on the hill, communion and other church rites were held.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Ryan of Jewett City spent the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. William Crooks of the New Village.

Swimming was enjoyed by many women, Friday afternoon at the Community House swimming tank. Instructor Vincent stated that there was a bigger attendance this week than ever before. The boys had use of the tank between four and five o'clock.

The state road men were busy moving the house of Joseph Roberts back from the main thoroughfare. This house was in the path of the state highway. A crew of ten men with the aid of a team of horses made fast work of the job. The house was easily moved, as if some giant hand had lifted it from its base back thirty feet.

At the Community House Hall a very pleasing entertainment was arranged Thursday evening by the dance committee. A program furnished amusement for an hour before the regular dance. Thumm's Orchestra played snappy selections. There was a vocal solo by Alcif Fournier; Piano duet by Misses Helen Krauss and Helen Greene; piano and concertina duet by Miss Radcliffe and David Radcliffe; a vocal solo by Miss Teresa Sullivan; a jig by Emile Bouley accompanied on the accordion by Gommile Emmond and the program was concluded with a duet by Mr. Olson on the accordion and Mr. Sudan on the violin. After the entertainment there was a dance.

It was Mrs. Clara Eastman who was injured in the automobile accident on the highway, as noted Friday.

The Ice House of Charles Greb on the state highway is nearly completed and will store fifty tons.

NAPOLEON'S FROCK COAT AN EXHIBIT IN MUSEUM

Paris, Nov. 30.—Napoleon's frock coat, worn during the retreat from Moscow, is one of the most interesting exhibits in the government's war museum, in The Invalides, but in the government inventory it is listed at the current price for second-hand garments of this character. General Marbaux, commander of The Invalides, declares that at auction it would bring millions of francs, but it is put down in the French assets at 80 francs, the charge for similar hand-me-down coats.

The price came to be known through recent agitation by the communists for the sale of all relics connected with wars so as to provide funds for the ecare of war cripples.

148 PER CENT. INCREASE IN SAVINGS DEPOSITS

New York, Nov. 30.—An increase of nearly 148 per cent. in savings deposits in the United States during the past twelve years is reported by the American Bankers' association, which has just completed a survey of the subject.

In 1912 a total of $8,425,275,000 was on deposit as savings accounts in mutual savings banks, state banks, trust companies, private banks and national banks. During the ensuing twelve years the number of savings depositors has increased more than threefold from 12,584,316 to 38,867,996.

RECKLESSNESS OF DRIVERS CAUSED MANY ACCIDENTS

Recklessness of the motorist is stated as the cause of more than half of the motor accidents in Connecticut during the period from the first of January to the middle of August, and the carelessness of adult pedestrians caused twice as many accidents as the carelessness of children, according to figures submitted to the conference on street and highway safety by the department of motor vehicles of Connecticut.
Of the 1924 motor vhicle accidents in the Nutmeg state studied by the department of motor vehicles during the stated period 5,929, or 57.8 per cent. were attributed to recklessness on the motorists' part.
The carelessness of adult pedestrians caused 777 accidents, or 10.6 per cent. of the total carelessness of child pedestrians, 382 or 3.7 per cent.
Fault in the mechanism of the car accounted for 537 or 5.2 per cent. of the accidents.
One hundred and thirty-one, or 48 per cent. of Connecticut's fatal accidents last year were fault of operators, while 114 or 43 per cent were the fault of persons other than the drivers; and defective equipment caused five, or 2 per cent. of the deaths.

London is slowly becoming a city of grown-up people with fewer children every year. In ten years the number of children has decreased nearly 14 per cent.

POETRY

GIVING THANKS.

Praise to God, immortal praise,
For the love that crowns our days;
Bounteous source of every joy,
Let Thy praise our tongues employ;
All to Thee, our God, we owe,
Source whence all our blessings flow.

All the plenty summer pours;
Autumn's rich o'erflowing stores;
Flocks that whiten all the plain;
Yellow sheaves of ripened grain;
Lord, for these our souls shall raise
Grateful vows and solemn praise.

Peace, prosperity and health,
Private bliss, and public wealth,
Knowledge with its gladdening streams
Pure religion heller beams;
Lord, for these our souls shall raise
Grateful vows and solemn praise.

As Thy prospering hand hath blest,
May we give Thee of our best;
And by deeds of kindly love
For Thy mercies grateful prove;
Singing thus through all our days,
Praise to God, immortal praise.
—Anna L. Barbauld, 1772.

THE GIFT OF GIFTS.

The gift of gifts life gives us, Brother
Is that we share it with each other.

This life we call our very own
Is part of all that Time has Known;
Is part of ages yet to be;
Is part of God's eternity.

In thought and love we may be one
With whatsoever man has done;
With high and low, with far and near
One in the bond that makes all dear.

This life of ours: its blessedness
Is that it gives us power to bless—
In oneness of the common soul
The power to make the whole world whole.

The gift of gifts life gives us, Brother
Is that we share it with each other.
—Victor B. Southworth, in Nautilus.

"Well, what are you?" the other sneered.
"I'm the husband of the best bridge player in the neighborhood"—he replied.—Exchange.

Maid (returning from errand)—They don't keep it mum.
Mistress—Don't keep what, Mary?

Teacher—Give me an illustration of the power of the press.
Bright Pupil—I'll give you three illustrations—cider, courtship and politics. — Boston Transcript.

They celebrated their honeymoon by performing together at a fair, tossing motor cars about and bending steel bars.

The first volume of a revised dictionary of the French language has recently been finished by the French Academy. The volume, which contains the letters from A to H, has taken forty-six years to complete, having been started in 1878. If an equal amount of time is required to complete the remaining seventeen letters, it will take a century to finish the work.

The British air ministry has produced a flare for night use on landing fields that has unusually high power to penetrate through fog and mist. It makes use of the fact that light rays of long wave length, at the red end of the spectrum, are better able to pierce smoke and mist and are intensely red in color. Strontium combourds are used to produce the color.

NINE PRINCIPAL AIMS IN NORWICH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PROGRAM

Nine major activities in the programme of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce are announced in the November membership letter of the organization, which has been distributed to the members.

The letter follows:

Program of Work—The program of work for the chamber during the coming year which has evolved from the "Suggestion Sheets" recently used by the membership, and adopted by the directors follows; continue the efforts being made to secure equitable taxation; continue the activity for a deeper channel in the Thames river from Allyn's Point to Norwich; endeavor to secure the extension of the West Side street car service to the entrance of Maplewood cemetery; continue efforts to secure a state park near Norwich; endeavor to secure the distribution of registrations and automobile numbers in Norwich; foster civic pride in Norwich; endeavor to secure new industries; study and recommend improved parking regulations; study and recommend a zoning system for Norwich.

The nine activities named above will be the major ones of your organization during the coming year. In working out the various improvements and community problems the membership needs to give its active support, lively interest, and co-operation, to the directors in order to attain success. It is not a question of what are "They" doing, but what are "We" doing. The chamber is a democratic body wherein every member has the inherit right to be heard and to put forth his ideas for the civic betterment and general welfare of "Our" community.

The membership comprises public spirited citizens, having the vision necessary to make Norwich a real competitor with other cities for growth and prosperity. The success of the chamber depends entirely upon the support, the interest, and the co-operation of each member. "If the people are talking about what they accomplished last year, and how much more they have planned to do in the year to come, there need be no hesitation in settling there. The place is alive, and its people are maintaining their right to be proud of it."

Armistice Day—The spontaneity and genuine interest shown by all local organizations in the recent celebration and dedication proves most conclusively that the community spirit of Norwich is sound and alive. Certain it is that after the demonstration on November 11th, any pessimistic citizen of Norwich who habitually hangs the crepe on civic affairs should "fold his tent like the Arab, and as silently steal away." True, a patriotic motive stimulated the people to make the celebration and dedication the success that it was. But the spontaneity of our people, regardless of race, creed or color, in the celebration was most remarkable. Norwich evinced a degree of real community spirit, and that is what counts, that exceeded the fondest hopes of those in charge of the event.

Modern Street Lighting—Another one of the activities of the chamber has become a reality. The so-called "White Way" installed in the business district of our fair community is one of which the citizens of Norwich can justly feel proud. We believe that those who were opposed to the new installation, being fairminded, must finally approve the progressive step taken by the city. One by one we adopt new ideas which have proven their utility. So it is that we grow in progress. The new system should be extended from time to time so that the entire business district and the preminent avenues leading into our city be properly lighted.

Community Advertising—Six ornamental road signs will soon be erected by the town officials at the entrances to the town. Each sign acquaints the traveler of some important fact concerning Norwich. Two-thirds of the expense is sustained by the chamber; Rotary and Lions clubs pay the remaining one-third. This fact shows a healthy local civic condition, being a manifestation of the co-operation and the support of the luncheon clubs to the chamber of commerce. The town officials, through the courtesy of First Selectman William Murray, have agreed to erect the new sign posts. The chamber recently had a new sign indicating the road to Norwich placed in Central Village at the junction of the Providence and Putnam roads.

Water Supply—In common with other cities we have experienced the necessity for calling the public attention to the need of conserving the diminishing water supply in our reservoirs. When nature does not replenish our reservoirs, the inevitable must happen. The fact holds true, however, that much can be done to avoid unnecessary and wilful waste of water. The average city in America, makes the general use of water-meters mandatory.

Nicholas S. Hill, Jr., a consulting engineer of New York city, embodies the following reasons for the use of meters. The first is that selling water by water-meter measurement is the only fair and logical way of selling it because it is the only way by which gross inequalities and discriminations against some of the consumers and in favor of others can be avoided. The second reason is that metering water is the only way yet found of restricting needless waste."

About 40 per cent of the water services in Norwich are metered. It is estimated that it would cost about $60,000 to install meters in every service. Herein lies food for thought. We may and probably must increase our water storage facilities. At the same time we should see to it that every unnecessary waste of water is checked.

In Mr. Hill's report covering over one hundred fifty cities throughout the country according to population, the last ten named are as follows:

City.	Population.	Percent Metered.
Boise City, Ida.,	28,000	87
Plainfield, N. J.	27,700	100
Kearney, N. J.	27,000	100
Richmond, Ind.	27,000	76
Newark, Ohio	27,000	100
New London, Conn.	26,000	100
Irvington, N. J.	25,480	100
Middletown, Ohio	25,000	93
Sioux Falls, S. Dak.	25,000	93
Belman, N. J.	25,000	85

Other Connecticut cities mentioned were Hartford, 138,000, 98 p. c.; New Britain, 59,316, 100 per cent.; Stamford, 35,000, 83 per cent.

Solicitations—During the past month, the chamber investigated upon request, the solicitation of orders for enlarged colored photographs; and another concerning the profits to be made by some knitting machines. From time to time the chamber has called the attention of the general public to the existing danger of giving money to solicitors who are strangers to Nogwich. The single purpose of the chamber is to safeguard the people of our community against the unscrupulous and bogus solicitor who comes here as a total stranger, and has been known in times past to depart with a goodly sum of money from unsuspecting persons. Again we urge everyone to "investigate before you invest."

EAST LYME BOY IS FATALLY SHOT

Frank Shabunia, 13 year old son of Mrs. Celia Shabunia, of East Lyme, died at the hospital in New London Friday evening eight hours after being shot through the intestines by the accidental discharge of a shot gun.

In company with his older brother the boy had gone into the woods near his home on a hunting expedition. As they reached Grassy Hill section, his brother handed him the weapon to hold while the former used his handkerchief.

In some manner as yet unexplained the boy either dropped the gun or accidentally struck the trigger and the discharge of buckshot from the shell pierced the abdomen. The elder Shabunia carried his brother to the offices of Dr. J. G. Ely, some distance from the scene of the accident, where the physician did all possible to save the boy's life.

At 5 o'clock, however, an ambulance was called and the victim was taken to the hospital. At the time he arrived at the institution he had regained consciousness, but was badly shocked as the result of the mishap, and he died at 10.15 o'clock.

Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman pronounced death due to self shooting in a purely accidental manner.

COLCHESTER WILL HAVE HOG RAISING INDUSTRY

John Marron of Colchester, has sold his farm in South Main street, to a large hog-raising concern of New York city, which contemplates converting the property and nearby lots into a scientific hog-raising plant. It is estimated that over $150,000 will be invested in the enterprise. The company is also considering the erection of a large private garage and may ask other owners of land in the vicinity o sell their land to the company.

Nolle Entered in Check Case

Sam Leibman of No. 77 West Thames street was presented in the city court Saturday morning on a charge of issuing a fraudulent check, the case being a continued one. In view of the circumstances City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins recommended a nolle which was granted by Deputy Judge H. H. Pettis.

The breach of the peace case against a Greeneville man was nolled. Another local man was fined $5 and costs for breach of the peace. Three men were fined $5 and costs on intoxication charges.

Gave Banquet to Employes

Belt Bros., proprietors of the Franklin street market, entertained on Saturday night twenty of their employes at a banquet given at the Fern restaurant at which Max Belt was toastmaster and there was a number of interesting talks given. The menu included native turkey soup, celery, olives, nuts, native roast turkey with dressing, mashed potatoes, mashed turnips, green peas, squash pie, coffee, cigars.

LOOK ONLY FOR THE GOOD IN NEIGHBORS, SAYS PRIEST

Yesterday, the first Sunday in Advent—the period of preparation for the advent of Christ at Christmas—the epistle read in the masses in the Catholic churches was Romans xiii., 11-14, and the gospel, Luke xxi. 25-33. Preaching at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church, Rev. Myles P. Galvin continued his sermons on The Commandments, dealing with the Fifth—"Thou shalt not kill."

A week before, Father Galvin had considered the vice of anger, as one of the contributory agencies to disobedience of this commandment of God. Sunday his theme was envy, which from the beginning of the world has been a cause of crime. It was envy of the new creature, Man, created in innocence by God and placed in happiness in Paradise, which led the devil to tempt our first parents, that he might make them as miserable as he was himself. Envy led Cain to kill his brother Abel; actuated the jealous brothers of Joseph to sell him to the Egyptians. In the New Testament it is shown that the envy of the Scribes and Pharisees and doctors of the law was primarily the cause of the Saviour being put to death.

This is the sin which makes one unhappy because his neighbor is successful, or happy when his neighbor suffers misfortune. As directly contrary to that charity and love of neighbor which Christ not only taught but exemplified, the preacher asked each listener to reflect, not "I know just the one meant by him when he speaks of envy," but "Am I filled with envy myself?" He advised means by which this detestable sin may be corrected—seeking to find only good in one's neighbor, strengthening the will to suppress the vice, and of course prayer—to make one daily more like the loving and charitable Saviour.

In giving Holy Communion, Father Galvin assisted Rev. John Reilly, who read the low mass. The Junior choir sang during the service.

CAMBRIDGE WOMAN PAYS FOR TRAFFIC VIOLATION

Miss Helen R. Whitson of Cambridge, Mass., where she is attending school, drove to the left of the traffic beacon at Thames square and hit the machine of Walter Krupinski late Sunday afternoon. The fender and the running board of the Krupinski machine were damaged and Miss Whitson was brought to police headquarters to answer the charge of violation of traffic rules, which she settled by paying $5 and was allowed to proceed on her way to Cambridge.

Wife Charges Intolerable Cruelty

Charging that he treated her with intolerable cruelty, Mrs. Anne L. Snyder of East Hartford has brought suit in the Hartford county superior court for divorce from Lawrence L. Snyder of New London. She also asks custody of a minor son and alimony. The case is returnable next month.

GAVE RELIGIOUS DRAMA AT METHODIST CHURCH

A religious drama, Ruth the Foreigner, was presented at Trinity M. E. church Sunday evening by the Costello Lippitt class of the church school. The drama, which was adapted from the Book of Ruth was given in four acts and the characters were in costume such as worn in Biblical days. The cast which was coached by Mrs. William H. Bath, follows:

Ruth ..... Bertha Hahn
Boaz ..... Louis Geer
Naomi ..... Isabel Shearer
Elimelech ..... Lloyd Cochran
Orpah ..... Elizabeth Peckham
Mahlon ..... Gilbert Denison
Chilon ..... Robert Zuccardy
Mecah ..... Albert Boardman
Overseer of Boaz's Field ..... Christopher Allen

Elders of the City
Mr. Greenlaw, Mr. Kinney, Mr. McNeely.
Reapers and Gleaners in Boaz's Field
Mr. Brown, Mr. Guile, Mr. Frink, Mrs. Cochran, Miss Gray.
Women of Bethlehem
Mrs. O'Mara, Mrs. Greenlaw, Miss Mellor.

The Book of Ruth is an extremely interesting short story. Most of its scenes occur in the out-of-door life of a farming community and follow one another with the swift movement of a drama. While it pictures the life and customs of a primitive people, its chief interest is the romantic life story of the heroine (portrayed by Miss Bertha Hahn) which has all the grace and charm of young womanhood. This idyl has a permanent place in Hebrew literature and there is no more beautiful expression of devotion in any language than that found in the opening chapter.

Act 1 of the drama given Sunday evening showed the family of Elimelech in Bethlehem and gave the reasons for emigration.

The scene in act two was laid in Moab, ten years later. The characters were Moabitish girls who married the Hebrew boys Mahlon and Chilion. Their conversation outlined the misfortunes that befell Elimelech's family. The second scene of this act showed the return of Naomi to Bethlehem, Ruth accompanying her.

The third act depicted the wheatfield of Boaz, one of the wealthy men of Bethlehem. Ruth chanced to join the Hebrew girls. She did not know that he was a relative of her dead husband nor was she aware of the Hebrew marriage customs which were explained to her by Naomi in this act.

The scene of the final act was laid at the city gate the following morning, and Boaz takes Ruth as his wife. Later history distinguished Ruth, for her son became grandfather of King David. The close of the drama exemplified the formality of the marriage contract. The drama was well presented and the congregation was large.

GIVES TALK ON THE RIGHT ART OF LIVING

The parlors at the Y. M. C. A. were filled at the Sunday afternoon meeting. Ten minutes were spent for the opening exercises consisting of hymns, scripture reading and prayer, also vocal solos by Hugh Kinder which are always enjoyed Moving pictures of the eclipse of the sun, forts of medieval France, Oasis of Gabes and fine art with hammer and anvil were shown and they proved of educational value and the scenery in several parts was most beautiful. Between the reels Secretary Hill delivered a brief message and spoke in part as follows: "I want to speak briefly on "art" taking for the text, 'The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth His handiwork.' One phase of the meaning of the word art is 'the visible expression of the sublime and beautiful.' Every man and boy can, if he will, contribute to the sublime and beautiful; every one of us can be an artist in this sense.

Michael Angelo was a great artist, and has blessed the world with his skill, he could take a rough and cast off piece of marble and make of it a beautiful angel in stone. We have seen the painting of a beautiful sunset or a Madonna, and we have been thrilled by them, but no earthly artist can quite compare with God's natural scenery. We look at a lovely cathedral and we think of the architect who made the plans; we say it is a thing of beauty and truly it is all of this, but we all feel that no cathedral is too beautiful for Jehovah. What would we do if we had no music, what a wonderful art is music, and how dreary this old world would be without music; fe hear it in the home, in the church, in the concert hall and now we hear the beautiful strains coming on the air by radio. Last night late in our home we heard from Cuba, sweet vocal and instrumental music, that made us glad; what would we do without music. But after all, the finest art is the art of living; the art of living right; that is the art of having the words we speak just the right words; our actions just those that fit in to the harmony of the world about us, and our very thoughts such as please God. We can all cultivate this art of living in a manner that will contribute to the sum total of harmony of our day and time. God wants us to do this very thing and if we do He will be pleaser and the world will be benefitted by us."

MOTOR AND PUMP TO ARRIVE THIS WEEK

Probably something less than half an inch of rain fell Saturday afternoon and night, helping out the local water shortage situation to some extent, but the rainfall measurement had not been learned Sunday by the water department. There was a good stream of water coming into Fairview reservoir from Bog Meadow Sunday afternoon.

The motor and pump for the new pumping station near Trading Cove brook are expected to arrive here on Tuesday or Wednesday of this week and should be in operation in about ten days.

All the cement work in raising the dam and the side dam at the Stony Brook reservoir will be completed today (Monday).

The inspection of the water services in the city and town to detect possible leaky conditions has now been finished. About 4,500 services were inspected and only a comparatively small percentage were found to call for attention.

GAVE INSTRUCTIVE LECTURE UPON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Robert Stanley Ross, C. S., of New York city, lectured Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Community house under the auspices of the local Christian Science church, interesting a large audience as he spoke upon Christian Science, the Religion of Reality.

In part he said:

In one of the most solemn and impressive incidents recorded in the New Testament, Luke tells us that Jesus, after returning to Nazareth from what may have been a period of preparation at Jerusalem, went into the synagogue (probably by invitation) to expound the Scriptures to his fellowtownsmen, with many of whom, no doubt, he had once played and worked. In those days, it was customary to honor distinguished visitors and guests in this manner. Furthermore, Jesus, having now reached evidently the required age of thirty years, before which none were supposed to preach in public, appears to have entered here upon the work of his ministry.

When Jesus stood up to read, the minister handed to him the book of the prophet Isaiah. Turning to what we know as the sixty-first chapter, Jesus read: "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the brokenhearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord." He then closed the book, returned it to the minister, sat down, and said, "This day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears." In proof thereof, immediately after leaving Nazareth, he began to perform his mighty works of healing.

Christian Science is demonstrating that it is the Christianity of Jesus made practicable today. Now as of old, it is showing mankind how to escape from evil. No matter how long one has been ill, no matter how deeply one is involved in sin, no matter how heavy one's burden of sorrow, poverty, or care, Christian Science lovingly points the way out, not through death and the so-called hereafter, but here and now. The Bible tells us that the kingdom of God, the kingdom of heaven, is at hand, here, now; that now is the day of salvation; that now "are we the sons of God." Instead of exhorting us to wait until tomorrow, or next year, or the next world for salvation, Christian Science invites us to partake today of God's infinite goodness. All the possibilities of being are always here and everywhere. How could it be otherwise in view of the nature and omnipresence of God, good? Consequently, the only God about which Christian Science teaches is "God with us," a God who is absent only to those who believe He is absent.

The Bible records the unfolding to human consciousness of the truth about God and man. In Abraham's day the people were idolators. They believed God to be a finite personality. This prompted them to make and worship images of their finite concept of the infinite. Abraham was the first on record to recognize in God a mighty, unseen power. Although his faith in God has been an inspiration to all succeeding generations, he did not understand God clearly enough to heal the sick. In Moses' day we find the first evidences of healing by spiritual means. The patriarch discovered that the God of Abraham is "a God of truth and without iniquity, just and right is he," obedience to whom would bring divine power to bear upon human experience.

This power Moses demonstrated to a marvelous degree, but there is nothing in the Bible to indicate that he ever imparted his understanding to others. Aaron, Elijah, and Elisha healed the sick by prayer; but, with the possible exception of Elijah, none of the patriarchs or prophets taught others to heal the sick. Not until the ministry of Jesus of Nazareth do we find one who could freely impart this understanding to others. He overcame human discord of every sort and called upon his followers throughout all time to go and do likewise, saying, "He that believeth on me," that is, he who understands my teachings, "the works that I do shall he do also." For three centuries the early Christians obeyed the Master's injunction, after which the primitive church, unable to withstand the onslaughts of error, was permeated and corrupted by the materialism of pagan Rome. Then it was that spiritual healing, as Jesus taught and demonstrated it, ceased.

Interestingly enough, there is nothing to indicate that Jesus ever recorded his teachings in writing. All that we know about his words and works has been handed down to us in the writings of others. That Jesus was the supreme demonstrator of truth's dominion over error there is not the slightest room for doubt. So closely did his human life conform to Christ, the divine ideal, that he became known as Jesus the Christ, or Christ Jesus. Had the age been ready to assimilate dvine healing as a science, God would certainly have made it possible for the Master to record it. But the very fact that Jesus looked definitely to the future for the Comforter, who would abide forever and lead into all truth, indicated that the final revelation of the science of Christian healing was yet to come.

Accordingly, in the year 1866, Mary Baker Eddy, who was a devout and lifelong student of the Bible as well as an untiring seeker for truth, through her own instantaneous recovery from an accident supposed to be fatal, discovered the divine principle or law underlying Jesus' wondrous works. After proving that this principle is demonstrable according to rule, Mrs. Eddy named her discovery Christian Science, which means orderly, systematized knowledge of Christ, truth, of which Jesus was the example and exemplar. In the year 1875, Mrs. Eddy published her famous textbook, Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures. In the light which science and health throws upon the Bible, it is now possible for any sincere student, in proportion to his fidelity and love, to learn and practice Christian healing. Writing on pages 146 and 147 of Science and Health, Mrs. Eddy says: "Divine metaphysics is now reduced to a system, to a form comprehensible by and adapted to the thought of the age in which we live. This system enables the learner to demonstrate the divine principle, upon which Jesus' healing was based, and the sacred rules for its present application to the cure of disease."

MISS LYONS DIES FROM AUTO ACCIDENT INJURIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 30.—Miss Alice Lyons, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah J. Lyons, 133 Montauk avenue, died at St. Francis hospital, Hartford, Saturday evening as a result of the fracture of the skull she sustained early Thanksgiving day morning by being hurled from an automobile, owned by Mrs. James Crawford, Norwich and operated by William Riordan of Norwich, with whom Mrs. Crawford's son, James, and Miss Laura Bottinelli, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Battista Bottinelli, 22 Reed street, who is a student at Williams Memorial Institute. The other occupants of the car, besides Miss Lyons, sustained only slight injuries. Miss Lyons did not regain consciousness from the time she sustained her injury until her death Saturday at 6.30 o'clock.

Crawford and Riordan and the Misses Lyons and Bottinelli departed from New London early Wednesday evening for Hartford where they attended a dance. They left Hartford in the Crawford car, a Packard, about midnight. When the machine was in Glastonbury and at "Ten Curves", a danger spot where numerous accidents have occurred, the car which was travelling at a high rate of speed left the highway and struck a boulder. All four of the occpants were thrown from the car, Miss Lyons landing upon her head on the concrete highway and receiving the injury from which she died. She was rushed to the Hartford hospital, where she lingered until Saturday evening, although her recovery had been considered doubtful from the time of her admission to the institution.

Crawford and Riordan were arrested by the Glastonbury authorities following the accident and held in bonds of $1,000 each, to await the outcome of Miss Lyons' injuries.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE IN DEATH OF MISS LYONS

Arrival here late Sunday afternoon of a state policeman from the Hartford headquarters with a warrant for the arrest of William Riordan of 16 Laurel Hill avenue on the charge of manslaughter disclosed the fact that he was the driver of the Crawford automobile which crashed into a rock early Thanksgiving morning at the Ten Curves in Glastonbury on the Hartford-New London road, causing injuries to Miss Alice Lyons of New London from which she died Saturday night in St. Francis' hospital, Hartford.

Previous reports that Riordan was not injured in the accident were found to be untrue, for when the state policeman, accompanied by Officer Charles Smith, went to Riordan's home to take him to Glastonbury for a justice of the peace hearing, it was found the young man was under treatment from a physician and in no shape to make the trip. He has a cut under the chin and one rib injured.

On the new charge the bail was raised to $3,000, and this was furnished for Riordan. Before the death of Miss Lyons, he and James A. Crawford had been under $1,000 bail to await the result of her injuries.

Aren't folks funny?

Mrs. Brown thinks Mrs. Jones is "old fashioned." She's right—for Mrs. Smith insists on baking her own bread. "She could get good bread at the bakery and save all that time and work," says Mrs. Brown.

And then Mrs. Brown turns right around and does her own washing—and she could "get good washing" from the Troy laundry and "save all that time and work."

TESTIMONY IN CONSPIRACY TRIAL OF CHARLES R. FORBES

Elias H. Mortimer, the Government's Chief Witness, Described Alleged Agreements Between the Contractors and Forbes For Splitting the Profits of Hospital Constructed For Wounded Service Men—Testified That Forbes Accepted Position as Chief Engineer at $100,000 a Year While Head of the Veterans' Bureau.

Chicago, Dec. 1—(By the A. P.)—Elias H. Mortimer of Philadelphia and Washington, the government's chief witness in the conspiracy trial of Charles R. Forbes and John W. Thompson, charged with defrauding the government, occupied the witness stand in federal court all day today describing the alleged agreements between the contractors and Forbes for splitting the profits of the hospitals constructed for wounded service men.

Mortimer was about half through his story when court adjourned for the day, and it was indicated his direct testimony will fill nearly all of tomorrow's session.

Introduction of letters and telegrams exchanged between Mortimer and Thompson and James W. Black relating to the awarding of the hospital contracts, were strenuously objected to by the defense, but their objections were overruled. One long document, purporting to describe the plans of the Colombian Syndicate, a South American development project of Thompson, Black his business associate, and others, of which Forbes was supposed to be chief engineer, was withheld from the jury for examination by defense counsel.

Mortimer testified today that Black, now dead, and Thompson, offered Forbes the position as chief engineer at $100,000 a year, while Forbes was head of the Veterans Bureau, and Mortimer testified, Forbes accepted. The Colombian syndicate, Mortimer said, had hopes of landing contracts for $100,000,000 and Forbes was to help in obtaining these for Thompson and Black and other associates.

President-Elect Espina was introduced to Forbes on a visit to New York, Mortimer continued, and the contractors told Forbes to use his influence to have President Harding speak in favor of Thompson and Black when President Espina was presented to the president.

The firm of Thompson and Black had retained Mortimer, he testified, for 25 per cent. of the net profits they made out of the Veterans Bureau hospital contracts. On a trip to Atlantic City in May, 1922, Mortimer testified he told Forbes he would give him half of this 25 per cent. on all the contracts Forbes gave to this firm.

Forbes was to get one third of a $100,000 contingent fee for using his influence to get a settlement of $70,000 for Thompson in the Steamer Goodhell case pending before the court of claims, Mortimer also testified.

Thompson had salvaged the steamer only to have it seized by the navy during the war. Forbes was to reach Mr. Anderson of government counsel on the court of claims, the witnesses said, through Jesse Smith, the friend of Attorney General Daugherty.

Several preliminary conferences concerning the awarding of hospital contracts took place in New York, according to Mortimer between Forbes, Thompson, Black and Mortimer, after which Forbes gave Mortimer a list of the sites as approved by President Harding on June 6, 1922. Mortimer said he showed this to Black and Thompson, but later it was taken from his room by Col. Forbes and Mrs. Mortimer.

Trips to some of these sites in the east were described by the witness, and then the meeting in the Chicago hotel June 19, 1922, was related. Mortimer testified Forbes had approached him asking a personal loan. Mortimer said he would try and get it from Thompson and Black. In negotiating the loan, he testified, he got $10,000 for himself besides the $5,000 which he obtained for Forbes and gave it to him that day. Later, Mortimer said he got an additional $5,000 from Thompson and Black, because he had received for himself only $10,000 of the $15,000 note he signed to Thompson and Black.

"Forbes only laughed when I asked him for a note for the $5,000 I handed him and walked out of the room," Mortimer said.

Here John W. H. Crim, special assistant attorney general, who guided the witness through the testimony, asked Mortimer if W. D. Pratt of Kansas City had any part in loaning him and Forbes this $15,000. Mortimer replied that Pratt had no part in the loan as far as he knew, but Pratt was interested in the Colombian syndicate and also in Veterans Bureau hospital contracts with Thompson and Black.

In San Francisco, Mortimer testified, Forbes introduced him to Charles Hurley of Seattle, a former employer of Forbes. Black, Hurley and Mortimer, agreed on the division of western hospital contracts, Mortimer testified, that $150,000 was to be added to Black's bid and this was to be divided equally between Forbes, Hurley and the Thompson-Black firm.

In the meantime, Mortimer went on, Forbes had sent Thompson back from Chicago to Washington to "work with" Charles F. Cramer, the Veterans Bureau counsel, in handling such contracts as might come up while Forbes was in the west.

"Cramer's end," Mortimer testified, "was to be taken care of by Forbes, Colonel Forbes told me, but he had to be considered in the division of profits."

The public was barred from the trial to prevent a demonstration.

BANKRUPTCY HEARING IN THE GILPATRIC CASE

Hartford, Dec. 1.—An unusual first hearing in bankruptcy was held this afternoon in the matter of G. Harold Gilpatric, former state treasurer and cashier of the First National bank, in that the bankrupt who is always ordered to be present for examination by creditors was excused from attending because of his incarceration in the federal prison at Atlanta for embezzlement of national bank funds. No one represented Gilpatric at the meeting.

Only three representatives of creditors attended the hearing which was held before Referee in Bankruptcy Edward M. Yeomans. George M. Coffin, receiver of the First National bank, Lawrence A. Howard, lawyer for the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company and Charles A. Hunter, assistant treasurer of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company, presenting the majority of the claims against the Gilpatric estate, elected Arthur E. Howard, Jr., trustee.

Receiver Coffin claims Gilpatric is indebted to the bank for $250,000 and many thousands of dollars more, not yet possible of determination. The Hartford-Connecticut Trust company, claim is $21,000 on a note of Mr. Gilpatric and another note endorsed by him. The Guaranty company has a claim of $22,115.06 of which $15,000 is cash paid on bond to the Putnam bank and the remainder liability on the bond to the Joseph W. Cutler estate of Putnam.

The property of the former cashier as listed in the bankruptcy schedules shows equities in real estate in Hartford and Putnam estimated at $100,000, cash $700; automobile $700; interest in bowling alley in Putnam $900; 197 shares Putnam Woolen company pledged, $19,700; 499 shares Whipple and Gilpatric company $44,900; 448 shares A. Gilman, Inc., pledged $44,800; holding in Kobert Machine company, and Monson Worsted company amount and values unknown; collateral in Hartford-Connecticut Trust company $1,700 and debts due $2,593.

PROPOSAL MADE FOR FUNDING FRANCE'S DEBT

Washington, Dec. 1.—Conferences between Ambassador Jusserand and Secretary Mellon, on the French debt situation have pointed the way, it was indicated tonight at treasury, to the basis for a tentative proposal for funding France's debt to the United States.

When the American debt commission reached no conclusions in its discussions today, members came away from the two hour conference with a definite view as to the limits to which France can go, financially, and most of them appeared to believe this limit can be accepted by the American government. There was however, no official statement further than that progress is being made.

M. Jusserand will continue his talks with the treasury secretary and, it was said officially after today's commission meeting, the French representative has authority to enter the discussion of definite terms should conversations with Mr. Mellon reach that stage in advance of the ambassador's departure for Paris January 6.

The suggestion was put forward today that France may have to be accorded a period over which it can defer intial payments on both principal and interest. It appeared to be the belief of some commission members that this period of delay would have to correspond with similar delays in German payments to France under the Dawes settlement agreement.

ARREST OF "AIDE DE CAMP" OF THE INDIAN PRINCE

Paris, Dec. 1.—(By the A. P.)—James Charles Arthur, who held a temporary commission in the British army during the war, was arrested by the Paris police today as the mysterious "aide de campe" of the Indian Prince, "Mr. A" in the Robinson blackmailing case which was threshed out in London court last week. Arthur said he was willing to return to England, where he was confident he could clear himself of the charge of complicity in the plot.

The arrest was at the instance of the British authorities, the Paris police having been notified by the British consulate Saturday that there was a warrant in England for the man. The British embassy officials said they knew nothing of the affair, except that they had learned Arthur was under arrest.

The "aide-de-camp" appeared quite unconcerned, arguing that if he had received a large sum, such as was charged, he would not have to earn a living in Paris, but nevertheless had enough to quit France if he had wished to run away.

NIECE, FRANCE, WAS STRUCK BY TORNADO

Niece, France, Dec. 1 (By the A. P.)—A tornado swept the city at 4 o'clock this afternoon, lasting about 20 seconds, while a great waterspout appeared just off shore. A number of buildings were wrecked and about 70 persons were injured.

The wind caught a crowd on the promenade and many persons were hurled to the ground. The walls of the gendarmerie collapsed, injuring several persons. The roof of the adjoining building was forced inward and a number of smaller buildings badly damaged. A row of great palms along the Mediterranean was demolished.

AMERICAN VIEW SUPPORTED AT OPIUM CONFERENCE

Geneva, Dec. 1.—(By the A. P.)—What Representative Stephen G. Porter, head of the American delegation to the international opium conference, called "one man of straw" failed today to influence the delegates, who, in supporting the American view, voted that the American proposal respecting the problem of opium eating in India properly belong within the scope of the conference agenda.

Twenty-six states voted in favor of referring the proposal to the first commission. India alone voted against it, while nine other states declined to vote either for or against it.

LACK OF FACILITIES FOR RELIGIOUS WORK AT STORRS

Hartford, Dec. 1.—After a visit to the college church at Storrs, made in the capacity as president of the Connecticut Federation of Churches, Rev. Dr. L. H. Dorchester of the First Methodist church here asserted today that "it is humiliating to think that right in the midst of an institution which has over two million dollars in educational plant, with the finest facilities for teaching agriculture, that almost no facilities are provided for carrying on religious work."

"I am impressed anew with the totally inadequate facilities at Storrs for carrying forward an up-to-date religious program among the students," he said. "The present church is an old building with an auditorium accommodating but 200, and a little back room that will hold less than 50. During the past weeks some of the student Sunday school classes have met out of doors, in and on top of the old horse sheds. But even this is plainly impossible now with winter at Storrs. At Storrs we have a splendid college with over 500 students, and the faculty and their families number 200 more, besides many caretakers. It is plainly impossible to carry on church and Sunday school and various young people's activities with such limited accommodations. And the Connecticut Federation of Churches is acting none too soon in its campaign to raise $300,000 for this project, especially when we know htat the student enrollment at Storrs doubles every ten years.

"The state of Connecticut is doing much for the college at Storrs, but it cannot appropriate money for meeting the religious needs of the students. All the churches, however, can unite through the Connecticut Federation of Churches and meet these religious needs; and happily the church organizations of Connecticut in general have already heartily endorsed this campaign for the new and larger plant there."

BREAK IN STOCK MARKET JUST BEFORE THE CLOSE

New York, Dec. 1.—(By the A. P.)—An advance of selling orders poured into today's stock market just before the close, sending scores of issues, including many of the popular industrial and railroad favorites, 1 to 3 1-2 points below Saturday's final quotations.

The break which came after 81 issues had established new peak prices for the year, temporarily halted the general upward movement of prices, which today entered upon its fifth consecutive week. Total sales crossed the 2,000,000 share mark for the thirteenth time since election day. Bullish demonstrations during the early part of the session were most effective in the copper, motor, railroad and public utility issues. Kansas City Southern advanced more than four points to a new top at 39 1-4.

Selling pressure centered largely against such issues as U. S. Steel common, Baldwin, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, Anaconda Copper, Canadian Pacific, American Woolen, American Sugar Refining, Corn Products, Du Pont, Rock Island, Stromberg Carburetor, Replogle Steel, U. S. Rubber, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Locomotive and American Sugar Refining, all of which lost 1 to 3 1-2 points.

WAGE BOARD CONSIDERING NAVY YARD SCALES

Washington, Dec. 1.—The navy wage board met today to formulate its annual recommendations to the secretary as to navy yard wage scales, which will be based for each yard on the reports of the local wage boards.

Progress was made in the navy on hearing verbal and written communications from representatives of the yard workers in cases where local board recommendations were disputed by particular classes of workers involved. The schedules thus covered included yard clerical forces, supervisory officers such as master mechanics, and the technical classifications. The schedule which embraced the mechanical trades at the yards will be heard tomorrow, and the departmental board will then begin its detailed consideration of the recommendations of the local boards.

In the opinion of those familiar with the situation at the various yards, indications point toward relatively small variations in wage scales during the next calendar year from those established for 1924, which differed only slightly from the range of pay for 1923. While some increases have been recommended by certain local boards, in the main the proposed schedules conform to those now in effect.

TWO CANADIAN BANKERS SENTENCED TO REFORMATORY

Toronto, Dec. 1.—C. A. Barnard and C. F. Smith, two of three former officials of the Home Bank of Canada sentenced to reformatory terms today following their conviction on charges growing out of the institution's failure in August, 1923, were out on temporary bail tonight pending a hearing Wednesday on a motion to appeal their cases.

Barnard was released in $100,000 bail. Smith's bail was fixed at $50,000. Judge Coatsworth earlier in the day had sentenced Barnard to 18 months' imprisonment in the Ontario reformatory "with indeterminate period thereafter of six months, less one day." Smith was sentenced to the same institution for six months, with an additional indeterminate term not to exceed six months. A third prisoner, Sydney H. Jones, auditor, received a four months' term and an indeterminate additional period not to exceed four months. Ocean G. Smith, accountant, was given a suspended sentence.

Jones made no application for bail.

OBITUARY.

John Clarkson.

New Haven, Dec. 1.—John Clarkson, formerly of this city and the oldest member of New Haven lodge of Elks, died today at the Bedford, Va., Elks home as the result of drinking poisoned cider served at the Elks home a short time ago, according to word received here tonight. He is the tenth person at the home to die from the effects of the poison. Mr. Clarkson was in his 67th year. The body will be brought here for burial. He is survived by three sons.

Investigation following the nine deaths disclosed that the cider had been placed in a barrel which formerly had contained a mixture used for spraying trees. The barrel had been thoroughly cleaned but it is thought that the poison had soaked into the wood.

Koretz Tells Story Of Huge Swindle

Of $2,000,000 Involved He Returns to Chicago With $12 and Clothes as Assets.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—Leo Koretz, who fled from Chicago a year ago, with a large portion of the $2,000,000 that friends, relatives and acquaintances had begged him to invest for them in a fake Panama oil scheme, returned today with twelve one dollar bills in his pockets and the clothes he wore as his only apparent assets.

The promoter of the Bayano oil bubble who was arrested last week in Halifax, related his method of promotion which caused the money to flow in so fast that he often took the cash of his friends and relatives under protest.

Koretz, after making what State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe termed a clean beat of his operations, said that he did not expect to interfere with the course of justice in any way.

His dabbling in the fields of finance started 18 years ago by accident, he said, and ended just a year ago after the Bayano Oil stocks had successfully rocketed to dizzy heights and then fallen like a plummet.

Many years ago, Korentz told Crowe, a friend who had performed some service for the government of Panama was given some land there and succeeded in interesting Koretz, the latter inducing some of his friends to invest $10,000 in the project.

Koretz said soon after this he went to Panama and found he and his friends had bought swamp lands. He wanted his money back, he said, so began selling portions of 5,000,000 acres of wooded land which he did not own. The customers, however, were not really attracted, Koretz told Crowe, and in order to increase business, Koretz announced the discovery of oil.

First his deals netted him only $1,000 he said, but with the "oil discovery they jumped to $2,000 and soon money was coming in so fast that he found difficulty in keeping customers away. During his 18-years of operations, he said he "took in only $2,000,000."

Koretz declared he had made absolutely no plans to escape in case he were caught after he fled from Chicago.

When his financial affairs here began to look like they were nearing a crisis a year ago, he said, he went to New York where he used the name of Lou Keyre, the same alias under which he traveled in Halifax.

The book store which he purchased in New York, he said, was bought for three purposes—to satisfy a desire for rare books, because he was not satisfied without some business, and to give him a place of seclusion. He said that in Halifax folks considered him a traveler and writer, so he had decided to go to Honduras in order to keep up the deception and divert suspicion if there was any.

He explained that all the money he had now was in the possession of the authorities to be used in paying his creditors, and that the money which poured in from his oil stocks was his only income. He added that he used some of this to pay interest on stocks held by other clients.

Koretz was not taken to jail but was allowed to go to a hotel for the night in company of several detectives. Before going there he conferred briefly with his two brother-in-law Emil, and remarked that it was the first time he had communicated with any member of his family, including wife and mother, since he fled.

Koretz was accorded a dramatic, if not a hearty reception when he arrived here today with lawyers, detectives, assistant state's attorneys and newspaper reporters. A crowd of 500 persons jammed the train sheds and shouted at the dejected man as he was hustled through the throng while flashlights boomed and cameras clicked. He was taken to to state's attorney's office.

It was reported tonight that it had been decided to divide the $10,000 reward offered for Koretz's arrest between the Halifax bank clerk who first suspected Lou Keyte and Leo Korgtz were identical, and the Halifax tailor who confirmed his suspicions by identification tags found in Koretz's clothing.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI TO PURIFY FASCIST PARTY

Rome, Dec. 1.—Premier Mussolini, in a circular to local fascist executives of the various Italian towns, states that a revision of the party's moral, mental and political position is necessary.

The people supported fascism, he declares, believing it would re-establish order, and this confidence must not be abused. He adds that discreditable elements, whatever their past services, must be eliminated, as must also personal quarrels.

Shoot to Kill Orders Given Boston Police

Boston, Dec. 1.—Boston police carried revolvers in their outside coat pockets tonight, with orders to shoot to kill, in a drive to round up members of two gangs believed to have been concerned in the shooting of two patrolmen Saturday night. Patrolmen Thomas F. McCabe and Joseph F. Cogdon, wounded at that time, were reported recovering from their injuries.

The men involved are three prisoners who escaped from the Everett police station Thanksgiving night after arrest as members of a hold-up band, and five men alleged to have been involved in North End crimes with aliens who have been ordered deported.

ARRESTS FOR HI-JACKING AND PAYROLL ROBBERY

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 1.—Cambridge police inspectors today arrested two men in connection with a $3,500 liquor hi-jacking case and a $2,000 payroll robbery, both of which occurred in Chelsea two weeks ago. Before the men, Jerry Gedzium and Morris Lerner, both of Cambridge, were turned over to the Chelsea police, they were questioned by the Boston police concerning their movements on Saturday night when two patrolmen were shot down following a store holdup in the Back Bay section, Boston.

Detectives surrounded the Gedzium home where he was captured, the officers said, as he was attempting to pass to his mother six automobile drivers' licenses bearing different names. Two revolvers, one loaded and one with chambers empty, were found beneath Gunzium's pillow. Sixty-five gallons of alcohol and ten gallons of whiskey in the closet of the bedroom were seized.

Lerner was arrested unarmed on the street. An automobile registered in his name, the ends of whose number plates were bent in such a manner as to make the six-number look like one bearing four digits, was seized in a Somerville garage. The registration, according to the police, was the same as one reported to the authorities in connection with the theft of $50,000 worth of liquors from the estate of Joseph Leiter, of Chicago, at Beverly, recently.

1400 TELEPHONE POLES FELLED BY SNOWSTORM

Boston, Dec. 1.—As reports of damage from the snowstorm of Saturday night and Sunday morning continued to come in from remote districts of New England today, it was estimated that more than 1400 telephone poles had been swept to the ground while 602 toll circuits of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company had been put out of commission. To the north the storm blockaded roads with snow, or covered them with slippery coating, resulting in many motor accidents some of them fatal, cut off electrical power lines and resulted in the marooning of a train in New Hampshire.

[illegible] completely cut off from telephone communication with Maine [illegible] roundabout circuit [illegible] of White River Junction, Vt., and Berlin, N. H., a distance of nearly 400 miles.

Passengers on a southbound Suncook Valley railroad train were marooned for hours today between Barnstead and Center Barnstead, N. H., before the engine and two coaches, which had been derailed, were put on the tracks again.

PROVIDENCE MAN'S GIFT FOR RESEARCHES IN EGYPT

Chicago, Dec. 1.—John Nicholas Brown, of Providence, R. I., has given $15,000 to the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago, the amount to be used specifically for payment of the salary of a new member of the staff which conducts important researches in Egypt, it was announced tonight.

An invitation has been extended to Dr. A. Debuck of Urem, Holland, to fill this position, under the title of secretary of the Coffin text project. Working under the direction of Dr. James H. Breasted, head of the institute, he would assist in deciphering inscriptions found in the ancient coffins in Egypt.

These inscriptions are deemed to be of great historic and romantic significance because they preceded the "Book of the Dead," a work in hieroglypics and hieratics which was placed in the tombs of the rulers of Egypt and was intended to point out mysteries of the hereafter.

CHARLES B. MONTGOMERY TO CONTEST NAME OF HAMILTON HOLT ON BALLOT

Hartford, Dec. 1.—Charles B. Montgomery, of Sterling, Windham county, La Follette-Wheeler progressive leader in the presidential campaign, wired State Secretary Francis A. Pallotti today to prepare for "a contest in court if the name of Hamilton Holt appears on the official ballot for senator."

Simultaneously, Luther H. Trieschmann, of Hartford, chairman of the Connecticut committee of forty-eight, demanded that if Holt's nomination be accepted in the face of the fact that it was filed after the legal time limit the same privilege be extended the progressives, and requested until 4 p. m., today to file a progressive nomination for senator.

These unexpected developments further complicated the ballot situation just when it had begun to appear that the uncertainty caused by the democrats' failure to certify Holt in time was about to be cleared up. Secretary Pallotti, who had been informally advised by the attorney general over the telephone to put Holt's name on the official ballot, forthwith addressed a formal letter to Mr. Healy, asking where he could draw the line without discriminating.

A fourth important development was the finding in the files of the secretary of the state's office of an opinion October 17, 1918, by the then attorney general and now superior court judge, George E. Hinman, to the effect that the secretary of state is not obliged to print on official ballots the name of a candidate whose nomination is reported to him less than the prescribed time prior to the date of the election. This opinion postdates all previous opinions on the matter.

Following is a copy of the letter received by Secretary Pallotti from L. H. Trieschmann:

"In the name of the committee of 48, I formally make request that you extend to us the privilege of filing our nomination of a candidate for United States senator, to fill the unexpired term of the late Frank B. Brandegee, not later than 4 o'clock p. m., Dec. 4, 1924.

"This nomination will be made by petition, in accordance with the law governing such nomination, and the supporting petition will be in your hands as indicated above.

"We respectfully request the same consideration and exception as we understand is being made in the case of the democratic party."

"L. H. TRIESCHMANN,
"Chairman."

RESOLUTION OF REGRET ON DEATH OF BRANDEGEE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, Dec. 1.—Senator McLean offered resolution of regret at the death of Senator Brandegee soon after the senate convened today, adding he should ask a day be set aside for formal expressions of regret and regard at some later moment. In the house Freeman, Tilson and Fenn were present at the opening session. Merritt and O'Sullivan will arrive tomorrow.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE WILL REACH CONGRESS TOMORROW

The 68th Congress Opened Its Final Session Yesterday With the Senate Made Up of 51 Republicans, 42 Democrats, 2 Farmer-Labor—The House Has 229 Republican Members, 208 Democratic — After a Brief Session Each House Adjourned Out of Respect to Members Who Have Died Recently—President Coolidge Will Submit Annual Budget Message Today — Resolution Was Adopted in the House For Congressianl Memorial Services For Woodrow Wilson December 15.

Washington—With an outward calm veiewed generally as only the forerunner of storms that are to come, the sixty-eighth congress reconvened today for its final session. It must give way on March 4 to the new congress elected last month.

The opening was brief and perfunctory. The senate was in session exactly twenty minutes and the house just fifty-five minutes. The only departure from the usual opening routine was the adoption by the house of a resolution for congressional memorial services for Woodrow Wilson, on December 15.

Each house adjourned until noon tomorrow out of respect to the memories of members who have died recently after it had adopted resolutions of regret. Before that, new members have been sworn in and a joint committee had been named to advise President Coolidge that congress was in session. This the committee did later in the day.

The executive informed the committee that tomorrow he would transmit the annual budget message and on Wednesday would send in his own annual message on the state of the Union. This will be delivered in person, thus obviating the necessity for a joint session.

Facing the necessity of passing more than a dozen annual appropriation bills in three months, congress will get down to business tomorrow.

The house will receive the interior department supply measure and begin its consideration on Wednesday.

As fast as the appropriation measures are sent to the senate, others will be ready for house consideration. Not all of the time will be given to them, however, as house leaders plan from time to time to call up general legislation.

The program in the senate will be similar, although the republican steer-

MECHANICAL ENGINEERS IN ANNUAL MEETING

New York, Dec. 1.—"Safety first" is a selfish slogan and should be abolished, said a report which Louis A. Debost of Wilmington, Del., manager of the safety division of E. I. Du Pont De Nemours && Co., made today to the 2,000 delegates attending the annual meeting of the American Society for Mechanical Engineers.

Mr. Debois asserted that the slogan was generally used to mean the safety of the individual first and every one else second," and he urged the substitution of the French phrase, "Sauve qui peut," which means "Save who can," because the French solgan "is not selfish but essentially altruistic."

Traffic accidents, he said, were the direct outcome of transportation inefficiency in our cities which is not "good housekeeping."

"I suspect," Mr. Debois added, "that no one has as yet successfully let in the light upon the superstition that accidents happen fortuitously. The race still believes individually in its luck or ill-luck."

Henry Zoelly, Swiss inventor, speaking before the railway division of the society, predicted that the Ruebo locomotive, newest development in the transportation field, would produce evolutionary traction changes throughout the world. He said the steam locomotive was "pathetically lagging in the race to attain efficiency and capacity" and that nearly 50 per cent. economy in fuel would be realized by the turbo-locomotive.

PROLONGED SESSION OF THE EGYPTIAN CABINET

Cairo, Dec. 1.—(By the A. P.)—The Egyptian cabinet sat until a late hour tonight discussing the situation growing out of the demands of Great Britain in connection with the assassination of Sirdar Stack. The cabinet decided that no official statement regarding the British demands should be published tomorrok.

Although it was reported today that the minister of communications had resigned, it was said tonight that such was not the case. Tewfik Pasha Riffaat has accepted the portfolio of minister of education and no difficulty is expected in filling the remaining vacancy in the cabinet, that of minister of public works.

Last night sentinels posted in the British residency grounds fired upon two persons who were presumed to be prowlers. It was stated today that footprints were subsequently found, but that nothing further transpired.

TONGSMEN INDICTED FOR FIRST DEGREE MURDER

New York, Dec. 1.—First degree murder indictments were returned today against Moy Yiek Tong and Lee Har, tongsmen of the On Leong tong who were captured after the slaying of Gong Chong FoFon, Hip Sing man, which on Thanksgiving day marked a renewal of the feudal war in this city's Chinatown.

Six holiday strollers who witnessed the murder in a Bronx laundry and caught the fleeing murderers, testified before the grand jury, the pistols with which Gong Chong Foon was slain also were exhibited.

Judge Glennon in Bronx county court issued a writ of habeas corpus, returnable tomorrow, for Gong Yin Sai, a son of the murdered laundryman, who has been held in $25,000 bail as a material witness.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION ON THE BRANDEGEE ESTATE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, Dec. 1.—Justice Stafford of the district supreme court yesterday granted ancillary letters of administration of the estate of Frank B. Brandegee, senator from Connecticut, who committed suicide in October, to W. Don Lundy, formerly his secretary. Bond of the administrator was fixed at $25,000. He says Senator Brandegee owed $183,000 in Washington and his assets here of $20,000. A certified copy of the will of the senator was filed with the petition. The document was dated July 16, 1895, and named his father, Augustus Brandegee, as sole beneficiary, and if dead, the entire estate was to go to Mrs. Helen Zalinski wife of Lieut. M. G. Zalinski, United States army and sister of Senator Brandegee. Attorneys Kenyon and MacFarland appear for Mr. Lundy.

FINDING OF WRECKAGE HAS BEEN CLEARED UP

Woods Hole, Mass., Dec. 1.—Coast guard patrols which have scanned the beaches of the Elizabeth Islands and Martha's Vineyard since the finding yesterday of wreckage at Cuttyhunk believed to represent the loss of a ship were withdrawn today when the United States fisheries commission steamer Fish Hawk reported on arrival here that her decks had been swept by a storm off Cuttyhunk late Saturday night. The "pilot house and log book" discovered on the beach by coast guards were identified as the chart beard and the quartermaster's note book from the Fish Hawk.

The case of medical supplies, bearing the mark of the submarine base at New London, and addressed to "Medical Officer, U. S. S. Camden," was still unaccounted for tonight, but no importance was attached to that part of the wreckage.

The entries in the note book describing the vessel's movements in and about a "navy yard" referred to the Brooklyn Navy Yard, and Captain Edmund Delave said the Fish Hawk left there Friday. She anchored that night off Faulkner's Island, in Long Island sound and left her anchorage early Saturday morning, bound here. When off Cuttyhunk on Saturday about midnight, buffeted by a westerly gale with wind of 60 miles velocity, the skipper said, the steamer rolled heavily and chart board and note book were washed away.

BAKERIES ORGANIZE WITH $15,000,000 CAPITAL STOCK

New York, Dec. 1.—Incorporation of the Purity Bakeries corporation with authorized capital of $15,000,000 par value 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock, 100,000 shares of Class A stock and 500,000 shares of Class B stock, another step in the consolidation movement in the baking industry throughout the country, was announced today. The certificate of incorporation was filed in Delaware.

The new corporation's initial move, it is understood, will be to take over the Purity Baking company of Minnesota; The Tri-State Baking company of Michigan; Banner Grocery Baking company of Cincinnati and Grocers Baking company of Indianapolis. This will give the organization control of 15 plants in Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth, Minn., Indianapolis, Ind., Detroit, Flint, Battle Creek and Jackson, Mich., and Cincinnati, Toledo, Columbus, Hamilton and Akron, Ohio.

Negotiations for acquiring additional properties were said to be in progress.

FOURTH POSTPONEMENT OF HEARING OF STUYVESANT

New York, Dec. 1.—After postponing until Wednesday the hearing of George Stuyvesant of Troy, charged with being a fugitive from New Britain, Conn., where he is said to be wanted in connection with the killing of a patrolman, Magistrate Goodman in Tombs court today, asserted that unless the district attorney was ready to proceed with the case on that day he would dismiss the short affidavit on which Stuyvesant is being held.

"Today's postponement, the fourth in two weeks, was objected to by counsel for Stuyvesant. The attorney said the defendant had a perfect alibi and that witnesses would show he was in Troy at the time of the shooting. Assistant District Attorney McKenna told the court that the prosecution had not yet obtained the necessary papers for proceeding with the case.

(Signed)

Under the rules of the senate flowers are not permitted on the floor and the gift was sent to the office formerly occupied by Senator Lodge.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Water, which continues in quite general use in Danielson, will be scarce in quantity for several hours today. The Crystal Water company, several days since, gave official notice that the supply will be shut off at 10 o'clock this morning and that all should anticipate their needs for several hours thereafter. The connecting up of the new line of mains running between Elmville and Judd avenue will occasion the cutting off of the water supply temporarily. With favorable conditions and good luck the water may not be shut off more than two or three hours, but circumstances may require a longer time to do the work. Prudent housewives will have a several hours supply of water on hand for the period.

A good place to deposit your surplus funds is in a substantial and well managed bank such as the Windham County National Bank, Danielson, Conn.—adv.

Sale of Christmas seals started with a rush in Danielson Monday morning. Business places were supplied by Mrs. James M. Paine and Mrs. E. H. Keach. They found the merchants very responsive. Sales to individuals who will use the stamps on personal mail were also numerous during the day. It is anticipated that the use of the seals will begin immediately. In numbers of cases mail sent out here Monday afternoon carried the new seals, which are significant of what is being done in the great fight being waged against tuberculosis. A special effort will be made to dispose of 75,000 seals in Danielson. Of the revenue that is obtained 35 per cent will remain in town. Those who cannot use large quantities of the seals can help the good work by taking a few. Every sale will contribute something toward reaching the goal local workers have set for themselves.

The Bulletin is happily obligated to revise its figures upward as to the total amount of funds to be released by Danielson's three banks to Christmas and Thrift club members. A few days since it was estimated that the total here this year would be at least $75,000. Information made available by bank treasurers here establishes that this figure is much too low. The releases this year in Danielson will be in excess of $100,000, the largest figure ever touched by such clubs in this community. One bank has $53,000 to give over to its club members.

This flood of money has ostensibly been saved for holiday buying and gift making. Just ahead then lies a great opportunity for the business houses of this community. One frequently hears complaint in business circles that much out of town shopping is done by local people. A remedy is generous advertising of home-owned stocks. Danielson has good stores and reasonable prices. Stressing this in effective advertising should bring the deserved rewards.

State officers from the local barracks did a commendable service on Sunday in halting eastbound traffic near the top of Dark Lantern hill and warning all drivers of the dangerous driving conditions there. Every driver was advised to proceed with caution and most of them took their cars down the long incline in first or second speed.

The surface of this hill where so many accidents have occurred, was ice-coated Sunday as the result of the rain and sleet of Saturday night and the freeze that followed. One car was ditched and damaged on the hill during the day, but the occupants escaped with a few scratches and a scare. Aside from this there were no accidents but in all probability there would have been several had not the state officers been on the job to save drivers unacquainted with the hill of the danger lurking there.

Funeral services for Mrs. Cora Florence Hopkins were conducted at Hopkins Mills by Rev. Gilbert B. Cutler, pastor of the North Scituate Baptist church. The bearers were Charles Ross, Dona Shippee, Ernest Cutler and Walter Shippee. Burial was in the Hopkins Mills cemetery. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

"Scotch, English, Belgian and French Woolens," runs a line in the advertisement of a New York retailer seeking to interest buyers in a line of men's overcoats he has for sale. The foreign appeal is stressed. And in the meantime, while some howl about the tariff, the Elmville plant of the American Woolen company has been closed for months. One may draw their own conclusions in considering all of this.

Monday was dividend day for depositors in the savings department of the Windham County National bank. It was stated by Cashier Francis E. Storer that the directors had declared a semi-annual dividend at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent. per annum.

PUTNAM

The report of Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of schools for the month of November, submitted to the town school committee Monday evening was in part as follows:

The resignation of Estella McGee, teacher of mathematics and history at Putnam High school has been received. On recommendation of the teachers committee, Miss Marjorie McGillicuddy of Portland, Maine was appointed to the position.

Outstanding features of the month in Putnam High school have been the extension of daily physical exercise to every pupils in the school and the organization of a student council to act with the principal and faculty in matters pertaining to the school's interest. We have been able by lengthening the school day twenty minutes, to insert several short periods during which all the pupils participate in deep breathing exercises and gymnastic drills.

The epidemic of scarlet fever in the Israel Putnam school seems to have run its course. There were no new cases last week and only one new case the week before. Attendance is nearly back to normal. Silent reading drill is deservedly having a larger place in all of the grades. Certain high spots in particular schools are worthy of mention. An unusual atmosphere of courtesy and co-operation pervades the Smith street school. Noticeable improvement has been made in handwriting in the upper grades of the Sawyer school. Excellence in mental arithmetic drill in the Putnam Heights school has been commented on by a visiting state school official.

I am engaged in working out a schedule covering the work of the school physician and school nurse according to the instructions of your board. Questionnaires have been sent to fifty school nurses in communities similar to ours asking for reports of their activities and for schedules. These reports have begun to come in. I shall have my complete report ready for the January meeting.

The school is always to a large extent a mirror of the town. The growing optimism evidenced in Putnam during the past few weeks has been reflected in the schools. The directors of the Citizens' National bank by their generous action in guaranteeing to the school children the full amount of their savings in school savings accounts, have re-established in the children a confidence in the value of thrift which will have lasting effects in this community. Each week sees a few new children moving from other towns to enter school in Putnam.

I have never seen our "community in miniature" so sanguine, so hopeful, so optimistic, so confident in what the future has in store for Putnam.

In a play presented at Webster last week by the Girls club of that city, The Importance of Being Earnest, one of Oscar Wilde's most successful dramas, the principal feminine role was taken by Mrs. J. Palmer Prescott, who before her marriage was Miss Gladys Sheldon of Putnam. She made a decided hit in the role. The entertainment was given in the parish house of the Congregational church and was repeated a second night by request. John P. Heald directed the presentation of the play which may possibly be given in Putnam.

Mrs. Willa Knowlton and daughter, Miss Clover Knowlton, of Worcester have been the guests of Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Pease, Fremont street.

On Monday night, Nov. 24, Dr. Wilfred Taylor of Thompson over his radio heard a musical program in Paris, France, broadcasted by the Petit Parisien. He has written them a letter giving the hour, 11.15, Eastern Standard time, and describing the numbers on the program that he was able to distinguish. A tenor solo with piano accompaniment, he said, was heard with remarkable clearness, comparable, he added, except for the heavy static, with stations in the six hundred to one thousand mile zone in this country.

Residents of North Grosvenordale, Mechanicsville and other points to the north are again reminded that a special trolley car will leave Bugbee's Corner for North Grosvenordale at 8.45 p. m. on Wednesday evenings. This is the one evening of the week except Saturday that the stores are open and the special car has been put on for the benefit of store patrons or others. On the regular schedule there is no car northbound between 7.45 and 9.45 in the evening.

W. H. Mansfield, Jr., and Frank J. Appleby started Monday for Florida. They will stop off for a few hours at New York city and Washington, D. C. Ernest L. Davis will leave Tuesday to go straight through to Clearwater or Safety Harbor to spend the winter, as is his yearly custom. Mr. Mansfield and Mr. Appleby will board his train at Washington and the three will travel together for the remainder of the trip.

Andrew Lincoln Lyon has closed "Oakledge" in Woodstock and gone to Asbury Park, N. J., to spend the winter.

A well baby conference will be held at the High school auditorium Wednesday, Dec. 3, from 2 to 4 o'clock. It will be under the supervision of the state board of health, bureau of child welfare.

Judge Harry E. Back, of Danielson has purchased from Charles Johnson the Wright homestead in East Woodstock for a client, to be converted into a mill for the manufacture of wool fabric. It is a large structure that has been vacant for some time.

Frank Coleord, who spend his time between his two homes, one in Woodstock and one in Illinois, is here to purchase a car load of cattle to be shipped to Chicago.

Miss Sarah Murphy, a nurse in the operating rooms of the Parkway hospital at Brookline, Mass., and Miss Ellen Bakewerr, industrial nurse at Lowell, Mass., spent the week with friends in Putnam. Both were formerly on the staff of the Day Kimball hospital.

STEPHEN HARRIS DIED IN POMFRET SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Dec. 1.—Stephen Harris died at his home in Pomfret Sunday night, Dec. 1st, at 10.30 o'clock, in his 90th year.

Prior to three weeks ago he was driving to Putnam an average of every other day although his health was greatly impaired. For the past three weeks he has been confined to his bed for the greater part of the time, although not suffering from any particular malady, other than the gradual breaking down of a strong constitution.

The funeral services will be private, Tuesday the body will be taken to Providence for interment in the family burying ground.

For thirty years he had been a resident of Putnam, his sister, Anna, living with him, and having charge of the house. She survives him. Neither of them ever married.

Other relatives are Stephen Harris and Benjamin Harris, nephews, and a niece, Miss Harriet Harris, all of them living in Providence. There are other nephews and nieces in California.

For thirty years he had been a resident of Pomfret, making his home in a house near the Four Corners, one of the oldest of the town, and certainly the one to which the most historical interest attaches, for it is one of the houses in which George Washington really spent a night. The following is from General Washington's diary referring to his return trip from Boston to New York:

Stopped at Pomfret at an Inn, kept by one, Grosvenor, expecting to see my friend, Gen Israel Putnam. Found that Gen. Putnam lived at some distance from there (Gen. Putnam's home was at Brooklyn, Conn.,) so continued my journey next morning."

The house is in an excellent state of preservation. It was built by Lemuel Grosvenor who married the daughter of Gen. Putnam, and was conducted by him as an inn.

Robert Harris was born in Providence, May 14, 1835, the son of Benjamin Cushing Harris and Eliza Green Harris. His early education was gained in several schools. Although not a graduate of any university he was educated, widely read, a linguist and well informed on many diversifie dsubjects.

His early manhood was spent in learning the business of cotton manufacturing. He had no great liking for it and at the age of 29 abandoned it for a more congenial life. He became a great traveler and from the age of thirty to sixty lived abroad for half of the time. He was a resident of Paris in 1870 at the end of the Franco-Prussian war and saw the victorious German army enter the city.

Thirty years ago he and his sister moved to Pomfret where they have since resided. Neither of them ever married. With all of the prominent people he was on terms of intimate friendship.

His own family is one of the most noted in New England. Although not a man of wealth, especially as it is rated today, he was possessed of a moderate income, and in the most unostentatious way was a charitable and philanthropic. He had no financial interest in any of the large property holdings of the Harris family in Putnam. They were possessed by his brother and are now owned by Stephen, Benjamin and Harriet Harris, the children of his brother.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

THE SHORT SESSION.

With the opening of the short session of congress, the life of which terminated with the fourth of March, not much is expected in the way of accomplishment. It is well understood that this is the same congress which the country has seen in action, which has suffered from bloc control and insurgent activities and which was repudiated in its conduct by the people of the country in the recent election. The verdict of November fourth was sufficient to be taken as a guide as to what the country doesn't want as well as what it wants. That would most certainly have been the view taken by the insurgent forces had the election gone in their favor, and the application of the same reasoning because the country recorded itself against such tactics cannot be lost sight of now.

But there's bound to be a difference between what the country demands and what some regard as their political duty, even though their object is to obstruct. It is for that reason that there is no telling what is to be expected from the short session.

It is always possible for those who are desirous of keeping congress in session most of the time, and therefore are committed to a special session after inauguration, to throw obstacles in the way of progress. They are disposed to block important legislation with a view to getting what they want. What their attitude is going to be remains to be seen.

If congress should apply itself to the business at hand there is no doubt about there being time enough to dispose of the appropriation measures and get through any other legislation is needed. It will be surever, if this congress disposition to do as much ly can. It has already given the impression by past conduct that it will be inclined to balk and make it as difficult as possible to do the necessary work, and block all efforts for the taking up of constructive legislation at this session.

There's a possibility that the 68th congress at the present time is being misjudged. It is to be hoped that it is, but there will have to be a demonstration of its reformation before the change can be believed.

BEATING OUR ALIEN LAW.

When this country adopted its present immigration law it was expected to place a check upon the entry of the great horde of aliens who had been reaching these shores. It was so drawn as to stop them at the ports and borders, under the supposition that all who undertook to come in would do so through the regular channels, and if denied admission would return home.

The number of those who pay no attention to laws and regulations is large, but it must be with a feeling of surprise when it is learned that the estimate of the secretary of labor places the number of immigrants who entered the country illegally during the past year at more than three-quarters of a million.

Smuggling of aliens is no new practice, but when the bars are put up there is greater reason for resorting to such a method of dodging the law. There are those who are brought here and deposited along the coast at favorable points, others get in more as stowaways and as crew members, but the great bulk of the illegal entries would be traced if it is believed to the Canadian and Mexican borders if it were possible to do so.

The purpose of such a large number is to beat the law. They are bent upon getting into this country at all costs, and if the number is as large as stated it must be admitted that they are succeeding to a surprising degree. Under such conditions the question quickly arises as to what shall be done to stop it.

It is possible of course to increase the number of officials along the boundaries, but even that would not be sure against such activity. The situation is one which accentuates anew the necessity for requiring all aliens to register. By that means it would be possible to place a check upon them, to ascertain whether they have gotten through legally or illegally and to bring about the removal of those who have beaten the law. Till some such method of keeping tabs upon those who have a right to be here and those who have not it can be expected that the chance to get in regardless of the law and the filled quotas will be taken.

TONG WARFARE.

Fights between the Chinese organizations which result in the cold blooded murder of Chinamen are little understood by the average citizen. It is known that such organizations exist, that their enmity is bitter and that they think there is no way of gaining their object except by killing someone. One death leads to another and it takes but a short time for the gunmen to have a daily programme of murder before them.

Should there be any such conduct on the part of members of other organizations there would be an immediate demand for the punishment of the guilty persons. With the Chinamen there is nothing of the kind. They are only too eager to conceal the identity of the murder and only too anxious to avenge the murder in their own way.

Tong warfare may be carried on more persistently than realized. There are times when it breaks out stronger than ever, and nothing gives the authorities greater trouble. Even though the killings are confined to Chinamen such a spirit of lawlessness cannot be tolerated in this country. It is in complete defiance of our laws, and if it is impossible to arrest and punish those who are guilty it is possible to remove from the country those who are likely to be in any way involved.

Because of the possibility of putting such a plan into operation there has been a truce called in the tong war. How long it can be maintained is uncertain, but unless such methods of adjusting their affairs are abandoned it is evident that some such drastic method must be adopted. Such a display of contempt for law and order would not be tolerated among our own citizens, or among the subjects of other nations residing in this country, and it is quite certain that we cannot wink at it when practiced by the Chinese.

Just as long as there is encountered a disposition to give the tong members the right to murder unmolested, so long as they confine such killings to Chinese, they can be expected to continue it. When they are made to understand that they must obey the laws the same as others or get out they may change their views.

HOLT'S NAME ON TICKET.

The decision by the attorney general as to whether the failure to file the name of the nominee of the democratic state convention with the secretary of state by the time fixed by law will prevent its being placed on the official ballot is awaited with interest.

It is certainly to be hoped that the oversight, which rests upon the shoulders of the secretary of the democratic convention, will not unjustly penalize the candidate, Hamilton Holt. There is no question concerning the regularity of the convention, or the nomination. It is merely a technicality which has not been complied with, and that should not be allowed to stand in the way of the candidate's name appearing on the ticket.

It is pointed out that the secretary of state is not unmindful of the convention's action, or the name of the nominee, and that he should proceed without waiting for compliance by the democratic officials. Nothing of the kind is to be expected. It is not the duty of the secretary of state to gain the necessary information to guide him in his duties from Tom, Dick and Harry. It has been stipulated in the law what the procedure should be. It is a case where the convention secretary fell down. It is an unprecedented situation, and it is no time now to belittle the importance of certifying the names of candidates.

Because of the injustice that would result from such an oversight it is to be hoped that the law is subject to such an interpretation that the failure to file in time will not prevent the placing of the name on the ticket. Though there would be no question as to where the responsibility rests, Governor-elect Bingham and Connecticut are desirous of an election without any such fluke.

CLEARING THE DOCKETS.

From time to time new efforts have to be made for the speeding up the handling of court cases. There's a disposition to delay in the federal courts quite the same as in others. The result is that dockets are overloaded and cases which should move along and be disposed of create a jam. With each year developing as much or more business for the courts, it requires no specialist to show that new and stricter rules are called for.

It is this situation which Chief Justice Taft, as chairman of the conference of federal judges, proposes to relieve by his suggestion of new rules that will require the disposition of cases within a year, and in case that doesn't result they will be dismissed if no move is made in them after a 30-day period of grace. The leniency which has been displayed hitherto in connection with the postponement of cases is to be checked, more sessions for the hearing of notices and the settlement of issues are to be held and the speeding up of the task of picking juries would be accomplished by having the judges examine the proposed jurors.

From those who depend so much upon delaying court action these suggestions will not get enthusiastic approval. From those who believe that this step has been too long delayed there will be hearty applause. It seems to be getting down to brass tacks in legal procedure and giving justice a chance.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—When the senate put up its back like a cat in an alley, and shunted the La Follette insurgents to a side track, the movement was practically unanimous. The senate leaders had not ventured to predict the result, for there were murmerings of disapproval from Borah and a handful of other leaders, but those men did not attend the caucus, and the resolution went through without a hitch. La Follette is not in town. Borah, who opposed the move, never attends caucuses or a joint session of senate and house, and it was left for Ladd, an insurgent, to be the lone representative of that group, during the discussion which preceded the vote.

The La Follette group finds itself out in the cold. The republicans have not interfered with their present committee standing, but gave warning that those who had openly endorsed the La Follette candidacy would not be in line for strictly party promotion on committees, but would be dealt with as a minority party, the same as congress always deals with the minority, whether it is democratic, republican, labor, socialist or any other not holding the majority banner aloft.

They are not repudiated or scorned as senators, but can no longer sail under false colors. What their party title will be is not yet known, but probably independents or something of that sort.

No committee changes will be made at the present session, but the reorganization of the senate with the coming in of the 69th congress will see many changes in committees, unless all indications fail. The house will follow the same course, according to present plans.

So-called independents, if that is the term to be used, will find themselves under a pro rata reckoning, and as the republicans number well into the fifties and the independents only four it will be readily seen they will be shorn of their prestige and power as ranking members of important committees, and must go to the bottom of the line.

That puts La Follette out of the running for chairman of the interstate commerce committee, would take from him his chairmanship of manufactures, his position as ranking member on interstate commerce, leaving McLean of Connecticut ranking member on territories, finance and interstate commerce, as well as chairman of banking and currency. A pretty strong string of committee appointments for the senior senator from Connecticut, and won by right of senlority as well as by ability. McNary of Oregon stands next to La Follette on manufacturers, and it is notable that although New England is especially interested in the workings of that committee, not a New England member is assigned to it at present. Ladd is chairman of public lands, a position he much coveted. Frazier and Brookhart hold no chairmanships.

The custom has been to put members of "odd" parties at the bottom of committees, and men like Shipstead and Magnus Johnson who enter under farm-labor flags have been content to have it so. "Why should not the sub-minority be likewise treated?" is the question that seems to meet a practically unanimous reply "they should be so treated." Apparently it is the intention of the senate to adopt that course.

Senator La Follette has not been here since the election. It is said he is trying to recuperate after the hard campaign he put up. If he is not on deck when congress convenes it is expected the pugnacious Brookhart will lead the insurgent element in the senate, and La Follette's right hand man, Nelson of Wisconsin, continue to represent that element in the house.

There is a marked contrast between Brookhart and Nelson. Brookhart is big, burly, dark, with heavy eyebrows. He walks with a long swinging step and bends forward as he walks. On the other hand Nelson is short, wiry, light weight and light complexion. Slight of build he walks with a quick short step. Brookhart usually wears a surly air, but Nelson seems to want to be friends with everyone but his political opponents. That's something like his "boss" La Follette, for one of the peculiar characteristics of La Follette is his ability to make personal friends out of his own political circle. A remarkable instance of this was the friendship and companionship that existed between Lodge and La Follette. They were the most bitter political foes, but were often seen together on the floor of the senate, chatting, laughing and joking intimately.

Congressman Tilson and Merritt are taking their defeat for the senatorial nomination like good sports. Of course they wanted the prize, but there isn't a grain of "sorehead" in the makeup of either of the Connecticut congressmen and except "we read it in the papers" no one here would know anything disappointing had happened to them.

In addition to the big showing made by McLean's committee positions in the senate, Connecticut has major committee positions for each of its four republican members in the house. Such committee assignments limit the number of holdings to one committee, on the ground that they are so important that they take all the available time of a representative to devote himself to the work of that one committee. In the senate this stand cannot be taken, as there are not enough senators "to go 'round," so a senator may be on several major committees at the same time.

President and Mrs. Coolidge, together with Secretary of War Weeks and Secretary of the Navy Wilbur have had a strenuous week keeping up with football and aviation features. The coming of the big Zeppelin to be christened, the army and navy game and several other events in sports circles have kept them on the jump. None of the officials named are "fans" but it would break all tradition if they did not put in an appearance at the big games.

Davis' Plans Were Changed

Brilliant in his studies, John W. Davis wanted to be a teacher but his parents objected; successful in law, he desired to make his way to a judgship, but friends interfered with his plans.

In Clarksburg, W. Va., his home town, the boy was considered an intellectual prodigy and at 13 was urged by school officials and others to take the examinations for teacher in the local schools. His parents, however, were anxious that he become a lawyer and dissuaded him from his ambition.

After graduating from Washington & Lee University at 22, he was assistant professor of law a year, then returned home and began the practice of law. Quiet, diffident and studious he was happy when buried in books or briefs. His father was formerly a member of congress and a retired democratic leader of the state, and John was drafted as a member of the West Virginia House of Delegates, where he became a leader at 26.

Then years later the democrats of the First West Virginia District decided against his wishes, to nominate him for congress. His father wired him twice to refuse the nomination, esther politics and stick to the law, but a political leader pocketed the messages until after Davis had accepted.

Elected in a district that had been republican for years, Davis was active in the house and was reelected. When Justice Goff resigned from the Supreme Bench the Judiciary Committee and many members of both parties petitioned that Davis be his successor, but President Wilson appointed him solicitor-general instead.

After making a record of achievement, he was appointed ambassador to England at 45 and his work was effective but the compensation was comparatively so small and the duties of official entertaining so many that when he resigned three years later, his small fortune had been exhausted.

Taking up the practice of law in New York, he again was successful. He had been mentioned as a president candidate at the democratic convention of 1920 but was not considered well enough known.

His popularity grew and at this year's convention he was nominated.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. George Willis Ritchey, who has been awarded the Janssen gold medal by the Paris Academy of Sciences is a veteran American astronomer whose achievements in his chosen field of science were recognized abroad as long ago as 1904, when he was elected as associate member of the Royal Astronomical Society of Great Britain. The Janssen medal, the latest honor which has come to him is issued by the Paris Academy in honor of Pierre Jules Cesar Janssen, a French astronomer, to reward especially noteworthy achievements in astronomical science. In Dr. Ritchey's case the reward is in recognition of his work in designing and construction of the great telescope on Mount Wilson Observatory, near Pasadena, of which he has been in charge for fifteen years. Dr. Ritchey is a native of Ohio and a graduate of the University of Cincinnati. In his early career he was connected with the University of Chicago, for which institution he constructed the Yerkes Observatory.

SUMMER TRIPS

"Oh hello dear," chirped the wife of a girl wearing a new henna-colored felt hat when she ran into her friend who was displaying the latest in fall coats. "It's so lovely to see people again. You know, I've been away—"

"Oh, have you?" broke in the other with a vague smile. "You see, it's been so long since I've been in town that I didn't know you'd been away. That's the trouble with these extended trips, one is so cut off from one's friends—"

"It certainly is!" declared the girl with the henna hat. "Right in the middle of some perfectly splendid good time I'd begin to think of home and wonder what everybody back here was doing and feel so sorry that all of them couldn't be having the utterly wonderful time that I was enjoying! Of course when you just go on a short two-weeks' jaunt you don't feel that way because you're back before even the postman knows you're gone! And you don't have time while away to get acquainted! I certainly made dozens of the most wonderful friends this summer."

"Friends," repeated the girl in the new coat with an indulgent smile. "I suppose I could have done so, too, only I didn't seem able to keep them on the plane of friendship—it certainly—"

"There were three men who insisted on sending back to their three home towns for special makes of bonbons for me," cooed the wisp of a girl with the henna hat, smiling sweetly at the recollection. "Such nonsense! Nothing I could say would stop them!"

"Ned had his special car sent on just to take me out in," the girl with the new coat interjected dreamily. "He certainly did fuss about me! Nothing was quite good enough and he just couldn't bear to see me step into one of the rented cars that everybody else used!"

"Hm!" coughed the girl in the henna hat. "I don't care so much about cars any more—they are too common!

Mr. Tansy and I agreed perfectly on that subject. You know, he had his yacht up there—such a stunning boat with a crew and everything polished and glittering and wicker chairs and iced drinks every five minutes and all that sort of thing! Mr. Tansy said it was such a joy to find a girl who was as devoted to yachting as he was and we spent day after day—"

"Did you?" commented the other girl with exasperating absent-mindedness. "I think most men who can afford to own yachts are always fat and old and impossible and no girl unless she hasn't the slightest chance in the world will waste time on 'em. Ned was the handsomest man of the lot and—"

"Mr. Tansy inherited his yacht with his money and I don't think he can be 30," mused the girl with the henna hat brightly. "Of course he was not the only one who did nice things for me! Jim and Hartley—"

"It was the queerest thing," confided the girl in the new coat, quite as though she had not heard a word. "But I had five separate and distinct proposals all in the same spot! No matter where we were those men invariably headed for that grape arbor before they asked me.

"I've felt so bad about Jim since I came back," the little thing in henna sighed. "He was such a dear—one of these strong, handsome intense men and I'll never forget his face when I told him there was no hope for him. I worry—"

"Ned is coming to visit at holiday time and what I shall do I don't know!" sighed prettily the girl in the new coat. "If Lucien or Edgar arrive at the same time it will be just awful — I sometimes wish I'd stayed home instead of going to—"

"Oh, I've made so many trips that things like that never bother me," said the other kindly. "Good-by, dear —I must hurry on!"

"Now I wonder," she concluded to herself as the other girl floated away, "whether she caught a glimpse of me at Rutabaga Farm the ten days I was up there! Her boarding house was just down the road a way—I saw her on the porch! The little bluffer!"

Vaccination

Mr. Editor: At a recent meeting of the Bristol board of health a very stormy session was held as a result of a vigorous protest against a vaccination order, during which a prominent minister testified to the loss of his little girl through vaccination. It is said Dr. Millard Knowlton of the state board of health stated that death was not caused by vaccination but by infection. Just so, but not in the sense the doctor would have it understood. It is passing strange that the sponsors of that pernicious practice do dislike to admit of its being followed by serious consequence. It is absolutely certain there was infection for there had been inoculation, and had no poison been injected into the blood stream no infection would have taken place. Infection is caused by the introduction of a deleterious agent, and this was done when the diseased animal matter was injected into the body. No vaccination, no infection, therefore the logical conclusion is that death was due to vaccination. Trying to make a distinction without a difference, the doctor simply "strained at a gnat to swallow a camel" The meeting, on the whole, is indicative of the fact that the people are awakening from their apathetic indulgence and submission to this relic of barbarism. The periodical vaccinations that have been going on would lead one to think we should today be a race of immunes insofar as smallpox is concerned but, evidently immunity of this character has no respect for the law of transmission, and the periods of vaccination continue with their consequent outbreaks of more smallpox among the vaccinated. The answer is simple. Vaccination not only does not prevent the disease as claimed, but devitalizes the system, lessens the natural powers of resistance, and it has been established beyond preponderance of proof, to be the direct cause of those subsequent ills akin to smallpox.

Gallons of printers' ink have been used telling us to "swat the fly" and while we have no use for the pest, it is our firm belief, supported by indisputable proof from the world's best authorities, that it would be of more avail and an eternal blessing to mankind to "swat" (erase) the compulsory vaccination law from our statutes. In other words, disease is not caused that way, but it helps to detract the public's attention from the real factor responsible for our physical ailments. To return to the statement of the member of the state board of health, let us quote from eminent and experienced doctors as to the evil consequences of vaccination.

Writing in "Physical Culture" Dr. Simon Louis Katzoff cites a case that should enlist the deepest reflection on the part of every parent. He says: "She was one of the most beautiful children I have ever seen. I had known her for some time, although she was not a patient of mine. In fact, she wasn't anybody's patient. She was never ill. She was a splendidly healthy girl, glowing with vitality, bubbling over with childish enthusiasm. Although she was budding into young girlhood, you could visualize the sort of a woman she was going to grow to be, strong, keen-minded, intelligent, a woman of quality, fit to mother a prince or a president. I used to call her the wonder girl. Then came the day when they bared her soft well rounded little arm and jabbed it with the virus point. She didn't want it done. There was no need of it. And her parents fought against it. They knew that she had the health and strength that spells immunity to smallpox, but the authorities, the tools of the medical autocrats, insisted. So they injected into that blooming, perfect body the wicked vaccine virus, poison pus that comes from the sore of a diseased cow.

"And it did its deadly work. The poison aped through her system and the roses faded from her cheeks. She became a pallid, sickly thing, grew rapidly weaker and weaker—died. The authorities said she died of pneumonia, but I know better, and so did a number of physicians who saw and discussed the case. Her death was caused by the poison that was criminally injected into her. And as I looked upon the shrouded wax-like figure in the little basswood box surrounded by blossoms that would have matched her budding beauty, I felt as though I was looking upon the helpless victim of a murder, and I solemnly and silently vowed to work, as long as I lived to wipe out the criminal practice of vaccination. Nor in this the only instance I know where vaccination has brought fatal results. I know plenty of them. I used to inject the dirty stuff myself until I became convinced that it was a wicked vicious thing to do and I stopped it. I would no more put vaccine virus into a man than I would put a bullet into him."

The fate of this lovely child might be your little boy or girl's if permitted to be vaccinated, or, it may become crippled as is said to often be the case, or, the evil effects may appear later in the form of one of the many diseases, including tuberculosis, that are caused by the vaccine virus. Dr. E. M. Ripley writes: "Vaccination is the most outrageous insult that can be offered to any pure-minded man or woman. It is the boldest and most impious attempt to mar the work of God that has been attempted for ages. They have no more right to poison your little ones by vaccination than they have to cut your throat." According to Dr. Thomas Mulligan: "Compulsory medication of any description is abhorrent to men of sound mind and independent thought." Dr. S. H. Holmes says: "Vaccination is a wonderfully good thing—to keep doctors treating the after effects." Think this over deeply and the reason for so many ailments may appear clearer. Also note that Charles M. Higgins of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "To inflict a bodily wound on any person forcibly or against the will of that person, and to inoculate into that wound an infectious disease which may infest the whole body and destroy health or life, as occurs in the act of vaccination, is an illegal and criminal act in fact and law, under the simplest fundamental principles of common law, statute law, and constitutional guarantees; and any law allowing or authorising such an act is, of course, absolutely invalid." Reflect on the statement of Dr. Elmer Lee, editor of "Health Culture," New York city: "Vaccination has increased the agony and illness of this world. Good health alone give immunity." Opinion of Daniel Webster: "Compulsory vaccination is an outrage and a gross interference with the liberty of the people in a land of freedom." Dr. Alfred Russell Wallace, eminent English authority writing on vaccination, denounces the vile practice as follows: "Whether we examine the long continued records of London mortality or those of modern registration from England, Scotland and Ireland; whether we consider the 'control experiments' or crucial test afforded by unvaccinated Leicester, or the still more rigid test in the other direction, of the absolutely re-vaccinated army and navy, the conclusion is in every case the same; that vaccination is a gigantic delusion; that it has never saved a single life; but that it has been the cause of so much disease, so many deaths, such a vast amount of utterly needless and altogether undeserved suffering, that it will be classed by the coming generation among the greatest errors of an ignorant and prejudicial age, and its penal enforcement the foulest blot on legislation during our century." It is of interest to note here that England repealed the compulsory vaccination law 17 years ago.

The fundamental principles of our government is democracy. The great world cataclysm we have passed through was to extend that democracy in its broader sense. We do not refer to party. A government of democracy that wherever it comes contact with the citizen, or wherever the citizen touches government, must stand equal before the law. Government is made for the people and not people for the government. The great underlying principle is the freedom of conscience accorded to every individual. These are the basic principles upon which has been reared the greatest nation known in history. This being so the very spirit of that democracy cries aloud to every father, to every mother, to work zealously for that inherent right which is theirs, for the love they have for their children, to the end that the "blot" which now rests on our legislation be removed, compulsory vaccination be repealed and save the innocent, unpoison-driven healthy bodies from having poison pus injected into the system.

TOO OLD FOR TOYS

Mrs. Nestor Noel

People are very particular to give their children enough to eat. I have seen breakfasts consist of fruit, porridge, eggs and bacon, toast, marmalade and coffee. This would have been enough for dinner, but it was simply a breakfast. Imagine what the dinner in such a home would be! Certainly most children nowadays—provided their parents are able to supply it—have more than enough to eat.

Yet while their little bodies are stuffed, their hearts are often starved for want of toys.

"I suppose you are busy buying toys," I remarked to a mother one day, a few weeks before Christmas.

"O no," she said. "My children are too old for toys!" The eldest one was not yet nine!

"What do you give them?" I asked. She told me that she filled their stockings with peanuts, oranges and candy! More to eat! From time to time I had taken these children toys, and I knew by their delight in my gifts that they would have appreciated toys more than anything else.

Some mothers are quick to say: "My children are too old for toys." I often think they say this because they want the children to help more with the work. After all, it is the children themselves who should decide whether or not they are "too old for toys." Childhood can come but once. Why force your children to grow up too soon?

I have noticed that, when there were many in a family, the eldest was always supposed to be "too old for toys." Of course the child was not necessarily so. I knew a girl once who had been treated as if she were a grown-up since the age of four! It came from being the eldest of the family. At the age of seventeen, she found herself free, with money to spend. One of the first things she bought herself was a doll. She did not play with it for her the years in which one plays with dolls were gone forever. She sewed for it, however, making it exquisite clothes, and she kept it in her trunk, looking at it frequently. Perhaps she realized how many games she might have played with a doll, and all she had missed in childhood because her mother had persisted in saying "She is too old for toys."

A way to prove that your child likes toys is to provide an opportunity of choice for the next present. Nine children out of ten will choose toys!

At Christmas time and birthdays I so often have seen disappointment in children's faces that I feel like writing in huge capitals:—

"MOTHERS! ATTENTION! PLEASE GIVE YOUR CHILDREN TOYS!"

Attend to trifles today. The more important matters will come in due time.

Danny Fox Tries to Enter School

Professor Crow was a very wise bird,
Yes, yes, two times I'd say,
He could easily say the alphabet
Backwards from Z to A.

As he sat in his feather suit at his desk
Right in front of all the school
He'd often quietly point with his wing,
At a little three-legged dunce stool.

But he did nothing like that as I ended last night's story. No indeedy. He had forgotten everything he ever knew and more than he could ever hope to learn, although he was a great professor. Danny Fox was trying to turn the front doorknob, you remember. Dearest me and dearest you, I hope he does before Ducky Waddles fastens the door. Isn't it too bad that some swift footed little animal didn't sit nearest the door instead of that poky wabbly footed little duck? What would happen if that dreadful fox once slipped into the school room I never could relate. Your Uncle Dave has too tender a heart towards all little animals. But, thank goodness. The oak cracked before Danny Fox had turned the knob half way 'round.

He rapped softly.

"Botheration!" snarled that unwelcome caller, finding that the door refused to open. Then, tapping softly, he waited for maybe a minute or three and peeped through the keyhole to see what he could see.

So did Ducky Waddles, but his yellow bill turned white as milk when he saw the big angry eye of Danny Fox on the other side of the keyhole. I guess he wished that the door had been locked with a key instead of a bolt.

"Now keep quiet," whispered Professor Jim Crow. "Fasten the inside blinds on the two side windows." When this was done, there wasn't a sound in the little school room except the ritter natter of twenty little frightened hearts.

"Guess we'll all be kept in after school," by and by tittered Sammy Skunk, — was afraid of no one in the Shady Forest. Nobody dared bother him for fear of being sprayed all over with ill-smelling stuff that smarted and blinded one's eyes.

Just then Bobbie Redvest had a bright idea. Yes sir, he did. And it took him but a moment to turn it into a deed. Up to the little window in the roof he flew, and pushing up the sash, away he flew as fast as his wings could take him to the Police Station in Rabbitville. So quietly did he open the window that, even crafty old Danny Fox never heard him as he sat on the front steps pondering how to get into the little Red School House.

Pretty soon, that hungry old fox tiptoed around the building, looking up at the window, wondering if he broke the glass panes whether he would be able to force open the inside shutters. "Well, I might as well try," he muttered to himself, and dragging over a log, he set it up endwise under the window. Finally, after many a slip and a slide, he stood up on top and peeked into the school room. For a minute or two he could see nothing, for the shutter was tightly closed, and bolted and the room quite dark. By and by after a while, and a snarly smile, he could make out the dim forms of the furry and feathered coated little scholars huddled close to brave old Professor Crow. And in the next story I'll tell you what happened after that.

Stories That Recall Others

Long Headed Youngster

Harry has a son who arrived at the mature age of six a few days ago.

"I went home that evening without taking the youngster a birthday present, so when the subject was mentioned, I handed him a five dollar bill," said Harry in telling about it.

"Buy your own present," he told him.

The youngster studied for a moment and then remarked: "Thank you, daddy—but don't you think you ought to make it six dollars? I'm six years old."

"And," concluded daddy, "that's that!"

No "Nursie" for Billy

Two families live side by side, in one of which there are several maids, including a nurse for the children; in the other there is only one maid, who is not required to have any care of the children.

A few days ago, little Henry, age four of the first family, came over to the yard of the other family, where Billy, age four and a half, was playing, and the following conversation took place:

"Billy, came on over and play with me," said Henry.

"I can't" said Billy.

"Why, won't your nursie let you?" said Henry.

Billy replied, "I don't have a nursie, I have a mother."

An honor point system has been installed at Pennsylvania State College which practically raises the scholastic graduation requirement standards 10 per cent. Each student during his four years must gain grades exceeding the passing mark to compare favorably with the total number of credits in his course. Low marks must be offset by higher grades in other subjects, and the average student must give more attention to studies in order to win a degree.

Glad He Picked This Good Stomach Remedy

Puts Stomach in Fine Condition—Ends Dizzy Spells, Catarrh and Makes You Sleep Well.

Injudicious eating causes acute indigestion, gas, acidity, heaviness and sour stomach—sometimes the distended stomach causes that dreadful feeling of near suffocation.

Isn't it worth something to know of a remedy that will stop this distress in a few minutes—quicker than anything else you can think of.

This is no common stomach remedy for it took years of time to combine Pepsin with Menthol and the other effective agents that make Dare's Mentha Pepsin so good that the worst cases of indigestion and gastritis and other chronic stomach ailments are speedily overcome and the most badly deranged stomachs are made clean, strong and healthy.

Mr. Calvin Dilke of Alloway, N. J., a man of few words, knows this for he writes: "I entirely rid myself of an old catarrhal condition of the stomach with Dare's Mentha Pepsin."

WOULD HAVE GOVT CONTROL ALL CAMPAIGN EXPENSES

Washington, Dec. 1.—Conduct of future national political campaigns completely at the expense and under the control of the federal government was proposed today by Senator Caraway of Arkansas, a democratic leader of the special senate committee which investigated the campaign expenditures during the recent campaign.

Senator Caraway said he would have his proposal for consideration by the senate as part of the committee report. Chairman Borah announced today he would call the committee together in a few days to draw up its report, and the Arkansas member plans to proceed with his suggestion at that time.

Analyzing his proposal, Senator Caraway declared he believed it the duty of the national government not to only restrict campaign expenditures but likewise to assume full charge of the campaign, allowing appropriations for expenditures in educating voters on the issues. He would restrict the amount to less then $1,000,000 for each party, he said, but he had not yet worked out the details of the plan.

WOMAN KILLED IN CRASH OF PENNSYLVANIA TRAINS

Chicago, Dec. 1.—One woman was killed, her 3-year-old son probably fatally injured and a score of other passengers hurt today when two Pennsylvania railroad trains, both running behind schedule, crashed near the Englewood union station on the south side.

The woman was identified by railroad officials as Mrs. Glerina Zappeplina, an emigrant recently arrived from Genoa, Italy, who was on her way to Sparks, Nevada. She was riding in a wooden coach carrying 40 immigrants which was attached to the rear end of a train of Pullman cars from Pittsburgh, Pa.

LOCATES MYSTERY MAN IN FUR-COLLAR COAT

The mysterious man in a fur-collar overcoat who was said to have been seen in the neighborhood of the Reynolds place shortly before Peter A. Toolin Jr., of New London was killed in a manner yet unexplained, has been located by County Detective William Lewis of this city, but there is only a negative value in the information that this man can give.

He is the son of a well known Norwich merchant and he told the county detective that he had Toolin in his car and was about to start with him for New London, but just then Toolin decided to get out and the Norwich man saw him go back into the Reynolds place. That was the last he saw of Toolin. The Norwich man drove home, arriving here about 3 o'clock on the morning of Thanksgiving day and spoke to one of the Norwich policemen upon his arrival here. Detective Lewis has substantiated the account that the Norwich man has given of his movements so that it is shown he had no connection with the fatal injuries to Toolin.

The theory that the county detective now holds as to the manner in which Toolin met his death is that he was struck by a fast moving automobile, possibly when Toolin lurched into the road in his intoxicated condition and staggered headfirst into the car. Toolin was struck a terrific blow on the top of the head, as indicated by the way blood and teeth were scattered around for a distance of 25 feet from where the body lay when found. Such a blow might have tossed him up in the air and caused him to fall at some distance from where he was hit. It would seem that any machine that hit him must have been well spattered with blood. There is a possibility too that he might have been lying in the road in such a position that his head received the full force of the blow that threw him to one side without running over him.

ASSOCIATION TELLS LEGISLATORS WHAT HIGHWAY PLANS ARE

VALENTINE L. MURPHY

A highway programme for New London, Windham and Tolland counties, which can be presented and advocated before the coming legislature was explained to senators and representatives-elect from the three counties who were guests here Monday evening at the Wauregan house at a supper at 6 o'clock given by the Eastern Connecticut Civic association. About fifty attended the meeting, which discussed the subject very thoroughly and adjourned about 9.30.

Valentine Murphy of Willimantic, president of the association, opened the subject with a brief statement that the common aim of all was the good of eastern Connecticut, and he introduced James H. Lathrop of Canterbury, chairman of the highway committee, to explain what had been decided upon.

Mr. Lathrop told his hearers that the committee had determined to concentrate upon one main line in each county, rather than ask for too many things at once. For New London county this was to ask for the taking over into the trunk line system of a piece of road from Chesterfield to Flanders and the Boston Post road. This would shorten the route for and take care of a large amount of summer travel from the Connecticut valley to the beaches at the shore, saving about nine miles in distance. In Windham county the road decided upon is a "missing link" on the Hartford-Providence highway, four and one-half miles in the towns of Canterbury and Scotland. In Tolland county the desired road is from Hebron to Marlboro Four Corners. There is also a short stretch of road, partly in New London and partly in Middlesex county, running from North Lyme to North Plain.

All of the above is new construction work, Mr. Lathrop said, and in addition to this it is planned to ask for the resurfacing of the Norwich and Willimantic road and the Norwich and Colchester road. The latter work has already been started. Through the winter the highway committee will have under consideration the question of grade crossings, dangerous curves and narrow bridges.

Grade Crossings.

Herbert R. Branche of this city, a member of the United Commercial Travelers and of the Civic Association, was called upon by President Murphy and spoke interestingly upon the Mohegan Trail, the main artery through eastern Connecticut from New London to Webster lake. It is marred, however, by more narrow bridges, more dangerous curves and more grade crossings than any other similar piece of road in the state. There are three grade crossings in Plainfield, one in Jewett City, one at Sterling and three narrow bridges in Plainfield. If we can get one grade crossing abolished in the next two years, said Mr. Branche, we shall do more for the conservation of human lives than building all the roads we hope for. Two hundred traveling men in the membership of Norwich U. C. T., have started this movement for the protection of human life, Mr. Branche said, and he asked the legislators to give them attention when they appear for a hearing.

Parks and Historic Sites.

Arthur L. Peale of this city was called upon and responded by speaking of the state park system and the marking of historic sites which he thought highly commendable. He referred to the Mohegan reservation to which the state park commission has given approval as a part of the state park system and asked that the legislators give it favorable consideration when the opportunity arose. Mr. Peale also spoke in approval of the Mohegan Trail which brings thousands of tourists through this territory. Both good roads and good parks attract people. Why should not Eastern Connecticut foster both these plans?

J. T. Cruttenden of Crescent Beach was heard in endorsement of the Chesterfield to Flanders road which he said would provide easy access to all the beaches from Sound View eastward to the state camp ground at Niantic and to state institutions there. He also referred to the Mohegan Trail, which he said could have a similar attracting power to the Mohawk Trail, and should be given publicity as the most inexpensive piece of advertising the merchants of this section could adopt. It is worth while catering to the vacation and touring travel that could be attracted to the Mohegan Trail.

Senator H. J. Gibbs of Yantic spoke briefly referring to one narrow bridge in that part of the town and speaking of the favorable attitude that had been shown by the highway department towards routes that would divert traffic through cities, in which connection he spoke of Otrobando avenue at Norwich Town and he advised that good delegations be sent to the hearings in the legislature.

Jewett City Crossing.

W. W. Bromley of Jewett City was asked to speak of grade crossing there, which he said was almost daily the scene of narrow escapes. The gates are operated at least 31 times daily, which means about 310 persons inconvenienced every day for at least three minutes each time, a total of 3½ hours and a loss in money value of their time of $2,790 per year. He said the tracks could be bridged with no great difficulty and at no great expense in land damage values.

Mr. Bromley also pointed out two other desirable highway improvements, a flash signal at Voluntown at the Pendleton Hill road and a flash signal at Woodward school house corners. He advocated finishing four miles on the Pendleton Hill road and said that he knew people appreciated the Mohegan Trail. As to the Sterling grade crossing that is a horror to any one who knows it.

Mr. Lathrop, chairman of the committee, called attention to 2½ miles of road from the foot of Franklin hill to Sprague for which he said he hoped the town of Franklin would apply for state aid. In response Benjamin F. Davis of Franklin said that the town had done about all it feels it can do in road work, but it has about $8,000 remaining to its credit on state aid and it will be glad to build this road at any time it feels able.

Spoke For Niantic.

Fred A. Beckwith of Niantic, senator-elect, spoke in favor of getting the Chesterfield to Flanders cut-off built and went on to speak of the hard situation the town finds itself in through so much of its acreage being taken up by state property which is tax free. All of this is some of the finest land in the town. There is the state camp, 1,300 acres in the Sheffield Scientific school tract, 800 acres in the state farm for women and also the Seaside sanatorium. Out of the 22,000 acres in the town about 2,000 acres have been taken out as nontaxable and he asked the legislators to listen when a plea is made to see if something cannot be done to help the town in this situation.

D. A. Lyman of Columbia spoke for the Jonathan Trumbull Memorial highway running through that town, the old original stage coach route from Hartford to Norwich, and on to Westerly. It is a beautiful country but a wretched road in spots, although it is about 20 miles of country road with a house to every 50 rods.

Northeast Corner.

Allen B. Lincoln of Ashford spoke for the northeast corner of the state which he said was a section without a through trunk line, but which offers the shortest route from Hartford to Massachusetts points. There is an uncompleted road from Storrs to Warrenville and Phoenixville that has been on the trunk line system for years and has been surveyed but they can't find out what the results are though they understand the grades are too great for federal approval. There is an alternate highway, 17 miles from West Willington to North Woodstock, which has been declared to be the best grade, east and west, between the St. Lawrence and Long Island sound. One or the other of these trunk lines is demanded for the best interests of the state of Connecticut. There is also a third road, a minor one but of importance, from Mansfield Center through Warrenville to Westford. All but three and a third miles is state aid and in excellent condition, but they want that three and one-third miles completed.

Senator Clarence H. Child of Woodstock expressed his preference to see the road through North Woodstock toward Southbridge built, and Edward P. Lyman of Columbia, who was on the committee on roads, rivers and bridges in the last legislature, gave an instructive talk upon methods to be pursued in securing road construction. He gave assurance that the Columbia-Hebron road was to be built.

Dr. W. L. Higgins of South Coventry, also a member of the committee on roads, rivers and bridges, advised that highway work had to be looked at from the viewpoint of the general public good, but said he considered it was now a favorable time to ask for large appropriations, with the state out of debt. He proposed the use of gravel as the solution for treatment for country roads in general and suggested that from half a million to a million dollars might be appropriated for experimental work in this line.

Absentee Voter Law.

H. R. Branche brought up the question of an absentee voter law, which he said the commercial travelers intended to sponsor, and asked the legislators to give it their favorable consideration when it came up. Thirty-one states now have such a law, he said.

On motion of Mr. Lincoln, the representatives passed a vote of thanks to the Eastern Connecticut Civic association for the pleasure of attending this meeting, and Mr. Branche expressed the pleasure that the association had in having them present.

Those attending were H. B. Buell, Charles D. Tatem, A. S. Walker, Eastford; L. M. Reed, Union; Allen B. Lincoln, Ashford; Valentine L. Murphy, C. B. Pomeroy, James P. Bath, Willimantic; Edwin A. Buck, Westford; Benjamin P. Davis, Franklin; Bert J. Johnson, Clarence H. Child, Woodstock; Charles E. Malona, Salem; E. P. Lyman, D. A. Lyman, Columbia; Harry B. Lewis, William F. Morgan, H. G. Lewis, North Stonington; Appleton Main, O. A. Browning, Preston; Dr. W. L. Higgins, Walter S. Haven, Coventry; F. O. Brown, Benjamin Neleber, A. T. Van Cleve, Colchester; W.W. Hanney, Fred A. Beckwith, East Lyme; W. W. Bromley, Jewett City; L. G. Drescher, Sprague; J. H. Lathrop, Canterbury; C. G. Engler, Charles W. Cassidy, Leo R. Robbins, C. W. Pearson, H. R. Branche, J. J. GEN. PERSHING DOES NOT DESIRE ACTIVE SERVICE

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 1—General John J. Pershing, retired commander in chief of the United States army, does not desire to be restored to active service, according to a letter written to national Commander James A. Drain, of the American legion, which was made public here tonight. The legion had announced its intention to seek the passage of legislation necessary to obtain General Pershing's restoration to the active list of the U. S. army. He was retired on September 12 when he reached the legal age for retirement.

NORWICH MEETING FAVORS OLD AGE PENSIONS

Decision to form a Norwich organization on old age pensions was reached at a meeting held Monday evening under the auspices of Norwich Aerie of Eagles at the Eagles rooms on Shetucket street which was addressed by Wendell Phillips Thore of Squantum, Mass., chairman of the old age pension commission of Massachusetts. The meeting was presided over by William R. Hastedt, chairman of the old age pension committee of the aerie, and was attended by representatives of ten different organizations, including the Knights of Columbus, Sons of Hermann, Foresters, Odd Fellows, Moose, Central Labor Union and others.

Mr. Thore spoke of the great aim of the Eagles, with a membership of 600,000 to secure the enactment in every state of a law for non-contributory old age pensions. Such a measure, he declared, is of the same high humanitarian type as widows pensions and workmen's compensation and is as much needed as they were to bring sunshine and happiness into the lives of our people. He asked if it were more American to let good citizens, women and men, after years of honest toil suffer the hell of old age, poverty, the degrading poorhouse, than it was to treat them kindly in their latter years protected till the end with old age pensions, non-contributory? He said no answer but that such pensions' protection was more American, more Godly, could be made by any sane person.

Continuing the speaker said that no nation had ever repealed its old age pensions law and that they were successful everywhere, and especially so in the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand, whose laws the Eagles followed closely when drafting their general law. This law was made to protect citizens in need in in old age whether it be the woman in the home or those in industry or on farms. Farmers need such pensions as much as do the industrial workers. All reach the day when their earning capacity lessens—fails, then such pensions coming under full rights of citizenship will bring a happiness that will exalt us as a nation—will make our preaching as Christians have a wonderful touch.

Laws for old age pensions, non-contributory, vary as to the age at which such pensions should be paid but in general the age of sixty-five for women and men, worthy, needy aged citizens, who had been residents of a state for 15 or more years, and were of good character, with little or no means, would be the general scheme or plan of the law, with such amounts of money as the legislature of a state would grant. These pensions would come under full rights of citizenship, no taint of pauperism, but be rewards of merit to such good citizens for their services to the state in home, industry and farms, building all our prosperity.

The non-contributory old age pensions plan has been the one put forth by the Eagles because a contributory one for those in unsteady employment would be unworkable as the lapses which would come under unemployment would make such a scheme unworkable, and would put off the pensions to those whom such a system of law should protect. Similar non-contributory systems are in use for our schools, fire departments and other things, paid for in the general taxation. This will not be new money but only money now used to degrade our people in poorhouse and under pauper dole methods, using this old money for the nobler old age pensions. To prove that non-contributory old age pensions were successful Mr. Thore quoted from letters to him from A. Bonar Law, late premier of England; Hon. Philip Snowden, former chancellor of the British Exchequer; and Hon. Sidney Webb, well known British economist.

Mr. Thore read numbers of other letters and an endorsement of such pensions by the American Federation of Labor. Labor is on record for it everywhere, he said.

Others to speak were Louis W. Fodt, New Britain, state president; Wm. F. Kelly, Naugatuck, grand worthy conductor, and Attorney William Kivney, Waterbury, state chairman.

LECTURED ON ART OF LISTENING TO MUSIC

Before a large audience of the Music Association, Henry Gideon of Boston gave a most instructive and entertaining talk, Monday evening at Slater hall annex, on "The Art of Listening to Music." Mr. Gideon spoke of the home influence upon musical appreciation, later broadening into that of the church recital and opera, giving most illustrative detail in anecdote and piano selections. The speaker was sincere and outspoken in his beliefs and prejudices, his conception of chamber music with its demand upon both intellect and emotional feeling for a proper appreciation, was impressive.

Henry Gideon, Harvard M. A. is too well known to need further critical mention. His extensive knowledge of the subject was self-evident. Mr. Gideon is at present organist and choirdirector at the Temple Israel, Boston.

Kind to Suffering Cat.

Sunday evening about 8.30, when William Wozbrick was coming down Cliff street, at a location near the Salvation Army quarters, he heard the cries of something apparently in distress. Upon investigation he discovered a cat in the crotch of a tree, so wedged in that it was necessary to spread the limbs of the tree to extricate it.

After Mr. Wozbrick had succeeded in releasing the cat, which appeared to be seriously injured, he notified Frederick H. Wyant, district agent of the Connecticut Humane society, who responded to the call and put the cat out of its misery.

It is supposed the animal was forced to run up the tree to escape some dog.

RECOVERED STOLEN WATCH TAKEN TO NEW BRITAIN

The disappearance of a gold watch from the home of a West Thames street resident was traced Monday night through the hands of two small boys to an uncle of one of the boys who carried it to New Britain, and before the inquiry came to an end the stolen watch had been recovered. The watch disappeared about a week ago following the visit of a small boy and his older brother to the West Thames street house, the older brother having gone to the house on business. Suspicion pointed to the small boy and the owner of the missing watch called in the assistance of the local police Monday night in an effort to recover it.

Capt. D. J. Twomey immediately got busy on the matter and the small boy in question was taken to police headquarters, where he finally admitted that he had taken the watch and had sold it to another boy. The second boy was called to police headquarters, and the boy's father showed up with him. At first he was non-committal, and his father was likewise. The father professed to know nothing about the matter. It finally developed that the second boy had sold the watch to his uncle. The uncle took it to New Britain with him. The New Britain police were communicated with by telephone and they also started a search for the missing watch. The New Britain police learned that the uncle, Felix Oldza, had been there at his home, but that he had returned to Norwich and was staying at his brother's home on Carpenter street.

A warrant was issued for Oldza's arrest on the charge of receiving stolen goods and the local police found him at the Carpenter street house. At police headquarters he had little or nothing to say at first, but finally admitted that he had bought the watch from his small nephew, had taken it to New Britain and left it in a desk at his place there. The New Britain police found the watch where Oldza said he left it and it is now in the care of the police in that city, who are holding it for the owner. Oldza was locked up and will be presented in the city court today (Tuesday) to answer to the charge against his name.

LATEST REPORTS OF CONDITIONS IN EGYPT

London, Dec. 1.—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Cairo says that owing to the resignations of certain of the Egyptian ministers, the Egyptian government has not issued its expected communique dealing with the outcome of the negotiations with the British authorities, although it is taken for granted that the British demands have been accepted.

A Reuter despatch from Cairo says the police authorities there are taking extra precautions to guard Premier Ziwar. One officer is attached to his person while 20 special police have been allocated to watch the routes he usually uses in going to and from his office.

The despatch adds that the native newspaper, Balagh, continues to criticize the government saying that instead of protesting against the British firing on the Sudanese troops it is sending war material to the acting sirdar.

COMMUNISTIC UPRISING OF PROPORTIONS IN RIGA

Washington, Dec. 1.—The communistic uprising at Reval, Esthenia, today resulted in the death of the minister of communications, seizure of the post office and railway station, and street fighting, according to advices received here.

Harold B. Quarter, American consul at Reval, reported, however, that order was restored and martial law proclaimed so that at the time the dispatch was sent, the Esthonian government had announced the situation was well under control.

The consul said the communists attacked the president's house and quarters of the general staff. General Laidner was ordered to enforce martial law and the communists were routed. This was followed by 40 arrests.

ARMY-NAVY CLUB WILL OPEN SEASON TONIGHT AGAINST SO. MANCHESTER

Now that the football season has drawn to a close the sporting interest turns to Basketball as the most prominent of the winter sports. The chalked court season will be initiated in the eastern part of the state this evening at Parish Hall, Taftville, when the Army-Navy Team clashes with the Company G team of South Manchester.

The majority of the local players need no introduction to fans in this vicinity as they have been seen in action many times and are recognized as one of the fastest basketball aggregations in the state, ranking with the best of the chalk court teams.

The visitors also present a strong lineup with Madden, captain of Manchester high team last year, Benson, formerly of the Recs, Dutch Leonard of the Hartford Kaceys, Angelli and Bissell of the Recs and Pentland and Hunt of the Atlas Red Men. The majority of these boys have appeared on the local floor before and have always put up a strong game.

The preliminary match will be between the Army-Navy Seconds and the Baltic Bantams. The game is called for 8:15. The lineups:

Army-Navy		Manchester
Delair	R. F.	Madden
Harris	L. F.	Benson

MIDWEST IS SUPREME IN AMERICAN FOOTBALL

New York, Dec. 1.—(By the A. P.)—The mantle of intersectional gridiron supremacy has passed from the east to the middle west for the first time in football history.

Three outstanding intersectional battles remain to be played on the Pacific Coast but these cannot affect the final standings, which, based upon analysis of the regular playing schedule just completed, show that the Atlantic seaboard no longer can boast of a pre-eminent place on the gridiron map.

These figures show that the middle west, with Notre Dame's famous unbeaten and untied eleven setting the pace, captured 12 out of 21 intersectional games, for a percentage of .571, as compared with the east's record of 15 victories and 12 defeats for a mark of .556.

The comparative performances of east and middle west, however, were not as even as the figures might indicate. The middle west not only subdued eastern rivals in nine out of 15 games with opponents below the Mason and Dixon line, where the section's record showed a total of only six victories against eleven setbacks in intersectional combat.

Notre Dame, besides gaining recognition generally as the most formidable array in the country, also showed the best intersectional record, registering four victories altogether. Three were compiled in the east, where Army and Princeton were subdued on successive Saturdays and Carnegie Tech downed last Saturday, while the fourth was gained at the expense of a southern rival Georgia Tech.

The middle west also scored noteworthy intersectional triumphs when Chicago, the new western conference champion, defeated Brown, while Nebraska took the measure of Colgate. Marquette added to the record with victories over Navy and Vermont, although the Milwaukee eleven bowed to Boston College in a third contest.

The south's outstanding intersectional victories were hung up by Vanderbilt, which beat Minnesota after the latter had conquered Illinois, and by Georgia Tech, which turned back Penn state.

Army recorded three intersectional victories to offset its defeat at the hands of Notre Dame, while Yale's powerful combination defeated three southern teams.

Three big intersectionals are slated for the Pacific coast within the next few weeks, Syracuse opposes Southern California next Saturday in the first of these, while on New Year's day, four unbeaten teams clash when Notre Dame plays Stanford at Pasadena and Pennsylvania tackles California. The far west lost the only game in which it figured so far when the Oregon Aggies bowed to Nebraska.

Three international contests added flavor to the season, with American teams victorious in all of them. Dartmouth and Detroit University conquered Canadian opponents, McGill and Toledo, respectively, while Southern University defeated the eleven of Havana University of Cuba.

The intersectional standing follows:

	W	L	Pc.
Midwest	12	9	.571
East	15	12	.556
South	6	11	.353
Far West	0	1	.000

BULKELEY LOSES STAR BASKETBALL PLAYER

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London Dec. 1—Selecting a team from nearly thirty candidates, who reported for the first real basketball practice this afternoon to Coach William R. Canty, will be the first important step towards ushering in basketball at Bulkeley High school this winter. A difficult task has presented itself to the successful Orange and Black football mentor, whose guiding hand has brought about the great football year a Bulkeley team has ever enjoyed.

The problem which presents itself is a hard one to solve. The recent marks issued with the report cards a week ago will rob Bulkeley of her best individual performer, Huck Taylor. The remainder of the candidates who reported this afternoon to Coach Canty, showed no great promise to do great things this coming winter. Displaying but ordinary skill and some of the candidates have yet to learn the rudiments of the game, and with but one real seasoned player from two seasons ago Bulkeley not only faces a strong schedule with the timber on hand but the task of getting into condition before the opening game with but a few days of preparation will give the Bulkeley coach plenty to think about in the next few days.

The work accomplished this afternoon was of the preliminary nature only. The purpose of the coach is to get an insight on the material he has on hand. A splitting of the squad into two sections allowed the coach to go through his work in a more effective manner. After the customary warming up manoeuvres, a short scrimmage of five minutes was held. The teams picked by the coach to designate the temporary varsity five and second team, failed to impress the audience with their work during that five minute period of scrimmage.

The scene of the Bulkeley efforts on the marked court will probably be shifted from the Y. M. C. A. where they are allowed but two afternoons a week to the state armory if the armory is secured for practice purposes it will then be possible to get the team into good working order before the first contest with South Kingston High.

RANGERS LOSE GAME TO WATERBURY TEAM

(Special to the Bulletin)

Waterbury, Dec. 1—Whatever chance the New London Ranger soccer team had of remaining in the running for the Protective Cup offered by Joe Booth, popular official of the Connecticut league met with disaster at the hands of the fast Waterbury eleven Sunday. The final tally was 6 goals to 2 in favor of the locals over their Whaling City rivals.

Although the Rangers took the lead soon after the opening kick off, the offense of the Brass City players was too much for the visitors and they had to accept a defeat and elimination from the cup chase. Carlaw for the Rangers opened the scoring festivities with a goal through the drawn in Waterbury defense. But the offense of the New London team, which at times took on a dangerous proportion, never materialized for the Waterburians were too strong and too smart for their rivals.

With a stiff wind at times making play almost impossible, Bowes for the Waterbury eleven sent the ball spinning through for a score that tied up the contest. Albon sent over the score that broke the deadlock just as the half time period sounded. The score standing 2 goals to 1 for the Waterbury eleven.

A stiffer offense was started with the beginning of the second half, and Albon scored his second goal of the game. His score was closely followed by goals from the toes of Thomson, McQuade and Jeffreys. There was no doubt about the final outcome after this quartet of goals, even though Kirkley saved the New Londoners from further humiliation by scoring on one of the breakaways.

Hartford, Dec. 1.—(By the A. P.)—The American association at its annual meeting today adopted its 1925 schedule, discussed a blanket insurance plan for its players and listened to a report of its 1924 season which proved to be the best in the history of the league.

The association will play a 163 game schedule next year, opening on April 14 and closing on September 27 with seven off days inserted for traveling purposes. Milwaukee will open at Louisville, Kansas City at Indianapolis, St. Paul at Columbus, and Minneapolis at Toledo.

The blanket insurance plan, while not definitely adopted, was thoroughly fore the clubs have insured their paydiscussed by the magnates. Heretofore individually, but the cost of such insurance, it was said, can be materially relieved by the adoption of the blanket plan. This insurance will cover injury only. The meeting adjourned without taking any action until tomorrow morning when the magnates will sit again to deliberate to a decision.

President Thomas J. Hickey gave a report for the 1924 season. This association enjoyed the most prosperous season in its history, according to this report, playing to 97,000 more persons than ever before. At the same time, it was pointed out that the worst weather in the history of the league and more postponed games were necessary. Indianapolis showed the largest percentage gain in attendance of any of the teams in the wheel.

The modified draft was not discussed nor was the "best player award" issue touched. The magnates discussed the issue to give ten per cent of the purchase price to players sold to the majors, but action on this was left to the national association meeting.

Those who attended in addition to President Hickey were: George E. Muehlbach, Kansas City; John W. Norton, St. Paul; George K. Beldon, Minneapolis; Otto Borchert, Milwaukee; W. H. Bye, Columbus; William H. Smith, Indianapolis; W. F. Knebelkamp, Louisville and Joseph D. O'Brien, Toledo. They are all presidents of their respective clubs.

HUGGINS WILLING TO MAKE SEVERAL TRADES

New York, Dec. 1.—Manager Miller Huggins of the former champion Yankees is in the field for Urban Shocker of St. Louis, shortstop Boley of Baltimore, a lefthanded pitcher to assist Herb Pennock, a first class catcher and a hard-hitting outfielder, he admitted today while stopping over here on his way from St. Petersburg, Fla., to the minor league meetings in Hartford, Conn.

Shocker, according to Huggins, is on the market and several clubs are seeking his services, but the Yankee Manager believes that New York can offer better trade material than its competitors are able to furnish. He declared, however, that Waite Hoyt, youthful Yankee boxman, will not go to St. Louis in exchange for the premier moundsman of the Browns.

The New York club is ready to buy Boley Jack Dunn at a reasonable price, the little manager stated, for it is realized that Everett Scott, dean of all shortstops, cannot go on forever. Boley, he said, suffered in spirit because he was kept in the minors while at his best game but should regain confidence as a member of a major league team.

Schang needs assistance behind the bat and a capable catcher will be sought among minor league offerings. The lefthanded pitcher is needed for batting practice as the Kankees can not afford to use Pennock for this work.

Huggins found the training turf at St. Petersburg soft and will send his send his ground experts south early in February. The stadium at the training grounds will not be completed for exhibition games in the spring, he said.

BASEBALL ECONOMY WILL BE THE KEYNOTE OF HARTFORD MEETING

Hartford, Dec. 1.—(By The A. P.)—Minor league magnates from the remotest 'sticks" rubbed elbows with their major league brethren on a common stamping ground today in the sustaining "lobbying" which marked the eve of the opening session of the annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Rumors of several minor league clubs changing hands, mediocre stars bringing fabulous sums and legislation which will revolutionize the industry of organized baseball, were heard in the ever-increasing buzz of conversation which predominated throughout the lobby of the convention hotel today. But out of the mass of rumors which eked about the hotel only one bit of qualified news was available—the purchase of Pitcher Eric Erickson, former Washington right hander, by the Toronto Internationals from the Minneapolis club of the American Association.

The deal was consummated by Lawrence Salmon, president of the Toronto club and George Beldon, president of the Minneapolis club. Erickson played semi-professional baseball around the lots at Buffalo last season refusing to report to Minneapolis.

The opening session of the convention is scheduled for one o'clock tomorrow afternoon when the reports of the officers will be read, committees appointed and routine business transacted. This will be an open meeting attended by both major and minor league magnates, managers and players. The Wednesday session will terminate with a dinner at which the major league magnates will be the guests of their minor hosts. The convention will close with the Thursday session.

Los Angeles, Cal., is leading the field in the race for the honor of holding the 1925 convention although John H. Farrell, secretary of the National Association, admitted that he had heard of invitations from at least twenty other cities which will be offered at the final session.

The Los Angeles invitation, which apparently has gained the backing of a majority of the delegates, will be tendered in behalf of William Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs and the Los Angeles Angels. If this city gains the 1925 meeting, sessions will be held in Wrigley's hotel in Catalina Island, just off Los Angeles Asheville, N. C., Dallas, Texas, Atlanta, Ga., and Birmingham, Ala., are also being prominently mentioned but if the bubble of conversation, which has been going the rounds about the Los Angeles invitation, can be taken as a criterion, to the way the convention will swing, the 1925 session will go to the coast.

The "ten per cent." issue entitling minor league players sold to the majors to a share of the purchase price, will be lost in the maze of legislation which will likely be advocated, according to some magnates and may not even be brought before the convention. The International League is known to be opposed to the measure and the American Association is not looking at it through favorable eyes. Minor league magnates said tonight that if the rule is stated, the real purchase of it will be destroyed by the minors tacking on a nextra ten per cent. on the price to cover the player's share.

Talk of club sales included Bridgeport and New Haven of the Eastern League, St. Paul of the American Association and Newark of the International. Walter Hapgood and George Stallings, the Rochester magnates, are casting their eyes over the Eastern League offerings but nothing definite can be determined until George Weiss, youthful New Haven magnate, arrives tomorrow. Weiss, today was quoted in New Haven as saying that the deal for the Oakland franchise of the Pacific Coast League has not definitely fallen through.

George K. Belden, president of the St. Paul club, made no secret of the fact, today, that if ready cash was offered, he would dispose of hi St. Paul holdings. It is understood, however, that the purchaser will keep the club in St. Paul.

The annual sale of the Newark club was also discussed today but nothing authentic could be learned.

Eastern League magnates ridiculed the rumor which rumbled about the lobby of the revival of the old New England League comprising cities in Maine and Massachusetts, but nevertheless the rumble continued.

"Heinie" Scheer, who played second base for the Hartford Senators a couple of seasons ago, was involved in one of the deals uncovered from out of the maze of baseball talk tonight.

Scheer, who was the property of the Milwaukee club last year, was bought by Reading. The purchase price was not made known. The deal was completed by President Bochter, of the Saints and Spencer Abbott, of the "Int" club.

Scheer stayed with Milwaukee only a part of last season, winding up the year in Texas.

"Paddy" Martin, former Philadelphia southpaw, was swapped by Reading to the Portland club of the Pacific Coast League for Clyde M. Schroeder, another southpaw. No cash was involved here.

Rochester bought Third Baseman Batch and First Baseman Weere from the York, Pa club.

DEMPSEY TO FIGHT THREE TIMES NEXT SUMMER

Los Angeles, Dec. 1.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, arrived here today from the east. He says the champion hopes to fight three times next summer and that one of the possible bouts would be in California. Kearns said the schedule called for a match in the spring, one on the Fourth of July and the third on Labor Day. It was not disclosed whom the champion expects to fight.

Weiss Back From West.

New Haven, Dec. 1.—George W. Weiss, president and owner of the New Haven club of the Eastern League, arriving here from Chicago today after conferences on the Pacific coast where negotiations were made for the purchase of the Oakland baseball club, said that "so far as I am concerned the deal is off." Mr. Weiss said he would make no further effort to reach an agreement with the owners of the Pacific League club.

Schroeder Goes to Reading.

Portland, Ore., Dec. 1.—Clyde Schroeder, left handed Portland pitcher, has been traded to the Reading club of the International League for southpaw Pitcher Patrick Martin, formerly with clubs in the Eastern and International Leagues, President Thomas Turner, of the Portland club of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, announced in a message received today from New York.

Brink Elected Aggie Leader.

Storrs, Conn., Dec. 1.—Carl Brink, of New Britain, was elected captain of next year's Connecticut Agricultural college eleven at a banquet here tonight. He is a junior and has played an end position on the varsity team for three years. The Aggies were undefeated this season.

YALE CREWS QUIT THE OUTDOOR ROWING PRACTICE

New Haven, Dec. 1.—At a meeting at the Yale varsity and 150 pound crew squads today, Coach Ed Leader announced the close of the fall rowing season. He said the combination of cold weather and shortness of rowing time made it impractical to continue work out of doors. After the Christmas holiday, rowing practice will be continued in the tanks. A class in body building exercises has been arranged and will continue during the winter months for the men.

On December 10, Coach Leader will start work on new rowing candidates from the football squad, making an effort to develope these men as quickly as possible by personal instruction. A call for such men will be issued soon.

Penn State Grid Schedule

State College, Pa., Dec. 1.—Intersectional games at home with Notre Dame and Michigan Agricultural College, feature the 1925 football schedule of the Pennsylvania State College, announced today.

The schedule includes: Oct. 10, Georgia Tech in Yankee Stadium, New York; Oct. 24, Notre Dame, at home; Oct. 31, Syracuse, at Syracuse; Nov. 7, Michigan Agricultural College, at home; Nov. 26, Thanksgiving Day, University of Pittsburgh, at Pittsburgh.

August Beats Clinton.

Stamford, Dec. 1.—Pete August of Bridgeport outpointed Johnny Clinton, of Brooklyn in a fast 12-round bout here tonight. August carried nine rounds. They are lightweights.

SPORTING NOTES

Insiders seem to think that Irish Meusel of the Giants will be in the livery of the Boston Braves next season.

Eustis, Fla., will be the scene of the Baltimore Orioles' training activities next spring. The Orioles will gather there on March 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. Dugdale observed their 35th wedding anniversary in Seattle, Wednesday, Nov. 20. Many friends and relatives attended the function, which was held at Willard's.

President Al Tearney has called the regular meeting of the Western League club owners for Hartford, Conn., the scene of the convention of the minor leagues, for December 2.

There is a report going the rounds that Walter Mails, eccentric lefthander of the Oakland Coast League team, will be traded to the Chicago Cubs. Big league fans haven't forgot what Mails did for Cleveland when the Indians won the pennant in 1921.

The Louisville Club of the American Association, has purchased First Baseman Pat Crawford from the Chattanooga club of the Southern League. The new Colonel formerly was an outstanding athlete at Davidson college. He is 23 years of age, and was drafted by Chattanooga from the Charlotte club of the South Atlantic league. At present he is coaching the football team of the Gastonia, N. C., high school. Crawford bats and throws right-handed.

Garry Herrmann, president, and Jack Hendricks, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, are in the east trying to swing a deal for a first baseman. The man must be a seasoned player as he has the task of filling the shoes of the late Jake Daubert before him.

Judge Emil Fuchs, vice president of the Boston Braves, has a complaint to make. "Who is trying to sell the Boston team for me?" he asked. "I am sure Christy Mathewson, our president, isn't, and I am sure that I am not. We are both anxious to develop a strong young team and we are preparing for the spring training season at St. Petersburg, Fla."

Rumors have it that Ross C. Harriott, secretary of the Terre Haute club of the Three-I league, has been nominated as successor to A. R. Tearney, president of the league, who resigns February 9. Harriott has been connected with baseball affairs in Terre Haute for the past 20 years.

The Toledo American Association club will pitch its 1925 spring training quarters at DeLand, Fla. DeLand, a fair-sized town, is practically a nest of major and minor league camps, and exhibition games can easily be arranged. The new site is about 30 miles further south than Gainesville, the University of Florida town, where the club trained last spring.

Frank Brower, utility first baseman and outfielder of the Cleveland American League club, has been sold to the San Francisco Seals. Brower was the home run king of the International League a few years ago, and was bought by Washington. He failed to live up to his minor league record as a slugger and was sent to the Cleveland team in a trade for Joe Evans in the spring of 1923. The past season Brower alternated at first base with George Burns, and also played several games in the outfield. With the Seals he should prove a good man.

Diamond-studded gold watch fobs will be presented to members of the Washington Senators by Commissioner Landis as an additional reward for their victory over the New York Giants for the world's championship. The fob is about an inch and one-half from top to bottom and an inch wide. In the center is a miniature of the national capitol with its massive dome. On either side is a gold American eagle. At the bottom are two white enameled bats. At the point where they cross is a white baseball. In the center is a diamond. The fob is finished in red, white and blue enamel. Over the top is the word Washington in gold letters on a blue background, while at the base appear the words, "World's Champions, 1924."

Since drawing his release from the Fort Smith club of the Western Association, Runt Marr, who managed the club the past season, has received offers from Fort Worth, wanting him to play third base; Topeka, as 1925 manager; Hartford in the Eastern League as third baseman; Des Moines, as player, and Blackwell, Okla., as manager.

ing committee will not map out a definite program until late this week or early next week. Meanwhile, however, the senate will give attention to Muscle Shoals, which comes up Wednesday under a special order. The present expectation is that it will be sent back to the agricultural committee.

While new legislation of importance will be proposed and take its place on the calendars with much that came over from the last session, there is little prospect of action on many matters other than the supply bills. The republican insurgents still hold the balance of power and their leaders have declared they will continue a drive for their program with a view to taking their fight to the country again two years hence, when the 70th congress is to be elected.

Whatever of increased bitterness that may have come out of the recent campaign is more apt to find expression in the senate. The republicans there have read out of their party councils those senators on their side who actively opposed the election of President Coolidge.

All four of those senators were present today. Despite a rather severe cold, Senator LaFollette was in his place in the front row when the senate met. He arrived from Madison in the morning and was greeted at the senate chamber by a number of his colleagues, including Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, who was his running mate on the independent presidential ticket.

Senator Wheeler received a hearty welcome from many of his colleagues on the democratic side. Coincident with his return, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the minority leader, said there was no intention at this time of reading Mr. Wheeler out of the party because of his acceptance of a place on the independent ticket.

Senator LaFollette had no comment to offer on the action of the republican conference. Likewise, it was said that he had not discussed procedure with members of the insurgent bloc and consequently had formulated no specific program of action. It was added, however, that, as previously announced, the senator would continue his fight for what was characterized as progressive legislation.

When the gavels fell in the house and senate promptly at noon today there were the usual opening day crowds in the galleries. Mrs. Coolidge and a party of friends occupied the president's seats in the senate gallery.

There were three vacant seats in the senate because of the passing of three of the most familiar faces in that body—Senators Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, Frank B. Brandegee of Connecticut and LeBaron B. Colt of Rhode Island.

Two of these seats later were filled by the swearing in of new members—William M. Butler to succeed Senator Lodge and Jesse H. Metcalf to succeed Senator Colt. A third new senator, Rice W. Means of Colorado, also took the oath of office administered by Senator Cummins of Iowa, the president protempore. Mr. Means succeeds Alva B. Adams of Colorado, who was defeated in the recent election.

After Senators Curtis of Kansas, the republican leader, and Robinson of Arkansas, the minority leader, had been named to join with the committee on notification of the president, the senate adopted resolutions on the death of Senators Lodge, Colt and Brandegee and then adjourned out of respect to their memories. Senator Wesley L. Jones of Washington was elected by Senator Curtis as party whip.

With the one exception, in the adoption of the Wilson memorial resolution, the house procedure was identical. Four new members were installed, the republican and democratic leaders, Longworth of Ohio and Garrett of Tennessee, were named to the notification committee, and resolutions of respect to the dead members —Representatives Greene of Massachusetts, Little of Kansas and Mudd of Maryland, all republicans. Adjournment then was taken out of respect to their memories.

On the roll calls there were 10 absentees in the senate and 61 in the house. One vacancy in the senate, that caused by the death of Senator Brownlee, is yet to be filled while one of the five members elected to fill vacancies in the house failed to appear to take the oath of office. He is John C. Allen, republican, Illinois.

As a result of elections to fill vacancies, the democrats made a net gain of one in the house, a democrat succeeding to the vacant republican seat in Maryland. A republican, however, took over one seat in the senate that had been held by a democrat.

With one vacant seat in the senate, the lineup there now is: Republicans 51, democrats 42, and farmer-labor 2.

When representative Allen takes his seat, the house lineup will be: Republicans 224, democrats 208, farmer-labor 1, socialist 1, and independent 1.

This leaves the republican insurgents still holding the balance of power in each house.

Senator Cummins of Iowa is in line for the chairmanship of the judiciary committee, but he may give way for this session to Senator Sterling of South Dakota, who has had an active part in the presentation of reports from that committee, particularly those dealing with prohibition matters.

DR. CARLETON SIMON TALKS ON TONG WARFARE

Hartford, Dec. 1.—Dr. Carleton Simon, special deputy police commissioner in New York, in charge of narcotic work there and an honorary member of the Hip Sing Tong, who lectured before the Hartford Women's club this afternoon, could throw no light on the reason for the tong coming to Hartford for a victim as it did last Wednesday. Dr. Simon, who has been active in the attempts to bring about peace between the warring tongs, is of the opinion that the present outbreak of violence which has cost over twenty lives in New York, two here and others elsewhere, will end in a determined police campaign against the tongs.

A tong, he said, is a Chinese secret fraternal society. He is the only white man who is an honorary member of the Hip Sings and, he said, they do not tell him anything about their plans. A good deal of blackmail is mixed up in the tong warfare, in his opinion, and the tong killers, instead of being men honored by selection by lot to avenge the wrongs of their society who consider their life well lost if given after they have slain their foe, are similar to the gunmen of the American underworld—paid murderers. The current quotation of tong killers, he said, is $500 a job.

The trouble caused by the present outbreak and the difficulties with which the police are hemmed in one sides in their attempts to solve the murders were cited by Dr. Simon as an indication of what trouble might result from unrestricted Oriental immigration.

A sergeant of the New York narcotic bureau who accompanied Dr. Simon said that since the outbreak of the tong battle Chinese had shown more disposition to oppose the work of the narcotic men by armed force. He exhibited a .32 calibre revolver, made to resemble an ordinary jackknife and a wicked looking knife with a six-inch blade, taken from Chinese arrested by narcotic agents.

THREE PERSONS INJURED IN TROLLEY CAR ACCIDENT

New Haven, Dec. 1.—One girl is dying and two men are injured, one possibly fatally, as the result of a collision between a trolley car and a motor truck in Orange avenue, West Haven, tonight. Those injured are: Miss Jennie Marando, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Marando, West Haven; William Jacques, motorman, New Haven, and Frank Burns, West Haven.

The girl, who was thrown to the floor of the trolley car is suffering from a fractured skull. She is not expected to recover. Jacques received a fracture of the pelvis and Burns was treated for contusions of the left arm and chest.

Investigation disclosed that the truck was headed into a garage at the time of the accident. The rear end is said to have protruded out into the street in the path of the trolley car. Motorman Jacques said he did not see the truck until he was almost upon it.

Thomas Marshall, driver of the truck, was dismissed by the police after his examination. Burns was said to have been riding on the truck.

N. H. ALDERMEN LIMIT ONE MAN TROLLEY CARS

New Haven, Dec. 1—By a vote of 24 to 5, the New Haven board of aldermen tonight approved a proposed ordinance making it unlawful to run the double truck type of one man cars on the city streets. It has been reported that if the ordinance is approved by Mayor Fitzgerald, the Connecticut company will appeal to the public utilities commission.

BALLOT CASE SIMILAR TO THAT OF HAMILTON HOLT

Meriden, Dec. 1—A case somewhat analogous to that of Hamilton Holt, whose right to have his name on the ballot for United States senator is being questioned, occurred in the Meriden city election in December 1911. There were three candidates, Daniel J. Donovan, republican, Dr. C. H. S. Davis, democrat and Francis Atwater, independent.

Atwater was nominated within less than three weeks preceding election, and it was held by the republican and democrat leaders that his name could not legally appear upon the ballot. The question was submitted to Attorney General John H. Light. His opinion was to the effect that the statute was directory and not mandatory, so Atwater's name was printed on the ballot.

This case differs from that of Hamilton Holt in that while Atwater was nominated later than required by the statute, Holt was nominated in time, but notice of his nomination was late in reaching the secretary of state.

REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENT IN REVAL OF SHORT DURATION

Reval, Esthonia, Dec. 1.—(By the A. P.)—A revolutionary movement in Reval today engineered by communists, was short lived, but a heavy toll of life was taken in two hours of fighting. The insurrection has been suppressed, all is tranquil in the capital, and no disturbances are reported from other sections.

General Laidoner, the new commander-in-chief of the army, announced in the chamber tonight that five officers, three cadets, two soldiers and three policement were killed, and three officers, seven cadets and three more soldiers were severely wounded. In all, the wounded number 40 or more, and sixty communists are under arrest.

The foreign minister issued a communique this evening, reading:

"Communists this morning tried by force of arms to seize the general staff headquarters and official buildings. The insurrection was suppressed immediately. Two hours later order was completely restored. Other parts of the country are quiet."

The fifth police station was destroyed by the communists, while stubborn fighting occurred at the central police station, which is in the neighborhood of the war office. The communists appeared in groups of ten or fifteen men. At the railway station, however, they were in stronger force, and the building was only recaptured by government troops after a severe engagement.

Heavy fighting also occurred at the cadet school, where two cadets were killed and nine wounded. A training officer was shot down in the street. Tanks and armored cars were employed against the revolutionaries, but were withdrawn after a few hours. Military patrols are guarding the public buildings.

Already a number of those arrested are on trial before a court martial; some of them had passports for abroad.

TWO MEN DROWNED WHEN AUTO PLUNGED INTO RIVER

Webster, Mass., Dec. 1.—Two men were drowned and a woman narrowly escaped death here today when the automobile in which they were riding skidded backward down a steep incline on a detour road between here and Worcester, plunged through the rail of a bridge and landed wheels upward in the Quinebaug river. The driver and the two passengers were pinned under the car.

The dead are Alexander Wolf and Paul Rosenberg, both of Boston. The woman, who gave her name as Rose Levine of Worcester, was taken from the river unconscious but suffered no other injuries than those consequent to immersion in the cold water, it was said.

CHICAGO'S FIRST DAY AS COTTON MARKET CENTER

Chicago, Dec. 1.—Success greater even than expected was the verdict of trade authorities here tonight at the end of Chicago's first day of business as a cotton market center. Transactions for the day totaled about 55,000 bales, and President Frank L. Carey and other board of trade officials expressed themselves as elated over the smoothness with which the new market functioned.

The varied character of the sources of today's dealing in cotton was a special subject of comment. It was asserted that the representative nature of the trade gave plentiful indications of board future use by manufacturing, distributing and speculative interests.

HOLT NOMINATION PAPERS REACH SECRETARY OF STATE

Hartford, Dec. 1.—The morning mail at the secretary of state's office brought a certificate, signed by A. B. Lynch, of New Haven, secretary of the democratic state central committee, and bearing the official announcement that Hamilton Holt, of Woodstock, was the party's nominee for United States senator.

The certificate should have been in the office by midnight Friday and Secretary of State Pallotti was to have a conference today with Attorney General Healy to determine whether or not the name of Mr. Holt may be printed on the ballots for the special election December 16.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office, 771 Main Street
Telephone 1131
Office Hours: 9:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 5 p. m.

For the first time in many years a sizeable delegation of men prominent in business circles about town attended the special city meeting held Monday afternoon at the town hall, the merchants making up the larger part of the thirty-one voters present. The budget of the city expenses for the ensuing year was adopted with increases for the making of permanent improvements on West Main street and purchasing a motor chassis for the fire department. John E. Brick introduced a resolution to add $10,000 to the budget for the permanent improvements. A discussion ensued regarding which item this appropriation should be charged to. Some were in favor of having it added to the originally sanctioned appropriation of $28,000 on the street trap rock and road roller department and others believed that it should appear as an additional separate item. The former course was followed by a vote. The sum of $1,500 was added to the fire department appropriation of $25,000, the extra money to be used in purchasing a truck chassis on which will be mounted one of the former horse-drawn chemical and utility wagons of the Hilltop Hose company. Since the wrecking of one of the wagons of the Hose Co. No. 2 Montgomery organization Thanksgiving eve the Hilltop truck has been transferred to the No. 2 headquarters on Jackson street and it is planned that it should remain there after being motorized. This will leave an unused ladder truck and the wrecked wagon in storage in the Hilltop house. Alderman James J. Lee brought up the motion for the fire apparatus appropriation. The annual reports of the city officers were accepted. The session lasted one hour and ten minutes. Acting Mayor George W. Hickey presided and City Clerk James S. Donohue was clerk.

The annual roll call for renewals had new members of the Willimantic chapter of the American Red Cross came to a successful close Saturday. Over $300 was collected, this amount being considered a fine showing in view of the fact that there were no many other appeals for financial assistance being stazed during the roll call period. There was no canvassing for members, the contributions being made solely in answer to the appeal. Largely responsible for the local success of the call are Lieutenant James J. Lee, chairman of the committee and Captain Frank P. Fenton, chairman of the local Red Cross chapter. Local stores where subscriptions were received during the drive and Miss Sabra Stoughton who was in charge of the Red Cross booth at the Windham National bank have been extended a vote of thanks by the committee. The number of members is 445 and the actual amount received was $537.

The Willimantic Bazaar and Trade Exhibit which will be held at the state armory, Dec. 4, 5 and 6 has many unique and interesting features which serve to distinguish it from another bazaar to be held here this year. Just to mention a few. There will be a turkey supper in the dining room of the armory on Thursday evening. Addresses will be delivered by city officials and prominent local citizens, followed by a musical program of high order supported by reading by Mrs. Charles H. Beebe. A baby parade will be held on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, followed by a mothers' reception in the room arranged for doll exhibits. Saturday is the closing day with afternoon and evening programs. A novel feature on Saturday will be the presentation of Joint Owners in Spain, a play with a cast of Windham High school students. The play was given at a meeting of Lyceum at the school recently and is exceptionally interesting and enjoyable. The allotted floor space for exhibitors which constitutes the entire north side of the drill shed with assignments in the center of the hall was quickly taken over by local trades people representing automobile salesmen, shop keepers, electric light fixture salesmen, and many others. Another delightful novelty will be the presence of a Miss Willimantic, a Miss Windham and a Miss Connecticut whose identity will be unknown and who will appear respectively on the first, second and third nights of the bazaar. The names of these three representatives of the city, town and state will be known only to the committee who selected the ladies and anyone guessing who the person is from the gathering will be awarded a prize. Admission tickets are to be given to the children of the three public grammar schools of the city to give them an opportunity to enjoy the bazaar on Thursday and Friday afternoons at the expense of the executive committee.

There are those, among them, Chairman Laramee of the fire department, who are registering as opponents to the movement to motorize one of the old fashioned horse-drawn fire trucks for use at the Jackson street engine house. They advocate the disposal of the Hilltop building, which has been in disuse for a few years past and also of the brick building on Jackson street. The aim of these opponents to the proposed movement is to centralize the entire fire fighting apparatus in one location, namely the Bank street engine house. The Jackson street company consists of volunteer members some of whom are truck drivers for the city street department. With the sale of the old apparatus and the two buildings enough funds could be derived to purchase a fine and completely equipped utility truck which could be housed at the Bank street house with the making of slight alterations on the building. A steel support in the center of the main floor of the latter building now forbids the use of considerable floor space and it is believed that this post could be eliminated by the placing of girders under the second floor. It is contended further that with a fully motorized department the upkeep of three or even two buildings is unnecessary and that the apparatus can reach the scene of a fire as quickly from one location as from another. The proponents of purchasing the motor chassis point that the equipment on the wagon is in fine condition, having had but little use and that when once mounted on a truck will make a fine piece of apparatus.

Depredations by a Willimantic woman on a beautiful spotted alder a few days ago on the lawn of one of the old homesteads of Hebron rightly irated the owner of the bush who recovered the broken twigs, but, in her own words, "could never replace the symmetrical beauty of the shrub." The woman had come to Hebron from this city in a Ford truck and the driver of the truck called at the store in Hebron and placed a card in the window advertising a coming entertainment here. While the driver was busy the woman walked onto the lawn of the house and calmly proceeded to help herself to a nice armful of twigs from the bush which was prettily adorned with the red berries. The matter was reported to the owner of the house and the recovery was made. The local woman gave as an excuse that the house appeared uninhabited.

Lack of knowledge of the fact that there is a sharp turn in the state road in South Windham accounted for another collision of an automobile with the elm trees on the Holmes estate in that town Sunday night when a car owned and operated by Leo Paul Archambeault of 1 Post Road, Waterbury missed the turn and struck one of the trees. The radiator and steering gear on the car were damaged and the driver was forced to spend the night in this city to await repairs. The police were notified of the accident.

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, Dec. 1—The Andover Dramatic Club will entertain at a dinner in Grange Hall, Wednesday evening, the State Players from the Connecticut Agricultural College, their director, Professor Seckerson, and representatives from all the surrounding towns having an organized Dramatic Club. The Andover Dramatic Club has been organized only a short time, and has already a membership of over sixty. Persons representing surrounding towns will come from Lobanon, Hebron, South Coventry, North Coventry, Willington, Columbia and Windham. The State Players will give a one-act play written by Eugene O'Neill and entitled "Ile". The play is a tragedy centering around a homesick woman on board a whaler in the north seas.

Its soothing healing action is brought about by qualities which cause it to sink deep into the pores and reach the very root of the disorder. It is absolutely harmless and does not smart or burn when applied to the most irritated surface.

To keep the skin healthy many people have adopted the daily use of Resinol Soap. Unsurpassed for toilet and bath. All druggists sell Resinol products.

Puny Babies Can Grow to sturdy children

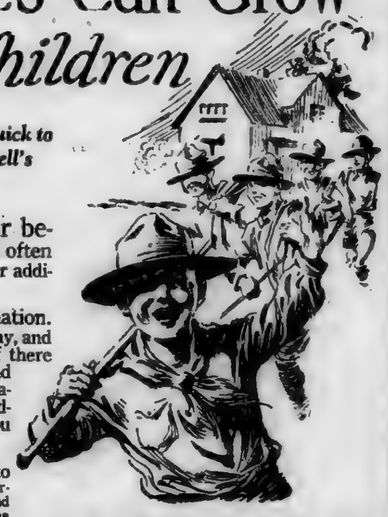
Note which foods best agree. Be quick to stop constipation with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin



PARENTS need not despair because a baby is frail. Progress often rests upon the most trifling change in or addition to the diet.

Watch diet, digestion and elimination. There should be two or three stools a day, and as solider food is eaten, one or two. If there are less, and there is belching, wind, bad breath, symptoms that indicate constipation, give half a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and by morning you will have a healthy youngster again.

Not all laxatives, however, are suited to young children, as many contain opiates and narcotics. Syrup Pepsin is entirely free from them, and is a simple vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. The formula is on every package.

Experienced mothers like Mrs. T. Breeman, 65 Lewis St., Paterson, N. J., and Mrs. Walter Morris, Shively, Ky., have discarded all other laxative medicines for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. They find that this mild, gentle laxative answers every purpose and is a great improvement over the old-style harsh cathartic pill and calomel, which children hate to take.

Buy a bottle of Syrup Pepsin at a drug store, the cost being less than a cent a dose, and if it does not come up to these claims your money will be refunded.

A laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can be used by all members of the family, for it is safe and yet effective. It has been successfully sold for over thirty years and is today the most widely used general laxative in the world, over 10 million bottles being bought by the public annually.

Use it for constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, flatulence, indigestion, headache, fevers and colds, and all other disorders associated with imperfect or infrequent passage. Many people use it regularly once a week as a mild flushing of the bowels, and in that way escape the dangers of constipation altogether. Just a spoonful now and then is a wonderful stabilizer of health.

Free Sample Bottle Coupon

There are people who very rightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. Let them clip this coupon, pin their name and address to it, and send it to the Pepsin Syrup Co., 518 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them postpaid by mail. Look at the array of talent shown in this advertisement. All the care-free gaiety of Broadway, of State Street, of "Main" Street, is concentrated in Victor Records. NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Plans were being made for the drafting of a constitution for New Mexico 75 years ago and Mr. Skinner, originally a Connecticut man, was the leader of the people of that state.

Connecticut was being urged to vote a sum of money to purchase a block of stone for the Washington monument.

Tuesday, November 27, 1849—We are glad to announce that cars commenced running with passengers and freight yesterday, between the city of Hartford and Willimantic. There are now two trains each day from Hartford for Willimantic and two running the opposite direction. It is expected that the 9.20 o'clock train out of Willimantic will connect with the 11.30 o'clock out from Hartford and New Haven road for New York.

We also understand that the New London and Willimantic road yesterday commenced running so as to connect with the Hartford and Willimantic trains both ways. Trains leave Norwich at 7:30 and 2 o'clock for Willimantic and at 8 and 3 for New London.

It has been announced that arrangements have been made with the post office department to express the president's message to New York and Boston. No estimate can be given as to the time the message will make its appearance.

We have just heard that a telegraphic plough has been invented that will make it possible for telegraph wires to be run under rivers safe from anchors. The Express has seen the plow and claims that if it is practical it is certainly a wonderful invention even in this 49th year of the 19th century.

The National Washington Monument. The obelisk of this monument is now 48 feet high above the surface of the earth. It is 55 feet square cased with marble, with walls 15 feet thick, leaving a circle of 25 feet. Many of the states of the Union have already responded to the invitation of the board of managers for blocks of stone to be deposited inside the monument as a lining to the main case. We hope that the legislature of this state at its next session will make an appropriation for a block of her "free stone" for the monument.

The Enterprise, Capt. Sir James Clark Ross and the Investigator, Capt. Bird, have sailed off Scarborough without having found any trace of Sir John Franklin or his party. During the trip they were without sun for about 80 days and the temperature was 48 degrees below zero, Farenheit.

New Mexico will form a state constitution and ask for admission into the union in the course of another year. Mr. Skinner, a lawyer residing in Santa Fe, originally from Connecticut has visited Washington for the purpose of making arrangements for this event. The only trouble New Mexico faces is a question of boundary. Texas claiming the cream of the land. Slavery will not be prohibited in the state constitution.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

RELIEVE CONSTIPATION

Used Kellogg's Bran 2 months—constipation gone after suffering 3 years

Three years of suffering with constipation. What happiness was his when Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, restored his health. But read his letter.

"Dear Sirs:

. . . this is what I think of your krumbled bran. I would not be without it for anything in the world. . . . for three years I used all kinds of medicines for constipation, and only got temporary relief. I was advised by a doctor to use Kellogg's Bran, and since I began using it I don't have to take pills or anything else. I have used it two months, and my constipation has left me. I feel better now than I have for three years."

(The original of this letter is on file at the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Mich.)

Kellogg's Bran brings results because it is ALL bran. You can't fight constipation with halfway measures—with brans which are only part bran. It takes ALL bran to be 100 per cent effective.

Because Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran it sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It acts naturally—just as nature acts. It stimulates the intestine and makes it function regularly. It is guaranteed to bring results, or your grocer will refund your money.

Kellogg's Bran has a delicious nut-like flavor. Quite different from ordinary, unpalatable brans. You will like it as a cereal, sprinkled on other cereals, cooked with hot cereals, or in the recipes given on every package.

Eat two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's Bran every day—in chronic cases, with every meal. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

PLAN INVESTIGATION OF EFFICIENCY OF NEW LONDON POLICE DEPARTMENT

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Dec. 1—The city council this evening started the machinery to ascertain whether or not the police department of the city is efficient. The matter came to the council on motion of Councilor Whiton that a previous resolution which was laid upon the table should now be taken up and acted upon. The matter was so treated and a motion was made and adopted to the effect, in substance, that the city manager shall investigate the department and appoint a committee of three which shall have the authority to engage counsel if so desired to engage stenographers subpoena witnesses and secure the production of papers as desired. There was some discussion as to the employment of counsel and it was decided that only in the event of emergency arising should other counsel than the city's director of law be called upon. Councilor Fox did not think it was necessary to put the city to the expense of hiring outside counsel, when it was pointed out that the wording of the motion did not contemplate hiring outside lawyers except some contingency should arise that would make such a course necessary. The motion raising the inquiry provides that the hearings shall be in chambers so that there shall be only such persons present as are desired.

The Lions Club through its secretary asked for the development of the Calkins park and the Green's harbor beach and the appropriation of a sum of money as deemed necessary. The question involves the construction of an underpass beneath the railroad tracks of the New Haven railroad, a matter that has before been brought to the attention of the council and laid aside. The matter was finally referred to the planning board.

The council went on record as favoring the placing of an exhibition of the city of New London in Columbia, but tabled a communication presented as not being an official communication from the government of Colombia.

When the matter of the mechanical device for the direction of traffic at the corner of Bank and State St., was brought before the council, Manager Holt explained that the device was of local manufacture and was placed at the corner to exhibit it. The device was too high in location and is to be taken down, he said, as not adapted to the needs of New London traffic.

When the council adjourned the members held an executive session to consider plans and specifications for a proposed school building at Mercer and Williams street.

Morton and because of the statement made by Logan the former charge was nolled and the minimum fine of $10 was imposed on the latter charge.

Logan was arrested following his machine crowding another machine off the highway at a time when Logan's car was being operated at a speed estimated at 40 miles an hour. All of the headlights of the city's fire apparatuses have been equipped with a red bulb so that when the apparatus is responding to an alarm of fire at night that automobilists or operators of trolleys cars approaching from the opposite direction than that being travelled by the fire apparatus, may be quickly informed of the approach of the speeding fire companies. De Vault has been a soldier and has been in some serious scrapes because of his brutality. De Vault alleges that Bruno became nauseated from drink at the De Vault residence and that he was sent to the toilet where he fell and where his nose came in contact with a porcelain bowl, the fall causing the damage sustained by Bruno. To account for the possession of Bruno's watch De Vault says he found it hanging from the pocket of Bruno and that he took possession of it so that Bruno would not lose it. He denies absolutely that he intended to steal the watch.

They were taken into custody, but no sooner were they landed at the police station than a bond was provided and they were released. They both deny that they applied the name alleged to Gorman, but they heard some one else apply it. They did hot know the significance of the cognomen. The case did not get to trial but was adjourned till the 3d of next February, and the accused were released without bail.

JEWETT CITY

Fire of an undetermined origin on the LaBarre farm destroyed a large barn, two small store houses and a shed at an early hour Monday morning. A valuable horse in the barn was down in his stall and the first men to arrive could not save him. The loss, including tools hay, wood and furniture, that were also burned, will reach about $1,200. Hermedes LaBarre, the owner, says he cannot account for the occurrence of the fire. The doors wer closed and locked at 9 o'clock in the evening. Night Patrolman Henry Viegarde passed the LaBarre place on his 1.15 a. m. round and saw nobody, and noticed no irregularity on Palmer street at that hour. Earl S. Hiscox who lives a couple of blocks distant, was awakened by a snapping sound which he first thought was rain on a nearby tin roof. Seeing the light and then the blaze he turned in the alarm.

The first to arrive at the fire he found one end of the large barn already ablaze. When the fire company had lived 1,200 feet of hose was laid, there was a wind stirring and the blaze was confined to the line of buildings where it started, several houses close by being saved. Chief Wakely, still weak from a recent operation, was on the job and ordered the second alarm at 2.35. The engine driver of the Harlem River express freight, on the Providence division across the Quinebaug must have seen the fire shortly after leaving South Canterbury station. He sounded the New Haven's fire code whistle, continuously, all the way to the Lisbon depot.

To him the blazing building would have been in full view as he rounded the curve, a mile or more northwest of the town. His persistent warning was remarked by many.

The theory is that some one for it was a sharp night) sought shelter in the barn, and by careless smoking caused the fire.

The highest hydrant in the town was tapped for the stream used in the east attack, and Chief Wakely was not altogether satisfied with the pressure. Fire Marshal G. H. Prior was present and he withe several citizens gave what help they could.

The big fire whistle awakened people in Voluntown seven miles away, Monday morning yet local residents under the very shadow of the Ashland chimney slept undisturbed, by its stentorian blasts, that must have startled the very dead.

School children will commence to sell Christmas seals this (Tuesday) noon to help raise money to be used in the town and state to help tubercular patients. It may mean many trips to the door, but it is helping the children to work for others, who are sick. Many people encourage the children by buying a few seals from each child, not a large number at one time. After the seals are bought, the place to use them is on the back of letters, not thrown in the waste basket.

Charles Edw. Prior of Hartford has in his valuable collection of post cards two of local interest, that have been sent here for friends to see. One, copyrighted in 1909 by Rutherford B. Hayes, portrays the "New London of the Future." Looking up State street, from the depot the N. Y., N. H. and Hartford trestle is seen with a big engine, attached to a mail car, a baggage car and a string of Pullmans, possibly the Merchants or the Knickerbocker, passing over the city. On the left hand, and on the right, of the soldiers monument, are to be seen the entrances of the subway with tunnel trains for East Lyme and Norwich. The card besides being valuable is a decided novelty, and serves to forecast conditions that were hinted at, and even mentioned as possibilities, at the time of the controversy relative to the steam railroad approaches to the city of New London. It is doubtful if a duplicate of this card is in existence.

The other card settles an oft discussed local question, in regard to certain Masonic usages. Relative to this one Mr. Prior writes:

"I was on a boat the "Anthemis," on Lake Memphremagog a few years ago, going from Newport, Vt., to Magog, P. Q. As we were passing Owl's Head Mountain, some one mentioned the fact that Masonic lodges sometimes met there and worked their degrees—some of the party were rather sceptical. One gentleman, a Mr. J. E. Davidson, from Georgiaville, P. Q., said he had a post card that would prove the truth of the statement and that he would mail it to me. He kept his word as you will see."

The card, a masterpiece of color, was printed in Germany, in the "auto bellum" days, and shows fifty or more of the craft, clad in white gloves and aprons, standing at different points of vantage among the clefts of the rocks that rise to a height of 20 feet, among a thickly clustered growth of pines.

MAKE TRIP TO PLAY GOLF BUT SNOW ENDED HOPES

(Special to The Bulletin)

Jewett City, Dec. 1.—Thanksgiving day two young men, one from Jewett City, the other a guest from Norwich laid their plans to play golf at Pomfret. They bundled themselves up, as it was decidedly chilly, and motored towards Pomfret. As they proceeded north, it began to be some chillier, and then some, and, when they finally got there, half frozen, they did not know exactly whether they found the North Pole or where they were at, for there were three inches of snow on the links, and the wind evidently blew off an iceberg. They did not stand on the order of [illegible] but [illegible] like a summer resort in comparison.

Probably some men meander around all night for the purpose of satisfying themselves that there is no place like home.

WESTERLY

The regular December meeting of the Westerly town council was held in the council chamber of the Westerly town hall Monday morning at 9.30 o'clock, when there were present Council President Campbell and Councilmen Morrison, Utter, Rossi, Fowler, Nichols and Smith, Council Clerk Whipple and Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr.

Announcement of a council meeting on Thursday evening at 7.30 in the town hall for the purpose of considering the matter of building restrictions in the town of Westerly was the first announcement from the council following the reading of previous meeting minutes.

Charles L. Fontana appeared before the council in the question of granting him a permit to erect a filling station at the corner of High street and Railroad avenue. Having secured the names of George E. Egger, Michael D. G. Papalia, Westerly Lumber company, N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R., Peter DePeri, E. J. Stillman, A. M. Greene and J. P. Vincent, eight of the ten, the other two of whom he had not seen, the building committee had given their consent and the council voted its approval. Also having hte sanction of the committee, Natale Sicilliano will be allowed to open a store at 80 1-2 Oak street on property owned by Joseph Gabrielle.

Having been sanctioned by the building committee, building permits were voted by the council granted to Angelo J. Cappuccio, Pierce street; H. Louise Ayers, Weekapaug; Robert P. Chase, Post road; Solomon Soloveitzik, Pleasant View; Phoebe W. P. Buffum, Weekapaug; Samuel Hartridge, Pleasant View, and Leon W. Bliven, north of Dunn's Corners.

A vote prepared by the building committee of the council was offered by Councilman Utter was voted passed by the council to engage the services of an expert for the purpose of establishing a comprehensive zoning plan, which involves a prospective map and ordinance, revision of tentative map, public hearing on ordinance, consulting and personnel and to be cared for by town officials the drafting work, accounting, typing and rewriting, printing and the transportation of those engaged in the work. In contract made out on the usual form for Robert Whittem, who is away, by Charles F. Fisher, the cost price given was $1,200, to be paid at the rate of $300 each month until $900 is due, this balance to be held until on certification of the planning board the work is completed, the balance to be paid in 60 days. It was the opinion of Solicitor Ferguson that the council could vote to recommend that the work be gone ahead with. Councilman Utter thought the payment should be made from the miscellaneous fund and Solicitor Ferguson said the town planning fund was the legal source. Councilman Nichols asked if the work could be gone ahead with without having a specified sum for the purpose, and the town solicitor said that it could be gone ahead with as stated and the Westerly financial town meeting vote the amount of a sufficient sum to make it legal. Councilman Smith said that he favored a zoning plan of a comprehensive nature. Councilman Nichols thought that a lot of money would be needed to pay for maps, and Councilman Utter said that many of the maps were already prepared by the tax assessors and city planning money could be used. It was voted by the council.

A lengthy preliminary argument preceded the opening of the bids for the Bradford and Avondale unused school properties which were turned over to the council by the Westerly school committee to be disposed of, as were not needed for school purposes.

President Campbell stated to the council that he had been approached by Wilfred Ward of the Rhodesia Dyeing association with the proposition that the Bradford schoolhouse be used for a Bradford Community house, and by C. Palmer Chapman, master of the Rhode Island State grange, that the property might become available for the Avondale grange, which had used the building for their meetings for a number of years.

Councilman Rossi asked the town solicitor if the council had a right to sell the school properties on that day (Monday) and was informed that the council could. President Campbell said it was up to the council mmebers to decide what was best in the disposition of the properties for which bids were asked. Councilman Rossi thought if the bids were opened that the property should go to the highest bidder and President Campbell directed that the bids be opened. In looking up the terms of the bidding Solicitor Ferguson said that authority was voted by the town to the council to sell the property and that a decision was not called for until Dec. 10th. The opening of the sealed bids showed the following for Bradford property: Peter A. DeRocco, Bradford, $2,600; Frank H. Bliven, Charlestown, $3,000; Michael Capalbo, Bradford, $3,500. Frank L. Terranova, $2,500; Nunzlato Vuono, Bradford, $4,000; and later the bid of Antone L. Algiere was found and opened for $3,500. For the Avondale property there was but one bidder, J. Hobart Chapman, Avondale, $2,005.

Mrs. W. H. Burdick of Moss street, Pawcatuck, appeared before the council relative to a dislocated shoulder which she received in a fall at the corner of High and Broad streets on July 9th as she was on her way to the Westerly town hall and crossing from the Briggs building, sustaining a broken arm. Town Solicitor Ferguson said that he would like to question Mrs. Burdick, that he might advise the council. Councilman Rossi said he objected to Mrs. Burdick's being cross-examined and thought the matter should be taken up with the highway department, and Solicitor Ferguson stated that he had no idea of cross-examination, that it was only from the consulting of all the parties involved that he could give his opinion.

Dr. Thomas E. Robinson, milk inspector of the town, reported that 107 samples of milk had been taken during the past year and that four herds of cattle which supply the greater amount of milk to the town had been tested and found free of tuberculosis. Only four complaints had been received, and his report expressed the opinion that the families of Westerly are getting clean milk.

Dr. Samuel C. Webster, health officer, reported two cases of scarlet fever.

Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown reported six arrests for the past month. One was for manslaughter, one for driving while intoxicated, three for intoxication and one for lighting a fire.

At the request of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown the license of Max Mukuick, a fruit peddler, was revoked, it being stated that Mukuick had been taken into custody for participating in a gambling game Sunday night.

By papers on file in the office of the Westerly town clerk, it appears that on Nov. 24th Everett D. Cottrell deeded to Daniel F. Fitzgerald of Quincy, Mass., a lot or parcel of land between the Pond road, so-called, and the east side of Burden's pond. On Nov. 25th the Washington Trust company conveyed to John W. Opie of Westerly three lots of land on the south side of the Post road near Dunn's Corners. On the same day the F. W. Coy Real Estate company and Charles P. Ecclestone gave title to Ida DeRocco of a lot or tract of land between Cross and School streets; John W. Opie sold to W. Russel Dower a lot or parcel of land on the south side of the Post road, between the residence of the former and the Dunn's Corner school, and John W. Opie also deeded to James Dowd a lot on the south side of the Post road and east of the Dower lot. On Nov. 26th John W. Opie sold to Arthur Dubrelle and John Galin a lot on the south side of the Post road and Jennie R. Mellor deeded to Guiseppe Capalbo a tract or lot of land No. 175 Fairview park.

Breed Theater

The most satisfying picture of the year, describes Metro's special production, Revelation, which will be shown the last times today at the Breed. Story, cast and direction, are all three of extraordinary worth, so that the spectator comes away from the theater feeling that he has seen something head and shoulders above the ordinary feature.

Motion picture fans have been saying all along that the crying need is better stories. They are answered in Revelation, for the story, which was written by Mabel Wagnalls, is a classic of the screen, and is destined to stand out as one of the milestones in film history.

With such a story to work on, the chance was there to make a great picture, and G. D. Baker, the director, never let an opportunity slip by. His good taste and tenderness in handling the subject is always manifest.

The picture is superbly acted by a real all star cast that includes such favorites as Viola Dana, Monte Blue, Lew Cody, Marjorie Daw, Frank Currier, Edward Connelly, George Siegmann, Kathleen Key, Otto Matieson, Bruce Guerin and Ethel Wales.

Other pictures on the bill include Al St. John in Never Mind and the Pathe news.

Billy "Single" Clifford, in songs and stories kept up the fast comedy pace and kept all in good humor.

Jim McLaughlin and Blanche Evans On a Little Side Street proved to be a riot of laughter. Humorous songs and dancing rounded out a fine act.

Something different in quartettes is what you'll witness when you see The Exposition Jubilee Four presenting A Southern Breeze of Mirth and Melody.

Rudolph Valentino's new Paramount picture, A Sainted Devil, today and Wednesday at the Broadway theater.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED

New York, Nov. 1—A heavy wave of profit taking just before the close of today's market checked the upward movement of prices, which today entered upon its fifth consecutive week. Closing quotations revealed a curious mixture of gains and losses with the latter predominating. Bullish operations during the early part of the session lifted 51 stocks to new high records for the year.

Trade news was decidedly mixed in character. Favorable items included the establishment of new high record for the year by zinc prices, reports of increased operations in the steel and motor industries, announcement of higher copper, gasoline and naptha prices and an increase in the coal output. Adverse items included publications of an increased European beet sugar crop estimate, an increase in the Southern California Oil output, announcement of a cut in automobile prices by one of the large manufacturers, a reduction in the quarterly dividend on Stromberg Carburetor from $2 to $1.50 and higher money rates.

Profit taking was particularly effective in the pivotal industrials and rails, losses of one to three and one half points being recorded by United States Steel common, which dropped from 118 1-4 to 116 1-2, Baldwin, United States Cast Iron Pipe, American Locomotive, American Sugar Refining, Anaconda Copper, Bethlehem Steel, Canadian Pacific, Rock Island, Consolidated Gas, General Motors, Mack Trucks, Marland Oil, Seaboard Air Line preferred, Standard Oil of California, Stromberg Carburetor, Texas Gulf Sulphur and United States Rubber.

Chief interest in the motor group centered in the strength of Jordan which advanced 3 3-8 points to a new 1924 high record at 45 7-8, selling above Studebaker for the first time. Accumulation of this issue was based on reports of record breaking earnings, Studebaker, General Motors and Hudson also attained new peak prices, but they were unable to maintain all their gains.

Several strong spots developed in the railroad group. Kansas City Southern was bid up more than four points to 39 1-4 but fell back later to 36 3-4, where it was up 1 3-4 on the day. Baltimore & Ohio, also scored an extreme gain of more than 2 points at 74 3-8, also a new top. Other rails to better their previous maximum prices were Atchison, Union Pacific, Frisco common, "Katy" common and preferred, and Southern Railway preferred.

Bullish demonstrations continued throughout the day in a number of public utilities and specialties. American Water Works soared nearly 13 points to 140, a record and then eased to 133 3-8 while the new stock touched a new peak price at 28 1-4. Iron Products preferred jumped more than ten points to 110, and the common climbed 5 1-2 to 69. United States Realty common closed 5 points higher at 124 but the preferred showed a net loss of 2 1-4 at 116 3-4.

Among the many other issues to sell at new high prices were H. K. Mallinson, Marine common and preferred, Famous Players common and preferred, American Smelting, Kennecott Copper and Simmons company, the last named moving up in reflection of an increase in the dividend.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firm tone. Demand sterling ruled nearly 1 1-2 cents higher around $4.63 3-4 and French francs advanced 4 1-2 points to 5.44 1-2.

Call money renewed at 3 per cent, and then advanced to 3 1-2 in reflection of the heavy demand for funds incidental to first of the month operations. Time money rates were slightly firmer, the bulk of the business being done at 3 1-2 per cent. Which also was the ruling rate for prime commercial paper.

CURB MARKET

New York, Dec.—1—Oil shares turned reactionary in today's curb market and the rest of the list eased in sympathy although independent strength was shown by several public utility and radio stocks which mounted to new high levels for the year.

Prairie Oil and Gas broke four points to 200 1-2 and losses of a point or more too place in International Petroleum, Galena Signal, Imperial of Canada, Vacuum, Red Bank and Standard Oil of Kansas. Standard Oil of Indiana, the most active feature, closed 3-4 lower at 60 3-4.

American Power and Light was the outstanding strong spot in the public utility group, rising more than 3 points to a new high at 56 3-4 and then easing to 55 1-8. American Gas & Electric and Commonwealth Power also touched new top prices while Lehigh Power securities advanced two points and then cancelled its gain. Middle West Utilities was heavy, closing 2 1-2 points lower at 75.
